A WONDERFUL ... d
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON II. July 8th. PASSING OVER JORDAN. (Joshua iii, -5 17.)

God promised Joshua to be with him and help him. Joshua and the people were standing by a river. God said to Joshua, "Go, over this Jordan, thou and all the people." How could they cross? There was no bridge, and they had no boats. Does it seem a hard thing to do? Joshua saw it all, but God said, "Go." He saw the women and the little children, but he trusted God. So Joshua told the priests to take the ark and go into the deep water. The ark held God's law, and it must go first. It was taking God with them. So the priests went into the river, and, O, a great wonder happened, the waters divided when they came in, and the blessed ark with God's word went before, and the people all followed through the Jordan on dry land. God was with them. If he had said to go through a river he could find a way.

How sure they felt that God was leading them. How they must have praised God and felt safe. Do you see how the text suits the lesson? "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee." The people saw no way, but they just obeyed. That is all we need. God tells us just how to live, and promises to care for us to take us to heaven. May be you are poor, and hungry sometimes. Then it is just to do the very best you can and trust God for the rest. He made a way for his people through Jordan, and will make a way for us all to reach heaven, our promised land, if we only do as they did—obey him. He asked no questions, but just believed. That is the way God wants his children to do, for God never breaks a promise or makes a mistake.—Western.

DEATHS.

On May 31, Bro. Spencer Wells received fatal injuries from the bursting of a steam mill. He joined the church several years ago, and was prepared for death.

JOHN EANES.

New Albany, Miss.

Sister Matilda Mavey died June 6, 1883. She was born Oct. 15, 1826. She has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church 45 years. Sister Mavey was a faithful member of the church, we believe she has gone to rest in heaven. She was much beloved by all the people who knew her. A. PHILLIP'S

Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Sister Bettie Barney, an old and faithful member of the Church, died June 6, in full triumph of faith. She leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss.

The Lord has seen fit to take Sister Rennie Patent from among her relatives and friends here, to join with heavenly friends. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss. A. BUTLER.

Deerbrook, Miss., June 10.

Brother Willis Curtis, a local preacher of St. Paul M. E. Church, Jeannerette, La., died June 6. Revs. E. Fields, A. Moore, and other ministers conducted the funeral services. Bro Curtis aged 66 years, had been preaching the gospel about 40 years, and was one of the most active workers in the church. He became old and feeble, and his sickness was a lingering one, but eyes were fixed upon his future home. He leaves a wife and two sons. E. FIELDS.

Somebody's Child.

Somebody's child is dying—dying with the flush of hope on his young face, and somebody's mother thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it—because there was no cure for for consumption. Reader, if the child be your neighbor's take this comforting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is curable; that men are living to-day whom the physicians pronounced incurable, because one lung had been almost destroyed by the disease. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured hundreds; surpasses cod liver oil, hypophosphites, and other medicines in curing this disease. Sold by druggists

Political and other persons at Tomsk, Siberia, numbering thousands, are dying rapidly from typhoid diphtheria, the disease first appearing in vessels which brought convicts to the place.

It is seldom that you will feel unwell or suffer from indigestion if you use Brown's Iron Bitters.

A Puppet theater at Dervio, a town on the Lake of Como, took fire Sunday evening during the performance, and forty-seven persons perished, while twelve others were wounded.

COLORLESS AND COLD.—A young girl deeply regretted that she was so colorless and cold. Her face was too white, and her hands and feet felt as though the blood did not circulate. After one bottle of Hop Bitters had been taken she was the rosiest and healthiest girl in the town, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of mind gratifying to her friends.

WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF PURE COD LIVER
OIL AND LIME.

... and Lime has now been before the public twenty years, and has steadily grown in favor and appreciation. This could not be the case unless the preparation was of high intrinsic value. The combination of the Phosphate of Lime with pure Cod Liver Oil, as prepared by Dr. Wilbor, has produced a new phase in the treatment of consumption and all diseases of the lungs. This article can be taken by the most delicate invalid without creating the disgusting nausea which is such an objection to the Cod-Liver Oil when taken without Lime. It is prescribed by the regular faculty. Sold by the proprietor, A. B. Wilbor, Chemist, Boston, and by all druggists

Editorial Notes.

The Boston University graduates this year 144.

Occasionally we find a person in the church like the little boy, who is very agreable if allowed to have his own way, but disagreable when he could not.

At the late Republican convention of Iowa, when Hon. J. A. Kasson said, "The Republican party proposes to have a school house on every hill and no saloons in the valley," the applause was deafening.

Judge Maughn, one of the leading Republicans of Texas, and one of best citizens of Marion county, was assassinated Monday night, July 2. He was an important witness in certain election cases before the United States Court. His death cables a profound impression in Marion and elsewhere.

The whisky men sought to evade the increased tax upon whisky by exportation to the Bermunda Islands, from whence they would reimport to the United States. The decision of the Attorney General has rendered the attempted evasion of no avail. They must now pay freight and storage in addition to the tax.

Says the Union-Signal, of Chicago: "Dorsey, rushing from the scene of his "star route" triumph to the nearest saloon ought to be put on record by Nast. The juror, taken with delirium tremens in the court room and plied with brandy till he could vote for acquittal, might figure in another caricature. All to illustrate "the way we live now."

We suppose that the Church still has need of nurses, persons who will have care of the young in the tender years of infancy and see that their needs are all supplied. All in the Church should be cared for according to their condition. Christ gave command to Peter concerning both his lambs and his sheep. But it is a misfortune that many who come to Christ remain in a weak and helpless condition. "I have fed you with milk and not with meat," wrote Paul. And why? "for hitherto ye were not able to bear it" and he adds, "neither yet now are ye able to bear it." The causes of this weakness are numerous. On the part of some, it is the short time they have been in the church. On the part of others, it is the result of some previously so [illegible] habit. With others, the fault may be with the preacher who [illegible] feeds the [illegible] fine. The people have [illegible] doctrine. Not sectarian doctrine, but the doctrine of Christ. It is no use to play upon their passions and sympathies. Their minds and hearts need to be stirred. They need the truth, a clear exposition of the doctrines of salvation by faith alone. The house that stands has its foundation not in mud but upon a rock. Others are weak because they live not only in the world but try to be somewhat like the world. Certainly there is no necessity for this great number of weak ones in the church. And this time we are in need of leaders. Oh, for leaders. An army composed of invalids under the care of nurses is not much to be feared. Give us strong men and women and leaders, not "cranks," nor "I can'ts," but leaders who love God and souls but hate sin.

Birmingham, Alabama, is one of the most rapidly growing inland cities South of the Ohio. In 1871 the city was incorporated with a population of seven hundred; its present population is over twelve thousand, a marvelous increase in twelve years. Its geographical situation makes it one of the best central inland locations for commerce in the South. Then it is in the midst of an inexhaustible supply of ores and coal. It has two of the largest blast furnaces in the South, turning out over 150 tons of pig iron per day. Three others of equal capacity have just been finished, and in a few weeks will be in blast. The increase of business done at the postoffice is indicative of growth. In 1881 the sale of postage stamps was $2,535 40; in 1882, $3,508 92. The city has three well organized public schools and several private schools. Thirteen churches—five Methodist, four Baptist, two Presbyterian, one Episcopal and one Roman Catholic. It must be an important centre and we hope that the authorities of our Church will be wise in their plans for the future.

The one great need of our churches everywhere is a great continuous revival of religion, of converting and sin-killing power. We need an outpouring of the Holy Spirit that will effectually drown with a deluge of love all the feuds and divisions and make enemies love and embrace each other. We have little faith in mere fits and starts, comes and goes. We venture a suggestion here. We want a revival that begins with the pastor. We like a preliminary work of deep heart-searchings attended with secret prayer and wrestling with God on the part of the pastor, for personal preparation. The pastor needs to get his own heart fully right. Many wonderful revivals have sprung from a covenant between the pastor and his wife, to pray together for their own personal religious improvement.

The secret of Mr. Wm. E. Dodge's power lay in the first hour of every morning. That hour he gave to God with his Bible and on his knees, and if he came down among business men with his face shining with cheerfulness and loving kindness, it was because he had been up in the mount in communion with his master.—Cuyler.

A citizen of Gardner, Maine., who died recently, it is said, left a fund of $2,000 to a Methodist church of the village provided that society would give up its church sociables.

Another Blow To Be Aimed At Our Schools

The time for the annual paring of the resources of our public schools is at hand, and people have begun to talk it up, and get the press to write it up. One would think it the accepted policy on the part of officials reponsible for the admistration of our public affairs to work for as much of the proposed illiterate fund to be appropriated by Congress as possible. To that end, or for some other reason not so creditable or honorable, every possible occasion is seized upon to reduce the city school fund, and decrease the facilities for educating the children. The appropriation has been reduced from an aggregate of more than half a million of dollars a year to $185,000, which has never been paid, and probably never will be. It is now proposed to dismiss teachers, give up leased school-houses, advance the minimum age of qualification of pupils to enter, and otherwise pinch, pare and scrape, in order to bring the total expenses within the parsimonious appropriation which has been set apart for school purposes. Having once succeeded in reducing the force and thus paved the way for further encroachments, the next step is to again reduce the estimates in the budget. And this game of paring has been carried on so long that our once first-rate system of public education has been almost destroyed. Our schools have been robbed for political purposes. The money which should be sacredly devoted to their maintenance is given to private institutions in violation of the spirit and the letter of the constitution. The apportionment of money from the State has ceased altogether, so far as this city is concerned; the public school fund has been taken to pay the interest on the public debt and the salary and office expenses of a State Superintendent whose position is a sinecure. The Governor and the Attorney General, under his direction claim and exercise the right to control the educational fund, and these gentlemen have never given us any evidence that they are zealous friends of popular learning, unless it be of that thin and watery kind that is taught in Sunday schools. The Governor is even suspected of hostility to free public schools, though we hope there is no foundation for such a damaging imputation against the Cheif Executive of an American State.

Instead of cramping our city school system into narrower limits it should be enlarged and improved. Any public spirited member of the Council with an honest and determined purpose to uphold the cause of education, could easily find a place for $250,000 in the budget for it. Take the $185,000 now allowed, and add the items for unnecessary, even improper expenditure, and the thing is done. But it never will be done under the political influences which now prevail at the City Hall. As long as it pays to sacrifice duty to policy, it will be done, and the only remedy is for the people to take care that it does not pay.—N. O. City Item.

The Independent Satae convention met at Jackson, Miss., on the 14th, Benj. King, of Copiah, was chairman. Only 15 counties were represented. Gen. Chalmers addressed the convention, and spoke of a Lynch-Lamar fusion. The President's Southern policy was endorsed.

Rev. L. C. Matlack, D. D.

The Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Advocate writes: The Rev. L. C. Matlack, D. D., is a name so familiar to us that it seems as though he was one of our own Conference. We mourn most of all that we shall see his face no more. He passed from his pastoral charge in Cambridge, Md., to his heavenly home last Saturday night.

He was born in Baltimore in 1816. When a young man he removed to this city, and was converted in Union Church. At 20 he was licensed to preach, and recommended to the Conference for admission. Every thing was in his favor. His gifts, grace, and usefulness were above the average, his physical frame commanding, and his face exceedingly attractive. But there was one serious defect—Brother Matlack was an abolitionist, and he was unanimously rejected. This was in the year 1837. The next year he again was recommended; this time his case was referred to an able committee of three for private examination. "Are you an abolitionist? Do you belong to an anti-slavery society? Would you preach against slavery?" These were the questions. The answers given by Bro. Matlack may be gathered from the report of the committee. "On his own confession he is an abolitionist."

In January 1839, his license was withheld for the same reason. He continued to preach, however, principally among the colored people, who heard him gladly.

In June of the same year, on the invitation of the Revs. Timothy Merritt, O. Scott, and others, he went to New England, was licensed, recommended, and received into the Annual Conference in 1830. He waged unceasing war against the aggressions of the slave power in Church and State, and in three years afterward he, with others, went outside the Church to plant their batteries, and organize the Wesleyan Methodist Connection on the platform of opposition to slavery and universal freedom. He fought on this line for 20 years, on the rostrum, in the pulpit, and by the pen.

On the breaking out of the rebellion he entered the Union service as a chaplain, but was soon transferred to the fighting ranks as Major. Never was a sword wielded by a stronger hand or backed by a nobler soul. For services in the field he was brevetted Colonel of the 17th Illinois Cavalry. In 1864 he was on duty as Provost Marshal of St. Louis. The Iron-Clad Constitution of Missouri was in force, requiring all professions to make oath of their allegiance to the Union before they could practice medicine, law, or preach. The first preacher that appeared before the Provost Marshal to take the oath was one of the committee who had reported against the reception of the abolition preacher into the Philadelphia Conference more than 20 years before. The war over, the Union re-established, and slavery abolished, he directed his energies for two years toward uniting the minor bodies of Methodism preparatory to a union with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Failing fully to accomplish this, he, with about 100 other ministers, left the Wesleyan body and joined various Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1867 he was unanimously invited to join the Philadelphia Conference. To this he cheerfully consented, after serving Central for a season, and was stationed at Elkton in 1867-68. In 1869, at the request of Bishop Simpson, he consented to go to New Orleans, was transferred and made presiding elder of that district. Failing health compelled his coming North, and he was re-transferred to the Wilmington Conference in 1872. Here he was pastor of Grace Church for one year, three years of Middletown, two years of Bethel, four years presiding elder of Wilmington District, and in 1883 stationed at Cambridge, Md. Dr. Matlack was a man of commanding presence, six feet high, an attractive preacher, and thoroughly conscientious and faithful in preaching the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as he saw and believed it.

The almost unpardonable negligence of many of our preachers to the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN may be illustrated by the following dialogue between an attache of this office and a member of one of our churches:

Representative of SOUTHWESTERN.—"Do you belong to any church?"

Church member—"Yes, sir, I belong to the Mythodist Episcopal Church at ——, and Bro. —— is the pastor."

Rep. S. W.—"Why, I am glad to know that. I am well acquainted with Bro. ——, your pastor; I visited his charge last year and secured a good list of subscribers to our church paper, the SOUTHWESTERN. Don't you take it?"

Church Member—"What was the name of the paper?"

Rep. S. W.—"The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, published at New Orleans."

Church Member—"Oh, yes, I think I remember of such a paper now; but it has been such a long time since I heard any talk of it, I had almost forgotten all about it."

Rep. S. W.—"Almost forgotten all about it, did you say? Why, I am surprised. Does not Bro. ——, your preacher in charge, speak of it every week or two, from the pulpit and in the homes of his people, and seek to get subscribers for it?"

Church Member.—"No sir; this is the first time I have ever heard anything about the paper since Bro. ——, our former pastor, moved to another charge two years ago. He used to speak of the paper very often, but since his removal I have not heard a single word about it. Some even tried to get our present pastor to get the paper for them but he neglected the matter so often that they have been discouraged; and now I don't think it comes to any one in our church."

Such careless negligence is almost unpardonable. Come, now, brethren, you who have been doing nothing or next to nothing for your church paper, roll up your sleeves, go to work and send us a long list of subscribers.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

To the Memory of a Good Man.

The subject of this sketch was born in Maryland in 1810, and was brought to Louisiana at the age of ten years by Col. James Bindworth, with whom he lived until the death of this gentleman, which occurred in 1852. He was then owned by Mrs. Dr. F. Johnson and was well known and always respected by the white and colored people of Natchitoches. At the close of the war, which gave him his freedom, he began his new era with the determination of continuing the life of truth and honesty which had already won for him the respect and entire confidence of all who knew him, and never did he swerve from the narrow path which he had marked out for himself.

Always a consistent member of the Methodist Church, he for years occupied a position of trust in the "Lutheran Benevolent Society," and discharged the duties of his office with that scrupulous honesty which always characterized his life. In May, 1882, after seventy-two years spent in honest labor, he felt the icy touch of death, and left this world, as he had always lived, full of faith in the promise of his Redeemer and confident of hearing the glorious welcome of "well done thou good and faithful servant." His remains were followed to the grave by by a large concourse of people, and the societies of which he was an honored member were well represented. According to the rules of the Methodist Church a memorial service was held on the anniversary of his death, and a sketch of his life was given by Revs. Reese Thompson and Wright, the pattor. The church was draped in black and everything was done to honor the memory of a truly good man. He lived and died in the fear of a just God, and though an humble servant, he is certainly a man worthy the respect of all. "May he rest in peace."

Natchitoches, June 18, 1883.

The Strongest Drink.

Water is the strongest drink. It drives mills; it's the drink of lions and horses, and Samson never drank anything else. Let young men be teetotalers if only for economy's sake. The beer money will soon build a house. If what goes into the mash-tub went into the kneading-trough, families would be better fed and better taught. If what is spent in waste were only saved against a rainy day, workhouses would never be built. The man who spends his money with the publican, and thinks the landlord's bow and "How do you do, my good fellow?" mean true respect, is a perfect simpleton. We don't light fires for the herring's comfort, but to roast him. Men do not keep pothouses for laborer's good; if they do, they certainly miss their aim. Why, then, should people drink "for the good of the house?" If I spend money for the good of any house, let it be my own, and not the landlord's. It is a bad well into which you must put water; and the beer-house is a bad friend, because it takes your all and leaves you nothing but headaches.

He who calls those his friends who let him sit and drink by the hour together is ignorant—very ignorant. Why, red lions, and tigers, and vultures are all creatures of prey, and why do so many put themselves within the power of their jaws and talons? Such as drink and live riotously, and wonder why their faces are so blotchy and their pockets so bare, would leave off wondering if they had two grains of wisdom. They might as well ask an elm tree for pears as look to loose habits for health and wealth. Those who go to the public-house for happiness climb a tree to find fish.—Rev. Mr. Spurgeon.

But it never will be done under the political influences which now prevail at the City Hall. As long as it pays to sacrifice duty to policy, it will be done, and the only remedy is for the people to take care that it does not pay.—N. O. City Item.

The Independent Satae convention met at Jackson, Miss., on the 14th, Benj. King, of Copiah, was chairman. Only 15 counties were represented. Gen. Chalmers addressed the convention, and spoke of a Lynch-Lamar fusion. The President's Southern policy was endorsed.

Rev. L. C. Matlack, D. D.

The Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Advocate writes: The Rev. L. C. Matlack, D. D., is a name so familiar to us that it seems as though he was one of our own Conference. We mourn most of all that we shall see his face no more. He passed from his pastoral charge in Cambridge, Md., to his heavenly home last Saturday night.

He was born in Baltimore in 1816. When a young man he removed to this city, and was converted in Union Church. At 20 he was licensed to preach, and recommended to the Conference for admission. Every thing was in his favor. His gifts, grace, and usefulness were above the average, his physical frame commanding, and his face exceedingly attractive. But there was one serious defect—Brother Matlack was an abolitionist, and he was unanimously rejected. This was in the year 1837. The next year he again was recommended; this time his case was referred to an able committee of three for private examination. "Are you an abolitionist? Do you belong to an anti-slavery society? Would you preach against slavery?" These were the questions. The answers given by Bro. Matlack may be gathered from the report of the committee. "On his own confession he is an abolitionist."

In January 1839, his license was withheld for the same reason. He continued to preach, however, principally among the colored people, who heard him gladly.

In June of the same year, on the invitation of the Revs. Timothy Merritt, O. Scott, and others, he went to New England, was licensed, recommended and received into the Annual Conference in 1830. He waged unceasing war against the aggressions of the slave power in Church and State, and in three years afterward he, with others, went outside the Church to plant their batteries, and organize the Wesleyan Methodist Connection on the platform of opposition to slavery and universal freedom. He fought on this line for 20 years, on the rostrum, in the pulpit, and by the pen.

On the breaking out of the rebellion he entered the Union service as a chaplain, but was soon transferred to the fighting ranks as Major. Never was a sword wielded by a stronger hand or backed by a nobler soul. For services in the field he was brevetted Colonel of the 17th Illinois Cavalry. In 1864 he was on duty as Provost Marshal of St. Louis. The Iron-Clad Constitution of Missouri was in force, requiring all professions to make oath of their allegiance to the Union before they could practice medicine, law, or preach. The first preacher that appeared before the Provost Marshal to take the oath was one of the committee who had reported against the reception of the abolition preacher into the Philadelphia Conference more than 20 years before. The war over, the Union re-established, and slavery abolished, he directed his energies for two years toward uniting the minor bodies of Methodism preparatory to a union with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Failing fully to accomplish this, he, with about 100 other ministers, left the Wesleyan body and joined various Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1867 he was unanimously invited to join the Philadelphia Conference. To this he cheerfully consented, after serving Central for a season, and was stationed at Elkton in 1867-68. In 1869, at the request of Bishop Simpson, he consented to go to New Orleans, was transferred and made presiding elder of that district. Failing health compelled his coming North, and he was re-transferred to the Wilmington Conference in 1872. Here he was pastor of Grace Church for one year, three years of Middletown, two years of Bethel, four years presiding elder of Wilmington District, and in 1883 stationed at Cambridge, Md. Dr. Matlack was a man of commanding presence, six feet high, an attractive preacher, and thoroughly conscientious and faithful in preaching the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as he saw and believed it.

The almost unpardonable negligence of many of our preachers to the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN may be illustrated by the following dialogue between an attache of this office and a member of one of our churches:

Representative of SOUTHWESTERN.—"Do you belong to any church?"

Church member—"Yes, sir, I belong to the Mythodist Episcopal Church at ——, and Bro. —— is the pastor."

Rep. S. W.—"Why, I am glad to know that. I am well acquainted with Bro. ——, your pastor; I visited his charge last year and secured a good list of subscribers to our church paper, the SOUTHWESTERN. Don't you take it?"

Church Member—"What was the name of the paper?"

Church Member—"Oh, yes, I think I remember of such a paper now; but it has been such a long time since I heard any talk of it, I had almost forgotten all about it."

Rep. S. W.—"Almost forgotten all about it, did you say? Why, I am surprised. Does not Bro. ——, your preacher in charge, speak of it every week or two, from the pulpit and in the homes of his people, and seek to get subscribers for it?"

Church Member.—"No sir; this is the first time I have ever heard anything about the paper since Bro. ——, our former pastor, moved to another charge two years ago. He used to speak of the paper very often, but since his removal I have not heard a single word about it. Some even tried to get our present pastor to get the paper for them but he neglected the matter so often that they have been discouraged; and now I don't think it comes to any one in our church."

Such careless negligence is almost unpardonable. Come, now, brethren, you who have been doing nothing or next to nothing for your church paper, roll up your sleeves, go to work and send us a long list of subscribers.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

To the Memory of a Good Man.

The subject of this sketch was born in Maryland in 1810, and was brought to Louisiana at the age of ten years by Col. James Bindworth, with whom he lived until the death of this gentleman, which occurred in 1852. He was then owned by Mrs. Dr. F. Johnson and was well known and always respected by the white and colored people of Natchitoches. At the close of the war, which gave him his freedom, he began his new era with the determination of continuing the life of truth and honesty which had already won for him the respect and entire confidence of all who knew him, and never did he swerve from the narrow path which he had marked out for himself.

Always a consistent member of the Methodist Church, he for years occupied a position of trust in the "Lutheran Benevolent Society," and discharged the duties of his office with that scrupulous honesty which always characterized his life. In May, 1882, after seventy-two years spent in honest labor, he felt the icy touch of death, and left this world, as he had always lived, full of faith in the promise of his Redeemer and confident of hearing the glorious welcome of "well done thou good and faithful servant." His remains were followed to the grave by by a large concourse of people, and the societies of which he was an honored member were well represented. According to the rules of the Methodist Church a memorial service was held on the anniversary of his death, and a sketch of his life was given by Revs. Reese Thompson and Wright, the pattor. The church was draped in black and everything was done to honor the memory of a truly good man. He lived and died in the fear of a just God, and though an humble servant, he is certainly a man worthy the respect of all. "May he rest in peace." ——

Natchitoches, June 18, 1883.

The Strongest Drink.

"Water is the strongest drink. It drives mills; it's the drink of lions and horses, and Samson never drank anything else. Let young men be teetotalers if only for economy's sake. The beer money will soon build a house. If what goes into the mash-tub went into the kneading-trough, families would be better fed and better taught. If what is spent in waste were only saved against a rainy day, work-houses would never be built. The man who spends his money with the publican, and thinks the landlord's bow and "How do you do, my good fellow?" mean true respect, is a perfect simpleton. We don't light fires for the herring's comfort, but to roast him. Men do not keep pot-houses for laborer's good; if they do, they certainly miss their aim. Why, then, should people drink "for the good of the house?" If I spend money for the good of any house, let it be my own, and not the landlord's. It is a bad well into which you must put water; and the beer-house is a bad friend, because it takes your all and leaves you nothing but headaches.

He who calls those his friends who let him sit and drink by the hour together is ignorant—very ignorant. Why, red lions, and tigers, and vultures are all creatures of prey, and why do so many put themselves within the power of their jaws and talons? Such as drink and live riotously, and wonder why their faces are so blotchy and their pockets so bare, would leave off wondering if they had two grains of wisdom. They might as well ask an elm tree for pears as look to loose habits for health and wealth. Those who go to the public-house for happiness climb a tree to find fish.—Rev. Mr. Spurgeon.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

F. D. Bookman, Prairie Plains. "We had a grand time in the Sunday-school, collected $5.55; grand, as to the result, in the improvement of our scholars since last year. We endeavored to encourage them from time time up to the day of proceedings and promised them we would publish in the SOUTHWESTERN" the names of each of the scholars, and the number of verses they were able to recite from the Bible. Endeavoring to make all things, pleasant and delightful, we decorated the church with flowers, ever greens and various kinds of vines. As the weather was unfavorable in the morning, we did not start at the usual time, after making an appropriate address to the scholars we proceeded to business. The names of those who recited and the number of verses repeated are as follows:—Sallie Carington, 185 verses; Randy Bookman, 183; Mattie Carington, 161; Betty Parker, 150; Israel Bookman, 121; Ann Nowlin, 108; Richard Doaks, 81; Robt. Bookman, 60; Horace Ward, 55; Frances Carington, 53; Stephen Curtis, 49; Belle Carington, 48; Davey Bookman, 25; Armstead Magee, 25; Mattie Reddin, 24; Hester Raglin, 23; Annie Raglin, 23; Nettie Redden, 22; Julia Ann Woods, 22; Clara Rankins, 21; Davey J. Bookman, 19; Lucretia Ward, 18. These 22 scholars recited 1472 verses from the Bible. We are anxious to learn from you, if any other Sunday-school scholars in the U. S. recited a larger number of verses on "Children's Day." Please inform us as we desire to make known the fact to our scholars. All who can read the "SOUTHWESTERN" for themselves are awaiting your reply. Please don't fail to give us this information. Trusting the Lord will bless you in your labor of love, and that your life may be spared for many years."

M. V. [illegible], [illegible]: "Our pastor, Rev. [illegible] L. [illegible], has done good work on this charge to bring [illegible]. We had a fine Sunday-school picnic but a [illegible] and [illegible] Children's Day. We realized $[illegible]."

LOUISIANA.

W. A. [illegible], [illegible] Point: "The weather prevented some of the children getting out, but some were present on Children's Day, and we collected $[illegible]. They are delighted with Sunday-schools."

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches: "We enjoyed and were under many obligations for the visits made us this week, Monday, June 17. Rev. Reese Thompson, of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Shreveport, preached a splendid sermon in memoriam of Bro. George Henry. The church was crowded. The colored firemen turned out in full uniform. At 3 p. m. Rev. Tennessee Jackson, of Simpson Church, New Orleans, preached in memoriam of Sister Fanny Yarborough. At 7 p. m. Rev. Frank Harvey, of Fairfield, preached to a good house. During this day, after Bro. Harvey's sermon, Bro. Thompson administered the Lord's Supper, assisted by Bros. Jackson, Harvey and myself; 87 partook of the sacrament. Rev. A. [illegible] was with us during the day. We realized $23.60. Our church here is entirely too small for the congregation. We have the matter before the Trustees, and later in the fall we will decide. The [illegible] leaves this place 12 miles [illegible], which has caused it to be on the [illegible] grade so far as business is concerned."

MISSISSIPPI.

T. A. Cotton, Paulding: "Pre[illegible] Elder Campbell was with us [illegible] preached an able sermon. [illegible] Supper was administered to [illegible]. Collection $3.35. Sunday-[illegible] are all in good standing [illegible] supplied with books. We [illegible] over 300 books this [illegible] are [illegible] of church [illegible] Sunday-school."

TENNESSEE.

[illegible], Martin: "The next [illegible] West Tennessee District conference will be held here instead of at Gardner, and the camp meeting will be on Aug. 25-26, the closing days of the conference."

J. A. Wade: "Our second quarterly conference convened at Cedar Spring, in a small school house, as we have no church house at that place Rev. P. Brooks presided and gave a very interesting talk. On Sunday he preached a rousing sermon to a large congregation, and we were forced to accommodate the people in a grove. The elder was with us at Friends Hill; on Monday night a love feast was held, and a grand lecture given on temperance. Collections $11.40."

W. S. Butler, Gallatin: "We made great preparation to have a grand rally on Children's Day, but the heavens seemed to open and to let loose all the terrible elements; the rain came down in torrents. We were unable to have the exercises until night and then to a small congregation. Our collection was $1.30. There was a memorial read on the death of one of our teachers. About 125 scholars were enrolled, and 90 in regular attendance. The following is the memorial:

"We meet to-day to pay the last tribute of love and affection to our departed sister, Lizzie Miller. She was born July 1857, died Nov. 1882, making her nearly 27 years old. She was converted at the age of ten, lived a consistent Christian up to her death, leaving behind her a glorious testimony of faith in God and acceptance with Christ. Her whole life has been one of true Christian devotion. As a child she was a faithful Sunday-school scholar, and when she grew to riper age, she was faithful to her duties as a teacher. In recognition of her faithfulness and zeal for her church, she was elected a member of the Board of Trustees, which she filled with honor to herself and profit to the church. Few lives can show a more active and busy career than here. Her relations to those with whom she came in contact were always pleasant and kind. Ever ready to give a pleasant word and a smile to every one.

> "A perfect woman, nobly planned;
> To warn, to comfort, to command.
> The reason firm, the temperate will,
> Endurance, foresight, strength and skill."

And it truly can be said, "None knew her but to love her." In looking over this good and noble woman's life we truly can say, woman is God's noblest and best work. While we may never see her smiling and pleasant face, her kind and gentle words on earth, we trust and hope her life has not been spent in vain. She has written no books, nor done anything the world calls great, but her consistent Christian life, and gentle influence speaks more than volumes. The good influence which shehas left behind will last throughout eternity. Her life more forcibly impresses upon us the grand lesson, that the Christian life is one of great activity, and full of works and faith in God. Also it teaches us that the Christian life is a great grand school; ever teaching us to lead a grand, pure, and noble lives. We trust that she is to-night in that sweet Beulah laud waiting and watching for us around the throne of God. singing the sweet hallelujahs, "I am saved, the Lord has saved me, help me scout the glorious news; I have tasted God's salvations, and 'tis sweet as honied dews. Her life is worthy of imitation by every young woman. And as she was true, pure, good, noble, try to imitate.

Consequences of Calumny.

Who can arrest a calumnious tongue, or who can stop the consequences of calumnious misrepresentation? You may refute it, you may trace it to its source and expose its authors, you may sift every atom, explain, annihilate it, and yet, like Greek fire, it remains unquenched and unquenchable; or like weeds, which, when extirpated in one place, sprout forth vigorously in another spot. Half-truths are often more calumnious than whole falsehoods. Not a word may be uttered, but a half suppressed innuendo, a dropped lip, an arched brow, shrugged shoulder, a significant look, an incredulous expression of countenance, nay, even an emphatic silence, may do the fiendish work; and when the light and trifling thing which has done the mischief has fluttered off, the venom is left behind to work and [illegible] and fester, to inflame hearts, to fever human experience, and to poison human society at the fountain springs of life.—F. W. Robertson.

Shreveport District Second Round.

MR. EDITOR:—I commenced my second round at Cotile. Bro. H. Wallace is pastor. Though he has had quite a hard time he is doing well and is preparing to rebuild the church which was blown down on the 28th of April; $50 has been subscribed for the purpose. After a few hours ride I reached Shreveport, and held Bro. Reese Thompson's second quarter, May 25. The church is doing well, both spiritually and financially. Bro. Thompson is a wide-awake pastor, and is holding the fort at this point. Class No. 1 has 30 members, and raised $17.65; class 2, 25 members $15.25; class 3, 38 members, $16.65; class 4, 40 members, $18; class 5, 40 members, $24.25; class 6, 19 members, $10.75; class 7, 46 members, $18.40; class 8, 19 members, $10.40. The pastor received this quarter $280; the presiding elder, $15.

From thence we crossed the river to Scott circuit. They have no pastor. The work has been supplied by a local preacher. The people have been a little discouraged from the death of the pastor, but they are doing quite well under the present circumstances. The pastor has received $40 this quarter, P. E. received $10. They are preparing to build a new church which will cost about $450.

From thence we reached Fairfield circuit. We met Bro. F. Harvey and held his second quarter on Saturday. The work is in a prospering condition. They have had a sweeping revival which ended in the conversion of 40 souls. They are preparing to build a new church.

We met Bro. Hilton at the St. James M. E. Church, and held his quarterly conference. Bro. Hilton is doing a good work for the Master; he has had a grand revival which ended in the conversion of 27 souls. The pastor has received $180 this quarter, P. E. received $12.50. Paid on parsonage, $125. The following amounts have been raised by the classes: Class 1, $7.50; class 2, $29.75; class 3, $3.70; class 4, 26.65; class 5, $3.55; class 6, $25.50; class 7, 28.70; class 8, $4.55.

We reached Grand Cane on the on the 9th inst. and met the pastor, Bro. P. B. McDonald and held his quarter. On the Sabbath we preached for him under the trees near the place where he expects to build a church. The people are very poor but they seem willing to do the best they can. We shall soon build a church, providing we can get some help from the Church Extension Society. Bro. V. Chapman met us at the place designated for the meeting and preached for us. The spirit of the Lord was manifested in the meeting, and we had a pleasant day's journey to the Celestial City.

We reached Mansfield at night and preached for Bro. V. Chapman, and held his quarter Tuesday the 12th. We had a pleasant meeting; wepreached at night and the Spirit of the Lord was in our midst. We administered the Lord Supper at night to a good number. This has been a very discouraging appointment to Bro. Chapman, as this is his first year out. It seems as if they opposed intelligence; the clouds hung quite heavily over the work up to now, but by the help of the Lord they seem to be breaking away.

> "The bud may have a bitter taste,
> But sweet shall be the flower."

He has a promising future; there is no one to help him in his Sunday-school work at the principal church on the circuit. They have paid him $68, paid P. E. $10.25; he has raised $45 for building a church at Shady Grove. The work would have been commenced but the land is not properly deeded to the church. He has raised a subscription of $20 to have the Mansfield church painted. Pray for the success of the work on the district.

Yours Fraternally,
S. DUNCAN, P. E.

The estimated decrease of the public debt for June is $17,500,000.

Letter from Great Britain.

The annual Methodist Conferences have begun to be held. The Primtive Methodist, Methodist New Connexion, and Irish Methodist assemblies have been held. The first named represents the oldest of the minor bodies Alexander Kilham, one of the itinerants, and others, soon after Wesley's death, desired a change which the conference declined to adopt, and the result was that Mr. Kilham and some five or six thousand others seceded and formed themselves into a new organization on a more liberal basis. This body has not grown, as might have been expected.

The Primitive body began work with some nine or ten persons, but so rapidly did it grow that it is now the largest of the minor bodies and continues to increase every year. Its conference is composed of two laymen to one minister, and yet a layman has been elected to the chair of the conference. The New Connexion conference has an equal proportion of ministers and laymen, and as far as we can remember no layman has ever been president. Prosperity during the past year has been reported at both conferences.

The Irish conference assembled in Dublin. The Rev. Charles Garrett, presided, and the Rev. James Donnelly was re-elected secretary Mr. Garrett is the English president. The relation of the Irish to the British conference is such that the president of the latter always presides over the Irish conference. This is an anomaly that should cease. The Irish body has many men who could preside as ably and efficiently in the conference as any Englishman or any member of the English conference.

Mr. Garrett is a very able and worthy man. He is the people's president. His labors in the cause of temperance have been herculean and untiring, and have so endeared him to thousands that his name is a household word throughout Lancashire, where he has spent the greater part of his public life.

Irish Methodism has had great difficulties to contend with, and, owing to a variety of causes, it has not prospered numerically as much as it would have done if more favorably environed. Emigration is constantly drawing away its membership, but they are not lost to Methodism; they are merely transferred from the Methodism of the Green Isle to that of other lands. But still it prevents the growth of Methodism in Ireland. The Romish population is almost inaccessible to Protestant ministers and little progress is made in winning over these to a more intelligent and all-purer faith. Recent occurrences have shown the influence of the Pope is not so great as it was. A few weeks ago he sent a manifesto to his Irish Bishops forbidding them taking part in political meetings of a certain type, but instead of commanding unquestioning submission, it is criticized, and even priests have the temerity to challenge the right of the Pope to dictate in reference to political questions at issue. This may turn out to the futherance of the gospel. If the people release themselves from the grasp of priestcraft, and think for themselves there is hope.

The Irish conference has been a happy and hopeful one. Prosperity was reported and the outlook is charming. JUNIUS.

Buzzard Roost.

This is a place in Burleson county. Its name was suggested by the many secret murders of the slaves, more especially during the time of the rebellion. This so-called town (Buzzard Roost), is a swamp filled with large trees and vines, which furnished a convenient place for these murderers to hide the victims of their hellish rage. As I was riding through this part of the country I asked why it was called Buzzard Roost. The information I received was as follows: At one time this place was inhabited exclusively by poisonous reptiles and wild beasts. There was not a buzzard to be seen, until during the war, when the slaves began to think they were human beings, not brutes, and that they of right ought to be free. Where the symptoms of this dreaded disease appeared the desire for liberty appeared, they were taken to this swamp, where they were secretly murdered and their bodies hidden in this dense thicket. Their bodies being denied either funeral or burial, but being left to rot in this swamp, death sent its message through the poisoned air, and on the line of scent the vultures came to perform the funeral obsequies of those dishonored dead.

From this circumstrance the place received its hideous name, not a millioneth part as hideous as the crimes which gave it birth. The employers of the vultures kept them so busy that they were obliged to take up their residence in the place. So, slavery, which has dealt death to liberty, morality and to man, has had and continues to have its victims and its buzzards and their roosts taken there.

But this buzzard roost where these secret murders were committed is now a thing of the past. The vultures, just after the death of slavery, smelt something very rotten and went apparently in search

The injudicious crimes which were committed in the name of civilization and Christianity, sleep not with these dead men's bones; nor have they flown away with the carrion crows, but are resurrected every day by the use of familiar old slave-time name, "Buzzard Roost." For miles around this omniverous haunt of infamy and of wild beasts the land is now owned and cultivated almost exclusively by those who once felt the lash of slavery and stood in awe of this dismal swamp. The neighborhood of this dense thicket is some of the richest Brazos bottom lands, and one would wonder at the corn, cotton, and other produce that is growing for the ex-slaves.

These sons of Ham now invite the sons of Japheth to their tents, and some of them accept this invitation, but many are afraid to enter for fear they should be defiled; some stand at a respectful distance and gaze with wonder upon these animals, which, without the aid of masters, can secure a living for themselves, which can learn to read and write, to calculate and reason, and to perform so much like a man.

But, alas! there is another great evil from which our people are suffering, and that is false teaching. They are taught that once converted they can afterwards steal, lie, drink whiskey, break the Sabbath, and kill, and that not by precept only; for a Baptist preacher set the example by helping to take a man out by night and to lynch him. They say God loves them just the same, whether they curse or pray, save or kill, and they are of heaven. This converts the church into a roost for buzzards which have nothing with which to feed their young. From these pulpits is inculcated a race prejudice or a race religion as fiendish as that which fostered slavery in the past, and denies to the colored man equal rights in the present. This is not done by perverting the principles of theology, but by belying the facts of history. There are hyenas who are busy day and night in digging up the dead and rotten prejudices of the past and substituting these for the living issues of the present. Their congregations are fed upon their carrion prejudice instead of the pure word of God.

So now, Buzzard Roost has been removed from the swamp and thicket, and instead of one roost have two. Let me say in conclusion, some of these buzzards teach that adultery between Christians is no sin.

CROSS-CUT SAW.

A Pounded Minister.

On the evening of June 25th, at about the hour 10:15, while the little ones lay silent under the influence of Morpheus, and Mrs. M. and I sat at the table, the one with busy needle and the other with interesting book in hand, the silence of the hour was broken by the voice of song at the door. We were not long taking in the situation; and as the door swung wide to admit the gala visitors, numerous cheerful faces, of all ages, from hoary-haired ones who stand under the wintry frosts of age to juveniles over whose heads five summers have hardly past, greeted the eye. But, with this contrast of age and appearance, there was unity of heart and action; for all bore parcels of useful and delicious articles of food, which they presented in words that rang a welcome through our hearts. Song, speech and prayer was the order of the passing moments. "Good night!" was sung and the party retired, leaving their pastor and his better-half with hearts brimful of praise to God and gratitude to them. J. F. MARSHALL.

What Shall The Harvest Be?

BY J. J. HOLLAND, A. M., B. D.

The trite aphorism that revolutions never go backward is not true in fact, nor is it consistent with the nature of man. History affords convincing proof that revolutions have gone backwards. By a careful study of the progress of the human family from Eden in its happy simplicity, to Rome in the zenith of her glory; from the acme of pagan civilization down through nearly nineteen centuries, we shall find varied fluctuations in the career of mankind; history repeating itself; revolutions going backward. Nothing in the universe; nothing in nature can be beyond the inevitable law of change.

All great methods adopted for bettering the condition of humanity need therefore to be guarded with the greatest skill, to be watched with the utmost vigilance. In society, in church, or in state the principle is the same. Realizing the force of the above statements, the writer is caused to inquire concerning the work of the great M. E. Church in the south among the Freedmen. "What shall the harvest be?" In attempting to answer this question, it is necessary to consider the work in a two-fold manner. First, her effort to educate; second, her effort to spread the gospel. The Freedman's Aid Society of the M. E. Church has inaugurated a noble work in the entire southland, that of placing the facilities for acquiring an education in the reach of every Afro-American upon southern soil under its influence. Institutions are springing up as if caused by some magician's wand, and are becoming powerful agencies in solving the negro problem in the South. In nearly every state south of Mason and Dixon line, there is planted one or more educational institutions under its supervision. Thousands of our people are being reached by these efforts, philanthropic and God inspired as they are. The work is advancing, and the many brilliant accounts published in the SOUTHWESTERN and other journals—of the successful termination of this college year are very encouraging indeed. But while acknowledging these things, are there not reasons for apprehending friction in the working of this great machinery of the church at no distant day?

One who may have had an inside view of the matter can reasonably cherish such fears, though they may seem unreasonable to those who can behold only the exterior. The venerable Dr. Rust has done and is to-day doing yeoman service by his devotion to the cause of the Freedmen, rearing up for himself in their grateful hearts a monument that will defy even the insatiate tooth of time. Dr. Hartzell also by indefatigable efforts is doing much to render more effective this work. Notwithstanding this fact I have no hesitancy in declaring that the class of tachers now employed in some of the church schools are wholly incompatible to the work. I speak only what I know when I say some enter the field with the vaguest and strangest ideas imaginable of those among they are sent to labor, having nothing in common with the people they must instruct. Hence there spring up feelings that might be avoided. I am a southerner and in every respect allied to the interests of the south. Therefore deeply deplore what I know to be a fact. Recently I attended the commencement exercises of my own Alma-Mater, Central Tennessee College, Nashville Tenn., the institution to which I owe all that I am, having been thrice honored by her. The commencement exercises were simply grand. I looked but in vain for some one of the gentlemen high in position in the church. Central Tennessee College is doing an excellent work in the South. Yet I am thoroughly convinced that her resources are inadequate, the working force insufficient. Teachers of a higher grade must be employed, capable of imparting besides intellectual training, culture and refinement to those coming to them. Better facilities are everywhere needed. If the church desires to hold what has been so triumphantly gained, she must double her efforts, and friends of large hearts and ready purse must be won to this southern experiment. The work being done by the A. M. A. of the Congregational church among the Freedmen, cannot be gainsayed or denied. Every institution under its auspicies is equipped to some extent, having a good corps of instructors. While this is so, most of the institutions of the church there are others very much crippled for want of working power. One man cannot perform very successfully the labor of two. The men and women, the boys and girls who attend these schools expect to return to their homes improved in every particular, but it is often the case that while they have mastered successfully the prescribed text books in the curriculum, very little has been acquired in the way of refining their nature during their stay at the institution; this must not continue to be so. But, ... one, what must be done? I say, let the president of these institutions have first class teachers in their work; let there be employed men and women who have an interest in those they are to instruct; let those who harp throughout the school term upon the sacrifices they make in entering the southern field as missionaries(?) ... at home; let there be instead thirty an hundred of the Alumni employed in our schools; and I guarantee a different result. When men and women are sent forth bearing the honors of the institution, let it not be that others be brought to serve their Alma-Mater, ... they possess the testimonies ... of their fitness. With ... things done, as they must be ... next decade, there can be no ... as to the harvest. This experiment will have become a reality, these efforts in behalf of down trodden humanity have became permanent, and influence of those who have blessed by these institutions be felt down through the ages, as instrumental in blessing. If not ere another quarter century weeping heaven will chanted the requiem of an ...cessful effort. To those who ...wer, I propound the question 'What shall the harvest be?

...ition of Colored People in the South.

Editor of the Witness:

... dismal pictures some of your ...pondents draw of the state ...rals and physical surround... colored people in the South ...be set over against pictures ... cheer and hope. Where ...e aid has been extended, ...ful results may be seen. ...ve a school and a church in ... city where there are six ...d colored people. One in ... them is a member of a ... church. Of the con... in the courts for three ..., not over four in one hundred have been colored people. Their numbers would entitle them to twenty if they had convictions in proportion to population. The pastors and teachers testify from intimate knowledge that the state of morals among these people is above the average of the community. No colored person has been convicted of lewdness; several others have been. As to the schools, the county superintendent said that no school in the county, white or black, had done such perfect work. Five pupils come and return five miles each way every day. One comes six miles, and one came last year eight miles, and returned every day. Pupils so earnest for education have neither time nor inclination to be vicions. That school has cost but a few hundred dollars, but it uplifts the whole community.

The assertion that colored ministers are leading their flocks astray by low, sensual lives is not true, if made of ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church. My lack of observation in other communions does not warrant a statement. Every minister of our million hearers of colored people has his character examined every year in open conference in the presence of his brethren, the presiding elders, and the bishop. Occasionally, a man gives evidence of having fallen from grace. He is as promptly tried and expelled as in any other body of ministers of Christ. In the last conference where I presided, a minister was emphatically set aside for not paying his debts. Let the example spread.

Of course these elevating influences of education and religion have not reached a tithe of the colored population of the South as yet. But if men would study the magnificent results of efforts properly applied, and then devote themselves to bringing these influences within the reach of all, they would be amazed at the growth of virtue and intelligence of a people eager to make the best of advantages but lately within their reach.

HENRY W. WARREN,
A Bishop of the M. E. Church.

Extracts From A Sermon.

BY BISHOP WARREN.

Blind old Homer, with a singular pathos, narrates this incident of the Greeks before Troy. He says that on a given occasion there fell upon them a great horror of darkness, and men went stumbling here and there, fighting with one another, they knew not whether they were slaying friend or foe; dying themselves, but whether by the hand of a brother or of their bitterest enemy, they could not say. And in the midst of that darkness great Ajax lifted up his hands and his face to what he supposed to be the sky and said, "Oh! ye Gods, grant me but to see, and Ajax asks no more." It seems to me that fittingly represents the condition of the whole world. Ask any man whence he came, he cannot tell; any philosopher what is that object of life, and he is dumb; any great student of the race, what shall be the outcome of humanity, and there is only a mocking echo for reply. And it seems to me, good friends. to-day, that the fitting position of every one interested in life and its marvelous outcome, in its untold advantages or its closing at the grave, should be standing like old Ajax, with his face, hand and heart turned to the sky, saying, "Oh God, grant me but to see!"

In the darkness of this life it seems to me that if we were to ask Him that made us, what he made us for, if we would implore the unfolding of the purpose of our being, He would answer out of his infinite wisdom far more clearly than we can ever discover in our ignorance.

The first word of God about you, the whole thought and plan of your being, lies in the text: "the Lord God said, Let us make man, and let man have dominion." Over what? God had just made this beautiful world, he had curtained it with morning light, and sent it singing through the heavens and put into all nature a great power to push upwards, changing dark soil and the elements of the air into flowers and luscious fruit. He filled it with power, coal in the mountain, steam in the water. He had put electricity to flaunt its flags over our heads day by day. He had made the winds to carry the autumn leaves and to suggest that they could carry us as well. He had filled the world with power, and he wanted a king. How should he get one? He could only get one by making in the image of Himself, a child of the infinite King, that could wield this dominion, that could have abilities to rule, that could go forth and take these finite powers out of an infinite God; and handle them for great and high and glorious ends.

Does it seem to you that man shows any aptitude for such a destiny? Does it seem to you that men, that you and I, members of the human race, were intended, and were really constitutionally made to handle such great forces and control these vast powers that we see about us? I confess that when I study man it seems to me as if he had been made for that very purpose. The very first manifestation of the little babe, that is not a day old, is an attempt to exercise power. He appropriates freely to himself, as if he were a king, the best of all that is on earth, human life, human love, and human sacrifice. It is a strange child that is born into your family, and different from those I have known elsewhere, if he does not deliberately seek, before he is a year old, to manage father and mother both, and he succeeds in that matter altogether oftener than he ought. It is simply an indication of what the very genius of the little child is. One by one the cat, the dog, the horse, steam and electricity is compelled to yield to his power and confess his mastery. He takes possession of one after another, and lifts himself up into empireship and dominion. He is striking the harmonic notes of the great anthem of his existence, that God sang so sublimely before he was created.

The Lord Jesus Christ came into the world to revoice the lost anthem of man's existence; to sing over to the world once more the great purpose God had in view when he made man. Did he have the same idea? I think so. He stood among men, saying unto them, "If you change your manner of life and take the life I will give you, I will make you to sit on thrones with Me, the King of the universe, ruling widely." Did man catch the idea? Did any body think that Christ meant the enhancement of man's ability for dominion when He uttered more of the great song of man's eternal honor and welfare? Did man strike the harmonic notes and sing the same strain that the Lord Christ had given him? I think so. The Apostle Paul stood up in the presence of men that never owned their hands, nor head nor movements, and said unto them, "All things are yours, whether Paul or Apollos, or things present," this world, "or things to come," the next world—all things, from the lowest manifestation of power to the highest soaring of the archangels' wings.

The Stolen Custard.

Sugar-toothed Dick
For dainties was sick,
So he slyly stole into the kitchen,
Snatched a cup from the pantry
And darted out quick,
Unnoticed by mother or Gretchen.

Whispered he, "There's no cake,
For to-morrow they bake,
But this custard looks rich and delicious;
How they'll scold at the rats,
Or the mice, or the cats;
For of me I don't think they're suspicious.

"They might have filled up
Such a mean little cup!
And for want of a spoon I must drink it;
But 'tis easy to pour—
Hark! who's that at the door?"
And the custard went down ere you'd think it.

With a shriek he sprang up;
To the floor dashed the cup;
Then he howled, tumbled, spluttered and blustered,
Till the terrible din
Brought the whole household in—
He had swallowed a cupful of mustard!

"My Boy."

In Norwich, Connecticut, many years ago, I spoke to a large audience in a railway station. I knew whom I had in my audience, and I said. Ladies and gentlemen, Mrs. Faulkner, who lives a little way out from here, gave me some interesting incidents with regard to her son.

"My boy." she said, "was a drunkard. He signed the pledge. He said, 'Mother, I will go away from home. I will not stay in the midst of temptation, but I will keep this pledge.'" He went away, but she continued to hear good news from him. By and by, after he had been gone a little over two years, a letter reached home to say: "Mother, I am coming home to spend Thanksgiving with you."

"My boy is coming home to Thanksgiving! Well his poor mother will get a dinner for him worthy of New England; and if there's but one guest it shall be a famous dinner."

And he came by stage into the town, which stopped at the door of Solomon Parson's tavern. The stage passed on. It was just after dark. Some young men were in the bar.

"Hollo! Fred, how are you? What will you have to drink?"

"Nothing."

"Not on Thanksgiving? Come, take a little."

"No, I'd rather not. I've come home to see my mother. She hardly expects me to-night. I thought I'd wait till dark and go in and surprise the old lady."

By and by, Solomon Parsons, who was leaning his elbow on his counter, looked at him, and said:

"Fred Falkener, if I were six feet tall and broad in proportion as you are, and yet was afraid of a paltry glass of ale, I'd go to the woods and hang myself."

"But I'm not afraid."

"O, yes you are—ha! ha! ha! I say, boys, here's a great big fellow afraid of a glass of liquor. I suppose he's afraid of his mother!"

This young man, with all the strength of mind to keep the pledge, was weak when they jeered and joked him. They handed him the liquor, and dared him to drink it.

"Well," said he, "I'm going to mother, and I may as well show you that I'm not afraid to drink it."

He drank it. Then came another glass; and they plied him with more. Twelve o'clock that night he went in to the barn, and there was found in the morning—dead! They brought him to his mother, stretched on a plank with a buffalo rug thrown over the body.

She said to me: "Parsons came" and I said to him, 'You tempted my boy.'"

"'Well, I didn't know it was your son.'"

"'You did! you called him by name. You knew it was Frederick Falkener, the only son of his poor crippled mother. You knew it, and you killed him.'"

"'Mrs. Falkener, I am not used to having such language applied to me.'"

"God forgive me! if I have sinned'" said the poor woman; but I put my hand on the face of my dead boy, and I lifted up my finger, and I cursed him! He went out with a face white as chalk."

"Then I said: Ladies and gentlemen, Solomon Parsons, the man who tempted Frederick Falkener to his ruin—Solomon Parsons, who staggered through life under the weight of that poor woman's curse—Solomon Parsons is in this hall, and he sits right there! and this same Solomon Parsons keeps a grog-shop on the bridge of your city, licensed by the state of Connecticut. Rout him out!"

And before twenty-four hours had elapsed, bag and baggage, bottles and demijohns of liquor, furniture, licenses and all, were carried out of the city.

They violated no law. They laid no hands on him; but they made him go out himself. They helped him not to pack up a single article of his furniture, but they went to him in a body, and declared that such a man should not be tolerated in the city, and he was obliged to go.—John B. Gough.

The Seven Wonders of the World.

The first is the speed of intercommunication. Boston, London, or any of the large cities of the world, is as near to the ends of the earth as Rome was to the borders of its empire.

The second great wonder is the self-reformation of the hermit nations. Japan has made changes greater than any other nation has made in twenty-five years, and receives missionaries cordially. Some of their pupils have been at the bottom of the recent reformation in that empire. Japan is more largely under the influence of America than any other country.

The third great wonder of the world is the rapid parallel advancement of education and democracy all over the world, and the fourth is the world wide unity of civilization. If he could see the thing he most desired, it would be a league, not a union, of the English-speaking nations.

He would have conventions held for the codification of international law. By an alliance, difficulties would be settled by arbitration, not by war. It will be the duty of Christians to lay their hands on the throat of any power hostile to peace and break its neck.

The fifth of the modern wonders of the world is the triumph of Christianity. In the first 1500 years Christianity had 100,000,000 of people as adherents. In the next 300 years it gained 100,000,000. In the next eighty-two (the present century) it has 210,000,000. These people are communicants in the church. At the opening of this century the United States had one in fifteen in its free churches. Now it has one in five. The Bible is fast becoming the constitution of the advanced nations. A community of text-books is approaching.

Sixth, in the wonders of the world, is the current fulfilment of Biblical prophecy. Whatever be said of the Book of Daniel, it was not written after the beginning of Christianity and it outlines the history of Christianity. Soon will the lights of Christian ships and the bells of Christian churches be within sight and hearing of each other around the whole world.

The seventh and most marvelous wonder of the world is the establisment on a sure basis of a scientific supernaturalism. It is a thing settled by the best authority of microscopists, physiologists and chemists, that the origin of life is not explained by the molecular theory of physics. A theory of evolution may be proved, but the theory as held by materialistic agnostics has been already abandoned. Nine out of ten of the best scientific men are theists, and utterly opposed to agnostic atheism. The tendency of science is not now away from Christianity.

THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1883.

We spent Fourth of July at Morgan City, and the day passed off almost as quietly as a poor man's funeral. We believe there were two guns as if ashamed fired after dark. This was not much like the glorious old Fourth of July we are to enjoy in our boyhood.

There is one topic peremptorily forbidden to all well-bred, to all rational mortals, namely their distempers. If you have not slept, or if you have headache, or sciatica; or leprosy, or thunder-stroke, I beseech you, by all the angels, to hold your peace, and not pollute the morning, to which all the housemates bring serene and pleasant thoughts, by corruption and groans. —Emerson.

The Missionary Review, of Princeton, N. J., will not acknowledge that it blunders, misleads or is stupid, as charged by the SOUTHWESTERN, when it uses the words in its classification of missionary work "Methodist Episcopal Church, North." We believe it best to tell the truth on all occasions, especially among Christians and about the relative positions which they occupy; we therefore charge the Review with deliberate misrepresentation when it attempts to affix a sectional brand on the Methodist Episcopal Church.

We desire to call the special attention of our preachers, the superintendents of our Sunday-schools and teachers, to the Sunday-School Journal published by Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, N. Y. Sixty-five cents the single subscribers and fifty-cents each for clubs of six or over sent to one address. As a helper we know of nothing superior. [illegible] fresh and in[illegible] and suggestions. [illegible] who observes [illegible] will always have a live [illegible] and the teacher can never have a [illegible] class. We earnestly [illegible] all of our preachers to see that their Sunday-schools have a good supply of the Sunday-School Journal.

There are at least two ways of taking life. We can fret and fume and complain of the heat, the cold, the wet or the dry, and be just as miserable as we please; or we can pass quietly through our business, and have no aggrieved thought on account of the heat or cold, the wet or dry. But few people can swing in a hammock and be lulled by the murmur of the wind among the trees; most people have to follow duty, and this keeps them close in office or behind the counters, in the kitchen, or on the farm, wielding a hammer or sticking at a machine. And if they have learned to stand on the Apostles' platform, and can say from the heart, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content," in the end they will surely conquer.

Why is Turkey the weakest power in Europe? Because she publishes and reads less newspapers than any other country in Europe. Why is the United States the strongest power on the American continent, and one of the strongest in the world? Because she publishes and reads more newspapers than any other nation on the American continent, and about as many as any [illegible] European power. House Top Religion.

Among the disciples at Joppa of good worldly standing there was one by the name of Simon, "a tanner." His house was by the sea-side that is beyond the town, for the trade of a tanner was one which the Jews would not allow to be carried on within any of their cities. This was doubtless done from a primary regard to sanitary considerations. Then by the Jews the trade of a tanner was regarded as mean and low, and a tanner was held in great contempt. But Simon being in good circumstances, Peter while staying in Jappa made his house his home. One day he withdrew and went to the house top about the sixth hour—noon—to pray; he soon hungered and in this condition he went to sleep and fell into a trance, and what more natural than for a hungry man in the hot hours of the day to drop off to sleep. Things are strangely mixed in this world. The hunger and sleep of Peter were natural, the vision supernatural. God is not confined to any particular method in making known his will. In olden times he reveald himself by dreams and visions. Now when Peter was hungry and sleeping God revealed to him one of the fundamental truths of Christanity. He saw in his vision a vast sheet let down by the four corners from heaven, and observing it closely he saw that it was full of all kinds of four footed animals; some were tame and some wild, some clean and some unclean, all kinds of living creatures and creeping things were there. And before Peter could suppress his fear or make any inquiry as to the import of this matter there came this command: "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." But Peter had Jewish prejudices to overcome, and with prompt readiness he replied. "Not so, Lord, for I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean." To this the voice replied: "What God hath cleansed that call not thou common or unclean." This was done three times and the vessel was received up into heaven. God made no allowance for his bigotry or caste notions. "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." Not so Lord, I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean." "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." God makes no compromise with sin. Wonderful contrasts are here seen. Peter went up to that house top to sleep, he came down with his eyes open to the nature of the gospel and the needs of the race. He went up there a bigoted Jew, who would not worship in the same synagogue with a Gentile, he came down a cosmopolite and went out preaching, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respector of persons but in every nation (even the decendants of Ham,)he that seeketh righteousness is accepted of God." He was cursed of all heresy as to God's being after particular men and nations. Here on this house-top Peter learned the doctrine of the equality of all men before God, and the right of all men to all the privileges and provisions of the gospel as revealed from heaven. The house-top gospel, is a gospel ordained of God, and needs to be ingrained deeper and deeper into the Christian life of these times. It is the great gospel idea which must leaven all Christian civilization,and will surely undermine and overthrow every relic of heathen life This short but decisive house top experience of Peter has given birth to all the aggressive moral agencies now employed for the scriptural enlightenment of the world. The Missionary Society, Church Extension Society, Bible Cause, Freedmen's Aid Society, were born on the stone paved roof of Simon the tanner. They all sink their roots deep into Peter's vision. On this house top Peter was troubled as never before; here was fought the great battle with prejudice and caste, "in which the divine power were engaged and the result was a Waterloo to the power of evil." To our mind there is no doubt as to the triumph of the house top religion. The day of its complete vindication draws nigh. The great procession is surely marching on to the final jubilee. This earth so long in revolt from God is sure to surrender to his Son its temples and treasures. All humanity will hail the glory of that day, and all humanity will take up its shout of joy; the redeemed in heaven and on earth shall commingle in one song.

At the semi-centennial anniversary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held at Washington in 1869, at one of the evening meetings Chief Justice Chase presided, and in the course of an address he then delivered he said, "I saw, only a day or two ago, an illustration of some of the difficulties which are to be overcome. I saw an essay written by a Japanese gentleman, a very able scholar, upon the Christian system. He claimed the superiority of his own, and denounced the Christian system as evil. And it is singular," said the Chief Justice, "that his two leading objections to the Christian system were founded upon precisely the two ideas which we consider as laying the foundation of all progress." He objected first to the fatherhood of God as taught in the Bible. He said he had read from the first chapter in Genesis to the last verse in Revelations and he found everywhere the fatherhood of God taught; and this he said was incompatible with proper devotion to Mikado and the rulers of the Japanese empire. His second objection was to the brotherhood of man. He found that taught everywhere in the Scripture and said that was incompatible with proper reverence for rank. His book was circulated through the Japanese empire for the purpose of protecting it against the dangers of Christianity. No doctrines are more clearly taught in the Bible than the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. This wayfaring heathen could not make a mistake here. And in that brotherhood there is neither Jew, barbarian nor Scythian, bond nor free. This was the declaration of the Apostle to the Greeks of Colosse. True he did not add "white or black," because in that dusky clime there were no whites. The Church should be one pure, holy brotherhood, where men and women hold the grace of the Lord Jesus without respect to persons. Were James the Just to come into some of our churches, and look over our congregations, and witness some of our sacramental services in the administration of the Lord's Supper, we fear that he would have occasion to say "Brethren, ye have 'respect of persons,' 'ye have despised the poor.'" And that, too, because of a complexion God gave them, and just as beautiful in His eyes as your complexion is in your eyes.

Sinful Distinctions.

"Shall we know each other there?" The minister of a fashionable church once preached a beautiful sermon on this subject. He drew the picture of a very beautiful heaven. We would walk in sunlit groves, by the music of waterfalls, and gaze out upon amaranthine fields. And then, too, "we shall know each other there," said the minister, and then added, "there'll be no strangers in the New Jerusalem; we'll all be friends." "Beautiful!" said Deacon Sham, as he trotted down the aisle. "A lovely sermon!" said Simpkins, as she put her bony hand into the minister's. She was stopped by a poor mechanic, who came up and addressed the preacher: "Mr. ——, I am glad we shall recognize each other up there." "Yes," said the minister, "it is one of the greatest consolations of our religion." "Well, I'm right glad we shall know each other. It will be a great change, though; for I have attended your church for over four years, and none of the members of this society have recognized me yet. But—we shall know each other there!"

The above is from an exchange, and the reader doubtless asks: Is it possible for such destinctions to be made in a Christian church? O yes, that is nothing. That is full a thousand miles from the bottom of sinful distinctions. We have known a church that invited all world to Christ to push off, and compell a portion of their brethren and ministers also to worship in separate churches by themselves. And this is for no fault of their own, for no leprosy of sin, or disease that was upon them, but because of a sinful heaven—daring pride on the part of their brethren. Better, a thousand times better, go back to first principles. Better cling to the corner stone doctrine of Jesus Christ, the Broth r alike of all men, the Brother especially of the poor and needy. Without fear, without bitterness, without favor, without weariness, we must proclaim against this sin of sinful distinctions in the church of the Lord Jesus. Let us learn and

> First count men all of equal caste
> Then count thyself the least and last.

Near the Methodist Episcopal Church at Morgan City lives one of the good deacons of one of the Baptist churches. Recently some of the members of the church of which this brother is a deacon have been visiting the Methodist church, and speaking and praying; this gave great offence, for while a person can be a good Baptist and do sundry improper things, they cannot retain their standing in the Mt. Zion Baptist Church and go to the Methodist meeting and pray. Their pastor has pronounced that church unclean, and his members are instructed not to visit it lest they become defiled. So this deacon was appointed to watch and report to the church the names of all the Baptists who should dare to visit the Methodist church. This is one of the best specimens of pig-headedness and intolerence we have heard of for many years; slaves may submit to it, but freemen never can.

Chaplain McCabe, the assistant corresponding secretary of the Church Extension Society, says "it would be a good plan for all of those who are trying to furnish the sinews of Zion's war to stop and give a whole year to the work of getting every Methodist family in the whole denomination to take a church paper." This is certainly good testimony in favor of our Advocates. There is no man in our church who addresses more congregations during the year than Dr. McCabe, and he has found that in all of those communities where our church papers are taken he has the least difficulty in securing large collections for the society he represents. A careful reading of our church papers never hinders but uniformly helps on in every department of church work. We say to our preachers, consider Dr. McCabe's suggestion, and put the SOUTHWESTERN into every home. It will help you and your work.

A correspondent in Zion's Herald speaking of Methodism in Fall River says: "There is one encouraging feature of Fall River Methodism—it is a unit; it focalizes its powers; it has the connectional spirit." There is no feature of Methodism more to be admired, or more fruitful of good results than its connectional. Here in the city of New Orleans if all the Methodist churches would focalize their forces, and act as a unit on the great temperance question, there can be no doubt as to the good results; so of any and all questions affecting the moral, social, and religious welfare of the people. With our forces united, and a little more of the missionary spirit, there are a number of points where mission Sunday-schools could be established out of which would grow in a few years strong and vigorous churches.

While at Morgan City we visited the sanctums of the Morgan City Riview and the Morgan City Free press and were cordially and fraternally received by each of these gentlemanly editors, to whom all high and honorable things become easy, and with whom there is no respect of persons. We wish our brothers Woodcock and Gray all the success they deserve, and this is the largest earthly benediction we can ask.

Churches and Schools.

A "color-line" church is one from which a person is excluded because of his color. We feel perfectly safe in saying that there is not a single "color-line" church in American Methodism. A caste church is a church to which colored persons are admitted as members, but are made to occupy special back seats by themselves, and at the communion services wait till the whites are served. It is caste, and not Christ that makes a colored person take a back seat in the house of the Lord, and at the administration of the Lord's supper wait till all the white members are served. "Slavery" it is said was "born first of love for money, came at last to be accounted a holy thing because of race prejudice. The first has gone, but that upon which its defense was based remains and dies slowly, but die it will." We have no doubt as to the final issue. We believe the time will come when Christ not caste will control not only in the hotels and railway cars but in the schools and churches a'l through the South. But what part is the great Methodist Episcopal Church to have in this conflict?" The mere fact of color just now places upon two hundred thousand of her members "a more damning and ineffaceable stain, than does murder, treason," or arson. And we are anxious to know whether in her educational work in the South, so far reaching and tremendous in its influence, she is to act in obeisance to Christ or caste. It does not satisfy to refer us to her past history. The past amounts to but little if in the present we are recreant.

Dr. Hartzell (and we are frank to say that we know of no man in the Methodist Episcopal Church who has done more or better work in the South than the Dr.) says, "I cannot speak authoritatively, (we wish he could) but still feel safe in saying that our Society would see any one, or any dozen of its schools in the South closed, and the property sold at auction, rather than commit itself to the policy that no freedmen should be admitted into what are technically known as freedmen's schools." Just here let us make a pause. It is always wise to consider facts. The first fact is, our church has not a colored school in the South from which white students are excluded. The next fact is, we know, this is no rumor; we know of white schools from which persons have been excluded for no sin, or fault of theirs, a little negro blood found in their veins, and it was said to them "depart." Now we do not ask to have one of these schools "closed" or "sold at auction" we should regard that as a terrible calamity, but, we do ask that the church adhere "to the policy" that no person shall be excluded from any of her schools because of their color. Why not? We have the best authority for saying that for seventeen years since the war Berea college, Kentucky, has had nearly equal numbers, blacks and whites in its school. Straight University here in New Orleans has graduated more than twice as many white students as it has colored. The supreme crisis has come. Any man who supposes that, the church can divide the second time on Mason and Dixon's line, is simply blind to the events which are now transpiring. it may be true that there are members of our church in the North who are still so completely under that form of civilization that was symbolized in that cargo of slaves that was landed in Virginia about two hundred and sixty years ago, as to believe that the church can "remain faithful in her teachings and administrations to the doctrine of Christian brotherhood," and at the same time erect churches and schools from which our colored members are excluded; but there is not a colored member of our church in all the South who does not see that it involves a palpaple contradiction, nor is there one who does not look upon the erection of churches or schools from which they are excluded merely because of their color as an insult to their essential manhood. We never deny the debasing influence of slavery; it has a traditionary force; its accursed marks are still visible upon the physical, mental, and moral nature of the enslaved. But there is need of an honorable and uncompromising faith in the real manhood of the colored race. This, with a little unflinching Christian bravery, will surely and effectually elevate society into a divine brotherhood and equality, where all unchristian distinctions on account of color will be forgotten.

On the Road and Among the Churches.

It is only fifty-five miles from New Orleans to Terrebonne. The full luxuriance of July is visble on all sides. The cane, corn and cotton crop is coming on nicely. But traveling by rail, in a buggy, or on horseback these hot days is not a luxury. The heat starts the sweat,and the movement of the cars and carriage starts the dust, and the moisture and the dust, like fleas and dogs, will find each other. I suppose if there was but one flea and one dog on the South New Orleans District, they could not be kept apart. I do not know which loves most, the flea or dog; I am satisfied, however, that if the Mississippi lay between them, if the dog did not go to the flea, the flea would go the dog; and so long as fleas and dogs are satisfied with and keep each company, I find no fault; but when I am weary and worn and want rest, and some six or eight fleas, more or less, as the case may be, resolve to keep my company, I say they are an unmitigated nuisance.

The pedler who is constantly passing through the cars with his stale literature, over ripe bananas and long kept and well dried [illegible] while he is a good example of persistence and devotion to business is more of a torment than a comfort to the travelers.

There is much talk floating out of decayed Christianity, slackness in church discipline, loss of spirit power. At Terrebonne we have a good people, with all the appearances for a grand church. Bro. Carr is increasing in popularity with the people, they brag on him and he on them. Recently they dressed him up in a nice new suit of clothes, as a token of their love for him. If one has the gift of seeing it is easy to see that our church here is putting on strength. The report of the stewards showed over $115 collected since April 5th. Thank the Lord for this form of Christianity.

Friday, at 12 M., I was at Houma. Bro. Ford met me at the depot and conducted me to the parsonage where I always find a pleasant home. There I spent three nights with Hon. Jordan Stewart, local preacher in our church, and was entertained with the warmest Christian kindness.

From Houma to Dulac it is full twenty miles. The recent rains and constant travel, we were told, had made the road almost impassable; but my appointment was out and I must fill it. Generally where there is a will there is a way. Saturday, horseback through mud and slush, I was off for Dulac, and slowly but safely my faithful steed carried his burden through the mud to the home of Bro. James Johnson, a local preacher, and member of the Dulac church. Of this ride I can give no adequate description; there was mud and there was slush on an ample scale. The command of the Master, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," is far-reaching, and is still in force. Young men and old men hear these words and are led out to the ends of the earth to work for Christ. These are the men the church has just now has need of, who, though persecuted, reproached and reviled, keep pressing on, they are sure to conquer. At Dulac our church is having a year of great prosperity. The quarterly conference had all the essential elements of a love feast. The business had been gathered up and formulated for presentation. Class reports were as follows: No. 1, [illegible].20; No. 2, $5.50; No. 3, $3.50; and only 25 members. The stewards had received $101, and had turned over to the trustees $40, to be applied on their debts. The Sunday-school has seventy scholars enrolled with an average attendance of over forty-seven. Bro. Claiborne desires to make special mention of the young people who join in every effort to raise money to help on in any and every department of church work. Indeed the old and the young of the congregation seem to vie with each other as to who can best work to raise funds for the church. A nice chandelier has been placed in the church. The platform for the pulpit, and the altar built, giving a neat and improved appearance to the church. There is not one jar between Bro. Claiborne and the people. The work is moving on grandly.

Sabbath, July 1st, at a quarter before one, under a hot burning sun, I mounted my hired horse and started for Houma. It may be true that Mr. Beecher never preached from the text, "The blanket is hot," but had he rode along with the writer from Dulac to Houma under this hot July sun, I am sure he would exclaim, it is awful hot! My faithful steed bore the burden and heat of this day nobly; he kept pressing on, and at half-past four was front of the Houma parsonage, and I was ready for the business of the quarterly. Bro. Ford has always each report in order and ready when called. The Sunday-school has over two hundred scholars enrolled, with one hundred and ninety-five as the average attendance. We have no better school on the district than this. The report of the classes showed an increase in the spiritual and financial work. That of the stewards showed $2.10, collected from all sources, being an increase of $40 over any preceding quarter. The Trustees placed a nice new fence around their property, and procured bricks for the construction of pillars for the church to rest upon. Class No. 6 has just purchased a nice light for the pulpit costing $5.50. Monday night we had a love feast, and for one hour and a half I dwelt amid hallelujahs, amens, and singing, giving forth a sound like the voice of many waters; I was taken back to other days; but whether these or those are the better I cannot say. The present, however, is on the glory side—full of glory. C.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

G. J. Rogers, Port Hudson. "In a protracted meeting I have 27 converts, and 22 joined on probation. The altar is crowded with mourners. I ask the brethren to pray for us."

R. Anderson, St. Martinsville: "Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather Children's Day was duly observed here. We departed a little from the usual method of observing the day. We had select readings from the Bible, one of which, the 144th psalm, was beautifully read by Miss Rosa Patterson. The congregation manifested a hearty appreciation of the songs "The Child's Prayer," and "I will be good, dear mother," by little Aurelia Faulks and Victoria Patterson respectively. Aurellia, a child of nine years has a remarkable, clear, sweet voice. Carrie Toupon, a little girl barely six years old, recited a piece entitled "Little Chatterbox," without one mistake. Evans Patterson, one of the smartest little boys in our Sunday-school, spoke in a commanding voice for one so young, "If I were a voice." A feature of the occasion which pleased me much was the bestowing of prizes to those who spoke best. By thus giving prizes to the best speakers Sister Rosa A. Turner showed that her heart is with her Sunday-school. The children have wonderfully progressed in less than six months under the tutelage of Sister Turner. The excellent graduate lady of the New Orleans University reflects credit upon her Alma Mater. My desire is to keep Sister Turner with us, as a worker for the Master, during the year. Yes, we feel that Christ is with us, and if He is for us who can be against us? A few more storms and then will come the calm for the M. E. Church at St. Martinsville."

ARKANSAS.

Edward Pinkett, Watson: "We observed Children's Day and had a nice time. Collection $1.00—a good sum for this hard place. Our Pea Ridge school is a good one, but there is a small congregation. Pray that the Lord may bless this wicked people."

TEXAS.

R. W. H., Mt. Vernon, Houston: "Elder F. C. Moore held the third quarterly conference and lectured the Sunday-school. There were 180 scholars present. Collection for elder $13.30. The church is moving up under the pastorate of Rev. R. Roberts. Two joined and four were baptized."

M. Reddick, Houston: "We have just closed a glorious meeting. Four were baptized. Elder Moore has been with us, twenty communed with us. Raised for the elder $2.50. Paid $40 quarterage, and raised $25 towards paying off a debt on the parsonage. St. James is growing, and is in a prosperous condition."

MISSISSIPPI.

N. Toole, Waynesboro: "I have just built a new church on my work."

J. M. Lampkins, Starkville: "On Children's Day our church was beautifully dressed with pure flowers of many kinds, maps and chromos. Our collection was $5.15. Rev. Church Gordon conducted the exercises. Zion church, also decorated, raised $3.85. J. H. Hall delivered a beautiful lecture. Services conducted by Rev. J. M. Lampkins. At Spring Hill Wm. Bell lectured. R. Weaver conducted services. The church was decorated with flowers; collection, $3.25. At Sixteenth section the collection was $1.80. Bro. Louis Mims conducted the services, and P. Watson lectured. The total amount raised on Starkville circuit was $14.05."

TENNESSEE.

E. M. Manson, Clifton: "Our second quarterly conference was held by Elder Price. Rev. G. C. Harden, of Linden circuit, was also present. Twenty-five came to the altar inquiring for the good old way, and four professed faith in Christ. On Sunday six joined the church, six infants and one adult were baptized. Four have fallen from our ranks by the hand of death this quarter. The reports of the superintendents showed that they had been at work for the Master, but there is still room for more to be done, and as the most of them are young and promising I think they will go on in the good work begun. The trustees reported $10.65 on the parsonage. Paid presiding elder $14; pastor $44.10; Bishops 50c. The Committee on Missions reported $6; Church Extension, 45c.; Tract, 25c. Bro. G. C. Harden, of the Linden Circuit, $3.35; and we would have been glad to give him more for we are taught that the strong must help the weak. The amount of money collected for the sick was $10. Total amount $78.65."

Union Chapel.

Our work is progressing. The belfry has been repaired, painted and a new bell purchased. The work is finished, and the cost for improvements was $484. The members and friends have responded to our church grandly, as follows, with tickets:

There were some names that could not be read and some omitted. Tickets were blank. We collected $136. Many of the friends had no tickets but gave willingly.

We expect to have the church painted, for the Louisiana Conference is expected to hold its session at our church; it will be the largest body ever met since the church has been organized in the South. We are at work now for Church Extension Society. This matter is in the hands of the ladies of the church.

A Veteran Benefactor.

His Past Life, Present Plans, and What He Has to Say Upon a Subject That Astonished Him

(New York Times)

Nearly forty years ago a young man, of unusual endowments, began to mould public opinion upon a subject of vital importance. Like all pioneers, his early efforts were unsuccessful, but his ability and the value of his work soon won public confidence, and to-day there is not a village or hamlet in the country that has not been influenced by Dr. Dio Lewis. When, therefore, it was learned yesterday that he contemplated the establishment of a large magazine in this city, the fact was deemed so important that a representative of this paper was commissioned to see him and ascertain the truth of the rumor.

Dr. Dio Lewis is a gentleman of sixty years and two hundred pounds, with snow-white hair and beard, but probably the most perfect picture of health and vigor in the metropolis. He is a living exponent of his teachings, and notwithstanding the amount of work he has already done, promises still greater activity for years to come. He received the interviewer most courteously, and in reply to a question said:

"It is true I have come to New York to establish a monthly magazine: I have came here for the same reason that I went to Boston 25 years ago. Then Boston was the best platform in the country from which to speak of education. New York has now become most hospitable to progressive thoughts, and especially so to movements on behalf of physical training.

"I have reason to know the great and abiding interest of the American people in this subject. They have come to realize that the future of our country pivots upon our physical vitality, and especially upon the vigor of our women. My new magazine will bear the title 'Dio Lewis's Monthly,' and be devoted to Sanitary and Social Science. I hope through its pages to inaugurate a new departure in hygiene."

"Have you not written several books on the subject?"

"Yes, nine volumes, and some of them like 'Our Girls,' published by the Harpers, have had an enormous circulation, but the best work of my life I shall give the world in the new magazine. Forty years of skirmishing ought to conclude with ten years of organized warfare."

"Doctor, what is the occasion of this new interest in health questions?"

"It has come through suffering, which seems the only road to self knowledge. The stomach, heart, kidneys or liver fall into trouble, happiness is gone, and then people give attention to their health."

"Which of these organs is most frequently the victim of our errors?" asked the Reporter.

"Within the last few years disease of the kidneys have greatly multiplied. When I was engaged in practice, thirty-five and forty years ago, serious disease of the kidneys was rare; but now distressingly frequent and fatal."

"To what do you attribute this great increase of kidney troubles?"

"To the use of stimulating drinks, adulterated food and irregular habits of life."

"Doctor have you any confidence in the remedy of which we hear so much now-a-days. 'Warner's Safe Cure?"

"I believe in the ounce of prevention, rather than in a ton of cure."

"But have you noticed the remarkable testimonials of Warner's remedy?"

"I have, and confess that they have puzzled add astonished me. The commendations of proprietary medcines usually come from unknown persons residing in back counties. But I see in our most reputable newspapers the warmest praise of Warner's Safe Cure from College Professors, respectable physicians, and other persons of high intellingence and character. To thrust such testimony aside may be professional, but it is inhumanly. No physician can forget that valuable additions to our Materia Medica have sprung from just such sources

I was so impressed with this cloud of witnesses that I purchased some bottles of Warner's Safe Cure at a neighboring drug store, and analyzed one of them to see if it contained anything poisonous. Then I took three of the prescribed doses at once, and found there was nothing injurious in it. I do not hesitate to say that if I found my kidneys in serious trouble, I should use this remedy, because of the hopelessness of all ordinary treatment, and because when a hundred intelligent and reputable persons unite in the statement that a certain remedy has cured them of a grave malady, I choose to believe that they speak the truth."

"But as you may know, my great interest in life lies in prevention. For forty years I have labored in this field. One of the phases of my work in New England was the establishment of the Ladies' seminary at Lexington, Mass. My aim was to illustrate the possibilities in the physical training of girls during their school life. This institution became before I left it, the largest and most successful Seminary for young women owned and managed by any person, in our country. I sat down to dinner every day with a family of two hundred persons. The remarkable results of this muscle training among girls, were given in my paper published in the North American Review of December, 1882.

"Besides, I established the Normal Institute for Physical Training in Boston, and for ten years was its President and Manager. Dr. Walter Channing, Dr. Thomas Hoskins, Professor Leonard, and others were among its teachers, and more than four hundred persons took its diploma and went out into all parts of the land to teach the new school of gymnastics. And now the years left to me I propose to devote to the magazine which I have come here to establish. It will be the largest periodical ever devoted to this field of literature, and will present the hundred and one questions of hygiene with the simplicity of a child's talk. To this end all so-called learning will be subordinated. The magazine will be more or less illustrated, and will strive to reach a high place in the confidence and hearts of the people. In a few weeks, our first number will appear, and we shall fondly hope for it a hearty welcome."

The facts above narrated are indeed most important. It is gratifying to know that the life long experiences of a gentleman who stands without a peer in successfully demonstrating the principles of hygiene; whose heart has always been in sympathy with the afflicted, and whose brain has ever been active in planning for their relief are to be given to the public through the pages of a magazine. And it is specially significant and proof positive of rare merit that a proprietary medicine, even with such high standing as Warner's Safe Cure is known to have, should be endorsed and recommended by a man so able, so reputable and of such national renown as Dr. Dio Lewis.

Dr. Buckley pertinently introduces this sentence in an appreciative memoir of Bishop Peck: "It is but simple justice to say that Bishop Peck saw as much of the people (and the people as much of him) during the eleven years of his episcopacy as of any Bishop since the days of Asbury and McKendree."

USE BORAX IN WASHING.—In employing a common, cheap, but clean soap, put less than a level teaspoonful of powdered borax into the tub, pouring hot water on it, and then cooling to the proper degree. This borax makes the washing more easy, and is good for the hands, healing them when chapped, and leaving them in good condition after washing. Whatever good soap you use, it is not necessary to boil the clothes, but this process helps in most cases, especially if the clothes are well stirred about in the boiler. It is not best to leave them actually boiling many minutes, as this will turn them yellow. The whole washing may be done without warm water, if desired, but more or stronger soap must be used, and the labor is harder. We want to loosen the dirt between the fibers of the cloth as easily as possible, and then to rinse it all away. That is the philosophy of making soiled clothes clean.

CORN PONE.—Is highly recommended as a breakfast dish. Take one heaping coffee-cup of boiled hominy, beat it, and stir in a tablespoonful of butter, three eggs, and nearly one pint of sweet milk; as much corn meal may be added as will serve to thicken this till it is like the batter for "johnnycake." Bake in a quick oven, and serve hot.

RICE GRUEL.—One ounce each of rice, sago and pearl barley, boiled in three pints of water, which in two hours generally reduces it to a quart. Strain and flavor [illegible]. This forms a good nourishing diet, especially with the addition of a little isinglass.

GREEN PEAS A L'ANGLAISE.—Boil your [illegible] in boiling salt and water; [illegible] an onion and a [illegible]. When done [illegible] onion and parsley, and [illegible] of fresh butter; [illegible] chopped parsley and [illegible] pow- [illegible] —La Cuis- [illegible]

[illegible] —Remove [illegible] put each oyster [illegible] and all with a [illegible] An ounce [illegible] with two table- [illegible] one teaspoonful [illegible] and two of salad oil, [illegible] egg and a little salt [illegible] Allow the batter to [illegible] before using beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth, and mix it. Fry the oysters covered with the batter in boiling fat, turn them, place them on blotting paper to drain; serve on a hot dish, and garnish with slices of lemon and thin rolls of brown bread and butter alternately.

A DELICIOUS TOMATO SOUP.—Is made by frying some bits of beef [illegible] in a saucepan with a lump of butter and a small onion sliced. Take a quart can of tomatoes, or a dozen fresh ones, (medium or small sized,) add a coffee cup of stock, and then put the meat in with it and boil; season with pepper and salt. This may be strained or not; of course it is in better taste to strain it; if the soup seems too thin after it is strained, put it back on the stove, add a tablespoonful of flour rubbed smooth in cold water, and let the soup simmer gently for [illegible]. In making any kind of [illegible] it is much better to let it simmer than to boil violently; nothing is gained, not even time, by the [illegible] process, as any thing will [illegible] quickly without it. It is the degree of heat to which the [illegible] is subjected which cooks it, and flavor suffers by rapid evaporation.

TREATMENT OF COLDS.—Colds which are prevalent just now need [illegible] attention. Remedies at [illegible] will sometimes save valuable [illegible], an amount of suffering, besides large doctor bills. Ten cents worth of Dover's powders will last [illegible] a long time. When symptoms of a cold are felt take a small [illegible] two hours before re- [illegible] repeating the dose upon re- [illegible] enlarging the powder. Your [illegible] will give you a sample powder. After once using no one will do without them. These powders have saved us hundreds of dollars besides the suffering.

WATERPROOF BOOTS.—The best application for rendering boots waterproof, is the fat of fowls. The fat is saved when the fowls are dressed, melted, and applied to the leather as needed.

BUTTERED APPLES.—Pare a dozen apples, or enough to fill a yellow nappy, and scoop out the cores with a tin cutter. Butter the bottom of the nappy well and put in the apples, fill up the cores with pounded sugar and grated lemon peel, and scatter the same over them. Pour a little melted butter over them, and bake in the oven till quite soft. Serve with whipped cream.

Sinai and Calvary.

Hark! from Mount Sinai's flaming brow
The long blown trumpet's quivering sound!
Beneath, the sons of Israel bow,
With trembling hope, with awe profound.

Jehovah speaks—the lightnings fly,
And peals of heavy thunder roll
Their awful voices through the sky,
While nature shakes from pole to pole.

"I am the Lord—a thousand peals
Still louder sound one vast "Amen!"
Louder than when, on bloody wheels,
Huge Moloch shakes the Hindoo plain.

I am the Lord—thy God alone,
Alone possessed of power divine,
Bend not to any other throne,
Obey no other law but mine.

That, Jehovah, oh, how broad!
Who can my arduous path pursue?
That holy law, O righteous God,
Includes thoughts, words, and actions too.

"Cursed is the man," I hear it say,
"That keeps not, while he lives, the whole;
For in the last great Judgment day
One failing sinks the guilty soul.

But hark! from yonder purple hill
Sweet accents float upon my ear—
Christ's last words through my bosom thril
And gently dissipate my fear.

Dear Jesus! to thy cross I fly,
On thy almighty love I fall;
Be thou my Advocate on high,
My Life, my Righteousness, my All!

A Religion Called For.

What is wanted now is a greater amount of religion—that which is deep and true and abiding. Something is called for, and loudly, too, that will of itself and in secret compel a man to give honest weight and measure; to deal by a customer as he would by himself; to leave off lying and stealing for a better reason than the fear of being found out; a religion that banishes small measures from the counters, pebbles from the cotton bags, sand from the sugar, chicory from the coffee, alum from the bread, and water from the milk cans. This is something that everybody understands. It is not itself religion, but it is the unmistakable fruits of it. The man who has genuine religion will practice none of these things. The religion which is to save the world, will not put all the big strawberries at the top and all the little ones at the bottom. It will not make one-half a pair of shoes of good leather and the other of shoddy, so that the first shall redound to the maker's credit and the second to his cash. It does not put bricks at five dollars a thousand into chimneys it contracts to build with seven dollars material, nor smuggle white pine into floors that have paid for hard pine; nor leave yawning cracks in closets where boards ought to join. And so on to the end of the chapter. The first thing to do is to stir up human souls to their depths with fundamental principles, and reach down to the motives and springs of action, that things may begin again at the beginning. There is dire necessity of a radical change like this. Affairs are running wrong now, and there must be a turning back to first principles, which are always those of truth. "Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."

The Women's Christian Temperance Union has removed its headquarters from the Bible House in New York city to No. 16 E. 14th Street.

To The Women Of The United States.

DEAR SISTER:—For three years past, we have been publishing the Anti Polygamy Standard, a monthly journal devoted to the object of suppressing polygamy in Utah and other Territories of the United States. During this period we have labored under many disadvantages in not having printing material and presses of our own, yet in spite of many discouragements and obstacles, working right in the heart of the enemy's camp, we believe, we have succeeded in arousing public opinion throughout the country, against the monster iniquity of the Mormon Church, and the dangers which menace the Republic in the constant spread of this dire enemy to the unity and purity of home. This labor we desire to continue until that vicious doctrine is completely exterminated and the women now held in such revolting chains, be loosed from their shackles.

To enable us to accomplish this end, we desire to place the Standard upon a more permanent footing, by purchasing such material as is necessary to conduct the business of the paper, and without which, it cannot be carried on successfully.

You will understand the urgent necessity of maintaining the paper, when we tell you it is the only medium by which we can make our influence felt with the people of the United States, from whom the remedy for the evil is to be obtained. Until the people are fully educated to the importance of dealing with Polygamy, Congress will never enact any adequate laws for its suppression.

In addition to its main object, the Standard will be an organ for the local Temperance and Benevolent Organizations, will also devote [illegible] to the educational interests of the Territory, and will aim in every number to furnish something that will tend to elevate and Christianize the homes of Utah.

We now appeal to all friends of morality and progress, and to lovers of American Institutions, to aid us as liberally as they can, both by making donations to the printing fund and sending subscriptions for the paper, which is only One Dollar a year. We want to raise outside of Utah, about $1500, the balance needed will be furnished by the Gentiles here, who have already been taxed far beyond their means, in maintaining this unequal conflict for so many years. We trust, dear Sister, you will respond to our appeal at once, and let your individual amounts be ever so small, remember our object is, that the breaking of women hearts, and the destruction of the purity of homes might be made to cease. All communications to be addressed to the Secretary of the Standard Publishing Company, Box 453, Salt Lake City, Utah, who will send receipts for all amounts received.

We remain, cordially yours,
Mrs. SARAH A. COOKE, President.
Mrs. Jennie Froiseth, Secretary.

I commend this good work to all those whom this appeal may come. A work greater than any elsewhere, is to be done here. Help to do it.

ELI. H. MURRAY,
Governor of Utah.

We heartily join Gov. Murray in endorsing this appeal, the object is one which all Christian people should aid.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

An Acrostic.

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO PROF. RICHARD T. GREENER.

Strew a good man's path with flowers while he lives,
If he needs must tread on thorns let them be spread by foes,
So when he dies his friends shall not as a mockery give Tokens of esteem and love.
Rich in principle, rich in mind,
In character noble, in manner refined;
Claiming a standard all men to unite,
High in his bearing upholding the right.
A man indeed of beautiful mould,
Rare in his qualities not to be sold;
Deeming true principle better than gold.
Tested in a trying hour when the foes to kill had power.
Greener shall live in the hearts of his race,
Resting in memory's fond embrace,
Ever as a scholar, teacher and friend,
Ever as an advocate willing to lend
New efforts when dark shadows bend:
Excelsior may his steps attend,
Renewed blessings God to him send.

Unreasoning Prejudice.

Governor Cameron, of Virginia, is being severely censured, we observe, for having appointed some negro school trustees in the city of Richmond. Several of the Virginia newspapers are advocating a State Convention to amend the Constitution so as to provide for the separate maintenance of white and colored schools—taxing each race for its own schools. The Richmond Dispatch, in the worst spirit imaginable, says: "It might as well be understood at first as last that the whites of Virginia do not intend to permit negroes to be trustees of white schools. This is a humiliation to which nobody has a right to expect the superior race to submit." This talk about "humiliation" and the "superior race" is in exceeding bad taste. The Constitution of the United States has made negroes citizens in the fullest sense of the word. They may fall short of the whites mentally and morally, but when they manifest the capacity to lift themselves upon a plane of equality with the rest of mankind they should be encouraged. It should be the duty of the Democratic party of Virginia to protect, encourage, and assist this lowly race instead of making eternal war upon it. If Democracy means anything it means sympathy for the poor and the ignorant and the oppressed. This is the Democracy of the World, and it counsels the people of Virginia to dismiss forever the blind prejudice which the Richmond Dispatch seeks to foster and stimulate. We respect Governor Cameron for the step that he has taken. It is time for this war against "niggers" to stop. The negro in the South and elsewhere is entitled to every right of citizenship. If he fails to maintain himself the fault is his, but no white man has a right to bar a single avenue of his advancement.—N. Y. World.

A Negro Michael Angelo.

In Champinas, Brazil, there is an enormous church, which has been seventy years in building, and is not completed yet. The remarkable feature about it is, the still more wonderful fact that the greater part of it is the work of a Negro man, who has never studied the simplest principles of sculpture, and who, indeed, does not know his alphabet. The sense of beauty of form was instinctive with him, and with the cunning hand of self-taught genius he has carved temples and columns, flowers, arabesques, and cherubims, throwing off his wondrous creations with the profusion which is only possible to those who draw their inspiration from within. He worked at his labor of love until old age brought failing sight and trembling hands; and now—poor, solitary, helpless, and blind—he ekes out a miserable pittance which his townsmen grant for his support by begging alms in the streets of Champinas. Others have continued his work, more or less imperfectly, and as there have been no plans made, the variety of workmen has greatly detracted from the harmony of the general effect.

Lost Friends.

DEAR EDITOR:—I wish to inquire for my mother. The last time I saw her was at Black Bluff, Wilcox County, Ala. I was born in Duplin county in North Carolina, in Jack Carneaga's family. Mother and I belonged to James Hall at the time we were separated. Mother had two children, myself Olive, and sister Louisa; my fathers's name was Louis, and sister's father was Handy; he belonged to John Simmons. Mother's name was Hednia. James Hall took her and started to Texas. I have not heard of her whereabouts since I was brought to Texas in 1859 from Alabama. I married in 1861 to Mahalie who belonged to Mrs. Caroline Tate. Wife's father was named Alexander, they all called him Alex. and her mother's name was Louisa, who died just before she left Alabama. Wife had two brothers Abraham and Charles; Charles died the same year they came to Texas. Her grandmother was left at Black Bluff, Wilcox county, Ala; her name was Charlotte; we all called her Mamma Lotta; she belonged to Mr. Felix Tate. I heard in 1880 that she was still living. Please address Oliver Lewis, Buckhorn, Austin county, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR:—I desire to find my father Jack Payne; mother, who was Julia, and my oldest sister Mary; there were three brothers, Randolph, Sam and Jacob. My name was William Payne but is now Wm. Monroe. I left Lynchburg, Va., in 1870, with my cousin Reuben James. Brother Sam was then in Lynchburg; sister Mary and Randolph had gone out on the railroad to work. Since then I have heard from them but once; brother Jacob had gone to Illinois. Address me at Port Allen, West Baton Rouge parish, Louisiana.

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to find my people I left in Northumberland county, Virginia, on the Potomac river. My father was Isaac Sherman, mother Maria. I had one sister Eda, and she married James Thames, who was free born. There was sister Mary and brother Ephraim also. Father was a Baptist deacon. They belonged to William Hardin, and lived within one mile of the court house. I left them about thirty years ago. Address me at Brazoria, Texas.

A GOOD COMPARISON.

The Rev. William Boulatt, a well-known Methodist clergyman, residing at Naples, draws the following amusing, but apt comparison between Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a ferret.

"A ferret when placed at the entrance of a rat hole, enters the aperture, travels along the passage, seizes upon the rat, exterminates his existence and draws the animal's defunct carcass to the light. And in like manner have I found Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge to operate upon worms, those dreadful and dangerous tormentors of children. This remedy, like the ferret, enters the aperture of the mouth, travels down the gullet, hunts round the stomach and lays hold of the worms, shakes the life out of the reptiles, sweeps clean their den, and carries their carcasses clear out of the system. This, at least, has been the effect of the Vermifuge upon my children."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.
By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.
WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed, and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

The project of turning the Sahara, or a part of it, into a vast inland sea connected with the Mediterranean, promises to be both practicable and profitable. Soundings in various parts have shown the existence of nothing but sand to the depth of over 200 feet. With the aid of 100 excavators, representing the work of 100,000 men, the sea might easily be made. M. de Lesseps met with the best reception from the Arab soldiery and population, and made a complete survey of the country between Gabes and the Marsh Lakes. He declared that the soil will allow of the excavations necessary to connect the lakes with the Mediterranean; that the works will present no extraordinary difficulty, and that the concessions asked for with regard to the forest and adjoining lands will make the scheme remunerative and wholly independent of State aid, subvention, or guarantee.

Bad Case of St Vitus Dance.

Minister is the singular name of a town situated in Auglaize Co., Ohio. It is the residence of Mr. J. Brandewie, who writes: "Samaritan Nervine permanently cured my son of a bad case of St. Vitus Dance." $1.50.

It is a pity that comments concerning domestic affairs in various portions of the Union should be treated as sectional grievances only in one section. Much must be allowed to a sectional pride that grew rank in the South during the old days, and the like of which has never existed in any other part of the Republic. But we must hope that something of this morbid sensitiveness this intolerant suspiciousness, will die out after a while. Perhaps when the people of the South are busier with mills, shops, fields, looms, and the vast machinery of trade and commerce they will cease to bother themselves with imaginary slights and affronts.—N. Y. Times.

No Rest Day or Night.

In the fall of 1875 my sufferings were terrible. I was swollen to such proportions that I feared my limbs would burst. I had the best medical talent obtainable, and at the worst stage of my illness, when my husband and many friends had given me up to die, the late Dr. John Woodbury made a thorough examination of my water, and pronounced my case acute kidney disease, bordering on Bright's disease, and accompanied by gravel, and recommended the immediate use of Hunt's Remedy. At this time I was suffering most terrible pain in my back, limbs, and head, and could find no rest day or night for weeks, and I was growing weaker daily until this kind physician ordered me to take Hunt's Remedy. Before taking half of one bottle I commenced to improve, and after taking six bottles was entirely cured. This was nearly eight years ago, and I have had no return of the disease. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to others in similar cases, and it has never failed to cure. I have also used it for sick headache, and found in it a sure relief. I think it the best medicine made, and cheerfully recommend it to all,

MRS. W. H. STILSON,

A Well-known Man.

Hunt's Remedy having been recommended to me for kidney and liver complaints, I purchased some at the "People's Drug Store" and used it in my family, and found it to be a very valuable medicine, and I gladly recommend it highly to my friends, knowing it to be beneficial to those troubled with kidney or liver disease. Respectfully yours,

ELISHA NOYSE,
April 14, 1883. 63 G. St., So. Boston, Mass.

A Last Manufacturer.

I have used Hunt's Remedy for the kidney complaint, and, having been fully restored to health by its use, I can testify to its value.

Daily I recommend it to some one of my friends, all of whom I know have been benefited by its use. Gratefully,

GEO. P. COX.

The West Tennessee Seminary, located at Hollow Rock, has just closed a very successful term. An unusually large number of boarding students were in attendance. Prof. Lasier has been re-elected Principal and will spend the vacation in the interest of the school.

There is nothing so contemptible nor more dangerous than imitations and adulterations of food or medicines. The Liebig Co's., celebrated Coca Beef Tonic has been imitated by unscrupulous druggists. Take none but the genuine. Invaluable in lost appetite, debility, failing eyesight, and biliousness.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
Smith's Tonic Syrup
FOR THE CURE OF
FEVER and AGUE
Or CHILLS and FEVER.
AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A WONDERFUL [illegible]
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you had them. They have been carefully examined and approved by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

[illegible] QUARTER. LESSON III. July 15th. THE PLAINS OF JERICHO. (Joshua v, 10-15; vi, 1-5.)

The last lesson told us how obedient [illegible] was and how God led them safe over Jordan. They were safe over Jordan but were in a strange land, and all the people were their enemies. God had promised them this land for their own, but it looked very hard when they saw a great city before them full of people who were not friends.

The first thing they did was to keep the feast of the passover. They ate it and remembered how God had led them away from Egypt, and were ready to trust him to lead them now. All these years they had eaten the manna, or bread from heaven, but now the manna [illegible], and they eat corn and the fruits of the land of Canaan. All the long years in the wilderness he sent them their daily bread. Now they can get it themselves, so God does not send it; but when ever they could not God was sure to send it to them.

After eating the Passover Joshua went to look at the great city before them. It had high, strong walls; and how were they to take it for their home. All at once he saw a man before him with a sword in his hand. Joshua remembered Jordan, and said, "Are you for us or against us?" The angel said, "I am coming as captain of the host of the Lord." Then Joshua fell on his face before the Lord's angel, and the Lord told Joshua what to do. He told him to just march around the city every day for seven days, and on the last the [illegible] blow trumpets and all the people shout, and the walls would [illegible] to be- [illegible] blowing trumpets and shouting throw strong walls down? Ah! [illegible] asked no questions, [illegible] and it all came as God [illegible]. If the people had said [illegible] the walls won't fall, God would not have [illegible].

God asks you for your heart. [illegible] will [illegible]. Won't you obey him. —Western.

What it did for an Old Lady.

COSHOCTON STATION, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1878.

Gents—A number of people had been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In one case a lady of over seventy years, had been sick for years, and for the past ten years has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty-five miles away, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It improved her so she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's, and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

R. ROBERTS.

Houston, Texas.

A saint has gone to heaven; Sister Susan Warren died, in full triumph of faith, June 18. She was born July 4, 1856. She had been sick since January, 1883. I visited her quite often and she always said she was going to die in a short time, but felt Jesus near and precious to her soul. She united with our church March 26, 1882. She was, before taken sick, a teacher in the Sabbath-school. She lived as becomes a Christian, and when the messenger was about to fulfill the command she said to her father and mother "Send for the pastor and the people. I am going. Come, Lord Jesus, come!" She said to all present, "I joined the Church last year to fight to the end; now the end is here." She assisted in singing "I am saved; the Lord has saved me, help me shout the glorious news; I have tasted God's salvation, [illegible] 'tis sweeter than honey-comb. Glory [illegible] salvation [illegible] name. [illegible] I am [illegible] Heaven has gained a saint. [illegible]

[illegible] Feb. 1859, and died June 1st, 1883. She was 23 years, and a few months old. Her mother died when she was a baby; she professed religion at the age of about 17, and joined the Presbyterian church, having a Methodist inclination, she promptly united her self to the M. E. Church after two years ago. She was quite [illegible], and has left the impress of her godly life upon the community in which she lived. It was my pleasure to visit her in her sickness, in her last illness her faith in God was firm. She lived a devoted Christian, and died one. She leaves several sisters and brothers, and a host of friends to mourn. Her funeral was attended at her parent's house by the writer.

The blue ribbon movement delights the India Methodist Watchman, of Bombay. The ribbons are seen in numerous lappels of army officers and civilians.

Our contemporary, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, last week came out strongly against lynch law, because of the ruinous, deadly influence upon all those who exercise it, and the defeat of the ends of justice.

The question of removing or extending the pastoral limit is being thoroughly discussed, with no prospect of any sudden change in the wise policy of itinerancy adopted by the founders of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Every noose which lynchers adjust to the neck of alleged criminals is intended to strangle the [illegible] impulses of society. Crime [illegible] and justice are suspended at [illegible] with the guilty.

The city of Savanah, Georgia, in its financial straits has never attempted the repudiation of any part of its indebtedness, and this honorable record is of positive advantage to all its commercial enterprises.

George Bancroft, in his great [illegible] on the Constitution of the United States, describes the rise of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this country, accurately traces the [illegible] steps, and eulogizes the patriotism, self-denial and piety of the early itinerants.

New Orleans having attained the [illegible] of second city for grain ex[illegible] in the Union, and been stim[illegible] to trade efforts by a steadily [illegible] railway system converging [illegible] it, can not afford to submit to [illegible] or inefficient sanitary regula[illegible]. Just now these should ab[illegible] the attention of the com[illegible] bodies, and the summary [illegible] of inefficient health offi[illegible] The public [illegible] a sanitary organi[illegible], that will command the [illegible] of the Mississippi valley; [illegible] will not resort to petty [illegible] to conceal the presence [illegible] disease, and that [illegible] a yellow fever vessel [illegible] in the habor, when it can [illegible] cared for at Ship Island [illegible] station. Now is the [illegible] committees [illegible] to wage unceasing [illegible] back-yard [illegible] red-tape digni[illegible] the good sense to [illegible] to [illegible] with [illegible]

[illegible] able agencies to this end, they should be compelled to step aside, and not be allowed to stand on the order of their getting out of the way.

Postmaster General Gresham has decided that the order of Postmaster General Key, made Nov. 13, 1879, forbidding the payment of postal orders, or delivery of registered letters to the Louisiana State Lottery, must stand. The order of Mr. Key was suspended until a case based upon it should be passed upon by the Supreme Court, but the Lottery Company abandoned the suit, hence Mr. Gresham directs that the first order shall "be extended as if the second had not been entered." The Supreme Court in ex parte Jackson, 96 United States, page 727, has affirmed the constitutionality of section 3,894, which, as amended by the act of July 12, 1876, declares that "no letter or circular concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises offering prizes, shall be carried in the mail." It is not probable that the courts will interfere, and all decent people will cordially approve the course taken by Postmaster General Gresham. The eminent services of Hon. E. W. Robertson, of Louisiana, in bringing about this desirable result should not be forgotten. His clear and able speech on the subject, pointing out the duty of the officials under the laws of Congress, were republished with approval in every section of the country; and in the matter of the restoration of the Key order, we are informed that he was directly represented by attorney. We congratulate him on this signal victory, and hope he will be reinforced by other Louisianians determined to redeem the State by wiping out the most shameful and villainous corporation that ever disgraced it.

The Editor of the Christian Neighbor, of Columbia, S. C., while enjoying the hospitality of friends conducted himself as follows: "Twice to-day (June 15) this editor secretly turned some 'setting hens' out of prison, where they had been confined by high authority because they wanted to set without eggs. When interrogated in a pleasant, half-accusing way, by the mistress of the yard, the editor inquired back if those hens had gotten out again? 'I just know you turned turned them out.' Silence was the only reply. We feel sorry when we see any animal unnecessarily deprived of its liberty—its rights—much more when any suffering is imposed upon the dumb animal beyond that which is as merciful as the bare imprisonment involves."

Do not fail to send the collections of Children's Day to Dr. D. P. Kidder, 805 Broadway, New York. These collections, according to the Discipline, cannot be diverted for any other object whatever. The Louisiana Conference directed that collections should be so forwarded, and a paragraph alleging contrary action, which was inadvertently admitted to our columns two weeks ago, was wholly erroneous and misleading. We thank Dr. Kidder for promptly suggesting this correction. If, for any cause, Children's Day was not observed on the second Sunday of June, designate another day and promptly forward the collection. Every church should be heard from in support of this most worthy cause.

"Watchman, What of the Night?"

Mr. President, Faculty and Students of Rust University:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Human nature craves intelligence. It enters upon the voyage of life with a penetrating eye, a listening ear, and an inquisitive tongue. The dreadful story of the fall, the unhappy secrets of Pandora's box, and a thousand ancient and modern agencies, all unite in pronouncing this craving as universal as human nature. To satisfy this popular demand, steel quivers, iron rears, steam pants and electricity runs mad. To fill its many requisitions, steam and sailing vessels have plowed every sea, and anchored in every harbor; the thunderings of innumerable mail trains and lightning expresses, like so many tremendous and ever enlarging cyclones, go sweeping through the land; while bridled electricity, with wings as swift as thought, netting every continent, dashing through the seas, annihilating all distances, and chaining the borders of all lands to the shores of America, brings daily tidings from afar. Intelligence, oozing from a thousand sources, and meandering through untold channels; information, which is echoed or echoing from the stage, the platform and the pulpit, is continually spread before this great nation by 11,802 newspapers and periodicals. Every system, every movement, every doctrine, and every sensational sentiment has its exponent and its necessary endorsement. Nothing, however, is of such great interest, and commands so much of the world's present attention, as that of the history and condition of the human race. At this stage of our national life, at this time of revived discussion, and of mighty actions and reactions for or against him, the Negro continues distinctively the unriddled sphinx, the unsolved problem of the age; and no branch of the human family attracts so much of the world's present attention: And this evening, notwithstanding the many historical, scientific or classical subjects from which I might have made such a selection as, doubtless, would have met the greater approbation of your cultured intelligence and fancy, I deny myself the privilege and the honor, in order to review a step or two in the Negro's progress since the war, and to attempt, as it now applies to the Negro, an answer to the question of the ancient seer: "Watchman, what of the night?" Such a question may have no classical form or scientific attraction that we should desire it, but it nevertheless has all the elements of an important, live and practical issue. Repeated attempts have been made to eliminate it from popular discussion, but every effort has been in vain. Like Banquo's ghost it will not down, but remains to, unceasingly, haunt the American people. It is a question that concerns man, and because it concerns man it concerns us; or, in the language of the celebrated native African, Terentius Publius: "Homo sum; humani nihil a me alienum puto;" or, in other words. "I am a man, and nothing that relates to man is foreign to my sympathies." Many self-constituted, unauthorized, and totally incompetent watchmen, have at various times taken upon themselves to answer this important question, and supply the desired information, but they have utterly failed, in nearly every instance, in doing anything like justice to the Negro. They were watchmen, who, like color-blind mariners, were blinded by senseless and heartless prejudices; or who, like those that stood not continually on the watchtower, were ignorant of the truth. Prophets that prophesied lies in the name of the Lord; and who, for their deception justly deserve the execration of their fellows, and the wrath of God. These may be sharp words, but they are the words of soberness and truth. An obscure watchman on the wall, having made a few observations, and jotted down some of the signs of the times, I venture to bring you a few items of intelligence, and offer to exchange a passing thought or two, and to attempt an answer to the question of the seer. The Negro, his friends and his enemies all join in the inquiry, "Watchman, what of the night?" To this, many sanguine zealots answer with complacent satisfaction that, "all is well; that the day has dawned; the sun has risen, and is ascending the zenith; that slavery is buried, caste is dead, and that color line exists only in history. Others, rushing to the other extreme, have raised the alarming cry that the dial has swung back twenty years; that the night is darker, and that the negro, in intelligence, in morality and religion, is worse than when the pen of the immortal Lincoln, supported by the conquering sword of Grant, unriveted his fetters and wrapped him up in freedom. Friends and fellow citizens, can this be true? Does not every avenue of information pour in evidence to the contrary? Does not every Negro home, school house, church, newspaper; does not every agricultural, commercial, mechanical, and all the enterprises of civilized activity, into which he has entered; and the successes which he has achieved, all mark the honorable degrees of his upward progress? Yes, in spite of the opposition and enmity of his enemies, the race is rising! An innumerable multitude of clear sighted, unprejudiced witnesses testify to this fact. Witnesses with truth on their tongues; watchmen who have seen the morning star of promise, now answer, to the honest inquirer, "the morning cometh." In company with those apostles of truth, "I come not to praise, nor yet to bury Cæsar, but to render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's." But how shall we know whether "the morning cometh" unless we study the signs of the time; and how shall justice be done to the Negro's present status, unless we look backward and glance over the history of his bondage? Pause here, for a moment, if you please, while some fragments, from the pages of history, are faintly exhibited before you; while a few distant echoes, from the annals of slavery, are whispered in your ears. The Negro's history in America, from the year 1619, when twenty in number, he stepped off from the Dutch man-of-war, at Jamestown, in Virginia, (the mother of States, of presidents and of slavery,) until freed by the fiat of Lincoln's memorable proclamation, 244 years afterwards, was made up of one long and dreary, moonless and starless, sorrowing night. A night that was crowded with unrequiting labors, oppression and suffering.

About the same time, however, or probably less than a year after the landing of these seeds of slavery, germs that were destined to grow up into the unsightly cactus, the poisonous upas, and the deadly nightshade, there also landed, at Plymouth Rock, another vessel, an English vessel, the Mayflower, with forty one men aboard, beside women and children. These were the men who were destined to become the representatives of freedom, and of the genius of our free institutions. The name of the Mayflower, and the influence and principles which she represented, continue to live and flourish in perpetual verdure and fragrance; but the name of the Dutch slave ship has long since perished in infamy and offensive rottenness, while the system which it represented has also perished, and is buried face-foremost, beneath the accumulations of twenty years of the most wonderful history. The landing of the Dutch man-of-war, was the prelude to the long and cheerless night of American slavery. It introduced a system which pitied soul nor body, and which was destined to be driven out, at a fearful cost of blood and treasures. Here human beings, of whom God had said: "He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hands he shall surely be put to death," and creatures, for whom Christ Jesus died to save, were snatched from their fatherland, torn from their relatives and friends, and brought in chains, to Christian America, in Christian ships, by Christian captains, to be sold to Christian Negro traders and masters, who very often happened to be Christian ministers, and in some instances Christian bishops. Slavery was the the rule of southern life, southern ethnology, theology, bibliology, and every concievable ology and ism conspired to forge stronger chains for Negro slaves and chattels. The ministers of slavery, then, taught the slave, that his most sacred duty, as set forth in the scriptures and enjoined by the love of God to him, was to honestly and unmurmuringly obey his cruel master's will, and his most exalted privilege, was to secure his master's "pass" to come to the table of the Lord's Supper, and finally, if faithful, to be permitted to go, to "the heaven where the good old darkies go." The exposition of our National laws, as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States, and pronounced by the Chief Justice, came thundering South, from Washington. declaring, that in morals nor in politics, black men had no right that the white man was bound to respect. Thus, both human and divine laws were rigidly interpreted to bind the limbs of slaves, and to quiet the consciences of slave traders and masters. But it may be asked: "Why open these festering sores anew; why stir up these unpleasant memories of a shameful and bitter past?" I answer that, it is in order that we may be able to approximately, measure the extent of the retrogression, which our enemies charge, or the progress which we and our friends claim, for the Negro, since the war. For how can the present be read intelligently, and be rightly interpreted, without those rays of light which the past alone can afford? How can the extent and character of the change be properly estimated, unless we look into those days of deepest gloom, when the Negro owned not himself, his wife, nor his children; when they were advertised, and sold at auction or at private sale, with horses, sheep and cattle, and other classes of merchandise; when they were separated and scattered never to meet again upon the shores of time; for those whom slavery separated, like those who entered Dante's inferno left hope behind, and rarely ever met again. To read aright the signs of the time, and to reckon the watch of the night, take, at least, casual observations through those stages of the darkness, when it was death or next to death to be found with a book or a pen in one's hands; when the whole caravan of Negro slaves in this country, four millions strong, represented a cloud of ignorance as dense and appelling as that which overhangs the dark continent itself; when masters selected wives and husbands for their slaves, and sold them according to their breeds; when morals trailed in vice, and masters introduced a middle race betwixt the black and white; when mulattoes, the children of the lust of southern chivalry, were bought and sold for gold. Recall those days, when Christian teachers taught that God had cursed the race, to serve the white, for the sin of Cain, of Noah, Ham or Canaan.

Under such circumstances is it to be wondered that freedom found him bankrupt in education; having no proper conception of morals, and in some instances ignorantly creating altars to the "unknown god?" He was a chattel, spoken of in the neuter gender, and treated worse than Hortentius treated slaves, whom he esteemed less than the pet lampreys in his stew. Bishop Foster says that freedom found him "nothing, or worse than nothing." But to-day, after twenty years of freedom, what is his true condition? The question to be answered is, whether the American Negro is progressing or retrograding; whether his freedom is proving to himself, his country, and Christian civilization, a blessing or a curse. But who is qualified to answer these questions intelligently, conscientiously and truthfully? Certainly not one who is an avowed Negro-hater; nor one whose whole life has proven him an indifferent and prejudiced observer of this race, which he secretly despises as his social and ethnological inferior; nor yet one who never mingles with the race in its higher as well as in its under stratum. Competent witnesses are wanted. Men who both know something and are capable of conscientiously testifying the truth about this race. The Sanballots, Tobiahs and Ammonites, who were desperately wroth when the Negro was freed, and who were exceedingly grieved when Christian missionaries came from the North to seek his welfare, cannot be qualified witnesses. No, not unless they have been thoroughly reconstructed by the terrible logic of events, as, thank the Lord, many have been. Men, who scorned and decided the work of building up the Negro, and who grew furious as he firmly marched up all the avenues of life; the Authonys, Cæsars and Læpiduses, who met in secret conclaves to devise ways and means, who practiced craftiness, monopolized the press, utilized fraud, encouraged brutality, cunning and misrepresentation to keep the Negro down, are not, and cannot, in the nature of things, be accepted as reliable witnesses. Postmaster General Gresham has decided that the order of Postmaster General Key, made Nov. 13, 1879, forbidding the payment of postal orders, or delivery of registered letters to the Louisiana State Lottery, must stand. The order of Mr. Key was suspended until a case based upon it should be passed upon by the Snpreme Court, bnt the Lottery Company abandoned the suit, hence Mr. Gresham directs that the first order shall "be extended as if the second had not been entered." The Snpreme Court in ex parte Jackson, 96 United States, page 727, has affirmed the constitutionality of section 3,894, which, as amended by the act of July 12, 1876, declares that "no letter or circular concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises offering prizes, shall be carried in the mail." It is not probable that the courts will interfere, and all decent people will cordially approve the course taken by Postmaster General Gresham. The eminent services of Hon. E. W. Robertson, of Louisiana, in bringing about this desirable result shonld not be forgotten. His clear and able speech on the subject, pointing out the duty of the officials under the laws of Congress, were republished with approval in every section of the country; and in the matter of the restoration of the Key order, we are informed that he was directly represented by attorney. We congratulate him on this signal victory, and hope he will be reinforced by other Louisianians determined to redeem the State by wiping out the most shameful and villainous corporation that ever disgraced it.

The Editor of the Christian Neighbor, of Columbia, S. C., while enjoying the hospitality of friends conducted himself as follows: "Twice to-day (June 15) this editor secretly turned some 'setting hens' out of prison, where they had been confined by high anthority because they wanted to set withont eggs. When interrogated in a pleasant, half-accnsing way, by the mistress of the yard, the editor inquired back if those hens had gotten ont again? 'I just know yon turned turned them ont.' Silence was the only reply. We feel sorry when we see any animal nnnecessarily deprived of its liberty—its rights —mnch more when any suffering is imposed upon the dumb animal beyond that which is as merciful as the bare imprisonment involves."

Do not fail to send the collections of Children's Day to Dr. D. P. Kidder, 805 Broadway, New York. These collections, according to the Discipline, cannot be diverted for any other object whatever. The Lonisiana Conference directed that collections shonld be so forwarded, and a paragraph alleging contrary action, which was inadvertently admitted to our colnmns two weeks ago, was wholly erroneons and misleading. We thank Dr. Kidder for promptly snggesting this correction. If, for any cause, Children's Day was not observed on the second Snnday of Jnne, designate another day and promptly forward the collection. Every church should be heard from in support of this most worthy cause.

"Watchman, What of the Night?"

Mr. President, Faculty and Students of Rust University:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Human nature craves intelligence. It enters upon the voyage of life with a penetrating eye, a listening ear, and an inquisitive tongue. The dreadful story of the fall, the un happy secrets of Pandora's box, and a thousand ancient and modern agencies, all unite in pronouncing this craving as nniversal as human nature. To satisfy this popular demand, steel quivers, iron rears, steam pants and electricity runs mad. To fill its many requisitions, steam and sailing vessels have plowed every sea, and anchored in every harbor; the thunderings of innumerable mail trains and lightning expresses, like so many tremendous and ever enlarging cyclones, go sweeping through the land; while bridled electricity, with wings as swift as thought, netting every continent, dashing through the seas, annihilating all distances, and chaining the borders of all lands to the shores of America, brings daily tidings from afar. Intelligence, oozing from a thonsand sonrces, and meandering through untold channels; information, which is echoed or echoing from the stage, the platform and the pulpit, is continually spread before this great nation by 11,802 newspapers and periodicals. Every system, every movement, every doctrine, and every sensational sentiment has its exponent and its necessary endorsement. Nothing, however, is of such great interest, and commands so much of the world's present attention, as that of the history and condition of the hnman race. At this stage of our national life, at this time of revived discnssion, and of mighty actions and reactions for or against him, the Negro continnes distinctively the nnriddled sphinx, the nnsolved problem of the age; and no branch of the hnman family attracts so mnch of the world's present attention: And this evening, notwithstanding the many historical, scientific or classical snbjects from which I might have made such a selection as, donbtless, wonld have met the greater approbation of yonr cultured intelligence and fancy, I deny myself the privilege and the honor, in order to review a step or two in the Negro's progress since the war, and to attempt, as it now applies to the Negro, an answer to the qnestion of the ancient seer: "Watchman, what of the night?" Such a qnestion may have no classical form or scientific attraction that we shonld desire it, bnt it nevertheless has all the elements of an important, live and practical issne. Repeated attempts have been made to eliminate it from popnlar discussion, bnt every effort has been in vain. Like Banqno's ghost it will not down, but remains to, nnceasingly, hannt the American people. It is a qnestion that concerns man, and becanse it concerns man it concerns ns; or, in the langnage of the celebrated native African, Terentins Publins: "Homo sum; humani nihil a me alienum puto;" or, in other words. "I am a man, and nothing that relates to man is foreign to my sympathies." Many self-constituted, unanthorized, and totally incompetent watchmen, have at various times taken upon themselves to answer this important qnestion, and supply the desired information, bnt they have ntterly failed, in nearly every instance, in doing anything like justice to the Negro. They were watchmen, who, like color-blind mariners, were blinded by senseless and heartless prejndices; or who, like those that stood not continually on the watchtower, were ignorant of the truth. Prophets that prophesied lies in the name of the Lord; and who, for their deception justly deserve the execration of their fellows, and the wrath of God. These may be sharp words, bnt they are the words of soberness and truth. An obscure watchman on the wall, having made a few observations, and jotted down some of the signs of the times, I venture to bring you a few items of intelligence, and offer to exchange a passing thought or two, and to attempt an answer to the question of the seer. The Negro, his friends and his enemies all join in the inquiry, "Watchman, what of the night?" To this, many sanguine zealots answer with complacent satisfaction that, "all is well; that the day has dawned; the snn has risen, and is ascending the zenith; that slavery is buried, caste is dead, and that color line exists only in history. Others, rushing to the other extreme, have raised the alarming cry that the dial has swung back twenty years; that the night is darker, an[illegible]t the negro, in intelligence, in [illegible]ality and religion, is worse tha[illegible] when the pen of the immortal Lincoln, supported by the conquering sword of Grant, unriveted his fetters and wrapped him up in freedom. Friends and fellow citizens, can this be true? Does not every avenue of information pour in evidence to the contrary? Does not every Negro home, school honse, church, newspaper; does not every agricultural, commercial, mechanical, and all the enterprises of civilized activity, into which he has entered; and the snccesses which he has achieved, all mark the honorable degrees of his npward progress? Yes, in spite of the opposition and enmity of his enemies, the race is rising! An innnmerable mnltitnde of clear sighted, unprejndiced witnesses testify to this fact. Witnesses with truth on their tongues; watchmen who have seen the morning star of promise, now answer, to the honest inquirer, "the morning cometh." In company with those apostles of truth, "I come not to praise, nor yet to bury Cæsar, bnt to render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's." Bnt how shall we know whether "the morning cometh" unless we stndy the signs of the time; and how shall justice be done to the Negro's present status, unless we look backward and glance over the history of his bondage? Panse here, for a moment, if yon please, while some fragments, from the pages of history, are faintly exhibited before yon; while a few distant echoes, from the annals of slavery, are whispered in your ears. The Negro's history in America, from the year 1619, when twenty in number, he stepped off from the Dntch man-of-war, at Jamestown, in Virginia, (the mother of States, of presidents and of slavery,) nntil freed by the fiat of Lincoln's memorable proclamation, 244 years afterwards, was made np of one long and dreary, moonless and starless, sorrowing night. A night that was crowded with unrequiting labors, oppression and suffering. Abont the same time, however, or probably less than a year after the landing of these seeds of slavery, germs that were destined to grow np into the unsightly cactus, the poisonous npas, and the deadly nightshade, there also landed, at Plymonth Rock, another vessel, an English vessel, the Mayflower, with forty one men aboard, beside women and children. These were the men who were destined to become the representatives of freedom, and of the genius of our free institutions. The name of the Mayflower, and the infinence and principles which she represented, continne to live and flourish in perpetual verdure and fragrance; but the name of the Dntch slave ship has long since perished in infamy and offensive rottenness, while the system which it represented has also perished, and is buried face-foremost, beneath the accumnlations of twenty years of the most wonderful history. The landing of the Dntch man-of-war, was the prelude to the long and cheerless night of American slavery. It introduced a system which pitied sonl nor body, and which was destined to be driven ont, at a fearful cost of blood and treasures. Here hnman beings, of whom God had said: "He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be fonnd in his hands he shall surely be put to death," and creatures, for whom Christ Jesns died to save, were snatched from their fatherland, torn from their relatives and friends, and brought in chains, to Christian America, in Christian ships, by Christian captains; to be sold to Christian Negro traders and masters, who very often happened to be Christian ministers, and in some instances Christian bishops. Slavery was the the rule of sonthern life, southern ethnology, theology, bibliology, and every concievable ology and ism conspired to forge stronger chains for Negro slaves and chattels. The ministers of slavery, then, taught the slave, that his most sacred dnty, as set forth in the scriptures and enjoined by the love of God to him, was to honestly and nnmurmuringly obey his crnel master's will, and his most exalted privilege, was to secure his master's "pass" to come to the table of the Lord's Snpper, and finally, if faithful, to be permitted to go, to "the heaven where the good old darkies go." The exposition of our National laws, as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States, and prononnced by the Chief Jnstice, came thundering Sonth, from Washingtion. declaring, that in morals nor in politics, black men had no right that the white man was bonnd to respect. Thns, both human and divine laws were rigidly interpreted to bind the limbs of slaves, and to quiet the consciences of slave traders and masters. Bnt it may be asked: "Why open these festering sores anew; why stir np these unpleasant memories of a shamefnl and bitter past?" I answer that, it is in order that wo may be able to approximately, measnre the extent of the retrogression, which onr enemies charge, or the progress which we and onr friends claim, for the Negro, since the war. For how can the present be read intelligently, and be rightly interpreted, without those rays of light which the past alone can afford? How can the extent and character of the change be properly estimated, unless we look into those days of deepest gloom, when the Negro owned not himself, his wife, nor his children; when they were advertised, and sold at anction or at private sale, with horses, sheep and cattie, and other classes of merchandise; when they were separated and scattered never to meet again npon the shores of time; for those whom slavery separated, like those who entered Dante's inferno left hope behind, and rarely ever met again. To read aright the signs of the time, and to reckon the watch of the night, take, at least, casual observations through those stages of the darkness, when it was death or next to death to be found with a book or a pen in one's hands; when the whole caravan of Negro slaves in this country, four millions strong, represented a clond of ignorance as dense and appelling as that which overhangs the dark continent itself; when masters selected wives and husbands for their slaves, and sold them according to their breeds; when morals trailed in vice, and masters introduced a middle race betwixt the black and white; when mnlattoes, the children of the lust of southern chivalry, were bonght and sold for gold. Recall those days, when Christian teachers taught that God had cursed the race, to serve the white, for the sin of Cain, of Noah, Ham or Canaan.

Under such circumstances is it to be wondered that freedom found him bankrnpt in edncation, having no proper conception of morals, and in some instances ignorantly creating altars to the "nnknown god?" He was a chattel, spoken of in the neuter gender, and treated worse than Hortentius treated slaves, whom he esteemed less than the pet lampreys in his stew. Bishop Foster says that freedom found him "nothing, or worse than nothing." But to-day, after twenty years of freedom, what is his trne condition? The qnestion to be answered is, whether the American Negro is progressing or retrograding; whether his freedom is proving to himself, his conntry, and Christian civilization, a blessing or a curse. But who is qnalified to answer these qnestions intelligently, conscientionsly and trnthfully? Certainly not one who is an avowed Negro-hater; nor one whose whole life has proven him an indifferent and prejudiced observer of this race, which he secretly despises as his social and ethnological inferior; nor yet one who never mingles with the race in its higher as well as in its under stratnm. Competent witnesses are wanted. Men who both know something and are capable of conscientionsly testifying the trnth abont this race. The Sanballots, Tobiahs and Ammonites, who were desperately wroth when the Negro was freed, and who were exceedingly grieved when Christian missionaries came from the North to seek his welfare, cannot be qualified witnesses. No, not unless they have been thoronghly reconstrncted by the terrible logic of events, as, thank the Lord, many have been. Men, who scorned and decided the work of bnilding up the Negro, and who grew furious as he firmly marched up all the avenues of life; the Anthonys, Cæsars and Læpidnses, who met in secret conclaves to devise ways and means, who practiced craftiness, monopolized the press, utilized fraud, encouraged brutality, cunning and misrepresentation to keep the Negro down, are not, and cannot, in the nature of things, be accepted as reliable witnesses. Another unreliable class of witnesses are those coming from the North, before or since the war, who for the sake of securing Southern social recognition, smothered all the fires that burned upon their altars dedicated to liberty, to join Southern prejudice in the worship at the altar of the Moloch of slavery and negrophobia. This is the worst class of witnesses. An army of freedmen can testify that, before the war, they were the most cruel masters; during the war, they were the most desperate rebels, and since the war, they have proven themselves the most relentless enemies of the Negro. It was but natural that it should be so. Being northern men, they were always watched and suspected of entertaining peculiar sympathy for the slave. Hence it was that to secure the coveted social recognition and confidence of the slave oligarchy, and to convince them of the genuineness of their conversion, these northern proselytes, without exception, outheroded Herod. Of this class is the Rev. J. L. Tucker, D.D., formerly of Jackson, Miss., now rector of Christchurch, Mobile, Ala. Totally blinded by passion, and pandering to the depraved sentiments of other negro-haters, he delivered before the Episcopal Congress at Richmond, Va., last fall, a speech which he has since enlarged and published, in which he circulates incendiary utterances, wantonly assails, grossly misrepresents and scurrilously abuses the colored people of the South. Representing, as he does, a church that scarcely ever turned her hands to seek and save the Negro, now to give vent to his prejudices and to reap cheap notoriety, he scans the diction and [illegible] the low sentiments of billingsgate, to find terms expressive of the result of his bleeglass and oblique observations touching this race. [illegible] the low order of fungus themselves, to these sentiments have been added, like the excrescence of some foul sore, the endorsement of other inherent Negro-haters. They are the codified expressions of [illegible] like the priest and Levite in the parable, had heard the cry, and seen the man that had fallen among thieves while on his way from Jerusalem to Jericho, but could spare no time to succor him; [illegible] by on the other side. [illegible] Negro is the man that fell among the thieves; (the 16 chapter and 31st verse of Exodus tells us who the thieves are,) his journey lay from the degradation of bondage to the elevation of Christian character and culture; the priest was the Rev. Dr. Tucker, and the Levite was the prototype of Mr. Tucker's endorsers. The Methodist, Baptist, American Missionary Association, and other such Christian bodies, the are good Samaritans that have taken up the unfortunate man, pour oil and wine in his wounds, set him on their own beast, [illegible] him in an inn, a church or a school house, cared for him, and have expended for his mental, moral and religious health and prosperity, hundreds of thousands of dollars every year.

But what do Mr. Tucker and his [illegible] visioned endorsers say? Do they quietly go on their way, like their brethren, the priest and Levite in the parable, letting the [illegible], Baptist, and Congregational Samaritans care for their patient in perfect peace? They adopt a much different course, but [illegible] with less sympathy than the priest and Levite manifested, [illegible] the discouraging cry, [illegible] to aid the Negro, for [illegible] you do for him the worse [illegible] "Your thousands," they [illegible] "and Slater's million dollars [illegible] education is money worse [illegible] or thrown into the sea." [illegible] and the only witnesses [illegible] evidence of unbiased [illegible] Samaritans who [illegible] the Negro's cry of distress, [illegible] and saw his true condition [illegible] compassion on him, and [illegible] to his necessities; or [illegible] who both knows [illegible]; who knows [illegible] "was lost, but [illegible] now [illegible] been regenerated by the converting operation of the truth and stubborn facts, and none other, are authoritative and reliable. All others are incompetent. Dr. Tucker, however, in his most remarkable pamphlet, thrusts himself forward as a witness of the Negro's retrogression. Is he a competent witness? What is the burden of his testimony? I tell you, Mr. President, one needs to read but a few lines of this most unwise, uncharitable and unscriptural speech, to discover that the man who gave it utterance is so hopelessly affected with color-blindness, that he is totally incapable of giving a correct and faithful delineation of the character and condition of the colored people in the South. But what is the burden of his message? Why, he anticipates the question of the seer and an inquisitive people, and he answers in fearful tones: "The morning tarrieth," and "the Negro is retrograding in morality." He finds that "great changes have come to the colored race, great improvements in many things, to some of them, but no change in morals; and if there is any change," he says, "it is downward." Slavery he regarded as a great promoter of morality and religion; hence he says that, "since the removal of the restraints of slavery there has been a great deterioration in morality" and religion. In support of his unwarranted and unblushing misrepresentations to bolster up his flagrant charges which are grossly malicious and utterly at variance with the truth, vulture-like, he spares no pains in raking up together all the offscourings, filth, and rubbish out of the backyard of the race; such wretched characters as the Judases, Booths and Guiteans, which may be scraped out of the backyard of any race, and occasionally, even out of the parlor of the more favored race. Such exceptional scrapings he falsely represents as the representative American Negro of to-day. Mr. President, is that the present type and picture of the colored people of the South? Is that the result, the accrued interest now to be reaped by the church and state upon $25,000,000 of northern money planted in the South for the elevation of the Negro since the war? Has Paul planted and Apollos watered, all in vain? Has not God smiled upon self-sacrificing, consecrated Christian labor among the freedmen, and has he not given the increase? Are they, as a rule, as Dr. Tucker charges, a race of incorrigible scamps, thieves, liars, adulterers, hypocrites, witches and wizards? Brethren, neighbors, friends, fellow-citizens, can you believe this? Greyheaded fathers and mothers, you who have lived in Egypt, and now live in Canaan; you who are acquainted with Saul as well as with Paul; you who have lived in the house of bondage, under the oppressive darkness of its shadows, and who now live in the sunlight of this happy day of freedom; give us of your experience; speak to us, and tell your sons and daughters, is the Negro now worse than ever? And you, middle-aged men and women; you, young men and maidens, the crown and glory of your race, you who have seen and compared the reflection of the past with the rays of the present; you, leaders, preachers and teachers of the race; you, friends and neighbors, whose hearts are not burning with hatred against an unfortunate people, and whose sight is not obscured with the color-blindness of an unreasonable spirit, tell us to-night, after twenty years of freedom is the Negro worse than ever? No, a thousand echoes answer no; he is not worse to-day. The night of our moral, as well as that of our physical and mental darkness, is passing away. Churches schools, colleges and missionary agencies among our people, are rolling back the curtains and draperies of the night, and now "the morning cometh."

"See! the night wears away, and cheerful morn,
All sweet and fresh, spreads from the rosy East."

And,

"The morning lark, the messenger of day,
Saluted with her song the morning grey."

"Fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners," increasing as rapidly as did the Jews in Egypt, and growing into favor with God and man, the allied armies of the race are advancing from every direction, and filling all the roads that lead to Rome. But it was not my purpose to review Dr. Tucker's shocking cruel and absurd charges; nor yet to attempt to answer the combined traducers of a race; but I meant simply to give my individual testimony, and those of a few corroborative witnesses, men of whom may truly be said:

"What they say
You may believe, and pour your soul upon it;
Men who know the truth, have the manhood to express it."

And who dare say:

"Without, or with, offense to friends or foes,
I sketch the world exactly as it goes."

My observations, extensive as they have been, in Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, Arkansas, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama; in city and in rural districts; in the cotton and in the sugar belts; among all classes and conditions of the colored race, force me to candidly and positively say, and exultingly proclaim the joyful tidings that the race is rising and advancing. It is progressing physically, industrially, mentally, morally, religiously and in every civil and political prerogative. Volumes of testimony corroborative of these assertions, made up of illustrations, incidents, news items, and statistical reports, testimonies of our Southern neighbors and Northern friends, can be produced any day. Rev. C. K. Marshall, D.D., of Vicksburg, Miss., a Southern man and a distinguished minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a man who has known the colored people all his life, and who for half a century has preached and labored among them, as well as among his own people, in a pamphlet of sixty-two pages, comes to the defense of the Negro against the unmerciful attacks of Dr. Tucker. The defense is charitable, able and timely. God bless Dr. Marshall, and mercifully raise many more such as he, to assist in the great struggle of right against might. He says in his review: "Many Negroes in every State have purchased and own their own farms, they have invested millions of dollars, they are tending upwards, are prospering, educating their children and teaching them to work, and every acre of land a Negro owns contains the Ten Commandments and the gospel of seasons, seed and harvest, and deterioration is not there. The rewards of honesty are on the doorsill. He tries to prove himself worthy of respect, and he is respected. He makes a more reliable witness, a safer juryman, and enjoys a credit in the bank, and with the merchant, which many of his white neighbors ask in vain." Again he says: "There are hundreds of most exemplary, worthy, and very able preachers among them, and cultivated white people often listen to them, and esteem them highly; * * and every year shows great improvement. And among the regularly appointed colored preachers of the conferences they are held to a strict accountability, to behave as true Christian men—or they are expelled." Of the marriage relation of the race he says: "I have consulted several of our largest and best informed planters, who tell me that the great majority of the Negroes are regularly married." To Dr. Tucker's charge that the Negro is a race of thieves, he says: "All the stealing, in three, may I not say five hundred years? by 6,000,000 of colored people and Negroes, at the late and present rates of pilfering, would not probably equal the sums stolen by the white Americans in the past ten, or fifteen, or if we must say, twenty years." What intelligent and unbiased conscience disagrees with these truths. And mark you, this is the testimony of a Southern man, an eminent minister, not a politician flattering for a purpose, but a minister of the gospel, a member of a southern body of Christians, one who has labored among the colored people for over fifty years. Of the Negro's mental progress, Senator Brown of Georgia says, that at Atlanta University, he witnessed examinations of classes in mathematics and Greek, and saw young black men grapple problems in the one and grammatical intricacies in the other with an ability equal to any young man's—and forced him to surrender his preconceived opinions about their want of capacity for the higher education. Dr. Haygood, that eminent divine, who declined Episcopal dignity in his church, and turned around and accepted the agency of Slater's million dollars fund for the education of the Negro, has made his pen to ring with imperishable praise for his progress in all the walks of life.

A grandson of John C. Calhoun said recently: "If my grand father and his associates had known as much about the Negro as I know, and had had the same faith in his capacity for progress which I have attained in my experience, there would have been neither slavery nor war." The Vicksburg Commercial, a Democratic paper, declares it to be an undeniable fact that the race is making its way, and winning a more forward position. "The Negro children," it says, "are absorbing education with a power and aptness of assimilation truly surprising," and that "the workingmen are rising above the position of hewers of wood and drawers of water." It does not even stop here, but it challenges members of the United States Senate to a comparison with some of the Negro representative men. "Douglass, Bruce and Revels, it says, "are Negroes, but many Republicans now in the United States Senate would suffer in comparison morally or mentally with either of them." Dr. Rufner, the State School Superintendent of Virginia, having made the Negro the study of years, declares that he is "the most amiable and religious of the races." "They are," he says, "a highly improvable race. A surprising proportion of enlightened, right thinking men have already risen from their ranks—men who take respectable position—some in the learned professions, some in editing and printing newspapers, and some in the management of business, and, what is not less commendable, great numbers are living worthy lives in the humble occupations The colored children," also he says, "learn well at school and show good effects promptly." The Times-Democrat of New Orleans, the most extensively circulated, and the foremost newspaper in the South, has recently given its testimony in favor of the race. It says; "The Negro, in this State at least, has been improving morally and financially, and is constantly going forward. In the matter of religion * * there has been a marked improvement. Some of the Negro preachers, just now, are showing a commendable spirit in attacking the private vices and immorality of the members of their congregations, and are meeting with the best results." Again it says that "under their teachings and influence, the looseness that formerly prevailed among the Negroes in the matter of their marital relations—the natural outgrowth of the so called marriages of slaves of thirty years ago—has disappeared, and the separation of husbands and wives are much less frequent, and new marriages which were formerly contracted without any appeal to law, are latterly giving place to regular divorce proceedings and legal marriages." Further on it says: "The record of our public schools show a larger attendance of colored pupils, and some decrease in the number of colored illiterates. In fine, from every point of view the Negroes of the South, or Louisiana at least, are progressing and exhibiting an improvement instead of deterioration."

Rev. J. E. Evans, commissioner of education for the colored people under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, a man who is seriously affected with the contagion that afflicts Dr. Tucker, in a circular, appealing for aid for the cause he represents, charges with Dr. Tucker, that the Negro has been greatly injured, in his morals, by freedom. He says: "It is manifest that the morals of the Negro are not as good as when they were slaves. There is more drunkenness, stealing, lying, indiscriminate intercourse of the sexes, etc., and more idleness and pauperism among them; they are burdening ever courts with trials; and our jails, penitentiaries, and chain-gangs with criminals; they are corrupters of the body politic, their votes being bought and sold, corrupting themselves and the whites who buy their votes as well. Before emancipation, the Methodist Episcopal church in the South gloried in preaching the gospel to the Negro. Our preachers on circuits and stations served them as they did the whites, and missionaries were sent to them wherever congregated in large bodies on the cotton and rice plantations. Emancipation dissolved these relations, and the Negroes went to themselves—got preachers of their own color, without education, and imbued in many instances with the idea that it is no crime to steal from the white people, or to have as many wives as they may desire, and intoxicated also with the notion that freedom means to live without work." These grave and flagrant charges, steeped as they are in the slimy venom of a prejudiced Negro-hating heart, are unsupported by a single fact. Such unkind expressions as these, explain the reason why the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and kindred Southern churches, no longer control an influence over the Negro, and cannot gather him in their churches. The reason is that the Negro is free and he knows it; and he now insists that all men, his old master included, should speak of him and to him as to a man, and not as to a brute. In the absence of such reasonable treatment no beneficial influence can be exerted over him. The Nashville Daily American, commenting editorially upon the sweeping declarations of Commissioner Evans, says: "This is not according to our observation—at least as to intoxication among the males and prostitution among the females of the race. A Negro reeling under the effects of drink, or boisterous, as is too often the case with the worse elements of the white race, is a sight rarely seen in this section of the South since the war; and we are of the opinion the other vices ascribed to Negroes of both sexes are not on the increase." Now, remember that these are but gleanings from the thousands of favorable testimonies, extorted by the rigid discipline of experience and observation, from the lips of those who contended most fiercely against our freedom and progress. But what say a few of the friends of the race? Those, whose self-sacrifice and devotion have been his constant trust, through all the stages of his oppression and developement? What is their testimony? Zions Herald, as ever, true to the life and spirit of its now sainted Bishop editor, Gilbert Haven, surveying the work and successes of the Methodist Episcopal Church among the colored people in the South, says: "Already a wonderful result has been accomplished, and no missionary field on earth compares to it."

Bishop Hurst, fresh from his episcopal tour of our southern conferences says: "I had my doubts once, but cannot doubt any longer. * * They have been gathering wisdom and knowledge rapidly." Describing what he saw and heard upon his visit to New Orleans University he said: "The blackboard, covered with difficult Algebraic formulas, tells the story of the aptitude of the African in the mathematics. Up stands one as black as my hat, who reads the story of Helen of Troy from the Greek Iliad with as much ease and correctness as any college junior. So I might speak of all the studies. The day of doubt has gone as to the African's fitness for studies, and for his higher and later uses of them." Bishop Andrews adds his testimony and says: "It is my opinion that in intelligence, morality, religion, industry and thrift there is a steady advancement among the colored people. Their future is full of hope." The Philadelphia Press says: "The white people of America are satisfied with the progress of the Negro so far. He has done more for himself since he was put to the test, than they, considering his former condition, had any right to expect. He, too should be satisfied and encouraged to continued effort on his present course. It is only ignorance or prejudice which denies that he has done well." Dr. Braden, President of our Central Tennessee College, an honored disciple who has given many years of his precious life to the education of the colored people, is not yet discouraged in the task, for he says: "In my opinion the condition of the Negro is better to day than ever before, in every respect; and opinions to the contrary, are made upon a limited view of the case, or are the result of prejudices of which the owner is not aware." Bishop Merrill as readily and exultingly volunteers his testimony, he says: "My observations lead me to very hopeful views. Much real progress has been made. Hundreds of thousands have improved vastly. A few, as of other peoples, are shiftless. These exceptions are no rule for anybody." Encouraging expressions like these could be produced indefinitely, burying under the very soil all the slanders of our traducers, but it is neither expedient nor necessary; for out of the mouths of two or three competent witnesses, shall all things be established. Before the close of hearing testimonies, however, let me beg your indulgence to patiently listen, to two more friends of the race, Dr. Fowler and Bishop Foster. Dr. Fowler, who is one of the two missionary secretaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church, having general supervision of all the mission fields of Methodism in the world, sends as the words of his testimony, wherein he says: "It affords me pleasure to say that after considerable examination into the condition of the colored people, I am persuaded that the colored people under the influence of the Methodist Episcopal Church are progressing as rapidly as any class of people within the range of my knowledge. They improve physically, mentally, morally and religiously. Judging by the appearance of the conferences the work of elevation is going on rapidly." Speaking from his lofty point of observation, he says in conclusion: "I know of no work anywhere in the world that can show better results for the time and money invested."

Bishop Foster, like the other bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, having better means of comparing peoples and things than any other class of men in the world, says: "My own conviction is that history furnishes no example of progress equal to that of our colored people in the United States, in the same length of time, since the emancipation. There is a vast work yet to be done; for it is a great thing to build a people from nothing or worse than nothing, but the result so far is most encouraging." But, why further extend these individual testimonies, and tax your patience with a whole catalogue of names and opinions, although they be the names and opinions of distinguished men, when the whole world is singing paeans of praise to the triumphant march of the Negro's progress. The whole land echoes the tramping of his onward and upward march, and one needs not put his ears to the ground to catch the welcome sound. Nearly a million colored boys and girls are attending the public schools in this country; and an ever swelling multitude are filling the numerous high schools, seminaries, colleges and universities established by the Methodist Episcopal Church, the American Missionary Association, and the Baptist churches, throughout the South, for the higher education of the race. They are graduating in all the polish of a liberal and Christian education, and are scattering themselves, like sunbeams, along the line of march. While there doubtless exists room for much improvement in education, economy, temperance and morals; there are also, in constant operation, many agencies, which like mighty levers, are gradually but continually lifting up the race. Let no one despond then; but rather let every heart be animated and inspired with confidence and hope. Let us be up and doing, faithfully laboring like men who know that the eyes of the world are upon them, to condemn or acquit, to curse or bless. Ministers and teachers, graduates and students, leaders and intelligent men of the race, "the morning cometh!" From henceforth, be of a cheerful spirit! Lift up your heads with courage bold; and go forth reflecting the rosy tints of the glorious day of freedom and Christian culture. Let us go forward, lifting up and blessing our race, our neighbors, our country and our common humanity; until the race, which during the darkest periods of its history, contributed to American greatness, such remarkable characters as Phillis Wheatley, the enchanting poetess; Benjamin Banneker, the distinguished astronomer and philosopher; Thomas Fuller, the famous mathematician; James Derham, the eminent and beloved physician; Crispus Attucks and David Humphries, the gallant soldiers and zealous patriots; until this race, fortified with every element of true greatness, and possessing and reflecting every manly and Christian virtue, shall be fully abreast in the front rank with his haughty Caucasian brother. We are Americans. We have shared in all her wars; our bayonets assisted in wresting American independence and freedom from the British lion; in subduing the savage Indians; in enlarging our borders toward the hall of the Montezumas, and in saving the Union for which Washington fought and Lincoln died. Every page of our martial history sings out with one accord: "the colored troops fought nobly." But peace hath her victories no less renowned than war; and in all the grand achievements, to bless the nation, accomplished since the war, the Negro contributed his share. He continues to add to the greatness and grandeur of American life and history; and is deteriorating in nothing that Christian civilization loves and cherishes. With her growing columns of worthy and intelligent ministers and teachers; with her able lawyers and skillful physicians; with the host, of her wise statesmen and leaders; with her successful merchants and artisans; and last but not least with her honest yeomanry amassing wealth, building up character, inculcating virtue, spreading temperance and educating their children, the race is progressing with a future that continually brightens. The Gilbert-Haven School of Theology.

DEAR BRO. CUSHMAN—It is now more than a month since I closed my labors in New Orleans; and, by the somewhat tortuous route by which I came to Cincinnati, I am about 1850 miles away from that city. The change of climate, though not so great as it would have been in winter, is nevertheless quite marked. I have wished many a time that my friends in Louisiana could for a few days change their sweltering climate for the fresh breezes that come to us, on the one side from the hills and valleys of Southeastern Connecticut and on the other from the ocean. And, then, the scenery! Here in this beautiful valley lies the Mystic river, a narrow estuary from Long Island sound, upon which I very often ply the oar. At sunset its charms are not easily surpassed. Let us ascend the hill just east of the village (I will not give its Indian name, for none of the uninitiated could pronounce it), and the scene can scarcely be excelled in this or foreign lands. South of us lies the ocean and Long Island Sound, always whitened with many sails. Five beautiful villages are more or less distinctly seen, none of them far away. To the southeast, thirty miles distant, in the midst of the ocean, lies Block Island, famed as a summer resort. South of us, twenty miles away, and stretching toward the west far beyond the reach of the strongest vision, lies Long Island, which belongs to the State of New York; and to the east, beyond a little river seven miles distant, lies the State of Rhode Island. Thus our vision takes in parts of three States, and of the Atlantic Ocean, and of Long Island Sound, a beautiful sheet of water from ten to fifteen or twenty miles wide, and stretching from New York in an easterly direction for a hundred and twenty-five miles. Such another charming view of field, flood and forest (on a small scale) as is presented from this hilltop one must go far to find. Yet I can reach it by a walk of eight or ten minutes, and thus feast my eyes upon a scene that kings would delight to have before them.

But I shall either weary your readers or tantalize them, and I do not wish to do either. I will therefore merely add that if the hill is visited at night, a dozen or more of lighthouses can be seen, extending along the coast and islands for more than fifty miles, some of them sending forth a white light, and others colored; some clear and steady, others flashing at regular intervals, and between these flashes leaving all in darkness. On a night that is free from fog and haze, the scene is almost as beautiful as in the day.

I am glad to see the reports from the various schools supported by the Freedmen's Aid Society. The church does not realize the immense tides of influence that these schools are setting in motion. It looks upon them, as it does upon the moon, as beautiful lights, driving away in some degree the darkness of ignorance, but it does not realize that, like the moon, they are surely, though silently, raising to a higher plane the whole sea of humanity upon which their light shines. When the historian of the future shall write the true record of the colord race, he will record the Freedmen's Aid schools and kindred ones of other churches, as among the most potent factors of its elevation. All of our schools must be not only sustained, but made more and more efficient. I can say "amen" to Dr. Mitchell's petition that additional endowments be given to Clark University; it would be to her a great blessing, and a great aid in her work. But, at the same time, (and perhaps a little before,) I would like to have the friends of education remember that at New Orleans, the most important centre of all our southern work, we have no buildings that are at all adequate to our wants, or that can at all compare with those of the other colored schools in the city. I trust that our friends at the North will soon wake up to our wants; but we of the South must do our part also. Considering our poverty we have done well, and we are doing better year by year. In the year ending June 30, 1882, about one-seventh of the donations were given by the South. It is true that about two-thirds of that amount was given in and around Baltimore; but during the year just ended (of which I have not yet the full figures,) other parts of the South have made noble strides forward, the Louisiana conference alone contributing more than $2,000. And the South must continue to give more and more freely; for not only do all the benefactions go to its use, but its liberality stimulates the liberality of the North. Let me emphasize the sentiment of Dr. Hartzell, endorsed by yourself in your last issue, by repeating it in italics: "I hope and expect that the contributions for our Gilbert Haven School of Theology will be larger than they were last year." Let every member of our conference change that wish into a declaration, and say in deed as well as in words, "they shall be larger;" and the result will astonish the friends of the University, (and its enemies too, if it has any,) more than it did last year. Bro. Hason, as he reports in the ADVOCATE, is planning wisely for success, in appointing a "committee to push the claims of the Gilbert Haven School of Theology." Doubtless we shall hear a good report from that committee. But in their own way, whether by committees or otherwise, we trust that all the preachers are "pushing" these claims. Let every preacher form a "pushing" committee, whether of himself alone, or among his members, and the work will be done, and well done. Remember, brethren, that New Orleans University, and all the other schools, are your schools; that though the Freedmen's Aid Society builds with other funds as well as your own, yet the schools, so far as their use is concerned, are yours alone, just as much as are the churches that the Church Extension Society helps you build. I say this not to detract from the merit of your beneficence but to emphasize the fact that no selfish aims are animating those who are encouraging the work. Have you cut out the address prepared by Bro. Vaughan, and published a few weeks ago? If not you will do well to do so, and occasionally read it; and ministers will find it profitable to read it to their people. Keep the ball moving, and soon the beautiful site on Coliseum Square will be crowned with an edifice more beautiful than the location itself. Let us say to the North, Give up; and to the South, Keep not back; and soon we shall behold, as one of the glories of New Orleans and of Louisiana, the beautiful Gilbert Haven School of Theology, where your children's children, to the latest generation shall drink at the fountain of Chirstian knowledge.

Heavenly Visitors.

BY J. ELLA GARDNER.

"Let me in," said the Sunbeam,
As it flickered through the wood
And found a tiny hillock
Where some purple violets stood,—
"Let me in, to bring you light and warmth,
I'll do you only good.
Let me in," said the Sunbeam,
As it flickered through the wood.

"Let me in," said the Raindrop,
As it gently pattered down
On the dry grass of a garden,
In the hot and dusty town,—
"Let me in to the rootlets
That are growing parched and brown—
Let me in," said the Raindrop,
As it gently pattered down.

"Let me in," says God's spirit,
In accents soft and low,
To human hearts, made cold and hard
By sinfulness and woe,—
"Let me in, for I will bring you joy
That angels cannot know.
"Let me in," says God's spirit,
In accents soft and low.

O, blessed rain and sunshine!
Could grass and flowers find voice,
How gladly would they greet you,
And how would they rejoice!
And shall the hearts of mortals
Refuse a welcoming word
To the "still small voice" that tells them
Of the coming of their Lord?

A Dialogue Between Albert And Benjamin.

Benjamin.—Halloo. All At your books, as usual. What a bookworm you are, to be sure! but what have you learned lately?

A.—I have been looking up words to see what they are derived from. Have you noticed how much can sometimes be learned by taking every-day words and looking into the meaning of them?

B. Sometimes I have. Were yere you thinking of any in particular?

A. I was thinking about some that show the danger of drinking.

B. What are they?

A. One is the word Alcohol.

B. What does it mean?

A. It is an Arabic word, meaning Evil Spirit.

B. And well it deserves it. When was the word coined?

A. It was coined long ago, when the alchemists were trying to find out the elixir of life and something that would turn everything into gold. It was then that they discovered how to distil alcohol.

B. What! when searching for the elixir of life?

A. Yes.

B. Then they found the elixir of death and degradation instead.

A. That's true. in seeking for something that would turn any metal into gold they found a thing that can turn a man into a beast.

B. I suppose that is why they called it "Alcohol, or the Spirit of Evil"?

A. That, no doubt, was the reason.

B. There is another word I would like to know the derivation of.

A. What word is that?

B. Intoxicate. Where does it come from?

A. It comes from a Greek word meaning a poisoned arrow.

B. Ah! and a very good derivation, too. For intoxicating drink is an arrow that not only pierces the brain, but poisons the happiness, destroys the health, and blasts the hopes of life.

A. True enough, Ben; I'm glad we're both pledged against it.

B. I have just been thinking that, though I don't know Greek or Arabic, I could give some meanings just as true as these.

A. What are some of them?

B. Take the word Champagne.

A. Well, what does it mean?

B. Champagne means a thing that when people drink much of gives them real pain.

A. Not so bad! And what is Ale?

B. Ale is a drink that causes ail-ments.

A. And Wine, what is it?

B. A drink that gives people gout. They begin with wines and end with whines.

A. And what is Beer?

B. Beer is a drink that brings many people to their bier.

A. And Gin, what is it?

B. Gin is a trap that tangles the feet and brings the souls of men into the snare of the fowler.

A. And what is Whiskey?

B. A drink that whisks away a man's character, a man's money, and his brains, if he ever had any.

A. And Porter, what is it?

B. Porter is a drink that swells and bloats a man till he becomes a "porter"—carrying about the load of his own fat. And when a woman begins to sip po rter she is in danger by and by of needing her friends (laughing) to sup-port her.

A. Stop, stop! I think you've done first-rate, and what you say is all true.—Youth's Temperance Banner.

Mother's Turn.

"It is mothers turn to be taken care of now."

The speaker was a winsome young girl, whose bright eyes, fresh color, and eager looks told of light-hearted happiness. Just out of school, she had the air of culture which is an added attraction to a blithe young face. It was mother's turn now. Did she know how my heart went out to her, for her unselfish words?

Too many mothers in their love of their daughters, entirely overlook the idea that they themselves need recreation. They do without all the easy, pretty, and charming things, and say nothing about it; and the daughters do not think there is any self-denial involved. Jenny gets the new dress, and mother wears the old one, turned upside down and wrong side out. Lucy goes on the mountain trip, and mother stays at home and keeps house.

Emily is tired of study, and must lie down in the afternoon; but mother, though her back aches, has no time for such an indulgence.

Dear girls, take good care of your mothers. Coax them to let you relieve them of some of the harder duties, which for years they have patiently done.—Intelligencer.

How to Avoid Bad Husbands.

Never marry for wealth. A woman's life cossisteth not in the abundance of things she posesses.

Never marry a fop, who struts about, dandy-like, in his gloves and ruffles, with a silver-headed cane, and rings upon his fingers. Beware! There is a trap.

Never marry a niggardly, close-fisted, mean, sordid wretch, who saves every penny, or spends it grudgingly. Take care lest he stint you to death.

Never marry a stranger, whose character is not known or tested. Some girls jump into the fire not knowing it Never marry a man who treats his mother or sister unkindly or indifferently. Such treatment is a sure indication of a mean and wicked man.

Never, on any account, marry a gambler, a profane person, or one who in the least speaks lightly of God or of religion. Such a man will never make a good husband.

Finally, never marry a man who is, in the least, addicted to the use of ardent spirits.

The first conviction under the new Ohio law which makes it a crime to be a tramp, has occurred. The penalty is imprisonment for from one to three years.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. NOTED MEN!

DR. JOHN F. HANCOCK, late President of the National Pharmaceutical Association of the United States, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters has a heavy sale, is conceded to be a fine tonic; the character of the manufacturers is a voucher for its purity and medicinal excellence."

DR. JOSEPH ROBERTS, President Baltimore Pharmaceutical College, says:

"I indorse it as a fine medicine, reliable as a strengthening tonic, free from alcoholic poisons."

DR. J. FARIS MOORE, PH. D., Professor of Pharmacy, Baltimore Pharmaceutical College, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters is a safe and reliable medicine, positively free from alcoholic poisons, and can be recommended as a tonic for use among those who oppose alcohol."

DR. EDWARD EARICKSON, Secretary Baltimore College of Pharmacy, says:

"I indorse it as an excellent medicine, a good digestive agent, and a non-intoxicant in the fullest sense."

DR. RICHARD SAPINGTON, one of Baltimore's oldest and most reliable physicians, says:

"All who have used it praise its standard virtues, and the well-known character of the house which makes it is a sufficient guarantee of its being all that is claimed, for they are men who could not be induced to offer anything else but a reliable medicine for public use."

A Druggist Cured.

Boonsboro, Md., Oct. 12, 1880.
Gentlemen: Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of a bad attack of Indigestion and fullness in the stomach. Having tested it, I take pleasure in recommending it to my customers, and am glad to say it gives entire satisfaction to all."
GEO. W. HOFFMAN, Druggist.

Ask your Druggist for BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and take no other. One trial will convince you that it is just what you need.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant.

Subscriptions from now to end of 1883 taken at $1.

THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1883.

The catalogue of Houston Seminary, 1882-3, has been received.

All persons owing subscription money to the SOUTHWESTERN for this, or a past year, are requested to send the money direct to this office, or pay to the pastor of the nearest Methodist Church.

The Assistant Editor has yielded to the request made by many of the readers, and his Holly Springs address is published to-day. It will be found both interesting and suggestive—one of Bro. Albert's best efforts.

It was a keen observer who said: "De shanghigh chicken 'minds me ob some men dat I'se seed. He crows mighty loud, an' brags roun' 'mong de hens an young chickens; but when a game rooster comes 'round he's got business on de udder side ob de fence."

The African Trade Society of this city is preparing for the celebration of the 26th anniversary of the national independence of the Republic of Liberia, at the Oakland Park, July 26. Revs. Dr. C. H. Thompson, T. G. Montgomery and A. M. Green are assigned parts in the demonstration, and a good time is anticipated.

In the New York Advocate H. A. Tucker, B.D., of Ottawa, Kansas, describes the present status of prohibition in that State. Prohibition has closed five-sixths of the saloons, the school population has increased 9,620; the total population increased 37,144; and the wealth has increased, as shown by the State Auditor's report, over $[illegible],000,000 in the past year.

The Democratic Review, of Natchitoches, mentions the opening of a few public schools in that parish, to be in session probably two months; expresses its regrets, and says the people must pay more attention to the subject, if they wish to see their vacant lands occupied by men who will add to the prosperity of society. The Police Jury should increase the tax from one mill to 3½ mills to keep the schools, with good teachers, in operation during most of the year.

A State convention of temperance men has been called to meet in Columbus, Ohio, on the 24th inst., to organize a non-partisan campaign to carry the second proposed constitutional amendment. This is a wise move and will be supported by the better class of both political parties, who may thereby support their party candidates and not jeopardize the temperance issue. The call has received many prominent signatures, and the ministry of the Methodist Church is well represented on it, as they should be.

Bishop Linus Parker of the M. E. Church South, in the Texas Advocate, Galveston, says:" The work of the church, from observation at the districts conferences, is without encouragement. There have been some revivals, but these are by no means general. There are some signs of awakening; there is too much waiting for the season of protracted meetings. Some charges there are good additions to the church almost every service, but these are the rule. After more than the year gone, many report not one conversion. The fault here. We must labor in this way, but look for conversions all the time. The matter of pastoral visitation up to date is better than last year, though not as good as we desire. Especially for foreign missions, considerably in advance, and will, I hope, improve. Our finances, [illegible]"

On the Road and Among the Churches.

Now and then it happens that the Methodist minister finds in his official board in the person of a local preacher, exhorter, trustee, class-leader or steward, a brother who seems to be a cross between a porcupine and a kicking mule. You see them at church, and they are never interested, at home and they are sullen and sour. To all ministers who are thus afflicted let the writer give a little of his personal experience. Years ago I had a steward who had all the appearance of a dignified middle-aged gentleman, but he never seemed interested in anything we had to say or do. I exercised myself over him in a variety of ways, but saw no improvement. At last I spoke to him of his home, and told him how pleasant it was, and how his name was associated with the men of influence in the community, and that he seemed to be eminently fitted for a leader and a commander among the people. This was the "balm in Gilead," the brother was made whole. True, there was a frequent call for the ointment, but then it cured for a season, and as it did not cost much I was able to make a free use of it upon this ring-bound and spavined brother, and he did two years of quite good work. He helped me once to an elegant suit of broadcloth, and that helped me to a better appointment. Arguments should always be respectfully considered and weighed. It is never out of place to weigh men provided you can find suitable scales.

Tuesday, July 3, I turned my face toward Morgan City. At Terrebonne, while waiting for the through train, I met Bro. Carr, a man who does good work but seldom, if ever, refers to it, he lets his works praise him. This is only a return to an old Bible usage, not very common in these days. The train soon came rushing along, our conversation was interrupted and we parted, thanking God for the wonderful opportunities heis giving us to do for him.

At Morgan City Bro. Armston met us at the depot, and took us to the parsonage, and, just like a Methodist preacher, he and his wife made us feel at home in a twinkling; and Sister Ann Ater, the district steward, prepared a generous dinner. Our people are coming to realize the fact that women can do good work for God. Thus far Bro. Armston is having a peaceful and prosperous year.

On June 16th, Joshua Thomas, Kennie Clark, M. D. Seymore and Eveline Allen, Alice Banton, Lizzie Ross, gave an entertainment for the benefit of the church, and realized the neat sum of $42.45, which was handed over to the trustees for the improvement of the church property. Children's Day was properly observed, the collections for all purposes amounted to $40.95. Few people are giving more constantly, and we know of none who do it more easily than our people at Morgan City. Giving with them seems to be a delight, and their stewardship for God a constant joy. Thousands of people need to know the joy of giving, the blessedness of thus doing good. Could they be persuaded to give more, their interest would be deeper, and the work of giving vastly easier, and their joy more constant and much deeper. Since April 20th this church of thirty members has contributed for their regular church work $165.10, averaging over $5.50 per member. At the quarterly conference all the reports were in order. The Sunday-school has 60 scholars enrolled, $16.35 in the treasury. The class reports were as follows: No. 1, $8.50; No. 2, $5.80; No. $6.10. The trustees have decided to complete their church and put in some new seats, shutters on the windows, and paint inside and out; they have now over $85 in hand towards paying for the lumber and work. Here my itinerancy ended for a few days. Bro. Armston gave me a good place to rest and write, and the people [illegible] dinners. My stay was pleasant to me, and, I hope, some help to the people. May God bless these people and multiply them an hundred fold.

Sunday, July 2, I turned my face toward Centerville, a short ride on the cars of fifteen miles brought me to Bayon Sale. Bro. Ballensaw met me at to depot, and took me direct to the church. The first Napoleon had a theory that every man who could not be used in battle hindered, and by this he was governed in all his military campaigns. The great Teacher has said "He that gathereth not with me scattereth." As I entered the church at Centerville my heart was filled with doxologies. Work had been done, good work, just such as the Master wants towards the completion of his temple. I heartily admire the man who does something, who is willing to be used, who is actively and positively gathering. Bro. Evans went to Centerville resolved to work, and soon infused the same spirit into the people. And to a working pastor and people all things are posible. The church had no windows, was without a pulpit, and had never been ceiled, and was most miserably lighted. Other men had said: Yes, this all needs to be done, and must be done. The church gave an entertainment and realized the sum of about $35.00. Happily this church is blessed with a large company of young people, who felt that they ought to have a hand in this good work, they also gave an entertainment and realized over $40 for the benefit of the church. The sisters in the church raised by subscription $25. A union feast was held adding to the treasury $11.85. A basket meeting held July 3d, $23.00 was secured for the church. Thus far over $134 has been raised and the church nicely ceiled over head, and one end, a neat pulpit platform and altar have been placed in the church, windows contracted and paid for, and cash on hand to pay for two chandeliers. Two Sunday-schools are organized with over one hundred and ten scholars in attendance. Children's Day was duly observed, and the children were joyous and happy. An educated, trained, Christian childhood is at once both the need and the brightest bow of promise now visible to the eye of him who has faith in the future of the Christian Church. Other things may be done; this must be done. The church must educate and train her children for Christ. I would be thankful if this thought had a stronger hold upon the hearts of Christian parents. But I must halt, and glad to say that Bro. Evans is doing a good work, preaching to the edification and comfort of the people. All the affairs of the church are looking up. I had a pleasant visit at Centerville. The people are of the sort that take delight in making one feel at home. L. P. C.

That is true, as says Brother Warren of the Northern, the SOUTHWESTERN cannot see how the Methodist Episcopal Church can "remain faithful in her teachings and administration of the doctrine of Christian brotherhood" and erect either churches or schools from which any person shall be excluded merely because of his color, and we venture that among all the millions of colored people in the South, there is not one whose intellect is so feeble, and unreliable, as not to see that it involves the plainest contradiction. We assure our contemporary of the Northern that he cannot find a colored person south of the Ohio who does not regard the erection of churches or schools from which persons are excluded merely because of their color as a direct insult to the essential manhood of the colored race. We believe that it will "work ruin" for the Methodist Episcopal Church to erect institutions of learning and make the color of the applicant the condition of his admission.

Notes From the Field.

Faith and work command success and approbation wherever found, whether in the city full, or in the desert waste. The sower may not to live to be the reaper, but the seeds sown will sooner or later yield a bountiful harvest. And though the faithful Christian worker fail to secure human approbation, he will nevertheless enjoy the smiles of heaven and the blessings of a good conscience. Arriving at Washington, June 21, at 9 A. M., and meeting Rev. T. Larkins, of the Waxia and Petit Prairie circuit, we were soon in the Waxia road bound for the work on this circuit, fourteen miles away. Riding behind a double team the drive was delightful until we arrived within two miles of our destination. Here we were suddenly thrown in the road by the breaking down of one of our wheels in one of the many mudholes with which this road abounds. Stuck in the mud, away out in the woods two miles away from our destination, as we were, you can better imagine than we can relate our experience out there. After much rambling here and there, however, we succeed in borrowing a wheel which exactly fitted our buggy, and in a few moments after we arrived in safety at the parsonage. Here the writer was agreeably entertained. Sister Larkins does not enjoy very good health here; but, with Christian fortitude, she patiently bears her affliction, and assists her husband as best she can. Considering the general destruction wrought by last year's unprecedented flood, and the poverty and depopulation engendered thereby, our work here is in good condition. We have no better spirited and liberal people on the disirict Bro. Larkins is abundant in faith and good work; hence his commendable success amid many unpromising surroundings. Faith supplemented with good works is bound to and does command success. Weak as their charge is, through the faithful agency of Bro. Larkins, the pastor, and Bro. Sanders Trent, our district steward, the presiding elder never leaves without his quarterage. The reports in the conference showed the church and Sunday-school to be alive and progressing. Bro. Henry Taylor is the worthy superintendent of this school. The quarterly meeting services were well attended and spiritual.

At Washington our church is in splendid trim. Pastor and people are getting on nicely. Twelve conversions, fifteen received into full membership, and a total of $246 collected for all purposes during the quarter, show the general result of this quarter's work. Rev. Wm. Davis, the preacher in charge, is taking hold of this people with much success. During quarterly meeting week he had Sister Sarah M. Gates, of Opelousas, to organize a Woman's Home Missionary Society among his people. This is a grand movement, and should be earnestly encouraged in every charge. While visiting points in the vicinity of Washington, the writer made the parsonage his headquarters. Here also Sister A. enjoyed the hospitality of Sister Davis for several days. Bro. Nelson Hatton is the faithful district steward at this point. He seems to know and feel the "elder's" care; hence his attention to his calls. On the Washington circuit, Bro. Spencer Strode, a supply from Washington, is doing his best to permanently locate a church, but with varying success. Our membership is small here, but promises encouraging expansion.

Bro. Jules Auguste, at Flat Town, is laboring in a portion of St. Landry where Methodism is greatly needed. This is the second year's work on this circuit. It is small but growing. Our people worship here in an old dilapidated house which is occupied temporarily until a lot can be secured or a building erected. A small amount has been collected toward buying necessary grounds, but not a sufficient amount with which to buy. The greatest need here is a house of worship. Where are the stewards of the Lord's money? Will they not help a poor but deserving people? At Opelousas, Bro. Gates has succeeded in reflooring and whitewashing the church, remodelling the pulpit, and building a fence around the church and parsonage. These improvements gave a neat appearance to church and parsonage generally. After preaching here on Sunday night, June 24, to a fair congregation—considering the threathening weather—the writer was to have held conference and love feast next day and evening, but in consequence of being suddenly taken deathly sick here on Monday, he returned to Washington without attending to either. Our best information is, however, that the church and Sunday-school are doing as well as might be expected. The many professional ministerial grumblers, who are ever exalting their worth, and who are constantly ponting and complaining because they are not given "better appointments," may occasionally lead one to think that the race of heroes of primitive Methodism are all dead; but not so. The race is alive and continues to furnish worthy representatives of the genuine type.

At Vermillionville, Bro. Joseph Johnson, who was appointed there by Bishop Hurst this year, to establish Methodism, reminds one of that race of heroes. He here lives in his own hired room which he alternately arranges as his bedroom and his church. He is determined to succeed, he says. He has already created a very favorable impression, and he needs but to continue persistently in his efforts and success will come. The ice is already breaking, and ere long will finally break. Take courage, my dear brothers. If we could get about $300 from some friends of Christ and righteousness, we could count up at least one hundred members here within the next sixty days, in this extraordinary commanding point. They are here and ready to join. All they want is help to get a house wherein to worship. Who will come over to Macedonia and us? From here we hurry on to St. Martinsville. A.

PERSONAL.

—The news of the departure of Bishop Colenso has been received in England with respectful tenderness.—London Methodist.

—Rev. Gershom Lease declines to allow the use of his name for the office of Auditor of State on the Ohio Prohibition ticket.

—Senator Jones, of Florida, was cordially received at his former Irish home, and was the guest of the Irish leaders in Parliament.

—Dennis Kearney was ejected from the Chicago anti monopoly convention and is now talking loudly to the laboring classes.

—Dr. Hartzell writes to a correspondent in this city, under date of July 7: "I am thankful to be able to report that Mrs. Hartzell is improving daily. We fully anticipate that a few weeks more will put her entirely on her feet."

—Miss Van Lew, of Richmond, Va., whose services during the war in behalf of the Union cause and the Union soldiers in Libby prison gave her prominence, has been tendered a first-class clerkship in the Post office Department by Postmaster-General Gresham, on the recommendation of Gen. Grant. Miss Van Lew was Postmistress at Richmond during President Grant's Administration.

—Congressman Joe Blackburn, of Kentucky, left home for a short stay in Washington, to look after the consolidation of the revenue districts. He telegraphed home for a trunk of clothes, and his little daughter, in the absence of the mother received the dispatch. She packed a trunk, and put a note in it saying she sent all the clothes she could find, and hoped papa was well. Mr. Blackburn said the trunk contained seven white shirts, 6 Winter scarfs, 1 tooth brush, 1 bowie knife, 2 revolvers.

—An Indian Territory special says: Mrs. Nancy Adair, widely known throughout the Cherokee Nation, is dead. She was in attendance at a Methodist quarterly meeting in the Flint District, and rising from her seat in the midst of the congregation, began relating her religious experience. As she spoke of the trials of life and of the Christian graces, she grew very eloquent, impressing the audience, who listened in profound silence. Before concluding, she paused and suddenly fell upon the floor. Upon raising her, it was found that her neck was dislocated and life extinct. Mrs. Adair was related to a number of prominent Indian families.

City Notes.

The greatest obstacle which stands in the way of the city government is the unwillingness of the people to pay their just share of the public burden promptly.—Evening Chronicle.

The City Item thinks the first step for the suppression of hoodlumism is to establish an eficient system of public schools.

The Board of Health does not possess the confidence of the people of the Mississippi valley, and only certificates from the Sanitary council are recognized.

The outlook is that New Orleans will be without public schools from September to January, because the ring has squandered all the funds in sight, and has no apparent intention of providing for any more.

In order to put an end to salvage claims of a questionable character, the Firemen's Charitable Association resolved that the fire department "do volunteer to extinguish fires occurring on shipboard, steamboat or other water craft without pay, salvage or costs of any kind."

Victor Eloi, the wife murderer, now in the parish prison, is to be hanged August 17.

The want of a thorough knowledge of what an exposition can do for a city is, in our opinion, the greatest obstacle in the way of the various subscription committees now at work.—Evening Chronicle.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

W. H. Osbone, Centerville: "Our Sunday-school reports great progress. It was reorganized June 27th. The teachers are: Miss Mary Nelson, Miss Hollands, Mrs. K. Bell, Mrs. S. Osborne, F. Henderson and W. H. Osborne. We are all well pleased with our pastor, Bro. Evans."

A. J. Pickett, Pleasant Hill: "We had a grand time laying the corner stone of St. Luke M. E. Church. There was a large attendance of white ladies and gentlemen. J.W. Hilton preached the sermon. Elder Duncan, D. Shelby, Charles Crockett, H. Wallace, V. Chapman were present. Sister Peggie Powell, of our missionary work, from Alexandria, took an active part in the school. All were glad to see her. Collection $40.05."

S. P. G., Baldwin: "The examination and closing exhibition of Baldwin Seminary took place last week. Friday evening, June 22d, when the chapel was filled with one of the finest audiences ever gathered in St. Mary's parish. The exercises were of a superior order and reflected great credit on President Fitch and his accomplished wife. Too much praise can hardly be accorded to them for the faithful and efficient manner in which they have done their work. They are worthy of higher positions and larger salaries; but we cannot spare them from this interesting and important field. With such workers in charge, the success of any institution is certain."

MISSISSIPPI.

P. R. Crump, Lauderdale: "I am at hard work building churches."

James Ellis, Oxford: "Elder Bradford held our quarterly conference. Paid elder $3, pastor $15.80. On Children's Day the collections on the circuit were $6. At a basket meeting, June 25th, we raised $20. Revs. I. B. Griffin, Frank L. Coleman and M. H. Foster were with me. There is a good prospect of building a new church at Mt. Zion this year."

James Jordan, Mashulaville: "Second quarterly conference was held, and the elder preached a powerful sermon to a large congregation. Collection $12.10. On Children's Day we had a grand time. Collection $7.60."

J. D. Walden, Meridian: "Elder Campbell visited us. There has been 20 accessions to the church this year, and we seem to get on well. In Sabbath-school from 120 to 140 are in attendance."

Jno. Mayo, Central Grove: "We observed Children's Day, and had addresses from our pastor, Rev. W. Jones, and J. C. Abrams, on education. We had a good time, though the weather was disagreeable. Collection for pastor $3.75, benevolent purposes $2."

TEXAS.

W. J. Mitchell, Bremond: "I have received into the church 15. There are three appointments on this charge in good condition and growing. The Sunday-schools are not as good as I desire. During quarterly conference Rev. J. A. Hall preached for us. Elder's collection was $15.80. I raised $34 for benevolent causes."

M. Wilson, Butler: "Children's Day was observed. We had a grand time. Collection $3.50."

Aaron Taylor, Madison circuit: "We had a fine time with the children. I had with me Rev T. G. Jenning of the Presbyterian church, and elder C. W. Porter, of the A. M. E. Church, and elder A. Thompson, of the Missionary Baptist. We had a general talk on the subject of Sunday-school. Collection $3. There were prizes offered, and Miss Evelina Green carried off the highest by repeating 227 verses; after which I canvassed for the SOUTHWESTERN and got ten subscribers. We also raised $15 for improving the church."

G. R. Smith, Oakland: "Children's Day was observed at Brown's Chapel, Prof. G. R. Townsend being the superintendent for the day. We had an attendance of 125 scholars; collections were $5. The children manifested a desire to improve and answered questions promptly. Our pastor, Rev. E. E. Cooper, gave the children and parents a fifteen minutes talk, urging upon them their duty toward God, and the pleasure there is in keeping the Sabbath and attending the Sabbath-school. Our Sabbath-school at this place is still growing and increasing in number. Our people are now preparing for the camp meeting which will commence July 6th. Brethren, pray that our meeting may be crowned with success."

TENNESSEE.

Hattie H. Young, Sparta: "We are not asleep on this circuit, although we live on the mountains. We are trying to build up here as elsewhere. On Children's Day, Superintendent Young opened by singing and praying, then Rev. B. F. Whitley gave instruction, and there were essays which gave the congregation much satisfaction. In the evening we had an interesting sermon from Bev J. N. [illegible], of Sparta, and then a sweet talk by S. H. Norwood. We raised $18 toward building our church. Pray that we may be successful."

Little Rock District Conference.

The last session of the Little Rock District conference convened at Forest City, June 13th, with a fair attendance for this part of the year, and realized a [illegible] session. The [illegible] of the Smith College [illegible] and the following [illegible] passed and ordered to be published in the [illegible]. The reports for [illegible] success all [illegible] work. The [illegible] good for [illegible]

Resolved, That we urge our preachers to give it their hearty support.

Whereas, Forest City is located at the crossing of the Memphis and Little Rock, and St. Louis and Helena Railways, and is in the center of a section of country the population of which is largely colored, and is the most suitable point in eastern Arkansas for a school of academical or higher grade, on account of its convenience and healthfulness, with other like facilities. And, whereas, there is no institution of learning of so high a grade, with the exception of three in the State, and but one of these nearer than the City of Little Rock, ninety miles away, for a colored population of near 40,000, with 100,000 within this section of the State; while there are scores of schools of this grade and higher opened to the white people. And, whereas, discrimination in the higher schools and the public schools on account of color, is made to the detriment and disadvantage of the colored people, by rejecting them from the higher schools, and only compelling the public schools (colored) to be taught during the hot summer months, that the children may be put into the cotton fields; and running the white schools six and sometimes nine months in the same district, when the colored schools are run but three and six months in the year; and by paying the teachers in the white schools in the same district 25 to 50 per cent. more for services, although holding the same grade of certificate. And, whereas, the colored people, as a whole, are very poor and dependent, without a fair chance to better their condition, owing to their general ignorance and the terrible curse of caste; the color-line drawn so painfully against them that they are proscribed religiously, intellectually, and in every avenue of business, and cannot therefore hope to better their condition without outside help for many years to come. And, whereas, the Smith family, of Oak Park, Ill., has given ten thousand dollars to the Freedmen's Aid Society for the building of the Philander Smith College at Little Rock, (for which this conference tenders to the family its sincere thanks) a branch of which has been taught here during the last six months, under the superintendency of the Rev. G. N. Johnson, in which more than 60 pupils have been instructed. And, whereas, there are more than one thousand students within five miles of this place, and the greatest hindrance to the success of the school is the lack of a building. And, whereas, there is a building 40x60 feet, two-stories high, in this town, built by the Baptists (white) for school purposes, and they having failed and the property having passed into individual hands, and is now in the market; therefore,

Be it Resolved, by the Little Rock District Conference, now in session in the city of Forest City, that we most earnestly pray our friends of the Smith family to aid us in securing through the Freedmen's Aid Society said building, or in erecting one suitable for our school; and we respectfully ask any member of the family, or officer of the Freedmen's Aid Society, to visit this place at their convenience and see the advantages offered to such an enterprise. 2. That we suggest the name of Budlong Seminary or Academy for this school. 3. That these resolutions be published in the SOUTHWESTERN, and a copy be sent to Mother Smith and Mr. John Budlong.

Forest City, Ark., June 18, 1883.

A Missionary Movement of the Ethiopian Host of the South.

Some one may suppose that I want to draw the color-line, as my letter is to the colored conferences only; not so, for I detest the color-line so much that I am disgusted at the shadow of it. Therefore, we fought the division of conferences [illegible] saw that our brethren on [illegible] side of the house were not satisfied as we stood, claiming that their success depended on a division of the conferences. Then, with great reluctance, some of us voted for it and some of us voted neither way. I told you last week that it has always been our custom of thinking that the world belonged to the white man and that we are only thrown in for good measure. This state of affairs must cease to be, and we must begin to think of ourselves as real men and women; and that God has placed us in the world as such; and that shortness of our hair and the complexion our faces have nothing at all to do with our brain, heart, or the work that God has laid out for us to do. My main idea in this writing to my colored brethren is to get them to thinking about the world and its salvation as though God had laid out this work for us to do, only comparatively speaking. Do not think that I am exaggerating, for we have to carry an idea beyond its natural bounds to get our people to the right place, and if we get too far in this particular, we can very easily put on the brake and run backward a few feet and stop on a level with the world. It is thought by a great many of us that the white man has the education, the money, the land, and every thing else; and, therefore, he is responsible for the conversion of the world to Christ. That we have just come out of bondage, in ignorance, degradation and poverty, hence the Lord does not expect much of us. This is a sad mistake; there is as much required pro rata of the man that has one talent, as he that has ten—and that we have just come out of many years of slavery, ignorance and poverty, is no reason why we should not be among the greater workers in the vineyard of the Lord. But all this proves to my mind that we ought to be the most jealous people in the world. For no one can say:

> Amazing grace, how sweet the sound,
> That saved a wretch like me;
> I once was lost but now I am found,
> Was blind, but now I see.

God hasten the day when the entire church shall receive a missionary baptism of the Holy Ghost, and every man, woman and child will be landed in one solid phalanx in the missionary cause to take the world for Christ. But what must be done in order to awaken ourselves and people to this great importance? First, the ministry must first be awakened, and nothing will awaken them but the study of missions. We need to know the world in all of its conditions, and be able to point out every mission field we have and know its condition. Brethren, there are too few of us that know our missionary work. Many of us cannot tell even about the organization of our Missionary Society or our missionary fields of labor, or any anything of the sort. How can we expect our people to be awakened to this important work, when their leaders know nothing about missions themselves? Brethren, we must know the work that lies before us as practically as the boy knows his alphabet. Then when we come before our people with the question of missions, our people will respond, not in coppers only but also in dollars. Not long since I asked a sister if she would give a hen, and her increase to the missionary cause; of course she did not want to do this; then I began to explain to her our mission work and called her attention to our mission work—to the deplorable condition of Africa, India, to our mission field in general; to the worship of the great snake in Africa, to the crocodile in India; how women would gather around them and give their children to these ferocious animals, and how they drown their children in the Ganges, etc. Then I asked her: "Are you not willing to give a hen and her increase to save the lives of these poor children?" "Yes," she replied, "add my name to your list." Brethren, this is only a type of many thousands. Now let us ply all the while until a holy frenzy shall cover the church. May the Holy Ghost drive every important word of this letter home to the hearts of readers. Amen! Your brother.

The Source of Those Mysterious Troubles That Come to Every Household Explained

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith re-published entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting:

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

SIR:—My motive for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow, are, first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this position and to warn others against nearing it, are my objects in this communication.

On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times a neuralgic pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, and as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from Malaria and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger, always brings a person to his senses, even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My urine was filled with tube casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the kidneys in its last stages.

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation, by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools, I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitions, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the 1st day of June and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for me in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music in this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity,) but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common diseases, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptons, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptom of kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements, based upon facts which I am prepared to produce, and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter From Durant.

MR. EDITOR—After leaving the last annual Conference, and before entering upon my new appointment I visited Holly Springs and was taken through the new buildings for Rust University, by Professor Hooper. Oh, it is a beauty. Now we can tell it to our children. It is the place for them. How I longed to go back and spend a few years more in her halls. On leaving Kosciusko, where I had served three years, I felt sad, because all seemed sorry to have me go. In Durant, the present appointment, as at other places, I found plenty of work to be done. Sometimes it is said even in our paper: "Dear Editor—when I came here I found this and the other wrong, and things in a very bad state every way." The brother who would thus speak about another does not show a loving spirit, and about seven times out of eight he who thus speaks leaves the work a great deal worse than he found it. All of the work is bad enough; there are but few easy places, and none good; and it will continue as long as there is a devil and he allowed to be among men. It is hard to tell which is the worst place, for there are some people everywhere who are trying to go to heaven, where there are others who do all they can against right. If we find a place that seems good, we do well to keep it so; if we find it seeming to be bad, we do better if we build it up a little. A hard place is a good place in which to work for the Master. We find poor people and poor churches all around to be built up, so let us go forward.

Elder G. W. Barney held our second quarterly conference May 26-7. Most of the members showed signs of good work. The Sunday-school in Durant is doing very well, those in the country, in winter with poor houses and no stoves, are their best in summer. The elder preached a good revlving sermon, and sacrament was administered to 126; collection $10. We have plenty to do, and are trying to to be contented while here below. We can't have things as we want them, and I think it is a good thing too. Brethren pray for us.

CHICKEN POT PIE.—Line the [illegible] and side of a pot with a [illegible] rich paste, reserving enough [illegible] a top crust and for the square [illegible] to be scattered through the [illegible]. Butter the pot very lavishly, or your pastry will stick to it and burn. Cut up a fine, large fowl and half a pound of ham or salt pork; put in a layer of the latter, pepper it, and cover with pieces of the chicken, and this with the paste, dumplings or squares. If you use potatoes, parboil them before putting them into the pie, as the first water in which they are boiled is rank and unwholesome. The potatoes should be sliced and laid next the pastry squares; then another layer of pork, and so on, until your chicken is used up; cover with pastry rolled out quite thick, and slit in the middle; heat very slowly, and boil two hours; turn into a large dish, the lower crust on top, and the gravy about it. This is the old-fashioned pot-pie, dear to the memory of men who were schoolboys thirty or forty years ago. If you are not experienced in such manufactures, you had better omit the lower crust; and, having browned the upper by putting a hot lid or stove cover on top of the pot for some minutes, remove dexterously without breaking; pour out the chicken into a dish, and set the crust above it. Veal, beefsteak, lamb (not mutton) hares, etc., may be substituted for the chicken. The pork will [illegible] it sufficiently.

Nobility.

True worth is in being, not seeming;
In doing each day that goes by
Some little good—not in the dreaming
Of great things to do by and by;
For whatever men say in blindness,
And spite of the fancies of youth,
There's nothing so kingly as kindness,
And nothing so royal as truth.

We get back our mete as we measure,—
We cannot do wrong and feel right;
Nor can we give pain and gain pleasure,
For justice avenges each slight.
The air for the wing of the sparrow,
The bush for the robin and wren,
But always the path that is narrow
And straight, for the children of men.

We cannot make bargains for blisses,
Nor catch them like fishes in nets;
And sometimes the things our life misses
Help more than the things which it gets.
For good lieth not in pursuing
Nor gaining of great nor of small;
But just in the doing, and doing
As we would be done by, is all.

Thro' envy, thro' malice, thro' hating,
Against the world, early and late,
No jot of our courage abating,—
Our part is to work and to wait.
And slight is the sting of his trouble
Whose winnings are less than his worth;
For he who is honest is noble,
Whatever his fortune or birth.

Church Attendance.

It is a fact easily demonstrated that the proportion of members of the so-called evangelical Protestant churches is now considerably larger than at any previous time within the century. There is in the United States a population of fifty millions of people of all ages. Of these over ten millions, more than one in five, are communicants in evangelical Protestant churches. Mind, I say communicants. I do not say nominal members, adherents. I do not count in the baptized children. There are actually enrolled as communicants, who are chiefly adults, by trustworthy statistical reports, by count and not by guess work, over ten million men and women. These represent five million families which are attendants at church, and the children of which, and many of the adults, are attendants but not communicants. We are within bounds if we say they represent thirty millions of people who recognize themselves as attendants, or adherents of the churches. Here we have at once a handsome majority of our people in this Protestant division of the believing church. But we must add to these according to the best computations, over six millions of Catholics. "A Non Church Goer" may deny that either they, or the thirty millions of Protestants, are "intelligent and eminently respectable people," but he cannot claim that they "do not believe what the churches teach." That would be absurd. They do believe.

Who does not go to church? Take any village and reckon from house to house of the reputable inhabitants, and they nearly all go to church. Watch the front doors of Fifth avenue, and see what one fails to open at half past ten on Sunday morning to send its dwellers to church. The world of society, of culture, of wealth, goes to church. "Where do you go to church?" is one of the first questions asked of new acquaintances, because all go to church somewhere. Ours is a church-going people, a church-respecting, a church-honoring people, and never more so than now.

In 1800 there were, according to the best available statistics, 365,000 evangelical communicants in the country, being seven per cent. of the population of 5,308,483. In 1850 there were 3,529,988 such communicants, being fifteen per cent. of the population of 21,191,876. In 1870 there were 6,673,396 such communicants, being seventeen per cent. of a population of 38,558,371. [illegible] the communicants had risen to 10,065,963, being a little over twenty per cent. of the population of 50,152,866. The increase in population since 1800 has been ninefold; the increase in evangelical communicants has been twenty-sevenfold, three times as great as in population.—Dr. Ward, in North American, for July.

Dr. Buckley in reply to an assertion made by the Northern Christian Advocate that he was once counted among the friends of the change of pastoral limitation says:

In the charge that the Editor of The Christian Advocate once favored the removal of the time-limit there is not an atom of truth. At no time, in no place, in public or private, by pen or voice, since the creation of the world, did he advocate it or hold it, or declare that he thought it practicable, or a safe experiment. He has not been backward in expressing his opinion by voice and pen, for twenty-five years on every topic related to Methodism. Produce a line that he has written, a speech that he has made—a scrap even from his private correspondence—in which he has spoken in favor of it. Show that he ever spoke on it at all that he did not oppose it or declare it a dangerous experiment.

We say to The Northern: Bring forward your proofs, or promptly and honorably retract your assertion.

Why are you ill? Why do you suffer? Everybody knows all aches and pains, all languor and debility are cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. Hoskins, Franklin: "We observed Children's Day, June 10th. The church was artistically decorated with a variety of flowers. The Sunday-school convened at usual hours with all its officers and teachers present, and the children arranged in different groups according to their classes each teacher sitting at the head of the class. We opened with singing and reading. After a general catechizing of the Sunday-school at large and reviewing lessons of the quarter, we were addressed by the different speakers. Messrs. Carter, Jones and others. There were two essays read by Mr. A. J. Jones and Miss J. E. Reason. They deserve credit. After we had an address from Rev. E. Willians. Mr. H. J. Carter, late of New Orleans, is an efficient young man in our Sunday-school. Our collections on Children's Day were $6.15. The Sunday-school teachers hold weekly meetings. At our last meeting resolutions were passed to divide our community into four districts, and two persons to be appointed to each district as missionaries for the Sunday-school, to go and see the parents in their several districts and ask them to send their children to the Sunday-school. The young people of this town have begun to learn the lesson, that Christ meant that they are to be instrumental in leading the little ones to the Savior. I am glad to say the young ladies have manifested much interest in the grand work. There were 28 who joined the Sunday-school on Children's Day. The old people are taking an active part in our Sunday-school. A committee has been appointed to draft a constitution auxiliary to the general Sunday-school law, compelling teachers and pupils to be more punctual in attendance. We are doing all we can to advance the Church and Sunday-school. We are preparing for an exhibition to take place on the 4th of August, for the purpose of raising money to buy a library of books. We have an attendance of over 165 Sunday-school scholars. Crops are flourishing. Our public schools in this parish after a session of 50 days have closed for the year. It is an outrage. We have managed to open a private school."

TEXAS.

G. W. Smith, Galveston: "Our third quarterly conference was held June 10 and 11, by presiding elder F. C. Moore. Our love feast was grand; everybody present enjoyed it. Class leaders and stewards' reports show the church in good condition both spiritual and temporal, with the exception of the church building. The elder preached a lovely sermon and administered the Lord's supper to 162 persons. A mechanic has looked at the church building, and says it is giving away, and advises us to add something to the house before the September storm comes; but as I found when I came the church in debt, we are still in debt, and have been paying on the old debts. Is there no friend in the North, or I might say in the world, who desires to advance God's cause by helping us to remodel this church building. This is a good congregation to give, but this work must be done right away, or perhaps the whole house will come to the earth. It is a pity that there was not a church built, after the burning of the old one; but by some unknown fault a great mistake has been made and everybody is faultless that had any control of it. I think some person that reads this letter who has thousands of dollars might give a few hundred to the Tabernacle charge, and make a congregation and preacher this side of the other world happy. Children's Day was observed and $6.50 collected."

TENESSEE.

G. C. Harden, Perryville: "I have organized a new point at Willbram mill with 8 members; baptized 5; secrament given to 23; collected $5.25. At this point many whites attend, but colored people are few. Sunday the whites took us home with them to dinner."

MR. EDITOR:—By the providence of God, and the aid of the SOUTHWESTERN, I have been able to find my people. I hope the ministers will take a more active part in circulating and getting subscribers for the paper. I wish to inquire for my step-father's people, whom he left in Alabama, about 30 years ago. He has not seen any of them since. His mother and father belonged to Joe Bradford, sisters and brothers all belonged to Bradford. There was sisters Partheney, Emily and Joanna; and brothers John and Charles Henry. Webster Bradford sold John before the war to Bill Thomson. He was sold to Patrick McKinney. McKinney had an overseer Meyer White, who wanted to whip John one day, but he took the whip from him and whipped him nearly to death. He was put in jail, tried and condemned to be hung. So Patrick McKinney run him to Texas. Address David Young, care of G. V. Medlock, Cedar Creek, Bastrop county, Texas.

An Irishwoman, needing some silk and some tape, sent her husband for them. The silk was shown, but the buyer thought the price too great. The clerk explained that all silk goods were dear, owing to some disease at this time prevalent among the silk-worms. The tape was next examined, and the Irishwoman thought that a little stiff as to price. "And indade, sir, is there likewoise a dezase a-prevalin' among the tape-worms?"

MESSRS. FLEMING BROS.:

Sirs,—Your pills came all right, and I can say they are a good bilious pill. I have used a great many pills, but I can say Dr. C. McLane's Pills, manufactured by Fleming Brothers, are genuine. And, gentlemen, you have my thanks in sending. I gave some of those pills to my neighbors for a trial. One of my neighbors got three pills. He said they did help him. He felt the next day like a new man. He wishes me to send for fifty cents' worth for him. So, gentlemen, I will do all I can to introduce Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, manufactured by Fleming Brothers. You will find enclosed one dollar, for more of your good pills. I wish you could send me a sample of your Vermifuge by mail. I think it will take well here.

Yours, with respect,
WM. H. DUGAN.

Please send soon.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed, and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

The Power of Good Books

Hear the testimony of John Wesley:

"In the year 1725, being in the twenty-third year of my age, I met with Bishop Taylor's 'Rules and Exercises of Holy Living and Dying.' In reading several parts of this book I was exceedingly affected, with that part in particular which relates to purity of intention. Instantly I resolved to dedicate all my life to God; all my thoughts and words and actions; being thoroughly convinced that there was no medium, but that every part of my life must either be a sacrifice to God or to myself, that is, in effect to the devil.

"In the year of 1726 I met with Kempis's 'Christian Pattern'.... A year or two after Mr. Law's 'Christian Perfection and Serious Call' were put into my hands. These convinced me more than ever of the absolute impossibility of being half a Christian.... In 1729 I began not only to read, but to study the Bible, as the one, the only standard of truth."

Thus it appears he was awakened and converted by reading books. Many years afterwards, when nearly blocked in his operations by the errors of his education, he read "Lord King's account of the Primitive Church," and was saved from another Romish folly. "In spite of my vehement prejudice of education," he says, "I was ready to believe that this was a fair and impartial draft." So he went on reading himself out of trouble, and into usefulness to the end. Charles Wesley, Mr. Whitefield and their compeers, read the same books, and were similarly affected. The immortal Dr. Coke, a young Church priest, was made a Methodist by talking with Maxfield, and reading Fletcher's inimitable "Checks."

Seeing the power of the Press, Mr. Wesley commenced early to write new books, and abridge and improve old ones, to adapt them to his work, and really originated the Tract cause, which has since grown to such mammoth proportions. And he sold books, too, and required his preachers to do the same wherever they went. And, before the introduction of so many periodicals, they did so, both in England and America, and often effected results by this means, that could not have been achieved by preaching or personal conversation."—Hints to Self Educated Ministers, p. 240.

In 1858 the French captured Turan, a little north of Hue, the capital of Cochin China; subsequently they secured possession of lower Cambodia. In 1874 they extorted a treaty from Tudue, the ruler of Tonquin, which lies just north of Cochin China, by which the foreign policy of Tonquin was placed practically under the French direction, the principal ports of Tonquin opened to French commerce, and French garrisons admitted into them. Since that time the French have been perpetually intriguing to extend and consolidate their influence in Tonquin. These schemes have been largely unsuccessful, the Tonquinese seeking aid from China and harassing their invaders in various ways. The consequent disorders throughout the country have given the French an excuse for its conquest, and Tu-duc is now asked by President Grevy to recognize not only a French occupation of Tonquin but the right of the French to impose [illegible], and in return he is guaranteed a third of all the revenues of his kingdom. If he refuses this generous offer he is threatened with the bombardment of his cities.

Thirteen Years' Dyspepsia.

"I suffered with dyspepsia for 13 years," writes John Albright Esq., of Columbus, Ohio. "Samaritan Nervine cured me." As it always cures such disorders. At druggists.

A Winfield, Kansas, brewer writes: "I have invested over $10,000 in my brewery, and I do not believe I could get $500 for it now, on account of the prohibition laws. I have $10,000 worth of beer in my vaults, and am not allowed to sell a drop. My barley and malt cost me ninety-five cents a bushel, but I cannot get fifty cents for it now. You have no idea how our people are upset by the new law." And yet we are continually being told that in Kansas, as in Maine, the law is a failure, and that "prohibition does not prohibit."

The moment a man gives way to inordinate desire, disquietude and torment take possession of his heart. The proud and covetous are never at rest; but the humble and poor in spirit possess their souls in the plenitude of peace.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15, 1880.

GENTLEMAN.—Having been a sufferer for a long time from nervous prostration and general debility, I was advised to try Hop Bitters. I have taken one bottle, and I have been rapidly getting better ever since, and I think it the best medicine I ever used. I am now gaining strength and appetite, which was all gone, and I was in despair until I tried your Bitters. I am now well, able to go about and do my own work. Before taking it, I was completely prostrated.

MRS. MARY STUART.

An absent-minded editor wrote a love-letter and an editorial at the same time. The love-letter he sent out to be set up in type by the printer and a long editorial on the tariff to his girl. There was fun at both ends of the route.—The Judge.

A little girl saw an old drunken man lying on a door step, the perspiration pouring off his face and a crowd of children preparing to make fun of him. She took her little apron and wiped his face, and then looked up pitifully to the rest and made this remark: "O, don't hurt him! He is somebody's grandpa." Was not that the better way?

The flowers should teach us a rich lesson. When we trample them beneath our feet, they return unto us a sweet fragrance.

As every thread of gold is valuable, so is every minute of time.

"In a Decline."

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir:—Last fall my daughter was in a decline and everybody thought she was going into the consumption. I got her a bottle of your "Favorite Prescription," and it cured her.

MRS. MARY HINSON.

Of all druggists. Montrose, Kan.

"Father," said the young man as he leaned on his hoe, 'they say the balance of trade is agin us." "They do, eh?" "And that our bank reserves are rapidly diminishing." "Du tell!" "And that railroad extension has come to a halt." "Well, well, well!" "And that the volume of securities is subtantially without a market." "Yes, I see," said the father; "and do they say anything about a feller stopping to lean on his hoe to talk when he might just as well talk and hoe too?" Reuben resumed.

From Paris to Vienna on a Bicycle.

"I carried with me, among my scanty baggage, a small supply of Coca, an Indian tonic, by which I was able to assuage the sudden and painful hunger which sometimes accompanies continued exertion. When fatigue and sleep began to tell upon me, the marvelous Coca again supported me and gave me strength.

M. LAUMAILLE.

Who rode a bicycle from Paris to Vienna, a distance of 700 miles, in a little more than twelve days.

The unequalled tonic and reinvigorating powers of the Coca are embodied in Liebig Co's., celebrated Coca Beef Tonic, recognized as the standard tonic by the medical profession of every civilized country. Beware of cheap imitations under imitative names. Cures dyspepsia, malaria, biliousness, piles, debility, buzzing in the ears and all who are run down.

In the Iowa town of Traser, the City Council posts a list of drunkards in every saloon, and orders the keeper to sell no drink to any of them.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A WONDERFUL [illegible]d
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analyzed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

[illegible] QUARTER. LESSON IV. July 22d. [illegible] DEFEATED AT AI. (Joshua vii, [illegible])

After God helped Israel to throw down the walls of Jericho they found a rich city. Joshua told them that all these things were to be given to the Lord. No man was to take them. They had obeyed when God told them to go through the river, and now this seems a very simple law to keep. But a man named Achan, looked at the silver and gold until he wanted it. Instead of going right away when the [illegible] came into his heart, he kept looking at the gold, and at last the poor sinful man took it.

No one saw him. Joshua did not miss the fine robe and silver and gold, so Achan had it safe. Soon after this Israel came to a little town called Ai, about twenty miles from Jericho. It seemed so little they thought they could take it right away. But instead of this they were driven back, and a great many of them killed. Joshua knew something was wrong, so he took [illegible] to God, and God told [illegible] that some one among the people had sinned, and he could not [illegible] be their Lord, until [illegible] was punished.

Good News From Texas.

MR. THOMAS A. HOWARD, of Honey Grove, Fannin County, Texas, under date of April 5, 1883, writes as follows:

"I have been suffering during several years from severe illness, and a general breaking down of my physical system, and have tried the treatment and prescriptions of many doctors far and near, and traveled to the Hot Springs and other mineral springs famous for their remedial qualities, drinking the waters and bathing systematically in their healing depths, but all to no avail, as I steadily failed in health; and although informed by my physicians that my ailments and weaknesses were the result of kidney disease of a dangerous character, they could give me nothing to cure me. During the past two years my sufferings at times were dreadful, and I had the most indescribable pains in the regions about the kidneys, the paroxysms of which were so severe as to render it impossible for me to sleep. While in this deplorable and discouraged condition I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy, and after using less than half a bottle my great sufferings and proxyms of pain were entirely relieved, and I could sleep better and longer than I had in two years before, and although I am now on my third bottle only my improvement is very remarkable, and I regret the I did not know of the wonderful curative powers of Hunt's Remedy before, as it would have saved me years of suffering. I heartily recommend it to all afflicted with any kidney disease or disease of the urinary organs."

"Hit My Case Exactly."

Please allow me to speak in the highest terms of "Hunt's Remedy," for it hit my case exactly. I had kidney and urinary trouble pretty bad. I was recommended Hunt's Remedy. I took one teaspoonful as directed. I felt a decided change at the first dose. I took two bottles, and have felt like a new man ever since. Please receive the sincere thanks of myself for the benefits which I sought vainly for and found only in Hunt's Remedy.

I will cheerfully give this same opinion of Hunt's Remedy to any one who wishes it, by addressing

DEATHS.

It has pleased God to remove from us Sister Levinia Adams, on May 9. She was born in Georgia in 1821, and joined the church in 1831, and remained a faithful member. Unable to walk once for five years, she yet saw death approaching, and was ready to meet her Savior. She leaves a husband and seven children.

Sister Martha Lefior departed this life March 10, 1883, aged 60 years. She was a faithful member of our church, and died in full triumph of faith. She leaves several children and many friends to mourn her loss.

Sister Susan Graham departed this life March 20, 1883, aged 50 years. She was a faithful member of our church. She leaves a daughter and many friends to mourn her loss.

Brother Charley Jones departed this life March 23, 1883. He was a faithful member and died in full triumph of living faith. He was 70 years of age and leaves four sons and two daughters to mourn his loss. H. CAWTHORN.

NEW PUBLICATION.

The August Century will be the "Midsummer Holiday Number." It will open with a paper by Prof. Alfred M. Mayer, of the Stevens Institute, an enthusiastic sportsman, on "Bob White, the Game Bird of America." Prof. Mayer calls him as the bird calls himself, "Bob White," and as he is known everywhere, although in the North and East he is commonly called Quail, and in the South and West, Patridge. The illustrations of this paper are said to be remarkable specimens of James C. Beard's skill as a delineator of birds.

THE OLD ADAGE, THAT "AN OUNCE OF PREVENTIVE IS WORTH A POUND OF CURE," WAS NEVER MORE APTLY ILLUSTRATED THAN BY HIM WHO TAKES HIM WHO TAKES TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT BEFORE THE MORNING MEAL. FOT IT NOT ONLY GENTLY REGULATES AND PURIFIES THE SYSTEM, BUT IS A PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE, WHICH NO ONE OUGHT TO DISREGARD. ALL DRUGGISTS HAVE IT.

KIDNEY-WORT [illegible]

[illegible] Kidney and Liver troubles, also for female weakness.—Philip C. Ballou, M. D., Monkton, Vt.

"My wife has been much benefited from the use of Kidney-Wort. She had kidney and other complaints," writes Rev. A. B. Coleman, Fayetteville, Tenn.

KIDNEY-WORT
IS A SURE CURE
for all diseases of the Kidneys and
—LIVER—
It has specific action on this most important organ, enabling it to throw off torpidity and inaction, stimulating the healthy secretion of the Bile, and by keeping the bowels in free condition, effecting its regular discharge.
Malaria. If you are suffering from malaria, have the chills, are bilious, dyspeptic, or constipated, Kidney-Wort will surely relieve and quickly cure.
In the Spring to cleanse the System, every one should take a thorough course of it.

KIDNEY-WORT

"I am a living advocate of the virtues of Kidney-Wort. I suffered untold agony from liver disorder. It cured me." John D. Nevins, Springfield, Ohio.

FOR THE PERMANENT CURE OF CONSTIPATION.
No other disease is so prevalent in this country as Constipation, and no remedy has ever equalled the celebrated Kidney-Wort as a cure. Whatever the cause, however obstinate the case, this remedy will overcome it.
PILES. THIS distressing complaint is very apt to be complicated with constipation. Kidney-Wort strengthens the weakened parts and quickly cures all kinds of Piles even when physicians and medicines have before failed.

THE GREAT CURE
RHEUMATISM
As it is for all the painful diseases of the KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS.
It cleanses the system of the acrid poison that causes the dreadful suffering which only the victims of Rheumatism can realize.
THOUSANDS OF CASES of the worst forms of this terrible disease have been quickly relieved, and in short time
PERFECTLY CURED.

GROUND TO POWDER.

Crushed in the Mill that Stops Neither Day nor Night.

"Oh, yes, that is the almost universal fact, and not a particle of wonder about it, either. Most literary men are the slaves of desk work and prisoners within doors. They eat at any and every hour indicated by the clocks. In other words, they jump onto the hopper of mental labor and trust in Providence to squeeze through between the mill-stones without being ground into meal. Nature enforces the health contract, however, and they tumble into the bag with disordered stomachs, and the resulting nervous and bilious headaches, sleeplessness, and all the rest of it."

Having thus outlined the doleful destiny of the average brain-toiler, Mr. J. R. Francis, associate editor of the Religio-Philosophical Journal, of Chicago, leaned back in his office-chair and paid to the memory of the lost litterateurs whom he known the tribute of a sigh.

"It's sad enough," remarked your correspondent, sympathetically; "but what can be done?"

"Well," said Mr. Francis, "although I haven't the slightest personal interest in doing so, I recommend PARKER'S GINGER TONIC for all the ills that literary flesh is heir to. I have used it myself, not only for digestive disorders, but in my household, for Coughs, Colds, and pains generally, and it meets these cases more promptly and radically than any other remedy I know of. Brain-workers on the Press, in the Law, the School and the Pulpit, will find this Tonic one of the few things that fill the bill."

HISCOX & Co., Chemist, of New York, who are the proprietors, desire to call especial attention to the fact that PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is not to be classed with the essence of ginger, or with any simple preparation. It is a complex and elaborate combination, and covers the range of actual and seated disease. Sold at 50 cents or $1 per bottle. You will save by buying the larger size.

Whoever knew a stupid blundering cook who did not lay his want of success to the flour, yeast, butter, lard, fire, or interruptions etc. This is however only a confession of the sheer ignorance of the cook. The writer is acquainted with certain preachers who have been the saddest failures, but they most uniformly lay the blame on some bishop, presiding elder, or the people. Thoughtful people look upon this want of success as a clear indication that they have mistaken their calling, that they are sadly out of gear.

An exchange says: "While Mississippi raises but little meat, the citizens of that State consume more of the hog product than almost any community of the same numbers on the habitable globe." What is true of Mississippi in this matter, is generally true of the whole South, consuming more meat than it produces. Until our people learn to produce their meat at home, and to diversify their industries, the South will continue to be tributary to the North and West. Raise more hogs, corn and potatoes, and less cotton, and good times will come.

At last the Nation has a Postmaster General who cannot be made the dupe or tool of gamblers. For years the United States mails have been the vehicles by which the Louisiana Lottery, the most colossal gambling scheme of the age, has robbed its victims of millions of dollars. For some time past there has been a complete nullification of the federal law excluding lotteries from the mails. But since the appointment of General Gresham as Postmaster General, there has been an effort to settle the question whether the Louisiana Lottery or the United States is the bigger. The case was in hearing for a full week. Able counsel were employed on both sides. The decision of the Postmaster General was prompt and decisive, just what the great mass of the people expected from an honest and brave man as he is. Hereafter the Postmasters of the United States will have a more reputable business to attend to than turning their offices into the nefarious traffic of the Kentucky, Colorado and Louisiana gamblers.

At the fruit show of the Southern Exposition at Louisville Ky., Aug 28 to Sept 1, over $2000 in premiums will be awarded.

From Jackson District—Mississippi Conference.

Editors of SOUTHWESTERN:—Please allow me a space in your columns, thinking your many readers would like to hear of the success and doing of our district, as we have not had sufficient time to keep them regularly posted. The recent cyclone has done us some damage. Churches blown down, congregations scattered, and the brethren are crying for help from all quarters. The church at Hickory and Meyersville was destroyed by fire, and we are in need of better houses to worship in. The brethren who subscribed to Rust University are making rapid strides to settle the amounts subscribed, feeling that the school is greatly needed among our people, and the thought of having the best school building in the State, has infused new life in them to succeed. I am only sorry that my district has furnished so few scholars; but when the condition of things is looked at, it will remove all charges of neglect on the part of the presiding elder; for in this district we have within twenty-five miles four so called colleges. But sorry to say we are deficient as a mass intellectually—notwithstanding the school facilities surrounding us.

The churches on the stations are doing very well except Vicksburg. There we need a new church. The house we worship in is not only dilapidated, but actually unsafe for the congregations that generally assemble there. We have a good body of members, but surrounding circumstances prevents them from doing what they desire.

Bro. J. W. Parks, at Jackson, Miss., has made considerable progress by increasing his membership; a glorious revival has visited his church and many souls happily converted. Bro. A. K. Davis, at Canton, is now carrying on a glorious revival; anxious souls are crowding the altar, and several have been converted.

Bro. G. J. Garrett, at Forest, is doing likewise. The Lord has greatly blessed his work this year, and many precious souls have been added to the church of Christ. Bro. Tolson, of Hickory, is greatly beloved by his church and congregation. They are hard at work trying to re-build their church that was burned down by the hand of an enemy. Bro. Doby, at Lake, is much beloved, and it is to be hoped we will be able to make a fair report of his work on our third round. Bro. A. McBeth, of Trenton, has given new life to the work and has brought to the church scores of friends of both races; he, too, is preparing to build a new church. Bro. Elijah Graves, at Pelahatchie, has built a new parsonage, and is greatly beloved by his congregation; several conversions have occured in his work and quite a number added to the church; and Bro. Graves is the right man in the right place. Bro. Handy, of Brandon, and Bro. McAlpin, of Evergreen, both are doing excellent work in their respective places, and bringing in large numbers to the church of God. Bro. Mimns, of the Mt. Salem Circuit, and Bro. Sims, of the Simpson Circuit, are both doing good work. Bro. Head, at Clinton, is much beloved; the church is very poor and the surrounding circumstances gloomy. Bro. Davis, of Bolton, and Bro. Stewart, of Edwards, have by their labor added large numbers to their respective churches—their increase is largely over the average of preceding years; they both also erected each a new church. Bro. Aaron Davis, at Vickburg, is doing all that could be expected; he is greatly beloved by his members. The condition of his church is given in the foregoing communication. Bro. Cosmore Stewart, being associated by that old saint Bro. Samuel Blackwell, and Bro. George Jones, are planting the banner of the old church in many places in the Mississippi and Deer Creek bottoms. He reached to within twenty miles of Greenville and there established a church. He is greatly beloved by the entire populace of the swamp, and proved himself a good pioneer. Bro. Simpson Jassell, on the Oak Ridge Circuit, better known as Berry Circuit, is very much liked, and we hope and wait, beliving the young man will be instrumental in much good.

Mr. Editor, I promised you at the annual conference to drop you an article on the subject of Temperance; but nothing new has presented itself. Of course, Democracy in this State is not an advocate of the temperance cause, and the Republicans and Independents are afraid to tackle it since the recent elections in the North. But one thing I am proud to say—out of the nineteen pastors in my district, fourteen are members of the Order of Good Templars. We have thirteen lodges in my district.

Please pardon me for occupying so much space in your columns, as I have not written to you for nearly one year. The reason or cause of the non-subscription of the SOUTHWESTERN is on account of the financial panic. But we hope and trust to give you a good subscription list this fall. The change in the form of your paper has given it new life, and I feel that members will subscribe that have not done it heretofore. God bless her editors and managers. Fraternally yours,

D. A. WILLIAM, P. E.

Jackson District, Miss. Conference.

John Wesley On The "Time Limit."

Rev. John Stocks, of the Colorado Conference, sends the Central Christian Advocate a copy of a letter from John Wesley to Bishop Asbury. Certainly it carries back the "Time Limit" discussion to the beginning:

BRISTOL, Sept. 30, 1785.

My Dear Brother: At the next Conference it will be worth your while to consider deeply whethe any preacher should stay in one place three years together. I startle at this. It is a vehement alteration in the Methodist discipline. We have no such custom in England, Scotland or Ireland. I myself may perhaps have as much variety of matter as many of our preachers. Yet I am well assured, were I to preach three years together in one place, both the people and myself would grow as dead as stones. Indeed, this is quite contrary to the whole economy of Methodism; God has always wrought among us by a constant change of preachers.

I am your affectionate friend and brother, JOHN WESLEY.

Gov. Ireland, of Texas, visited the colored men's State convention in Austin, and it received him with applause. He criticised the convention for not being entirely non-political and for presuming to question Judge Turner's decision declaring the Civil Rights bill unconstitutional as to the color line on railroad trains. "The question of civil rights," he said, "will be solved when you teach the white race that yours is their equal in education, intelligence, and moral standing."

Letter from Marshall.

MR. EDITOR:—I have been waiting for four weeks and watching the ADVOCATE, hoping to see some notice of a letter written about five weeks ago. I would be pleased to know why you paid no attention to it. Your notice of our reports at the last conference was certainly very severe, and according to my understanding was not justified by the facts before you. You say you had the minutes of 1881–2 before you and yet you found a loss of nearly 3000. Bishop Bowman says there is a loss of five hundred; this makes a difference of 2500. It is well known by you that it is the custom of our secretaries, if a station or circuit is not reported, to take the report of last conference, but our secretaries left the places blank. If you will take the blanks and fill them with the reports of 1881 you will find nearly all the loss accounted for. In the letter referred to above I filled the blanks, in part, and showed up over thirteen hundred, and it is strange that no notice of that letter has ever appeared.

We stand in a very unfavorable light before the church since you wrote as you did. I think you owe it to us to explain all these facts. The brethren, some of them, think you did it, because you were not pleased with some things done last conference. I certainly do not believe that, but you can see how this will injure us.

The second district conference, for the Marshall district, will convene at Clarksville, Aug. 29, 1883. We earnestly plead, with all the members, to be present at the opening, Wednesday, at 2 o'clock. We are expecting to have one of our ministers from abroad, will dedicate our new church on Sunday, and it is to be hoped that our brethren from every part of the district will be present and witness the service.

Our work is looking up a little through the district; the brethren report conversions at several places. Pray for us. Your Brother, W. L. MOLLOY.

Marshall, Texas, July 17, 1883.

(NOTE BY THE EDITOR: The communication referred to above was received while engaged in district work, and away from our post. Before it could be used, the letter above was received, which is the first attempt to produce facts or figures to disprove the record of the published conference minutes, by which we were guided in our statements, and which we supposed to be good authority. It appears that the secretaries are responsible for any misrepresentation of the Texas conference, which followed the publication by them of minutes in an incorrect form. The assertion of Bro. Molloy, that some of the brethren attributed to us improper motives in making a plain statement founded on their official record, is too undignified to be worthy of further notice.)

The Northwestern says, "We believe in moral suasion to cure or prevent the drinkers, and legal suasion to prevent the sale of liquors. Nobody proposes to cure drinkers by law. Nobody can cure a saloon save by law."

Good News From Brazil

The news has just been telegraphed to me from Ceara, a province of of Northern Brazil, that the slaves of the city of Fortaleza and its whole electoral district were set free on the 24th inst, by a spontaneous movement of the people. I do not believe that the records of emancipation have any nobler or purer page than the one that the people of Ceara have just written in Brazilian history. The abolitionists of Ceara hope to have the entire province made free in a very short time, and the redemption of the slaves of its principal district is a great step in that direction. This has been obtained by every owner abandoning his rights of property, renouncing his legal claims on the bondage of his fellow men, and patriotically contributing to raise the name of his native country. The lead in this movement was taken two years ago by the poor raftsmen of Ceara, who refused to convey the slaves from the shore to the vessels which were to carry them down south. And what has happened now? The creation of the first cellule of a higher national organism is the result of that strike. I am sure the effect of such an achievement, which promises to us Brazilians one free soil province before many months are over, will be to hasten the day when our country shall have rid herself of the torpid atmosphere which now deadens her. Allow me then to hail in the Times this advent to liberty of a large area and population in Brazil, destined to be the centre of formation of a new country, which we can already see leaving the rudimentary and backward form of slavery for the higher and growin gstructure of freedom."

The Galveston News' Austin special says the Colored Men's State Convention before final adjournment adopted an address to the people. It congratulates the State upon the friendly relations of the races in Texas; assumes that the few cases of wrong and oppression upon the colored people are exceptional, and that the great body of whites are friendly; condemns lynch law; asserts that as railway passengers the Negroes are badly treated; says they do not want in this matter to ask for social equality, but will freely accept social separation with equal accommodations on trains for the same pay; advises their people to discharge ignorant and immoral teachers and preachers whose teaching and example keep superstition and vice alive; discourages immigration from the State, and even from county to county, unless for best of reasons; recommends the purchase of lands and homes and the production of home comforts and necessaries of life before producing articles for sale, and that young men should be encouraged to learn trades, and counsels local organizations to encourage all these aims. The closing paragraph lets the Republican Party know that the colored people rest solid in that organization.

Senator Joseph E. Brown has expressed himself as in very cordial sympathy with those who desire to see a first-rate school of technology established in Georgia, and says he thinks it very important to the future growth and prosperity of the State.

Letter from New England.

We have recently had two notable events in our city—the visit of the Continental Guards of New Orleans, and of the Washington Light Artillery of Charleston. In both instances the cordiality of [illegible] satisfy the most exacting, and to put at rest all suspicion that might have been felt by any of the hostile feelings toward our Southern fellow-citizens. The expressions of friendship were not only genuine (as we are bound to suppose them to be in all similar cases), nor were they superficial, but they were settled and permanent feelings of our people toward any true gentlemen from any section of the country. If any of these gentlemen should chose to make his residence in Hartford, or any other place that they visited, he would find as cordial (though probably not as gushing) a reception as he met when coming as a mere visitor. Nor would any sentiment that he might cherish and chose to express, with reference to any sectional question, whether past or present, lead either to harsh treatment, or to a supercilious ignoring of his presence among us. I fearlessly summon any and every Southern gentleman who has taken up his abode in New England to testify upon this point. And yet New England was the hot-bed of abolitionism. But when every part of our country shall have become as free as she from sectional bigotry, the beautiful flower of national fraternity will not only have budded, but fully bloomed and seeded. Not till that day comes will the South be able to secure the ingenius and active brains, and the abundant capital that are needed to fully develop her exhaustless resources.

But returning to our visitors; there is one thing that is especial cause of regret. Some of those who welcomed them supposed that hospitality was synonymous with champagne, and they made it flow like water. In an excursion that was given the Continentals at Boston, it is said that for a thousand tickets issued, two thousand bottles of champagne were supplied; and to the reception of the Charleston Light Artillery at Hartford, the orator of the day, with whom I formerly met more than once in the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of this State, referred with great gusto to the "liquids," which were furnished to him and the company, that two years ago visited Charleston. Of course they felt that an equal display of hospitality demanded the same liberal supply of liquids by themselves. Let me say to our Southern visitors, that while none would complain of the liberality with which they were treated, yet there were many that objected to the mode in which it was bestowed, believing the day to have gone by when hospitality was to be measured by the gallon or bottle. So strong has that feeling become that there is talk in Boston of contesting the payment of the wine bill. But we are all glad that our Southern friends came; we believe that if ten people came, where one comes now, sectional prejudices would in five years be a thing of the past. Sectionalism is provincialism the world over, and no one can proclaim himself a provincial in a more emphatic manner than by exhibiting a sectional spirit.

We "weep with those that weep," in the cloud that has come upon the Louisiana conference of the Church South, in the terrible tragedy at Mansfield. We agree with the New Orleans Advocate, that the wild rant of a red-handed murderer is no proof of the guilt of his victim; and at the same time we agree with the Times-Democrat, that no robe of sanctity should afford immunity from the investigation of charges against the character of its wearer. If the charges are baseless, as I trust they will be shown, it will remove all the poisonous mists with which the character of the dead would in some minds be clouded; but if the terrible fact should be proved that they are true, then let the truth be shown, though the heavens should fall. The cause of righteousness never gained by concealing crimes, and never suffered in the end by having it fully exposed. But even the fullest proof could not excuse the crime of Jenkins, nor could it count but very little in extenuation.

Your suggestion about the prohibition of the pistol is eminently wise. In the home, and in the church, and in the school, and in society, the young should be taught that to carry deadly weapons is the mark either of a coward or a bully; and that to use them, except in clear cases of self-defence, is, in all cases, a felony. Even the popular amusement of practicing with a pistol to insure skill in its use, should be looked upon with the same reprobation as would its twin amusement of the dark ages, the amateur use of poisons in order to insure the skillful use of them when one wishes to remove an enemy. The one is a relic of barbarism as much as the other, and equally fosters the spirit of murder.

While I am on the subject of the disgrace brought upon religion by the crime of a preacher, let me touch upon another class of persons, who are extolled very highly by some humanitarians as specially adapted to teach morality to the people. I refer to the members of the theatrical profession. Five or six of these have recently been publicly exposed within as many weeks for violating the seventh commandment. A prominent actress, a few weeks ago, forfeited her summer engagement, and eloped to England with an actor, who deserted his family for her. And now the wife of the "leading actor," at Wallack's theatre, is divorced from him on proof that he recently lived in adultery with a young actress. And still a third case, now before the courts; a "leading actor," at the Union square theatre, against whom his reputed wife applies for a divorce on the ground of adultery. The accused acknowledges the crime, but claims that he was never married to the plaintiff, and that she therefore was equally guilty with himself. And yet the theatre is claimed as a school of morality. Verily, the morals of the public must be very black, if they can be whitened by rubbing against actors and actresses. The crime of one minister has startled the nation; but the crimes of these half dozen play actors does not raise a ripple of surprise.

I have just had a call from the father of a lady who is connected with Dr. Cullis' faith-work, at Boydton, Virginia. The Doctor, who has been the butt of any amount of ridicule and vituperation, (I think the word is not too strong) on account of his reputed faith-cures, pursues the even tenor of his way with as serene and cheerful a faith as if the whole world favored and applauded him. How many establisments he is carrying on, by simple faith, I cannot tell—asylums, and orphanages, and churches, and schools—a half a score at least. His school, at Boydton, among the colored people, occupies the former buildings of Randolph Macon College, and is therefore to me doubly interesting, as I was for a time, an instructor there under the old regime. Not a dollar is expended upon it, except what comes in answer to prayer; and yet, during the several years of its existence, it has never lacked for means to sustain it. Is their not a lesson in this for the friends of New Orleans University? It is true that in a certain sense all our Freedmen's work is sustained by faith. It is not known at the beginning of the year where scarcely a single one of its hundred thousand dollars is to come from; but faith lays out the work, and the gifts of God's people honor the drafts of faith that are drawn upon them. But in the case of our University there is a special and pressing need which the society does not yet feel itself able to meet. Will not the brethren and sisters of New Orleans and Louisiana take it upon their hearts, and carry it to the Lord in mighty faith, that he will in his own way supply the means to put up such a building as our wants imperatively demand? Will not the ministers in all our churches establish prayer-[illegible] for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology? In [illegible] churches this has been done; [illegible] it be done in all. If this be carried out, and the people be frequently reminded of their pledge, I believe that not another summer will pass by without seeing their prayers crowned with success, and the beautiful site upon Coliseum Park crowned with such a building as will be "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." I would be glad if the brethren, who accept this suggestion, wi'l write me. My address for the summer is Mystic, Conn.

P. S.—Your printer, in a private note, made me "draw it rather strong," with reference to the cool weather here. Instead of saying that we needed fire all night, I said we needed fire at night. Doubtless if one had been compelled to be up all night, the revised version would have been correct. This, and a few other slight changes in that extract, admonishes me that either I or the printer, or both, will have to be more careful, especially till he becomes acquainted with my chirography. By the way, do most persons have any idea how much guessing the printers have to do? In most cases (not the most) about two or three letters out of five are legible and the rest have to be guessed from them. Let us write with more care.

Encourage Our Schools.

The Methodist Episcopal Church educates. The doors of her school rooms swing open to all. To dispense, as widely as possible the blessings of a thorough Christian culture is a mission from which she has never been known to swerve. In her educational, no less than in her spiritual campaign, she has given abundant proof of her ability to provide for emergencies. At the close of the war, when four millions of our people were without education or the means for acquiring it, the Church called into existence the Freedmen's Aid Society, which has since expended thousands of dollars in the erection of school buildings and supplying teachers all over the Southern country. The work, though begun under difficulties of no small magnitude, has been carried steadily forward until its results are among the grandest achievements of modern Christian endeavors. But there is still an urgent demand yet to be met by this powerful agency. The field is broad, and, notwithstanding a vast sweep of forces are employed in its cultivation, it will require several years before it can be said the work is finished. The friends of the cause, instead of pausing to boast of past successes, must be as vigilant, earnest and persevering as ever. The conquest over ignorance must go on, let the struggle cost what it may. None of us can afford to be lazily indifferent or actively useless. Our best energies, common sense and means must be enlisted and wisely directed toward the attainment of our object. Those who call us to halt in order that we may turn aside and engage in disparaging criticism of our devoted, self-sacrificing teachers are not to be heeded. While a few of the workers, as might naturally have been expected, considering the scarcity of real, first-class teachers, have failed to rightly grasp the situation and to adapt themselves readily to all its delicate appointments, it cannot be successfully contradicted that the majority have brought to the work rare qualification and have, by their unwearied dilligence and Christian deportment, placed their fitness beyond question. I am free to say, after close observation that, considered as a whole, a nobler race of men and woman never went forth in any cause than those who, from time to time have been employed to teach in the schools under the auspices of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Without an inviting, salary, or charming surroundings outside the school, some of the best talent in the Church has been secured, and to-day scores fill their posts with honor. It is of no use to talk through the newspapers of incompetent teachers. Where is the college or seminary but what has been inflicted with one or more of them? He that will tell us how to get rid of them, and not he who merely complains against them will establish his claim as a benefactor of his race. Some think that a greater number of colored teachers should be employed in these schools. If I make no mistake it is the purpose of those who have the supervision of the work to give positions to colored young men and women whenever suitable ones can be found. Let no one presume, however, that because he or she has been graduated from the college they are therefore suitable persons for teachers. Diplomas can not give authority to teach, and even if they did the college would not, perhaps, be the most desirable place to begin one's career. Better start at the bottom and work upwards. A few years spent in some rude neighborhood organizing and operating a school under the direction of a single, individual will, is the thing needed to develop those qualities which go to make up the successful teacher of which any institution would be proud. Let not our educated young people misconstrue the seeming tardiness of the authorities of the church to give them early promotion. The delay is not caused by any lack of appreciation of merit or desire to hold them back. They are anxious to see us advanced. They would rejoice to see us placed in positions of honor and trust, but they know the folly of attempting it by any artificial means. They dare not to lift us. We were not made to be lifted about like babies. They can only touch us with an holy thrill, then bid us rise by our own endeavor. Let us be patient and work on, and our day will come. Let us remember that to quarrel with a school for its choice of persons upon whom to bestow its honors is ignoble strife, to which great minds do not stoop. It detracts nothing from a man's scholarly standing if he is not called upon to deliver an address at some college commencement. The hearer who sits on the rear seat may be more highly elevated that the speaker standing on the platform. It is brains and not the scaffold that raises men above the crowd. The imputation that the presidents of some of our schools have shown partilaity in favor of white persons for speakers on such occasions is, in my opinion, entirely groundless. They are anxious to secure colored men when they can be obtained. The writer was invited to deliver addresses this year at schools located in two different States, but had to decline on account of other engagements. Our schools are doing a great work. They are giving us abler ministers and more intelligent membership. They are helping to educate members of other churches. They are blessing the world. Let us encourage them.

Letter From Fayetteville.

The dedication services of St. James Chapel took place June 17, at 11 o'clock a. m. The presiding elder, Rev. G. W. Sams, and Revs. A. J. Phillips and F. Wallace were present and assisted in the service. Elder Sams preached a delightful sermon, suitable for the occasion. The people were made to rejoice for the victory they had won. For one hour nearly every eye was wet with tears. After the sermon I called on the people for a liberal contribution, and $61.65 was soon placed upon the table. Rev. A. J. Phillips had charge of the evening service, and preached a most eloquent sermon to a crowded house. Sacrament was administered to 81 communicants.

The quarterly conference was a credit to St. James Chapel. This [illegible] first or- [illegible] a more pleas- [illegible] than now. Why? Because, 1st, they have a new church, 2d, their church is out of debt, and 3rd, because it is built after the Church extension plan. All the class leaders were able to report. Our people, with credit to the stewards, have paid for my support $105; elder, $20; also there has been raised for church purposes, building, improving, etc., $330. Our church is not complete yet but is in a fair way to completion.

Dear readers of the blessed old SOUTHWESTERN, by the dedication service at so early a date, do not understand us as crossing the river before getting to the banks. We only did so for the purpose of raising means for further contracts and materials, and with the handsome sum as above we can sing, "Oh, brethren, I am free." Bro. Wallace preached a fine sermon. Our Sunday school averages from 100 to 130 in the town of Fayetteville. Rev. A. J. Phillips expressed himself in church and Sunday school as [illegible] of commendation, and said [illegible] people here were growing [illegible] from a standpoint of [illegible] labor and Christian fidelity. He further stated that no place in the State of Arkansas had done the same amount of work, regardless of their large membership. Look at the statistical tables and there you find only five parsonages, and we have a list of appointments in the Little Rock Conference of 40; 35 [illegible] have no parsonages. [illegible] not so to be. Again, [illegible] appointments we have 38 [illegible] Are all these appointments [illegible] No. Why is it [illegible] only one church to the circuit? Brethren, we have the men, let us do the work, let it [illegible] among you, as was [illegible] long since, "come, let us [illegible] by crowding the old [illegible] Brethren, if you cannot [illegible] and parsonages you [illegible] if you do [illegible]

We [illegible] arrangements [illegible] themselves [illegible]

[illegible] to be able to supply that demand, as far as possible. To be reaching out for something that is difficult to obtain is an evidence of growth, and so we console ourselves. Those who are at the head of the Freedmen's Aid Society are men of large hearts and broad views. They see the great work that is to be done, and they feel it their duty to work over a large territory. I suppose we ought not to be selfish and blame them for what we lack. May be if we pray and trust God more we may have more. Our Heavenly Father is very rich, and he wishes us to feel our dependence upon him, and ask Him to supply, not only our own wants, but the wants of others.

I am reminded of a little story of a woman of whom I have read lately. She was in deep trouble. She thought if she would ask God, He would relieve her, and so she prayed, but still she suffered, even worse. She then heard that a dear friend of hers was also in great distress, and she began laboring and praying for that friend, and she received a great blessing, so much so, that she was quite willing to place herself and all that concerned her into the hands of the Lord, believing that all would be well.

Our medical department has become an important an interestiing part of our work. We have good reports from many of the young men who have gone out from there. Last spring a woman who had been spending several weeks in Florida, on her return to the North, called to see us. She said in the place where see was, there was a colored physician, who was an intelligent and useful man, and he was prefered to the white physician of the place; she told us his name and we found that he was one of our graduates. He is honoring himself and his "Alma Mater."

There have been elected to positions in the city schools here, several colored teachers, among them four of our students: John Watson, Mrs. Mary Gowdy, H. D. Cortes, and Sarah Patton. There are many who will be glad to learn of their good fortune. This seems to be making progress in the right direction.

Our school is a little world, a type of the great world outside. Here we have our joys and our sorrows, our trials and temptations. We all have a work to do, pupils as well as teachers, and if we all do our part, what a delightful world we could make of it. No where have we a right to draw within ourselves and not do what we might to make others happy. Here as in other places we must: "Bear ye one another's burdens," or we will find it hard to bear our own.

School life is an important part of one's existence. It is then that habits are formed that will influence the whole future. If students are studious, and orderly, and kind, they give promise of great usefulness, and of getting much satisfaction out of life themselves. If bad habits are formed they will grow stronger and stronger. In this life we must advance or go backward, go upward or downward. It is very sad to see any one taking the downward road, for it leads from God, and all that is worth living for, and in that way, all culture is a failure. O let us have a noble purpose! Aim high and with faith in God, all that the heart can desire is within our reach. But we must be sure to dedicate ourselves to him, and then in getting an education, we will be build on a good foundation—on the "Rock."

Wiley University.

We were greatly favored at the closing of our school with a visit from the Rev. I. G. Pollard, of Little Rock, Ark. He delivered the annual sermon at Wiley University, also a sermon at Ebenezer M. E. Church. His addresses were full of interest, and all who heard him were much pleased and instructed. A lasting impression, we trust, was made on the minds and hearts of the young by his wholesome words. I will add a word in reference to our school. What is [illegible] There were in attendance during the year 313; and 102 in attendance at New Hope Academy, Alto, Texas, and Paris School, Paris, Texas, preparatory schools of Wiley University. This gives a total attendance of 417. Of this number 144 were from abroad. There has been good improvement in study on the part of students, and generally the more advanced students propose to go forward until they are prepared for the work that is before them. Our numbers are increased until room is needed for boarders and school accommodation. We are led, with good reason, to hope for larger accommodation at no distant day. Our patronage from abroad will, no doubt, be larger this coming year. Every year, we believe, since the organization of the school in 1873, has witnessed an increase in the number of students from abroad. But with increase of patronage and scholarship we have done but little of the vast labor before us. The field is great. Our pupils and schools need more men. We have not sufficient to supply the demand. Will not our church arise with new strength to do this important work? Our school would be much larger, and better had we more means to prosecute this work. We labor and sacrifice, with hearts made heavy by want of means to this task, to do what seems urgent. The thought by day and night is how to reach the needs of the people with the means at our command. But with the help of the Strong Helper we press on looking to the the Church for continued and increased help.

W. H. DAVIS.

Marshall, Texas, July 13, 1883.

Gilbert Haven School of Theology.

To the Members of the Louisiana Conference:

MY DEAR BRETHREN:—At our last conference held in Alexandria you made a handsome subscription to Gilbert Haven School of Theology. The whole amount subscribed was $5,977.05. What a grand record it would be if every dollar of that would be paid at our next conference, which meets in Union Chapel, New Orleans! It will be done, unless some fail to raise or pay the amounts they pledged. Which of you brethren can afford to fail?

I have mailed subscription books to each one who subscribed, and I put in every book a printed letter of instructions. Keep a record of all who help you with the amounts they pay, and bring the book and money to conference. Every one who pays twenty-five cents or more will have their names and gifts published in our next Annual Conference Minutes.

A good colored woman in Flushing, New York, went to heaven a few months ago. Forty years ago she left Virginia, and began saving her money. She married a good husband, and together they saved their money. Then she became a widow and continued to take good care of her property, until when she died she was worth $8000. Of this estate she left $4000 for our school in New Orleans, and the money will come to us in a few months. God will give us other friends just in proportion as we help ourselves.

The plans of a beautiful building are being drawn and you can all see them at conference. I am trying to find some good person or persons to give us $25,000 toward our school. Do not forget to pray to God that I may succeed. Next year is Centennial year. Let us in Louisiana celebrate it by erecting a splendid building for our school of Theology. Your brother,

General Debility and Liver Complaint.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y. Dear Sir:—My wife has been taking your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Pellets" for her liver and general debility and has found them to be good medicines and would recommend them to all sufferers from Liver Complaints, Sour Stomach, and General Debility.

Yours fraternally.

Letter from Paris.

MR. EDITOR:—The seventh year of my ministry finds me here, the garden spot of North Texas. Our work seems to be firm and steady. There are five churches in town, but ours is not second to any; and indeed it is a rare thing to find the old church behind any. It is a sure thing that wherever it is found in a dilapidated condition it is for the want of proper institution. Those who despise the progress of the old church are of course doing all they can to hinder her, but in spite of all she is going along as though unconscious of such impediments. I have been asked by some why don't we have a colored bishop? I love the old church because she wants her men, second to none, and will not bring them out before their time. God kept Moses in reserve eighty years waiting for the time to come to send him to Egypt to deliver the Israelites from bondage, and during that time God was educating him for his work. So the Methodist Episcopal church must take time to prepare her men. Jesus was three years training his disciples. This world is not moved by color, but by power. We must send men of power to the next general conference.

Elder Molloy held my quarterly meeting, and remained with us nearly a week. Several have joined us this year. Mrs. Lowery, whose two daughters are members of our church, furnished seats for our church pulpit, and contributed $5 to missions and $5 to the church to aid in paying for its new seats. Prof. J. C. Carter closed his first school session here on the 22d; he left for his home on the 25th. He is worthy of the respect of all with whom he may hereafter become acquainted. We are still collecting with a view of building a high school here under the auspices of Wiley University. None of the brethren have complied with their pledges made at the district conference, except Rev. T. Moore, who collected $5, as follows: From Jonesville, $1.50; Rich Hill, $1.15; Rock Hill $1.25. Brethren, we are still expecting your contributions to push on this great work.

Mr. Editor, I am glad to say that I think 1884 will add more subscribers to our great paper. Brethren, push the canvass, and what you can't do this year prepare to do it next. May God help us to do, and do every day for the great movement of Methodism.

Married Folks Would be Happier.

If home trials were never told to neighbors.

If they kissed and made up after every quarrel.

If the household expenses were proportioned to receipts.

If they tried to be as agreeable as in courtship days.

If each would try to be a support and comfort to the other.

If each remembered that the other was a human being, not an angel.

If women were as kind to their husbands as they are to their lovers.

If fuel and provisions were laid in during the high tide of Summer.

If both parties remembered that they were married for worse as well as for better.

If there were fewer silk and velvet street costumes and more plain, tidy house dresses.

If there were fewer "please darlings" in public and more common manners in private.

If wives and husbands would take some pleasure as they go along and not degenerate into mere toiling machines. Recreation is necessary to keep the heart in its place and to get along without it is a big mistake.

Remembrance.

Instructor of my youth's bright days,
True scholar, master, scribe and sage;
How oft thy dear grand face I see,
Bent o'er some old books time worn page.

Dear noble brow, whereon is carved,
Time's many cares that hath been thine,
How sweet the lessons learned from thee,
A golden ray that o'er my path doth shine.

Where'er I stray o'er the wide world,
Comes back thy words, "strive to excel,"
O, when life's warfare drear is o'er,
May words of mine of victories tell.

O, dear those words to every youth,
Lke torch from eruditions shrine,
That fires the hearts with newer zeal,
And points out the path of life divine,

Providence.

"I believe in a providence," said Victor Hugo to a company gathered around him in the Rue de Clichy, "because I am a providence myself." Being asked for an explanation, the poet replied: "We caught a mouse yesterday evening. Its death-sentence was already pronounced, when my little grand-daughter, Jeanne, with eyes glistening with tears, begged for the life of the gray prisoner. Her mother hesitated whether to listen to the dear little advocate or not, and in her doubt said: 'Grandfather shall decide.' So they came to me. For a moment I held the power of life and death over the diminutive creature, and I thought: The heavenly providence may find itself in my situation when the fate of a being of higher order is to be determined. Naturally, I set the mouse free; for when a mad undertakes the role of providence on a small scale he should at least imitate its generosity."—Literary World.

Praying About His Boots.

A little fellow who was very happy with high top boots, found it hard to get them on. He had to pull at the straps with all his might. One night when the boots were pulled off and the wearer was all ready for sleep, he kneeled down to pray. His mother allowed him to make a prayer all about himself besides saying "Now I lay me." This time he remembered his trouble with his boots, and added with his prayer: "Please make my boots go on easy!" In the morning he found his prayer answered, for somebody had made the leather soft with oil, so that his feet slipped in much easier.

A little girl and her brother were on their way to the ragged school on a cold winter's morning. The roofs of the houses and the grass on the common were white with frost, [illegible] wind very sharp. They were both poorly dressed, but the little girl had a sort of coat over her which she seemed to have outgrown.

As they walked briskly along, she drew her little companion up to her, saying:

"Come under my coat, Johnny."

"It isn't big enough for both," he replied.

"O, but I can stretch it a little," and they were soon as close together and as warm as two birds in the same nest.

How many shivering bodies, and heavy hearts, and weeping eyes there are in this world, just because people do not stretch their comforts beyond themselves.

A judge in Toledo, Ohio, has a little boy aged four years. One day when company was present, the little lad wanted a seat at the table, but his father sent him away, saying: 'Your whiskers are not long enough for you to sit with these gentlemen.' The boy took his seat at a table in the kitchen and ate his dinner. While he was eating, the old cat came purring around him. 'O go off, cat,' he exclaimed, loud enough to be heard in the dining rooms, 'your whiskers are big enough for you to eat at the other table.'

Contagious diseases, malaria, liver complaint, are all prevented by using the gentle but powerful tonic, Brown's Iron Bitters.

Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

The Daily Arkansas Gazette, of Little Rock, July 8th, published in full a sermon by Rev. W. H. W. Rees, who was recently appointed to our Main Street Methodist Church in that city. Its subject was "The Clarksville Gallows and an Impure Literature;" the text Proverbs 5, 22. It appears that the train robbers of Clarksville, four of whom were hung, were not unfamiliar with the "Life of the James Boys," and one of them in response to an inquiry by the clerk of the penitentiary, said: "Yes, I read the book; that's the main book in Washington county. Reckon that had something to do with our attempt." Rev. Rees makes effective use of this incident, and a strong plea for pure literature.

While at Franklin recently, we spent a pleasant half hour in the sanctum of the St. Mary Herald. Editor Liggins gave us a cordial welcome. No man earns his bread more honestly than a hard working editor. Our brother Liggins is a young man with a bright future before him, he is working hard and deserves success. The SOUTHWESTERN will always be glad to learn of his prosperity.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Warren has gone to the Pacific coast.

—Rev. Dr. C. H. Fowler is at work in Chicago and vicinity.

—Rev. Marcus D. Buell of Hartford, Conn., has left for a six weeks tour in Europe.

—Charles H. Stratton (Tom Thumb) died July 15, at his home at Middleboro, Mas., of applexy, in his 46th year.

—Prof. Wm. Howard Day, a colored man, was elected chairman of the Republican convention held in Harrisburg, Pa.

—We learn that Mr. Johnson, the newly elected President of the Republic of Liberia, is a cousin of J. W. Pierce of this city.

—H. C. Astwood, U. S. Consul to San Domingo, was recently ordained a minister of the A. M. E. Church, in Brooklyn New York.

—Rev. John Moore, U. S. consul at Callao, Peru, who died recently, was formerly of the Illinois conference, a Colonel, Brigadier General and member of Congress.

—Bishop Simpson is about to go to Denver, Col., where he will spend the latter part of the summer with his daughter, the wife of the Rev. C. W. Bury.—N. Y. Advocate.

—Hon. E. W. Robertson, member of the last Congress from the Baton Rouge district, telegraphed a letter to Postmaster General Gresham thanking him for his action in the lottery case.

—Judge George Hoadly, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Ohio, has written to Alabama that he will keep his engagement to deliver an address before the State Bar Association at Blount Springs Aug. 1.

—G. W. Horn, writes to the New Orleans Christian Advocate that Rev. Dr. John Matthews in Kansas City, Mo., is "sharply criticized but numerously heard." He has the largest congregation in that city, and he has "penitents, converts and accessions."

—The present Moderator of the Presbytery of Brooklyn is a colored minister. His name is Rev. A. N Freeman. There is nothing startling about this under the Presbyterian system of government, but it is an interesting fact when it is remembered that all the other members of the Presbytery are white men.—Christian Recorder.

—John B. Gough is a temperance worker of whom the world may well be proud. He says that he made 8,500 speeches and travelled 400,000 miles since he began lecturing in 1842. He adds that if he should be deprived of the power of speech he believes he would continue to make motions.

—The New York Tribune says: "Rev. Granville Moody, best known as 'the fighting parson' of the 74th Ohio Volunteers, is spending the summer with relatives in Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Now far past three-score years and ten in age, and having preached regularly for more than half a century, he has finally retired from the active ministry with health seriously impaired. He is, however, busily engaged in writing his autobiography, a task undertaken at the urgent request of the Central Ohio M. E. Conference."

—The Christian Advocate thus notices the changes which time has wrought in the condition of the Papacy:

"A little more than three centuries ago it was death to almost any sovereign of Europe to disobey the Pope. Within a much shorter period he was supreme in Italy. Within our own time his temporal power has been reduced to a nullity. He has recently had a new title given to him. Only those who understand history can comprehend the stupendous significance of this incident and estimate the marvelous progress of three centuries. Certain taxes had been demanded of him by the Italian authorities. The notice bore the usual legal descriptive form: "To Citizen Joachim Pecci; by trade or profession, pope; conducting business at the Vatican Palace, Rome." The taxes were duly paid, and the receipt made out to "Citizen Joachim Pecci."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

H. Williams, Camp Parapet: "We have received three converts, and the Sunday-school is in good condition. The church has been whitewashed, and we have arranged for a cupola. Children's Day was observed."

B. W. McCullough, Asst. Gen. Pass. and Freight Agent of the Pacific railroad, has written to Rev. H. J. Wright, of Natchitoches, of the committee on railroad fare, that tickets on the occasion of the District Conference will be sold between Shreveport and Alexandria on Aug. 6 and 7 good to return until Aug. 14, at five cents per mile for the round trip.

This is a very pleasant communication, and we like it very much.

NATCHITOCHES, July 13, 1883.

Dear Editor:—We have no public school here nor has not been since last year. I go to a private school. I am ten years old. My pa sent $4 to the Board of Education, Children's Day celebration. I belong to the Bible class. How do you like my writing. Yours,

JANE WRIGHT.

H. J. Wright, Natchitoches, "The second quarterly conference was held on the 30th by Elder Duncan at St. Mark Church, seven miles from town. The reports were in order, which indicated a sturdy march onward. $30 was hastily collected. Bro. Duncan is a man of God; he scorns at any thing wrong and delights in what is right."

C. A. Taylor, New Road: "My congregregation is all French and Creole. I found 18 members and have added 4. The parsonage was blown down by the storm last year. The church was made out of dirt; we are are going to rebuild it with plank, and have some cash in hand. We have a Sunday-school with 10 in attendance. There was none when I came here."

The Methodist Church of the colored people on Government street is rapidly approacing completion, and is a handsome structure. It is a two-story building, both floors of which are fitted up for religious exercises. Our colored friends deserve credit for their efforts in this direction and should be encouraged by the citizens of our city.—Baton Rouge Truth.

MISSISSIPPI.

N. Cannon, Pass Christian: "We commenced our protracted meeting here June 7th and closed the 28th inst. 2 conversions, 1 backslider reclaimed, 4 by letters, and 2 by recommendation. Children's Day we had a nice time at Bay St. Louis. I preached a sermon to the children. Collection $1.70. At Pass Christian there was an address by J. H. Dale. Collection $1.15. At Pearlington, an address by D. F. Dudley. Collection $6.80. Total Amt. $9.65 on Children's Day."

TENNESSEE.

G. C. Harden, Perryville: "Rev. J. L. Massey visited our work, and we had a protracted effort for three nights. There were two conversions and two additions.

C. Seward, Alexandria: "All are moving along well. Brethren, please send in your subscriptions."

J. J. Barr, Paris: "Elder Jesse Price held our quarterly conference. We did not do much on account of the small pox. His sermon will long be remembered."

T. Woods, Henderson circuit: "On Children's Day the four Sunday-schools came together, each raised the amounts, as follows: Mount Zion 70c. Mt. Pleasants $1.10. Oak Grove 55c, Morning Sun $2. Total $4.45."

TEXAS.

Henry Dickson, Brazoria: "The work is now in good condition. A protracted meeting begun June 17, has given us 26 conversions, one reclaimed."

Stephen Coleman, Peach Creek: "Our Sunday-school has 35 or 40 in attendance. The young men of Wesley Chapel are full of fire. Children's Day was observed. Collection $1.25. Times are hard, but the children bring something every Sunday. Bros. V. Christian and John Boatwright are doing all they can for the school."

L. H. Richardson, Milford: "Our quarterly conference was held by Elder S. Gates. One joined by letter—Mr. A. T. Perkins, our teacher, from Tennessee, and 4 probationers. Collection $8.10. Children's Day was observed, and $5.10 was raised. We are thankful to our Waco visitors. Pastor is Rev. A. Brack."

W. H. Moseby, Seguin: "Work is in good condition. Quarterly conference was fully attended. My camp meeting will begin Aug. 22d. All ministers are invited. We have received in church this year 15; 8 on probation. Elder Mack Henson preached a good sermon."

Reopening Exercises.

On Sunday next, July 29th, the Haven Chapel M. E. Church, formerly owned by the German M. E. Church South, Carrollton, La., corner of Jefferson and Plum streets, will be opened. The services will begin at 10 A. M. Rev. Samuel Davage, pastor of Wesley Chapel, will preach the first sermon, followed by Revs. M. J. Dyer and T. G. Montgomery. In the evening Rev. Stephen Priestley, T. J. Johnson, T. Jackson, P. King, R. Barrow, and Presiding Elder L. P. Cushman, will preach. All former pastors are invited.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON V. July 29th. READING OF THE LAW. (Joshua viii, 30-35.)

Our last lesson told us how the Israelities were at first defeated or driven away from the city of Ai, but when they did as God commanded they soon took the city. Before good Moses died he told them what to do when they reached this valley. Joshua was to build an altar, and have God's law on it, and set it up. The people have come, and now Joshua builds the great altar, and it is ready for God's law. Then all the people, not only men and women, but children, divided into two great parties, and stood part on Mount Ebal and part on Mt. Gerizim. In the valley where all could see them stood Joshua and the priests. The altar was there, and the golden chest. Joshua read the law to them, and it was graven on the rocks of the altar right in sight of the people.

First, he read the curse or punishment God would give the wicked. All could hear and the people on Ebal would cry, Amen; that means let it be so. They knew it was just and right, and they could well say amen. Next came God's blessings for those who obey him, and those on Gerizim could cry Amen. So all was read and graven on the rocks. God meant all to hear and know so they could keep his law. If they did not know it they could not keep it. God never asks any one to obey unless he makes it all plain just what they are to obey. Let us all choose to obey, and get all God's great blessings.—Western.

NEW BOOKS.

Freedom and Citizenship: Selected Lectures and Address of Hon. John Mercer Langston, L. L. D., U. S. Minister Resident at Haiti. With an Introductory Sketch By Rev. J. E. Rankin, D. D. Published by Rufus H. Darby, 432 Ninth St. Washington D. C.

These speeches are remarkable not only for their cultivated style, their hopeful spirit their keen insight, but for their historical information. The work is embelished with a handsome steel engraving. Prof. Langston is a representative of the best type of the Negro American, whose life and speeches should be studied by young men, especially those of his race who are endeavoring "to make themselves worthy of the freedom and citizenship with which God and their country have endowed them." John Mercer Langston, the distinguished colored scholar and orator, has done much to demonstrate the possibilities of the Negro race and promote and guide the education of his people. The history of his life is intensely interesting and his lectures models of oratory. Among the most notable of these are: "The World's Anti-slavery Movement: its Heroes and its Triumphs," "Daniel O'Connell;" "Bishop Allen," "Eulogy on Charles Sumner," "The Future of the Colored Man in America," and "Citizenship and the Ballot." These lectures are full of history, philosophy, and logic, clothed in robes of rhetoric in a manner to render them exceedingly entertaining as well as highly instructive. The colored race will hail this new work as a valuable addition to their special literature, as it contains the best thoughts of one of the best men of the Negro race. It should be in the hands of every Colored American. The book contains 288 pages, is printed on heavy paper and in good style. Paper, $1; cloth, $1.50.

The Mastery, a weekly magazine, published at 842 Broadway, N. Y. offers to young people fourteen cash prizes, amounting to $150, for the best fourteen pen and ink sketches that may be submitted, illustrating any of the International Lessons of the current quarter, reserving only the right to purchase the successful drawings at market rates, the payment thereof to be in addition to the prizes. Rev. Charles S. Robinson, D. D., of New York, has kindly consented to act as judge of the competing drawings. The object of this offer is to encourage among young people the study and practice of the useful art of free hand drawing with pen and ink.

The Fool Hath Said.

BY EDWARD WILLETT.

"There is no God!"—an easy thing
For any fool to say.
The fool hath said it in his heart
This many and many a day.

"Prove this and that!" the fool demands,
"Explain eternity!
Reveal to me that awful form
Which motals cannot see!"

Of microscope and telescope
The limit we can find;
The limit of the human eye,
The limit of the mind.

What we perceive is all that is,
The addled fool insists;
Beyond the limit of our ken
Nothing at all exists.

But any fool must still admit,
If any fool reflects,
That there are many things unknown
Except by their effects.

We do not know the life within
The meanest blade of grass,
Nor can we see the vagrant winds
That lightly come and pass.

Nor form nor size the lightning has;
We only feel the stroke.
An unseen force, we hold and bind
And tame it to our yoke.

We mortals boast of what we know,
Exalting reason's throne,
While there is far beyond our reach
An infinite unknown.

The lessons of eternal space
The fool takes not to heart,
And all the endless universe
He gauges by a part.

If he could pass his narrow bounds,
And freely range abroad,
He must confess that all he sees
Are but effects of God.

The Unarmed Nation.

BY GENERAL FRANCIS A. WALKER.

We who are to-day easily the greatest of all the nations of the earth, in the respects alike of industrial and of fiscal, and also if we may choose, of martial power, remain absolutely unarmed, whether for the purposes of offense or of defense. Our 20,000 soldiers, less than one in 2000 of our population, are not even called to perform the duty of preserving domestic tranquility, but are scattered over a frontier of many thousands of miles, watching a few decaying tribes of native savages, leaving nine-tenths of our counties, and some of our largest cities, without the presence of a single uniformed soldier of the United States. It might, however, have been anticipated from our location that we should maintain no large standing army. Even England, once eminently a martial nation in her past, feels freed, by her insular position, from that necessity of conscription and almost universal armament which weighs down the continental powers, of which there is not one whose expenditure for military purposes do not constitute a severe strain, often to the very limits of endurance, upon the fiscal powers of the government and the industrial abilities of the people.

But what England thus saves upon fortresses and battalions, on the land, she puts into marine batteries and floating castles. We at the same part, though already richer than England in accumulated wealth, and far transcending her in the annual product of our own industry, have not a ship which could for ten minutes engage a British third-rate ship; we have not a single high-grade modern gun either afloat or ashore. Many persons deem this a disgrace to our country, and every now and then some one gets hysterical over it, and there is loud and long talk of setting to work in earnest to build an American navy. To my mind our attitude in this respect confers honor on the American name. The unarmed nation is a title of which we may well be proud. Certainly, it is not parsimony which prevents us from entering upon the career of competitive armament. Nor is it because, like James I., Americans cannot bear to look upon the drawn sword, that they do not arm themselves against the world. The fact that we have no navy has another and more honorable origin. Twenty-five years ago we would not allow [illegible] to be found in this situation. Our fleets then ranked high among the navies of the world; and though in the main a out ambition of conquest and aspiration for martial glory. It was that majestic uprising of a free people, in a just cause, when, for every week for four long years, more than 10,000 men left home and all that was dear to them to join the standards of their country, this it was which brought about the great change from the peevishness, the pettishness, the provincialism, and the false pride of our earlier history, to that trust in ourselves, that respect for rights of others, that confidence in our high but peaceful destiny, that contentment within the lines of our proper career, which has so strikingly characterized the United States since the civil war. Such a nation has no need to arm either to defend itself or to impress the world with a sense of its power.

Then let us remain as we are without weapons of offense or defense. Let our title be the "Unarmed nation." For one, while respecting the sentiment of those high officers of army and navy, and those members of congressional committees who feel themselves responsible for the defensive condition of the country, and while entertaining no strong antipathy to the building of a few fast cruisers, to carry our flag upon the seas; I trust never to see a floating castle, with a twenty-four inch plate and one hundred ton guns, built for the service of the United States. It is, I confess, a new thought to me, and it may appear to many of you, on the first hearing, nonsensical and vain; yet as I have earnestly pondered this subject during the last few months it has grown to my view increasingly clear that, first, the example of the United States as an unarmed nation, and, secondly, the forces of its industrial competition, with the vast advantages which immunity from conscription and armament will give to the people of this country as to the production and distribution of wealth, are to become powerful agents in breaking up the war system of the world. Already this contemplation of our happier lot is drawing the more prosperous and adventurous of the inhabitants of Europe, a million a year, to ourselves. Must not the time soon come when increasing intelligence and strengthening self confidence on the part of the people will lead them to demand that freedom from conscription and war taxes be not conditioned upon expatriation! Be sure the demand will be made. Be sure when the demand is made in earnest the statesmen of Europe will find a way to abate, and, in time, to abolish, the war system. Will it be possible for the nations of Europe, unless they can rid themselves of this incubus, to withstand that competition as we grow in numbers and productive power, and as the facilities of communication and transportation are multiplied and perfected? I cannot think so. When we have become a hundred millions people, when our agricultural production has increased twofold, when our manufacturing production has increased fourfold, all of which will come to pass in thirty years, with the improvements in transit and traffic reasonable to be anticipated within the same period, can the effect of our competition be less than to compel the statesmen of Europe to release their people's shackles, and the burdens which conscription and almost universal armament impose upon them? And if, indeed, America shall then contribute to the downfall of the war system, will it not prove the greatest of the blessings which the new world has conferred upon the old?—Smith College Commencement Address.

Bed-Ridden and Cured.

W. E. HUESTIS, of Emporia, Kansas, says that his wife has been sick nearly seven years, and for the last four months bed-ridden. She has been treated by a number of physicians and only grew worse. Her attention was called to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," and "Favorite Prescription," which she commenced using. In one week she could sit up, and in three weeks could walk about. By druggists.

The earnest attention of Christian people in the U. S. is invited to a consideration of the spiritual need of our countrymen who are flocking to Mexico by scores and even hundreds to find employment on the various railroads, or telegraph companies, or other enterprises in which American talent is preferred. A very large majority of those who come to us are young men, many of whom have left Christian homes and friends, and all have felt a greater or less degree the healthful restraints of the Gospel as a leaven in human society. On reaching this city they encounter a strange language and are at once beset by the fascinations of a social system which knows nothing of the Bible, the Christian Sabbath or spiritual worship. The air is filled with a spirit of practical atheism which is only the more subtle for being concealed under the mask of an elaborate religious ceremonial. And so the multiplied feast days and the well nigh innumerable prescriptions of the Romish Church constitute a detailed formalism which hesitates not to ally itself with theatre going and bull fights and horse racing and the transaction of ordinary business on the Lord's Day. The Romish Church in Mexico knows no Sabbath as a holy rest day. It is the grand worldly holiday of all the week. It is the day when the best music is furnished in the plaza; when the lotteries are drawn; when the excursion trains are run over the railroads; when the liquor stores hold out special inducements and when vice puts on its thousand most attractive forms. And this is the day when our young men come in from "the front" on the different railroads to see the sights of Mexico. Absence from home and religious associations renders it easy to quiet the voice of conscience and too many of them alas! go with the multitude to profane the Sabbath, blunt all their finer sensibilities, indulge their worst passions and live as though there were no God and no judgment to come. Our heart's desire is to do something effectual for the rescue and salvation of these precious souls. We wish to throw about them the arms of Christian love and offer them all the genial restraints of the religion of Christ. Our thought is to provide a comfortable Reading room where American newspapers and other healthful reading may be found and which shall be open free of charge every evening.

We also wish to offer innocent musical entertainments from time to time with occasional social receptions. By such means we hope to form the acquaintance of our countrymen and induce them to place themselves under the influence of the religious services in the English language now held in the Capital. To realize these aims we must have financial assistance from home. The various missions and missionaries are of course overburdened by the demands upon their resources made by the Spanish work. It has seemed to us therefore wise to issue this appeal and ask its circulation on the part of the religious Press in the U. S. in the hope that many Christian friends will be glad to send us contributions for the purposes above indicated.

Any such sums may be sent to either of the undersigned who will acknowledge the receipt of the same.

On behalf of the Union Protestant Congrgation of Mexico City.

A pretty romance is told about Benjamin P. Cheney, a Boston millionaire. It is said that he waited many years for a beautiful widow to marry him, which she agreed to do when she had raised her daughter. The waiting becoming too deliberate he married the daughter, who loved him without conditions, and she made him a noble wife.

DEAR EDITOR:—I wish to inquire for my mother. Her name when I left her about 22 years ago was Maria James. She had a son Wesley Jamas, and a daughter, Juda James; my father was John James. My sister died at the age of 16 years, and my brother died younger. We belonged to Thos. James, his wife was Emily James, and his oldest son's name was William James. We lived near Flasker, Tennessee, about 5 miles distant. Address me at Fulton, Hempstead county, Arkansas.

GEORGE WASHINGTON JAMES.

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to inquire for John Annis Call, and my mother, Maria Call. Charley Call, he went to Texas. Address at Sweet Home, Arkansas. ELLEN MILLS.

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to inquire for my father and mother and relations. My father was Washington; my mother, Elva. Mother and her children belonged to Moos Tod, who then all lived in Virginia. The children's names were Ben, Jacob, Alse, Daniel, Elias, Martha. If mother had any other children they were born after I left. My brother and I were sold and brought to Texas 23 years ago. I do not know who my father belonged to. Address me at San Felipe, Texas.

BENJAMIN MUSE.

DEAR EDITOR:—I desire information of my people, who were formerly owned by the Diggs family. My mother was Maria Diggs; father, Kitt Diggs. Mother had nine children. Sisters were Sally, Frances, Susan and and Fillis; my brothers—Peter, James, Robert and Kitt; nine is Richard Diggs now, but when I left my people they called me John Diggs. I left mother and sister Frances in Richmond, Virginia, in 1841, living with William McReary, to whom they belonged to at the time. My father, and the other children were living in Mathias county, Virginia, with Mrs. Betsey Diggs. I was sold to Ben Davis, who brought me to New Orleans and he sold me to Col. John H. Home, who took me from there to Wayne county, Mississippi, where I have been living ever since. Please address me at Waynesboro, Miss., in care of Rev. N. Toole.

Answer This.

Is there a person living who ever saw a case of ague, biliousness, nervousness or neuralgia, or any disease, of the stomach, liver or kidneys that Hop Bitters will not cure?

My mother says Hop Bitters is the only thing that will keep her from severe attacks of paralysis and headache.—Ed. Oswego Sun.

My little sickly, puny baby, was changed into a great, bouncing boy, and I was raised from a sick bed by using Hop Bitters a short time.

A YOUNG MOTHER.

No use to worry about any Liver, Kidney or Urinary Trouble, especially Bright's Disease or Diabetes, as Hop Bitters never fails of a cure where a cure is possible.

I had severe attacks of gravel and Kidney trouble; was unable to get any medicine or doctor to cure me until I used Hop Bitters. They cure me in a short time.

T. R. ATTY.

Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism, and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases which can be prevented with Hop Bitters if taken in time.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 2, 1879. I have sold Hop Bitters for four years, and there is no medicine that surpasses them for bilious attacks, kidney complaints and all diseases incident to this malarial climate.

H. T. ALEXANDER.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 25, 1875. SIRS—I have been taking Hop Bitters for inflamation of kidneys and bladder, it has done for me what four doctors failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Bitters seemed like magic to me.

GENTS—Your Hop Bitters have been of great value to me. I was laid up with typhoid for over two months, and could get no relief until I tried your Hop Bitters. To those suffering from debility or any one in feeble health, I cordially recommend them. J. C. STOETZLE, 638 Fulton st., Chicago, Ill.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Plantation Melodies

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed, and are now given for the first time [illegible] the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1883.

Will those of our agents who have been collecting money for the SOUTHWESTERN and forgotten to send it to this office, and all who are indebted to us please forward the amount promptly.

The New York Times received near 350 replies to over 400 letters of inquiry sent out to intelligent observers of public opinion in all the States, and they show James G. Blaine, to be the leading favorite of the Republicans, and Samuel J. Tilden, of the Democrats, for the next presidential nomination.

To-day the African Trade Society, at Oakland Park, will observe the [illegible] anniversary of Liberian independence, and the speakers of the occasion will be prepared to interest the audience with facts bearing on the development of trade between the Dark continent and the balance of mankind.

A thing our preachers and people can all do at once, is to canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN. The preachers who have no interest in our church literature have a speck of badness about them that needs to be cured. The SOUTHWESTERN in the family is a sign of increasing intelligence and spiritual strength.

Why Business Men Fail.

Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, of Brooklyn, New York, is the son of a Methodist minister. We remember when he was counted one of the most successful preachers in the N. H. Conference, with most always some new scheme or plan for Christian work, he was never idle. But he felt that the frequent moves involved in the Methodist itenerary would be a hindrance to his intellectual improvement, and usefulness. He left the Methodists and joined the Congregationalists, but has not found rest; his moves have been a little more frequent. Not long since he addressed a letter to some of the leading men of the country containing this question. "What in your observation have been the chief causes of the numerous failures in life of business and propessional men?" In a very interesting paper published in the Congregationalist, on the above subject, he gives the substance of their replies. There is a wonderful similarity in the replies of these men, and all agree that business disaster succeeds moral degeneracy. We ask the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN carefully to read and consider these answers. And if the cause of failure suggests the remedy no one can hesitate as to his duty.

First comes Gov. St. John, who answers the question in these words: "Idleness, intemperance." Alexander H. Stephens answers: "Want of punctuality, honesty and truth." Hon. Darwin R. James answers: "Incorrect views of the great end and aim of life. Men are not contented to live plain lives of integrity and uprightness. They want to get ahead too fast, and are led into temptation." President Bartlett of Dartmouth College, names as causes of failure: "Lack of principle, of fixed purpose, of perseverance." President Eliot of Harvard, replies. "Stupidity, laziness, rashness and dishonesty." Dr. H. M. Dexter, of the Congregationalist, answers: "1. Want of thoroughness of preparation. 2. Want of fixedness of purpose. 3. Want of faith in the inevitable triumph of right and truth." Anthony Comstock's answers are: "Unholy living and dishonest practices, lust and intemperance, living beyond one's means." Mr. H. E. Simmons, of the American Tract Society, replies: "Fast living, mental, spiritual and bodily, lack of attention to the details of business." Gen. O. O. Howard answers in substance: "Breaking the divine laws of the body by vice; those of the mind by overwork or idleness; and those of the heart by making an idol of self." Prof. Homer B. Sprague, of Boston, answers: "1. Ill health. 2. Mistake in the choice of employment. 3. Lack of persistent and protracted effort. 4. A low ideal, making success to consist in personal aggrandizement rather than in the training and development of a pure and noble character." Dr. Lyman Abbott answers: "The combined spirit of laziness and self conceit that makes a man unwilling to do anything, unless he can choose just what he will do." Mr. A. W. Tenney replies: "Outside of intemperance, failure to grasp and hold, scattering too much, want of integrity and promptness, unwillingness to achieve success by earning it in the old fashioned way." The Attorney General of a neighboring State replies: "Living beyond income and speculating with borrowed funds. Unwillingness to begin at the foot of the ladder and work up. Young men want to be masters at the start, and asume to know before they have learned." Another answers in the same line: "Desiring the success that another man has without being willing to work as that man does. Giving money making a first place and right doing a second place."

Judge Tourgee, author of "A Fool's Errand," considers the most frequent cause of business collapse to be "trying to carry too big a load." As to others he says: "I don't know about a professional man's failing if he works, keeps sober and sleeps at home. Lawyers, ministers and doctors live on the sins of the people; and, of course, grow fat under reasonable exertion, unless the competition is too great. It requires real genius to fail in either of these walks of life." Hon. Joseph Medill, ex-mayor of Chicago, answers: "Liquor-drinking, gambling, reckles speculation, dishonesty, tricky conduct, cheating, idness shirking hard work, frivolous reading, lack of manhood in the battle of life, failure to improve opportunities."

Canvass for the Schools.

We believe in the positive religious training and education of our children; that education, Methodism, Christianity and salvation are worth striving for. It is a well worn adage that education is the best capital for a young man or woman in this country; it is the only thing which parents may give to their children and be sure that no body will take it away from them. In this country the rich frequently become poor; many fail in their business, and the estates of dead men are frequently divided not among their heirs, but the lawyers. It is said that once in twenty years property changes hands. It is also a well established fact that educated men succeed best. It is now time for our preachers and our people to begin to canvass for students to send to our schools. We believe that our own schools are the best. Education at the cost of moral character and the loss of the soul is a dear education. We are anxious that a sound Methodist, Christian education should be put into the heads of our young people, so we ask our preachers to begin the canvass, to do the best they can to turn the attention of our boys and girls to the best lines of brain and moral improvemet. The wise pastor will need no urging, but far too many are indifferent and allow the young people to drift; they go to other schools and are lost to Methodism. We know the poverty of our people, and that it involves no small home sacrifice to send the boys and girls to school; nevertheless, we say send them—send a great army. Do not allow your sons and daughters to be mere lackeys in society for the want of knowledge. Let the preachers stir up the people and send our young people to our schools.

Colonel W. O. Bradley, in a late number of the Tribune, a paper published in Darnville, Kentucky finds the reason of the continued triumph of the Democracy in that State to exist in the illiteracy of the people. He shows how small an amount of money is furnished for school purposes there. The annual amount of State and local taxation for education in the Republican States is as follows.

States.	Per capita.
Illinois	$7.25
Indiana	6.05
Iowa	7.09
Nebraska	6.47
Oregon	4.19
Rhode Island	9.72
Wisconsin	4.93
Colorado	9.48
Massachusetts	$14.68
Michigan	5.30
Minnesota	5.83
Ohio	6.67
Pennsylvania	5.87
Vermont	4.50
Maine	3.96
New Hampshire	7.50

"Now," says Colonel Bradley, "compare Kentucky's per capita, $2.04, and let him who can say that the Democratic party in Kentucky has been faithful to the interests of the State. In 1882 the per capita in Nebraska was $11.56, and in Colorado $17. Indeed, I believe it has increased in every one of the States named. Nor can this disgraceful exhibit be evaded by this charging that a large portion of tax is local, because six-sevenths of the counties in Kentucky are Democratic; and, besides, that party has failed to enact the proper sort of laws enforcing local taxation. In 1870 there were in Kentucky 332,176 children over 10 years of age who could not write, and 249,567 who could not read. In 1880 we had 348,392 who could not write, an increase of 16,216, and 258,186 who could not read, an increase of 9,612." Such facts are indeed humiliating and should not be allowed to stand against a State of such vast wealth and resources as Kentucky.

Among the Churches.

Few men were more mistaken than Elijah when either in a fit of vanity or despondency he was led to ignore all the piety in Israel except his own. "I, even I, only am left, and they seek my life to take it away," he exclaimed. But the Lord assured him that he had seven thousand in Israel which had not bowed their knees unto Baal. It is a hard lesson for some men to learn that they do not embody all the piety and intelligence in the community; they have no eagerness in this direction. It may bring on a fit of peevishness and sullen discontent; it is a lesson, however, that all must learn. It is a little pharisaical to ignore the piety of others and over estimate our own. Blessed is that man who can weigh himself, and his neighbor, in the same scale.

Bayou Sale booms! Through long patience and much tribulation Bro. Richardson has already come. For his own support he has received thus far from the people not quite seven dollars in cash, but he has succeeded with the aid of two hundred dollars from the Church Extension Society, and the blessing of the Lord, in erecting a nice church, and has organized a Sunday-school of nearly forty scholars. Bro. Richardson has certainly done a noble work and the Lord knows who has helped and who has hindered. It never takes but little talent or grace to hinder. Any one can start in that business on a small capital. But to correct faults, to construct, to build up, is a work more difficult and generally requires more than ordinary ability. It is a work, however, that needs to be done. This church at Bayon Sale we hope to make the beginning of a new and important work. All along the Bayon from the church to the gulf, a distance of twenty miles, there are some of the best plantations in Louisiana, and large numbers of colored people, but not a single Methodist Church. There will doubtless be a call next year for a man who takes as much delight in building churches and saving souls, as in eating chickens, to labor in this new but important circuit. It is an open door for a man who loves hard work, can live cheap, and is willing to fight for Methodism.

Wednesday morning came and so did the rain, but with my face toward Franklin I began to itinerate once more. The rain was pouring in torrents. Reaching Franklin the streets were flooded, but not caring to stop at the depot I took off my shoes, rolled up my pants, and started for the Methodist parsonage, about a mile from the depot, and though my appearance was a little unministerial, I never was more cordially received. Bro. Williams has no hinges on the door of his hospitality, he is always ready to feed and shield a Methodist preacher. We have at Franklin a clever people, the most valuable church property on the district outside the city of New Orleans, and the appliances for a grand and great church. Full forty of the members of the church own their own homes, and some of them from one to twenty-five acres of valuable land. At the quarterly conference every report was in order. The Sunday-school has 194 scholars enrolled with 152 as the average attendance. When Bro. Williams went to Franklin the church was owing full $135, and the property very much out of repairs. The $135 has been paid, and $525 expended in repairs, and all paid save $53. There is certainly a grand future for the Methodist Episcopal Church in Franklin if all hands and hearts will work together. Sabbath, July 15th, was a gala day, the people gave gladly and generously. The collection for the day amounted to $40.75.

At La Teche I was met at the depot by a local preacher, who conducted me to the parsonage, where I found Bro. Lyon suffering from nervous prostration brought on by over work. Never have we seen our church at La Teche in a more prosperous condition. All the reports showed that good work was being done. The Sunday-school has over one hundred enrolled with full seventy-five as the average attendance. The choir is led by sister Lyon, and at no point on the district have I heard better singing. The celebration of the Lord's Supper upon the Sabbath was a season of great refreshing from the presence of the Lord—all hearts seemed glad. Hereafter the preachers sent to this place will not be subject to the inconvenience and embarrassment of looking up a home or a boarding place, the parsonage will stand with doors ajar to welcome the itinerant as he itinerates. The writer is thankful to Bro. Lyon and his people for testimonials of appreciation.

Recently while Bro. Lyon was holding a mourner's meeting, the parsonage was entered by some sneak thief, and cash, clothing and dishes amounting to over eighty dollars was taken. All that we have to say to that man is, "his sin will find him out." C.

Recently we spent two or three days at Baldwin and La Teche, preaching twice at Baldwin, and once at La Teche. At Baldwin the Freedmen's Aid Society have a valuable property, the gift of Hon. John Baldwin, given for the purpose of Christian education. Bro. Fitch is in charge of this work, and informed us that the prospects for the opening of the school this fall are full of promise. And here we wish to say that we most heartily approve of this school. We have had frequent talks with Father Baldwin, and know the object he had in view when he put this property into the hands of Freedmen's Aid Society, and we believe that it was an unmixed desire on his part to glorify God. But there are certain things that need to be done, in fact must be done, if the students who are having their minds turned in this direction are retained in the institution. The old mansion house needs to be newly shingled, the present shingles are so badly worn, and the house leaks so badly that in time of rain it is difficult to find a place to sit or sleep without getting wet. The old tin pipe in the seminary building that has served the purpose of a chimney is so eaten of rust that it cannot be used, and no fires can be had in the seminary or chapel. Then the kitchen connected with the boarding house is so constructed, that every time there comes a rain the floor is covered with water, while the dining hall and the kitchen are the only rooms in the boarding house that it is possible to warm. We believe that with these buildings put in good order, a grand school and church could be built up here in a short time, but as they now are, little or nothing can be done. We eenestly hope that during this vacation, these buildings will be put in good condition for the accommodation of the students who may desire to attend this institution. This is a present pressing claim. And to us nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of the prosperity of this school.

The whiskey dealers are in great disappointment over the decision of the Attorney-General, that their attempt to avoid the tax upon their bonded liquors by sending them out of the country and then reimporting them, is illegal. They are informed they must pay the tax. Certainly we can see no reason why they should not. Their plea that they have anticipated the demand by their enormous supply, and if made to pay the tax must suffer financial ruin, does not awaken in our heart the least sympathy. The financial ruin of every manufacturer in the country is nothing compared with the moral wretchedness and destruction which must follow the sale of this merchandise. Let them be taxed.

We saw the other day a real specimen of Southern politeness. Riding on the St. Charles street cars. Two men were in the same car smoking. A lady came on board and both men after the manner born took off their hats, but continued to puff the smoke of their vile cigars into her face.

Tidings from the Field.

Some people delight in sowing serpent's teeth, and can look with complacent satisfaction upon the terrible fruitage of their unnatural sowing. The swords, the strife, the wounded, nor the slain can touch their hearts, and melt their eyes to tears. But rather such sights give pleasure to their wicked and despicable souls. Serpent-teeth sowers are plentiful in the world. They are even detected in the church sometimes; and once in a while they go so far as to insinuate themselves in the sacred ranks of the Christian ministry. Wherever found, they deserve the contempt and indignation of all single faced, pure-hearted and good people. There may not be any such inhuman and godless creatures in the membership nor ministry of the La Teche district; but brethren, if we discover any such dangerous characters around us, let us stamp them out. They are sowers of the seeds of death in the family, the church and society Let such be excommunicated, and slain with the sword of the spirit. St. Martinsville was visited June 30, and July 1. The quarterly conference and services were pleasant and profitable to all. Bro. R. Anderson, the preacher in the chair, is doing a good work. He despises all sowers of serpent's teeth—a commendable disposition, which is warmly cherished by all the sowers of good seeds in our church there and elsewhere. The Sunday-school was reported to be improving, and the church was making encouraging progress, spiritually and temporally. This charge is fortunate in having sister Rosa Turner, a graduate of our New Orleans University, a Christian lady, and an earnest Methodist, as teacher of our mission school there. Her interest in church and Sunday-school has been of invaluable benefit to our work. Notwithstanding the unfavorable beginning of the conference year Bishop Hurst made no mistake in sending Bro. Anderson here, and the signs of his success are now abundant. Sister A. and the writer were agreeably entertained, in the splendid parsonage here, by brother and sister Anderson. Sunday night July 1, was spent in New Iberia. A fair congregation was in attendance, who seemed to enjoy the services. The reports in the quarterly conference indicated some good work done. The financial exhibits were highly satisfactory. About $250 had been collected and paid out for all purposes. There had been fourteen accessions. This charge is doing well under Bro. C. Thompson's pastorate. A neat little parsonage and a splendid fence around the church, had been built since last quarter. Arriving at Jeanerette Tuesday, July 3, we found Bro. Fields and Bro. Bolden, the pastor of our work in and around Jeanerette, abundant in faith and good works. Bro. Bolden and family very kindly provided for us here. Bro. Bolden is in charge of Thompson and Pecan. Our people at Thompson are, and have been without a house of worship ever since the flood of last year washed their church away. It washed their church away, but it did not affect their religion. We believe in that kind of religion; that neither water nor fire can destroy. Being thus thrown outdoors, Bro. Jack Carpenter, one of our strong-hearted men here, has opened his house and made it a house of prayer, where all present church services are now held. In this house Bro. Bolden holds regular services, and collected and paid out for all purposes during the quarter, about $140, besides $17.50 left in the treasury. A splendid lot has been bought and paid for by this people, upon which to build a church. The former church was on plantation grounds, and could not be secured by any means. The Lord help them in their efforts to build. Pecan is yet sealed against present success, but the future brightens. Bro. Bolden expects to secure a donation of a lot

Now when the cry is [illegible] from the theological seminaries of the various denominations in America, that the supply of [illegible] is falling short of the demand here, and that even a smaller proportion of college graduates than formerly is entering the ministerial profession, it is encouraging to look away to what has happened in Germany, and what is now happening there. Germany has already passed through that state of spiritual death which many are now fearing for this country. There was a time when the cause of Christianity seemed to the fearful to be almost lost in Germany. But within the past few years a change for the better has showed itself. Sunday-schools are spreading; the cities are being stirred by evangelistic movements; and the study of theology is once more attracting the more scholarly youth of Germany. Since 1876, the number of theological students in the nine Prussian universities has more than doubled. Great as this increase is, it seems all the greater when compared with the increase in other than the theological faculties. The number of students of philosophy, and of law, in the Prussian universities, increased last year less than two per cent. each; and of medicine, less than fifteen per cent.; while the students of Roman Catholic theology increased in number nearly ten per cent., and those of Protestant theology more than twenty-one per cent. These figures would certainly show a return towards Christianity on the part of German students; and they certainly mark a new stirring of the spiritual life among the people. If it be true, as has been claimed, that we have latterly taken our fashions in skepticism and in theology from Germany, and that the present relative falling off in the number of theological students is due to [illegible] skepticism [illegible] pieces in the country that gave it birth, why may we not look for in the near future [illegible] setting [illegible] the way in which the higher class of young men are there pressing forward into the ministry of the Christian Church.—Sunday School Times.

It ought to be understood that this is a civilised country, an enlightened, educated, Christian land; not a barbarous, heathenish, dark and ignorant land. Every saloon is a vile place. It's a place where a lady cannot go; where children would be out of place; where men swear, talk obscenely and rudely, where gambling is learned and practiced. There is nothing civilised about it, nothing enlightened, nothing noble, pure or Christian; all dark and low and brutal. Yet this is a great and boasted land of enlightened humanity and pure Christianity.—The Living Issue and Gazette.

Five thousand Mormon converts are expected to arrive in Utah during the month of July. "The twin relic of barbarism, seems to flourish under Congressional law. These are not paupers, but are recruits for the harems, and open violators of all the laws of God and men. There is more of menace and danger in 5,000 Mormons than in any 100,000 of simply poor people, about whom the public is exercised. There should be some way to reach these people. Possibly one of these days an outraged public will demand it.—Inter Ocean.

The Sunday School Times is responsible for this: "At a dress-parade of a colored regiment during the civil war, the chaplain who had been accustomed to conduct prayers at that time was not in place. Thereupon the colonel said that if there was a preacher in the ranks he might step forward. Promptly one hundred and sixteen preachers advanced from the line."

"I aim to tell the truth." "Yes," interrupted an acquaintance, "and you are probably the worst shot [illegible]

Some Popular Superstitions.

It is a matter of superstition that it is unlucky to pare the nails Sunday; to see the new moon over the left shoulder or through a tree. If one dreams of false teeth, or having a tooth pulled it is unlucky. To dream of a marriage is considered by those who are wise in these matters to be a sign of a funeral. To break a looking-glass indicates that some one of the family will die, as does also the flying of a wild bird through the house. The sudden ringing in the ears sometimes heard, caused by local irritation of the auditory nerves, is called a death-bell, and the first person thought of is the one who will die. The peculiarity about this sign is that it is never known to be verified. If a dog howl under the window of any one, that person will die before the year is out. It was the custom years ago, and in some of the more rural towns still obtains, that the male relatives of the deceased should wear their hats in the church during the funeral services. The looking-glasses were hung with towels, and the clock stopped and all pictures of the deceased turned face to the wall. The bees were told by some one of the family who was the one who had died.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The New York Tribune says that ex-Senator B. K. Bruce, Register of the United States Treasury, is one of the wealthiest colored men in the country. He owns two large plantations in Mississippi worth more than $100,000 each.

FOR THE CURE OF
FEVER and AGUE
Or CHILLS and FEVER,
AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A WONDERFUL SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition [illegible] you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the [illegible] having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, w[illegible] necessarily improves the eye.

L. W. Elkins, P. E.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren:—At the last session of our conference, over three hundred dollars were subscribed to pay the debt on the church at Brownsville. These subscriptions should be paid as soon as possible. Up to this time only two or three subscriptions have been paid to Dr. Kynett or reported as paid. Do not put this off till conference which will be here soon. You will find the names and amounts subscribed on the 31st page of minutes. Forward the amount to Dr. Kynett by postal order. Let all be paid before conference. Will the preachers call on the laymen who subscribed at Brownsville and collect and forward the amounts to Philadelphia? The members of conference will bear in mind, in taking up the Church Extension collection, that our assessment is double what it was last year. We have met the conference assessment for several years by taking up a collection at conference. To meet this assessment will require about two and a half cents per member. Can we make it? To meet all the benevolent claims on the conference in full, will require about thirty cents a member. How many of our members cannot pay thirty cents during the year for benevolent purposes? How many can and do pay many times that amount? How many do not pay one cent? Try to get every one to do something. Let our collections show that our love for Christ and His cause is increasing.

J. Braden, Secretary.

CHANGE OF TIME BATON ROUGE DIST. CONF.

WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF

PURE COD LIVER OIL AND LIME.

Dr. Wilbor's Cod-Liver Oil and Lime.—Invalids need no longer dread to take that great specific for Consumption, Asthma, and threatening Coughs,—Cod-Liver Oil and Lime. As prepared by Dr. Wilbor it is robbed of the nauseating taste, and also embodies a preparation of the Phosphate of Lime, giving nature the very article required to aid the healing qualities of the Oil, and to re-create where disease has destroyed. It also forms a remarkable tonic, and will cause weak and debilitated persons to become strong and robust. It should be kept in every family for instant use on the first appearance of coughs or irritation of the lungs. Manufactured solely by A. B. Wilbor, Chemist, Boston. Sold by all druggists.

Rev. Sidi Hamet Brown proprietor and editor of the Christian Neighbor, M. E. Church South, has some sensible suggestions on the color line. We have been made to feel more than once that certain people North and South would do well to heed them. Hear him:

"The Creator who made of one blood all nations that dwell on the face of the whole earth did also for a reason draw the "color line," and that, too, with indelible ink. Of course he had a reason for such decree, and has a reason for its continuance. Men of sense on both sides do not fight against the line nor against each other because of the line. Let neither hate the other because of the marked difference, nor indeed for any other cause."

Rev. L. J. Hall, of the Colorado Conference now stationed at Laramie Wyoming Ty., in the California Christian Advocate says: "I have passed nearly three years in this city, and during that time have studied the ever varying scenes of religious work here. During these three years there have been six Baptist pastors over the Baptist church, and from the resignation of its present pastor, last Sunday there will soon be another. There have also come and gone from the Presbyterian and Episcopalian church.'

Here are three churches, all of which have a "settled ministry" an "established pastorate," but in less than three years, Bro. Hall has seen thirteen of these pastors, all settled for life, come and go. Seven Baptist pastors in three years is certainly lively itinerancy. The outlook for a settled pastorate is not the most hopeful. We would like to have all the men who seek the advantages of the itinerancy and at the same time desire to be free from its restrictions placed in a conference by themselves we think this would cure the heretics and kill the heresy.

We regret to learn the death of Dr. Walter C. Palmer, who has been for a number of years editor and proprietor of the Guide to Holiness, a monthly magazine devoted to the discussion of the doctrine and experience of Bible Holiness. Dr. Palmer was an honored member of the Methodist Episcopal church. He died suddenly at his summer residence Ocean Grove, New Jersey, July, aged 79 years. He spent most of his life in the city of New York where he received his education. After graduating from the College of Physicians and Surgeons he began the practice of medicine, and was soon considered one of the most skillful physicians in the city. In his early life he experienced the blessing of entire sanctification, and for over 40 years meetings have been held in his house every Tuesday afternoon for the "promotion of holiness." These meetings have been largely attended, people not only from all parts of America but nearly all parts of the world have been drawn to them and greatly benefitted by them. Nearly 40 years ago he began to publish the Guide to Holiness. To this work he gave his whole heart, and it soon became a great power in the church. In all of his work he was aided by his inestimable wife Mrs. Phebe Palmer who died nearly ten years ago. Personally Dr. Palmer was one of the most genial and kindly men, he left a Christian impression upon the minds of thousands. His earthly work is ended, but the testimony of his life for Jesus will roll on to the end of time.

Notes from Okolona District; Mississippi Conference.

Dear Editors SOUTHWESTERN:—As the attributes of human nature are found in all men, though races differ, and individuals of the same species can be distinguished by the peculiarities of the mind as easily as by the faculties of the body—so Christianity is a spirit, and that spirit is found among all sects. Yet the denominations differ in their characteristic spirit. The spirit of Methodism is more important to its perpetuity and power than that of any other denomination. Methodism originally allowed free play to the nature, checking only when it clearly passed the line of natural expression and bordered on irreverence or frenzy; sometimes trouble and discord arose, but the obvious depth of feeling carried all before it, and the world saw that these men had an experience, deep and heartfelt.

At the second quarterly meeting for Athens circuit, I found Rev. R. Snell, and his people, from all parts of the work with their reports in good shape. On this occasion their new church (built by their pastor) was dedicated to the service of God, amid many shouts and praises, common among the true spirits of the Methodists, which plainly shows that the original spirit of Methodism is not dying out in this part of the country; the pastor is doing a good work on the Athens charge.

Rev. P. Jamison, the new pastor at Aberdeen, was kindly received by the people. The parsonage has undergone repairs, and has been nicely refurnished. During the protracted meeting a number of the very best people of the town were converted and added to the church. Spiritually and financially the church is doing well. Father Miles Proctor, on the circuit, is doing a grand work; he his greatly beloved by his people. Bro. G. Carr, at Buena Vista, is building a new church at Bethlehem, and the whole circuit seems to be in a prosperous condition.

The mission work at Booneville, under the pastorate of Rev. G. D. Shannon, indicate that much good will be done. On the night of July 16th, I had the pleasure of preaching to a very large congregation at the Courthouse in Booneville, of colored and white. The sheriff was very kind indeed, lighted up the courthouse for us at his own expense. The people gave good attention. My impression is that the Methodist Episcopal Church is fully anchored at Booneville. Rev. W.H. H. Gallion, at Corinth, is finishing up his third and last year, and has done and is doing a grand work for God and Methodism. At the district conference held there a few days ago, it was largely attended by the members and friends from the utmost parts of the district, but the pastor and his people were equal to the occasion, and were prepared to have taken care of the Mississippi conference at this season of the year. Bro. T. W. Davis, on the Corinth circuit, is succeeding admirably and bade fair to do a grand work.

Rev. L. L. Shumpert, Columbus, is still holding the fort and leading souls to Christ. The recent revival closed here. I was permitted to be present several nights and witnessed the conversion of many precious souls to God, and to hear the sweet testimonies of a precious Savior. The result of the meeting was 63 conversions and over 70 accessions to the church. Bro. Isaac Mosely, on the circuit, is doing a good work—has purchased a nice house for the circuit, and is no longer a circuit walker, but a circuit rider. Bro. A. W. Wright, on the Crawford circuit, was kindly received by the people, and is succeeding well—has purchased one acre of land and paid $50 for it, and erected a nice parsonage on the same. Greensboro, under the pastorate of Rev. Wm. Gatewood, is doing well. In addition to the three new churches built on that work last year, the pastor is preparing to build the fourth one. Bro. Gatewood is abundant in faith and good work; hence his great success amid many unpleasant surroundings. A white congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church South have induced Bro. Gatewood to preach for them at least once a month. This is certainly a change in the right direction. Let more of the white and colored ministers of the South exchange pulpits occasionally." Let brotherly love continue."

Rev. J. W. Davis, at Houston, his first appointment, is doing a good work—has purchased a nice lot in Houston on which to build a church, also one is being built at Hopewell, about six miles from Houston. Bro. Davis and his sweet wife are greatly beloved by the people. Rev. John Eanes, at New Albany, has been very successful; already 15 conversions and several accessions to the church. Bro. Eanes and his people are pleased with each other.

The cause of Christ and Methodism at Okolona is carefully cared for by the faithful pastor, Rev. B. L. Crump, who is finishing up his third year successfully; he has the most profound respect of all the people. Here we have a splendid Sabbath-school, also an excellent choir. Mrs. E. S. Spriggs is their organist, and is very earnest, faithful and successful worker. Bro. B. L. Nevils, on the circuit, is doing a good work. We trust many souls may be converted to God this year on that circuit. Rev. J. J. Harris, Pontotoc, was kindly received by the people as their pastor. From the last session of our conference at Meridian, Bro. Harris soon won the hearts of the people, and is doing a good work; financially and spiritually, the work is excellent. At the second quarterly conference was a time long to be remembered, on account of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. A new church is being erected on the circuit. From Pontotoc, Bro. Harris conveyed us to New Albany with a splendid team, and thence to Ripley, where we found Bro. L. J. Terrell, hard at work. The conference was large and very interesting. Rev. Mr. Cogdell, pastor of the M. E. Church South, at Ripley, and Rev. Mr. Gordan at Corinth, were introduced to the conference and made very interesting addresses, which showed they were deeply interested in the cause of Christ and rejoiced at our success. Rev. Mr. Cogdell has been, and still is, of great assistance to our pastor, Bro. Terrill, temporally as well as spiritually; may the Lord bless Bro. Cogdell, and others that manifest such a spirit for the elevation of humanity. Bro. Terrill is now getting along well at Ripley, better than ever before. Rev. D. W. Calvert is getting along very well at Starkville, and the indications are that he will do an excellent work this year again.

Starkville circuit, under the faithful pastor, Bro. J. M. Lampkin, at their quarterly, as well as at the district conference, made a grand report. One or two churches have been organized and a new church has been built. Children's Day was a grand success on this circuit; over $14 was collected from the children, which for the country is quite noteworthy. The meeting at Zion Franklin in the last quarterly occasion, was a great time of rejoicing. Rev. James Franklin, who was former pastor of this church, is a grand old hero, and is now our successful Sunday-school superintendent at this point; he certainly knows how to conduct a Sabbath-school. Bro. Lampkin has some able assistants on this large and interesting circuit. Rev. J. Trice, at Tupelo, has greatly, under God, revived the work, some 22 precious souls have been converted to God and joined the church, and they have purchased a circuit horse. The whole circuit is much encouraged; they will have a camp-meeting, embracing the first Sunday in September at the Pleasant Grove Church. Old Father Thomas Brown, at Tampico, the venerable hero for the Master and Methodism, is doing as well as could be expected. He loves and honors the cause of Christ.

Union Grove, Rev. W. Jones, pastor, expects to build at least two new churches this year; advanced steps have already been taken that will insure the completing of them, I think. We have some of the best people in the State on this circuit. We trust that a glorious year's work will be crowned with success.

At West Point, our faithful pastor, Rev. I. L. Pratt, the blessed Lord has crowned his labors with success; our church under his earnest and presistent efforts has grown into great popularity with the people. The old building has not only been repaired and beautified, but many souls have been converted to God and added to the M. E. Church. The last protracted meeting closed a few weeks ago which resulted in the conversion of 23. The Sunday-school is in a flourishing condition. Bro. L. F. White, on the circuit, is doing finely this year. At the last quarterly conference the reports from the pastor and his official brethren indicated prosperity. Bro. White is very earnest and, we believe, will do a grand year's work for the Master. Rev. A. Boyd, on the Whitefield circuit, at the quarterly and district conferences, made a good report respecting his charge. A new bell for Liberty Church had been purchased, and the whole circuit seemed to be lively.

Thus closed the second round upon this district. It is a source of great pleasure that I can truthfully report progress in this part of the Master's vineyard. I have never seen such a religious spirit prevailing in churches so generally at so early a season in the year. At quite a number of places on the district, souls have been converted without protracted meetings or any extra services at the house of worship, and have joined the church, and now are giving God the glory. This indicates that the spirit of Methodism, led by the spirit of God, is one of the mightiest instrumentalities in the conversion of the world to Christ. Brethren, of the district, push the work of converting men and women to God. Yours, fraternally,

J. M. SHUMPERT.

New Hope Academy.

Was established as a preparatory school of Wiley University in 1882; it has just fairly begun to be. Of this school we can say, it has entered its incipient stage with good prospects; it is on a favorable footing, and already there have been good results. Its course of study embraces seven years—three years primary and four years academic course. There were in attendance last year 52, in the third year academic 6, second year academic 2, first year academic 13, primary 31. The friends of the school at Alto and in the county about have done well in the erection and support of the school. They have property valued at $600, and are preparing to build additional at an early day. The school is well located at Alto, Texas, and will do much good in a place of great need. Should any one wish to facilitate the cause of education among a needy people by a moderate gift of money, New Hope Academy would afford a good opportunity for such benevolence. Help those that help themselves, is a good rule. The school is under the charge of D. W. Tidwell, the principal, through whose labors largely the school has been established. A successful summer school is now teaching. Friends of the school can do much for it by speaking in its favor and sending pupils. Under the protecting wing and patronage of the Episcopal Methodist Church we look forward to a successful career for New Hope Academy.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow me space in the SOUTHWESTERN to contradict a clause in the minutes of the last session of the West Texas Annual Conference, held in Columbus, Texas. Reads thus: "A. M. Gregory withdrawn from the church and conference."

To the members of the West Texas Conference of the M. E. Church:—I beg to say that you are all mistaken in my withdrawing from the old mother Methodist Episcopal Church, I never have joined any other church, and I want all churches, including the M. E. church, to understand that I have never had any idea of leaving the M. E. church. I will admit that I have been requested by a good many to withdraw, but never accepted any invitation to join. I have filled the pulpit of other churches, but as for meeting any conferences, quarterly, district or annual, I have not; so I want you all to know that I am yet, as I was 15 years ago, a member of the M. E. church. God bless the old M. E. church. Yours in Christ,

A. M. GREGORY.

From Shreveport.

MR. EDITOR:—By invitation of Rev. J. Fopps, I was called to attend quarterly meeting on Dixson's Road circuit. It was a season of great refreshment. Several joined on probation; there was a large attendance; they kept good order, and have learned that hollowing is not preaching, and mourning is not prayer. They have learned that religion is a thing of reality and not form. Brother Topp is holding the fort. The circuit is in a condition to become one of our strongholds on Red River. We are making preparations for the district conference, and anticipate a grand time. At St. Paul things are moving along lively. Many of our people have gone to the Springs, yet there will be enough left to entertain the conference. Children's Day at St. Paul's was a success; collection was $3.10.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

John W. Davis, Houston: "Our work is in a prosperous condition. The spirit of the people is aroused for the advancement of Christ and his kingdom. We have had the lumber sawed and paid for to build a church at Hopewell, and bought a lot in town and paid $25 for the same. Presiding Elder Shumpert, held our quarterly meeting. The reports showed 14 added to the church. The elder preached an able sermon and administered sacrament to 38 persons. Collection $6.05. Pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. Massey, Martin: "I have just made a visit to Middle Tennessee. I left here June 19th and got off the train at Herrington, which the night before had suffered a heavy loss by fire. Failing to get a horse I had to walk 25 miles to Lexington, a nice healthy town, with not a church in it for the colored people. The Baptists have a little shanty about a mile and a half from town, and the roof has fallen in. They have about five members, but no regular pastor. They invited me to preach for them, but I preferred a grove, where I preached by day and a dwelling house at night. Why can't we have a church in all such places? There are plenty of people, and I was told I was the first preacher they heard in the day this year. There [illegible] three whiskey shops in the place. Susan Lewis, L. Riley, and Jane Herman were engaged in this meeting. There will be a basket meeting in Biloxi Sunday, Aug. 5. The following persons preached and amounts were collected after each effort: G. L. Brunal, $1; A. Rankin, $1.45, L. Kanada, $3.10; M. Ray, $5.25; B. Williams, $6.10; S. Anderson, $2.55; Geo. Jones, $6.65; A. Rankin $1.65; J. B. Smith, $1. I am trying to get all the subscribers I can. May the Lord bless the SOUTHWESTERN."

J. M. Dickson, Roseneath: "Children's Day was observed at Wesley Chapel. The house was beautifully decorated by Master B. L. Dixon, R. B. Parham, Miss Virginia Freeman, Mary Parham, Sarah Parham, Laura Davis and Ellen Linzy. There were 48 members of the school present, and a great many visitors. The collection was 65 cents. In church, after preaching by A. R. Jordan and J. N. Granberry, $1.50 was taken up. The occasion was very interesting. At Holly Grove an address was delivered by Frank Golden, and a collection of $3.10 taken up. The public school, taught by Rev. Mr. Granberry, has closed with great credit to himself and the scholars."

TEXAS.

E. Henderson, Georgetown: "Elder Madison held our second quarterly conference, the members all being present. He preached an able sermon on Sunday, after which 32 came to the altar. Collections $20. Two days later the district Conference met. Forty-three answered to their names. The elder reported his district in a growing condition."

E. T. Johnson, Marshall: "As superintendent I have been working among the children at Red Oak Grove for several months, and on every Lord's Day we have a good time in praising Him. We have selected four teachers who are loved by the children, and are doing grand work. On Children's Day 300 people were on the ground and $3.98 taken up for the Sunday-school; $2.30 for the preachers. Rev. E. Kimp talked to the children."

ARKANSAS.

Rev. L. W. Elkins, P. E. Hot Springs district, M. E. Church, returned to the city last week. When at Emmet Station on the Ft. Smith road, he was surrounded by a number of rough-looking white men who demanded that he cease his labors among the colored people of that vicinity. A cool head and a little tact and diplomacy on the part of Elder Elkins prevented a mob. Brother Elkins thinks the matter is not yet settled and will wait for further developments. In the meantime he will continue his work in that section.—Arkansas Herald, July 19.

ALABAMA

Geo. W. Tubbs writes from Baldwin county, to the New York Advocate: "The religious privileges enjoyed here are, indeed, meager. "So scattered" might be the answer. The colored element have their cabins of worship, however, and so do not fail to "go to de meetin'" when Sunday comes, and worship in the way peculiar to the race. I am sorry to say that the white element takes but a small interest in religion or religious matters. Perhaps this state of things may, in a great measure, be laid at the door of the Church. In no way can a population like this be reached except by a well-lid plan of local or lay preaching. To support a traveling preacher is out of the question, as the people are poor, but if a circuit system of lay preachers was once organized, under direction of the elder and care of one traveling minister, preaching might be had within reach of all. I walk four miles every other Sabbath, and preach at 11 A. M., and walk home again, and if regular appointments were made under a circuit system I would do what I could twice or three every Sabbath. O how the Master calls in this field! I am but a [illegible] here, having my mem[bership] in the North, but I am [illegible] to work for the Methodist [illegible] Church, South or North."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Grumblers.

BY REV. L. W. ELKIN.

It is not my purpose to hurl howling anathemas at the grumbler and annihilate him without giving him a chance for his life; but I wish to appear to all who are so unfortunate as to read this article, in the role of the champion grumbler himself.

Grumblers are ever misunderstood and condemned without a fair trial. In defending them I propose to state a few plain, unvarnished, unadorned facts, and appeal to the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN as an intelligent jury for a justifying verdict. I do not propose to treat of reason or logic, for as a grumbler I cannot listen to either. With the dirt of politics and the dust of theology, or the origin of the races, I shall have nothing to do, and if all I say should be proven to be untrue, I will donate a lecture fee to "the society for the discovery of the lost pleads."

I do not doubt my remarks will disgust some who read this, with the world, but I will have the consolation of knowing that I have told you the truth. It is an undeniable fact that the world is an absolute and mortifying failure. The world was made, it has always been supposed, for the habitation of man, and yet there is not one-twentieth part of it fitted for his uses. The sun is supposed to have been made for the purpose of illuminating the earth, and yet he is not on duty half the time, and although the moon was created as a supplementary light, it is invisible when most needed, "often on the wane," and sometimes "in a horn." The entire celestial illuminating apparatus is a miserable failure; in proof of which I will point you to the fact that Little Rock paid $60,000 last year for artificial light—three dollars per capita. Reform is necessary in this particular—a reform that calls for the genius and the philanthropy of a Morissey. I will make no suggestions, however, but content myself with grumbling. The climate is another deplorable failure, unequal in its distribution of favors, and altogether unendurable. Man freezes four months, roasts four months more, and has only four left to cool off in—if he can. Here, in the temperate zone, we can't shiver more than four months, while the Equimaux shivers all the year round—if he wants to. The odds are a hundred to one against man being comfortable, and insects and undertakers only seem to be happy. There is something wrong about water, too; it always would run the wrong way, wasting itself in the marshes and lowlands instead of flowing over the meshes; and in one part of the world man is left to irrigate or starve, while in the other he has to swim or be drowned.

The mission of the earth is to bring forth food for man, and yet from 8,000 pounds of food produced to the acre, only 600 pounds ever finds its way into flour—and half that is spoiled in baking. It is sometimes said that trees are a blessing to man, but it is all a mistake. Of the trees that are felled, one-half is worthless brush, requiring an immense amount of labor to remove; and of the portion secured, a large per cent. is ash. Scarely twenty per cent. of the felled trees becomes merchantable lumber. Man, as an animal or a physical being, is a lamentable failure. He is full of infirmities and covered with deformities. Only a small proportion are in perfect health, and health is not contagious like disease. Physically, not up to the standard—intellectually, weak; and morally, not what he should be—man is a hopeless failure. Since Moses, they have been grinding out laws for the government of "free moral agents." We have our national, state, county and school district "mills," all busily engaged in making laws for us, and yet we are not happy.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the debilitated woman's best restorative tonic.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Our Schools and Other Churches.

It seems strange to me it has ever occurred to any person when reviewing the work of our schools in the South, that because they are pursuing a policy which grants students from other churches the privileges of sharing equally in the advantages offered those from our church, the denomination which supports them can not hope for any considerable numerical gain as a result of their operations, unless there is a speedy change in their management respecting this point. I can account for the erroneous impression only on the supposition that there exists a misunderstanding with regard to the purpose and scope of these institutions. Not for our membership only but for all the people are they sustained, year after, with such commendable liberality. The aim is to promote intelligence, thrift, and a higher standard of Christian experience among our own people, and at the same time do justice as much for others who are willing to use the facilities brought within their reach by our benevolent scheme. Hence, if other denominations, too poor financially to support schools of their own, come to us for educational aid, they are not turned away empty. Ours is an educating church, and wherever it goes it scatters light all around it. The individual, the family and community must, unless blindly set against us, be the wiser and better for its presence. This is one among the many other reasons why the Methodist Episcopal Church has grown to be such a mighty power in the land. She is catholic in her charity, broad in her aims and efficient in her plans for the upbuilding of humanity. The ingratitude shown by the means resorted to by some whom we have educated, in order to retard the work of our church, we may deplore, but far be it from us to regard it as a sufficient cause for narrowing our scope. Depend upon it, the majority of those identified with other churches who may be so fortunate as to secure the training to be obtained at any one of our schools will be among the last to adopt questionable methods to oppose our progress. They may not renounce allegiance to the church of their choice, nor become less zealous in their labors for its prosperity—something we have never demanded—but they will when occasion requires or opportunity presents itself, bear witness to our fidelity in seeking the welfare of the whole people; or even if they should fail to do so, those who have looked on observantly will not be slow to give us credit. While the schools are thus liberal toward others they are by means lax in the matter of bringing out forcibly our doctrines and peculiar usages before the students. There is no adulteration of doctrines, no blunting the points of our peculiarities, and no apologizing for our presence on the soil for the purpose of gaining popularity from without. This is true of Central Tennessee College, with the working of which I have a tolerably thorough knowledge, and I am persuaded the same is true of all our schools under the supervision of the Freemen's Aid Society. Let none of us envy others for what they derive from our schools; but rather let us bid them God speed.

Woman's Home Mission Work.

THIBODAUX, La., July 24, 1883.

Editor ADVOCATE:—Believing your readers will be glad to learn that another meritorious work has been successfully started in our town, and all about it, I proceed to inform you that through the exertions of Mrs. M. L. Dale, the excellent wife of a noble husband, Elder Marcus Dale, a Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, auxiliary to the conference, was organized on May 8th, with the following officers:—Mrs. Mary Clara LeBlanc, President; Miss Ellen S. Bibb, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. Susan Taylor, 2d Vice-President; Mrs. Margaret Brown, 3d Vice-President; Miss Mary D. B. Hollins, Recording Secretary; Mrs. M. McFrazier, Corresponding Secretary. The same officers are yet acting, with the exception of Mrs. Taylor, now deceased, who was replaced by Mrs. Charlotte Moore, and Miss Hollins resigned, succeeded by Miss Mary Ricard. The association commenced with only fourteen members, and has already risen to sixty-seven. A number of deserving persons have been assisted. Regular meetings are held weekly, when instruction in female work is given. A permanent school for such purposes is to be established as soon as feasible, The society is composed of the very best classes and will undoubted succeed in effecting much good. Yours, truly

Letter From Pontotoc.

MR. EDITOR—Leaving Columbus last January, I received appointment to Pontotoc charge. After a lively time getting acquainted I went to Toccopola and Bighill Chapel. These places have not been properly kept up for some time. One month was spent traveling over the charge, singing, praying, exhorting and holding official meetings, and during this time I was bountifully provided for. The pastor,s salary was fixed at $200; presiding elders at $40. Applied to pastor, up to first quarter $9.10; elder, $4.55. Second quarterly conference was held at Trott's school house by Elder Shumpert The sermon and love feast were grand. Sunday morning I introduced the Berean Leaf and the catechism for the first time, and the elder made come appropriate remarks for the encouragement of the school. Paid pastor up to date $54.60, elder $20, other enterprises of the church $18.10. Our congregations are large and attentive, and we have seen and felt signal blessings. The revival fires are beginning to burn within the church and among sinners.

From Spring City.

DEAR EDITOR:—I am pleased to say that we had present with us to-day a grand excursion (col.) from Chattanooga, Tenn. They left the city at eight o'clock a. m. and arrived at this place at eleven a. m. After which they occupied the picnic ground about one and a quarter miles from the depot. I was informed that they numbered 600. In the outset some engaged themselves by rambling over hillocks, culling the buds and flowers. some through valleys and along beside the mossy brink of the creek, fishing and talking of their lovely time, some in buggies and hacks taking their pleasure rides, some by the road side chatting and talking of scenes and joys, some at the picnic ground eating, and drinking lemonade, while the remainder were quiet and seemingly praising God. The ground was also occupied by the citizens both colored and a white. The congregation was supplied with cakes and lemonade by some of the excursionists and also by two citizens, Mr. J. Colwell, (col.) and Mr. B Bricson, (white.) At four o'clock they retired to the city. After their leaving, the city seemed desolate. I saw and bear record this was the grandest and most sublime excursion ever before at this place. My delight was in those that remained quiet and seemed to be enjoying the highest blessings ol the great Jehovah. Many hundred years ago God saw the oppression of the Israelites and redeemed them from bondage; in like manner has he delivered the Ethiopian race that they may live and serve him and for to-day's privilege we should glorify and magnify His great and excellent name.

From Franklin.

Elder Pickett held our third quarterly meeting June 30th and July 1st, with good success. The church was greatly edified by his Holy Ghost sermons. Our quarterly collection was $21.85. The third quarter was one of marked growth, both spiritually and financially There have been 10 added to the church.

The Sunday-school Institute for the Nashville District, Tennessee Conference, convened in the M. E. Church, Franklin, Tenn., July 5th, continuing through July 6th. Rev. J. Pickett, P. E., was elected President, M. Williams and Rev. L. M. Hagood, Secretaries. Though there were not as many present as expected, the institute was a success. Spring Hill was well represented, Rev. L. M. Hagood, pastor of Clark Chapel, Nashville, Tenn., Rev. J. Braden and Miss M. E. Braden, were present, which added much to the success of the Institute. The able addresses of Dr. Braden and the excellent music by Miss M. E. Braden, who performed at the organ, will not soon be forgotten. A programme of 18 subjects on Sunday-school work were discussed by the different members of the Institute, and a note of thanks were tendered to the citizens of Franklin for their hospitality; also to Rev. and Miss M. E. Braden for their labors in the Institute.

Sister Flora Gibbons.

MR. EDITOR:—On the morning of the 6th inst., Sister Flora Gibbons departed this life of toil and misery, to join the blood-washed millions of God's happy saints in heaven. She was the loving wife of Rev. J. T. Gibbons, of the West Texas conference. I visited the dear sister in her affliction, and heard the consoling words expressed by her that caused me to know that she was victorious over death. While she was on her bed of affliction she sought her Savior's love; after which she bore her suffering with marked Christian fortitude. She suffered untold misery for four long dreary months, with that terrible malady—consumption.

Glory! glory! be to God in the highest. He has released the soul from prison; given her victory over death. The body is out of misery, the spirit is at rest.; while there is the loving husband and two little children to mourn the loss of her. She has gained more than the world can afford. She has many friends and relations also to mourn for her. Her funeral gathered the largest concourse of weeping friends that I have witnessed for many years.

Weep not, dear friends and relations, for she is in heaven.

The Colored Sculptress

Miss Edmonia Lewis, the colored sculptress, who lives in Rome, has finished for a Baltimore church a large bas-relief in marble, showing the adoration of the infant Christ at Bethlehem by the Magi. The chapel of St. Mary the Virgin is an Episcopalian church for colored people and Magus more prominent than him of Caucasia or of Asia Magna. The three kneel on the right before the Virgin and the infant, while Joseph stands at their back. Miss Lewis has recently modeled a statue of the Virgin Mary in marble for the Marquis of Bute, the famous convert to Catholicism.—N. Y. Times.

Denmark as "restricting" the liquor traffic with a vengeance. The town authorities of Veite have ordered that no innkeeper or saloonist can employ bar maids under forty years age.

A mother can call "Johnie, it's time to get up" for three hours without making any impression, but when the old man steps to the foot of the stairs and shouts "JOHN!" Johnnie takes his breakfast with the rest of the family.

That Festival—How Not To Have It.

BY THE REV. MARCUS D. BUELL.

One hundred and forty years ago this very spring the First Methodist Society of Bristol, England, was in a state of mind. A debt? Yes; young as Methodism then was they sat in that now familiar ecclesiastical shadow. Their humble chapel, built three years before, though they had done their best, was not yet paid for. A meeting was called to devise some ingenious answer to the immemorial conundrum How shall we reduce the debt? Up rose one plain Englishman in the midst of the gathering with a proposition. It was not an oyster supper, an old folks' concert, or a broom drill; it was not a mum sociable, an apron and neck-tie festival, or a Japanese lantern feast; it was not even a fair under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, that he had in mind. It was this: "Let every member of the society give a penny a week till the debt is paid."

That mouthful of breath proved, as every body knows, of vast moment to Methodism, for it warmed into life at last a new means of grace, the class meeting. "An accident," writes Tyerman, speaking after the manner of men, "for which," said Wesley, more devoutly, "I can never sufficiently praise God." The Bristol brother killed two birds with one stone: he slew the ill-omened owl of debt, hooting from the belfry at midnight, Whose? Whose? and laid at the foot of Methodism that beautiful prey, the class-meeting, that bird of paradise, that lark singing at heaven's gate. As unaware of its own greatness was that project as the whistling projectile at Sebastopol that fell short of the Russian redoubt, struck a hidden water vein, and gave them a perennial spring.

The happy coincidence has unfortunately, not been every-where maintained amongus. We all have the class-meeting, but too many of us have the debt deficiency. Unspeakably important as was the [illegible] the unknown layman didn't [illegible] quite as worthy of being laid [illegible] heart is the thing he did plan, namely, a small sum, a definite sum, [illegible] a sum from every member. [illegible], after all, this is only another [illegible] of the old principle of human [illegible]: a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together.

[illegible] Bristol member was a philosopher. (I strongly suspect he had a wife, however, and that she was the philosopher.) His policy was that of the thrifty housewife, who knows what marvels a weekly allowance will work in the long run. All must have long since recogniz[illegible] admired the feminine shrewd[illegible] of the once demure Woman's [illegible] Missionary Society, es[illegible] all public collections to [illegible], but somehow getting [illegible] out of us last year. And [illegible] By gently persuading our [illegible] and sisters to pledge two [illegible] a week—the Bristol sum ex[illegible]. The Free Church College, [illegible] the shadow of Edinburgh Castle, grew up, the public knew not how; [illegible] the women of Scotland could [illegible]. The massive buildings of the [illegible] Sunday-school Union were [illegible] by the chubby hand of [illegible] one homely Eng[illegible] on an other. Even Brid[illegible] might enlighten many a [illegible] headed Methodist official board looking ruefully into 1883, for her ten cents at every mass, more than any other cause, is push[illegible] cathedral wall higher and [illegible] convent bell ringing. [illegible] action was philoso[illegible] Christian. Woe [illegible] with nothing [illegible]. Woe betide the [illegible] [illegible] when it has no two-mite constituency.

What can your Church do with the Bristol idea? Much, in many ways. You can reduce your debt. A Brooklyn society canvassed its entire membership and congregation for subscriptions of a cent a day for a year, and raised a large amount. You can double your basket collections. The writer knows a Church—whether in this city or out of it he will not tell—that resolved last autumn to abandon the whole spawn of fairs, festivals, and the like, as a source of revenue for the Conference year. On the next Sunday the pastor announced the decision, and asked as many as could to deposit a fixed sum, ten cents, in the baskets. He subsequently repeated the request for many Sabbaths, until the very appearance of the collection baskets silently but infallibly suggested the handy democratic coin. The result surprised every body. In a single month a sum had been contributed larger than the average festival ever produces, and nobody had missed the money. He has been lately told of a country congregation in Connecticut which has been so well educated in this scriptural doctrine that is puts ten dollars into the basket every Sunday.

Does the writer find it easy to speak to the congregation about their contributions? No, but he finds it easier than to ask housewives of his flock by proxy to make a seventy-five cents cake and come to the church basement and pay twenty-five cents for a piece of it. Nay, the way of direct, intelligent contribution of money is the more excellent way, as the Bristol man foresaw. And let no preacher be hindered in the work of practical indoctrination by the satanic suggestion that he is harrying the people for money. Such a suggestion would exclude some of the apostle Paul's most golden instruction from the canon.

That west of England sea-port sent us one great practical idea when it dispatched hither the first transatlantic steamer, but the spark of Saxon common sense it struck out in the financial policy of the class-meeting was alike luminous and beneficent.—Hartford, Conn.—N. Y. Advocate.

Temperance in the Bible

INTOXICATING DRINKS FORBIDDEN.

Drink no wine nor strong drink.—Judges xii., 7.

He shall separate himself from wine and strong drink.—Num. vi., 3.

Woe unto them that are mighty, to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink.—Isaiah v. 22.

Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the spirit.—Eph. v., 18.

Look thou upon the wine when it is red when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself right. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.—Pro. xxiii., 31, 32.

TEMPERANCE PROMOTES PIETY.

I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have poured out my soul before the Lord.—I. Sam i., 15,

He shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink.—Luke. i., 15.

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law. And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts.—Gal. v., 22-24.

Dear beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, that war against the soul.—I. Peter ii., 11.

Giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness.—II. Peter i., 5, 6.

(Temperance is a part of Christianity)

KEEPING THE BODY PURE.

I beseech you, therefore, brethren by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.—Romans. xii., 1

What! know ye not that your body is the temple of the HolyGhost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For you are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.—I. Cor. vi., 19. 20.

Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God —II. vii., 1.

Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof.—Romans xiii., 14.

Her Nazarites were purer than snow, they were whiter than milk, they were more ruddy in body than rubies, their polishing was of saphire.—Lam. iv., 7.

(Temperance is to the body what holiness is to the soul, and in the Divine plan they go together.)

TEMPERANCE IN THE CHURCH.

Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations.—Lev. x., 9.

Neither shall any priest drink wine.—Eze. xliv., 21.

Bishops, deacons, their wives; aged men and women. "Not given to, wine" "sober," temperate."—I. Tim. iii., 3, 8; Titus. i., 7, and ii., 2.

It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.—Rom. xiv. 21.

If any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or a covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one no not to eat.—I. Cor, v., 11.

(Temperance should have a place in church rules, work, and worship.)

Mrs. Bishop E. O. Haven has received the following note from Miss Frances E. Willard, which is of sufficient interest for publication:

My Dear Mrs. Bishop E. O. Haven: On this bright spring day I have made a devout pilgrimage to the grave of that noblest of men—your honored husband: I stood there in earnest thought about the beautiful days at Evanston, when he was the central figure of a grand enterprise, with which my heart was closely enlisted, and in which his genius had such victories. It would have done you good to hear the honest words we spoke—Bro. Denison and I—as we gathered away the dried leaves, rearranged the three faded wreaths, and tended the beautiful blooming violets—fit emblems of the Bishop's character. I gathered from the grave a pretty fern, which is inclosed. Soon a monument, 22 feet in height is to mark the place where lies the little that was mortal of your husband. But how immeasurably high towers the imperishable monument of his Christian character. With ever kind remembrance and regard to you and yours, I am, as ever, sincerely, FRANCES E. WILLARD.

The whisky men say "protect our business." The women cry out "protect our homes." Both cannot be done at the same time. Whisky will invade and destroy the peace and comfort of homes. Whisky has been protected so far, but we rejoice to believe that the time is coming when the women and children of this country will be protected from the insults and injuries of rum.—*G. T. Young Folk's Corner.

It Never Pays.

It never pays to fret and growl
When fortune seems our foe;
The better bred will push ahead
And strike the braver blow;
For luck is work,
And those who shirk
Should not lament their doom,
But yield and play
And clear the way
That better men have room.

It never pays to wreck the health
In drudging after gain;
And he is sold who thinks that gold
Is cheapest bought with pain.
A humble lot,
A cosy cot,
Has tempted even kings;
For station high,
That wealth will buy,
Not oft contentment brings.

It never pays! A blunt refrain
Well worthy of a song;
For age and youth must learn this truth,
That nothing pays that's wrong.
The good and pure
Alone are sure
To bring prolonged success;
While what is right
In Heaven's sight
Is always sure to bless.

Practical Christianity.

A good lady employed a deacon of one of our Baptist churches to do some carpenter's work which amounted to quite a large sum of money; and she said, when speaking of the job, "I would just as soon hear Deacon —— pray now as I would have done before he did that work for me." That's it! We want deacons and all other members of our churches to do in all business relations just that which is right. We believe in practical religion.

Spurgeon asked a young girl, who served as a domestic in one of his families, when she presented herself for membership in his church, what evidence she could give of having become a Christian, and she meekly answered, "I now sweep under the mats." And the renowned preacher said it was good evidence, and we agree with him. Real religion leads one to do work thoroughly.

A Natural Barometer.

The spider's web is a natural barometer. When it is about to be rainy and windy, the spider shortens the last threads to which the web is suspended, and leaves it in this state while the weather remains variable. If the insect lengthens its threads the weather will be fine, and the fineness may be guessed by the length they attain. If the spider remains inactive, it is a sign of rain; if, on the contrary, it begins to work while it rains, it betokens a speedy change for the better. The spider alters its web every twenty-four hours, and if the alterations are made before sunset the night will be fine.—Sunday.

Godly sorrow, like weeping Mary, seeks Christ; saving faith, like wrestling Jacob, finds and holds Christ; heavenly love, like the affectionate spouse, dwells with Christ; here it brings him unto the chambers of the Queen, and hereafter brings the living soul into the chamber of the King; so that it is an eternal grave, always lodging in the bosom of Christ.

There must be full surrender before there can be full blessedness. God admits you by the one into the other. I was shown first that the blood of Jesus cleanseth us from all sin, and then it was made plain to me that he who had thus cleansed me had power to keep me clean; so I just utterly yielded myself to him and utterly trusted him to keep me.—Fancis Ridley Havergal.

An old lady, hearing of the strike of the wire drawers, exclaimed: "Wire drawers! Gracious me! what new-fangled thing will folks be wearing next?"

A man should never be ashamed to own that he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser to-day than he was yesterday.—Pope.

Boston University has just increased its strong Theological Faculty by the appointment of the Rev. Hinckley G Mitchell, Ph. D. to the chair of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis. The newly appointed has for three years past had sole charge of the instruction in Hebrew in Wesleyan University and with such success that President Beach writes of him: "Dr. Mitchell was born to teach Hebrew and the cognate languages." He was graduated from the Boston University School of Theology in 1876 and took a post graduate course and the doctorate in Philosophy later at the University of Leipsic. The illustrious Franz Delitsch writes: "He has, besides exegetical lectures, heard others on the Hebrew, Chaldee, and Samaritan languages, and that with great profit, because he is perfectly familiar with German, because he has been aided by a naturally fine talent for languages, and because he has with all his might pursued his object, to fit himself for a teacher. We have become personal friends, and I can from intimate acquaintance and long observation impartially testify that Dr. Mitchell is qualified to do his country excellent service as a theological teacher."

The members of the Congregational Ministers' Association of Chicago, after a full discussion of the subject, have agreed not to marry divorced persons of either sex without the most satisfactory proofs that sufficient cause existed for a dissolution of the sacred contract, and that the divorce was obtained in an open and honorable manner. This is a position which all Protestant ministers might well imitate, and thus largely reduce the scandals connected with this subject pending the general reforms in laws and practice which an aroused public sentiment will compel at the earliest possible moment

It is notorious that the Christianity of Germany is at a very low ebb. There are not so many churches in Berlin, the third city in Europe, as in the average of cities in Britian or America of a tenth part of its population; and what churches there are, are almost deserted. The ministers of religion are reported to be held in small respect in Germany, probably less than anywhere else. It is not, therefore, to be wondered at that Germany is lavishing an immense amount on a triumphal memorial to be placed on the Rhine to commemorate forever its extraordinary victories over France. This is not the way to promote peace and good will among men. Germany should be content with the substantial advantages of victory, and not crow over them. That was a noble proof of high civilization and Christian principle which our Government and army showed when they ceased to parade the flags captured from the South in the late war.—*N. Y. Whatever charges may have been brought against the Board of Health of the city of New Orleans in the past, that it is careless in health matters cannot be made now. Two things at the present are noticeable. The good health of this city save a few cases of the small-pox, and the active and energetic efforts both of the Board of Health and the Sanitary Association to preserve its health. With a careful quarantine kept up at Ship Island, and thorough system of removing the garbage from all of our streets, we see no reason why the health of our city should not continue. We earnestly expect the authorities to devise some plan for getting rid of the few cases of the small-pox and our city will be one of the most healthy in the country.

The subject discussed by the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting at its two last sessions, was the repulse at Ai and the sin of Achan. The fact that nothing was hid from the searching eye of Omniscience, that no concealment of sin was possible, and the awful punishment that was sure to overtake the sinner was clearly brought out, and applied to the church, and in answer to the questions, why are not our modern Ai's taken? Why here in New Orleans is the church [illegible] and the Ai's so strong? it was intimated that the "accursed things" are among us. It becomes us all to make careful and diligent search. Long ago it was said, "be sure your sin will find you out." It is far better for us to find out our sins and forsake them. The man who goes into eternity with his sins upon him has made a fatal mistake.

Church Going.

Mr. Ingersoll claims that in this conntry the chnrches are fast losing their hold npon the people, that the regular attendance npon religions service npon the Sabbath is diminishing year by year. It is claimed that the people do not like to be fed on the dry leaves of an antiquated and exploded system of theology in which the sap of life has ceased to flow. It is admitted that these dogmas once kept a class of snperstitious persons in subjection but they have lost their power because the enlightened and advanced thonght of the world has rejected them, and now not only the daring and reckless Atheist and the ont and ont evildoers, bnt the majority of the intelligent and really well meaning people whose purposes are good, whose aspirations are high, whose condnct is npright do not believe what the pulpit teaches, and have become weary of its reiterations, and are now nnmbered among the non-chnrch going people. It may be that there are some men in the pulpit who never present a morsel for the mental or moral digestion and nutrition of a healthy man; they minister if to any, only to the snperstitious, the narrow, the morbid and bigoted.

Bnt what are the facts in the case, facts that are well-known to every intelligent person. It is palpably untrne, thongh stated again and again, that the proportion of people who attend church is diminishing year by year. It may be true that the pulpit in some localities fed the people on dry leaves and that it presents bnt little for the mental and moral digestion of healthy mon. It is nevertheless easily demonstrated that the attendance npon chnrch services is proportionally increasing from year to year. A few minutes search in the censns reports of the nation and in the year books of the churches will give the desired information to any one. In 1800, according to the censns reports the population of the United States was 5,308,483, and the communicants of all Evangelical denominations was according to the most reliable statistics abont 365,000 being only seven per cent of the popnlation. In 1850 the population was 21,191.876 while the communicants of the various denominations were 3,529,988 being fifteen per cent of the population. In 1870 the entire population was 38,588,371 bnt there were 6,673,396 members of the Evangelical denominations, being seventeon per cent of the popnlation. In 1880 the popnlation was 50,152,866 and the communicants of all the Evangelical ohnrches had risen to 10,065,395, being a little over twenty per cent of the population. Since 1800 the increase in the population of the country has been nine fold, while the increase of the Evangelical denominations has been twenty-seven fold. In other wards the increase in the Evangelical denominations has been three times as great as in the popnlation. So mnch for the random assertions of croakers. Instead of the attendance upon church services diminishing year by year, the above facts and figures show that it is rapidly increasing. Nor is it true that the non-church goers include the honest, intelligent, and respectable class in the community. The saloon, the groggery population, furnishes the largest part of the non-church goers. The church educates its members in honest industry, sobriety and economy. The natural products of this church education and training tends to make men respectable and respected in any community, and it is most uniformly counted a step towards respectability when a man previously vicious attaches himself to a church. We do not [illegible] that the church is doing her [illegible] and while we admit [illegible] her defects, we do [illegible] she "is the chief bulwark of the social order, the gen[illegible] of moral force, the [illegible] and inspirer of [illegible] by which he climbs out of the abyss." It is idle to talk of the church as having lost its hold on the intelligent and respectable. Never in the history of onr country were chnrch going and church respecting and church honoring people more intelligent, respectable and respected than now.

Children's Day Collections.

The system of onr church in regard to edncational collections is somewhat pecnliar, thongh beautiful and perfectly harmonions when well nnderstood. By the Discipline two annnal collections are provided for. One is for the Freedmen's Aid Society. The Discipline makes it the dnty of each preacher in charge to present this snbject to his congregation once each year, and he is to report to the annnal conference the snm collected and this is to be pnblished in the minntes. The other is the Children's Day collection, to be taken whenever practicable on the second Sunday in Jnne, in or in connection with the Snnday-school. In all cases the Discipline provides that this collection is to be sent to the Board of Edncation, 8 5 Broadway New York, for the increase of the Children's Edncational Fnnd. At first the thonght may seem to some bad policy to send the Children's Day collection away from home when our edncational wants are so great. Bnt it is this very collection which enables us to maintain a claim on the proceeds of the Children's Connectional fund, which has already reached the handsome snm of one hnndred and thirty-two thousand dollars and is growing every year. By order of the General Conference no annal conference is to share in the proceeds of this fnnd which shall not take annnal collections in its behalf in the Snnday schools within the bonnds of said conference. Already poor stndents connected with the New Orleans University have been helped from this fund $1447, while the total collections sent to this fnnd from the Louisiana conference for 1881 and 1882 was only $53.65. In 1881 only five persons reported, one evidently for a nnmber of schools. While in 1882 only three reported, each for his own school. The disbnrsements from this fund are applied exclnsively to the aid of grown np Snnday-school children and youth attending the institntions of our chnrch, and the institntions are abont as much benefited by them as the students themselves. The Board takes special interest in adding colored youth of both sexes in obtaining a higher education to fit them for the service of the church whether as preachers or teachers. While therefore we should do all in our power to build up strong schools in all our Sonthern conferences we shonld be both zealons and regular in observing Children's Day, and take the regular collection as the Discipline directs, and forward the same to the Parent Board, 805 Broadway, New York. To the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch under God has been given the honor and privilege of the origin of this day. Other churches are making imitations of it, bnt we have the grand organization, and it gives us a wonderful opportunity to work a work of untold good. It not only brings a blessing to to the church and Snnday-school but also to the commnnity in general.

The Way of Holiness is a trimonthly paper pnblished at Chattanooga, Tenn., and edited by Rev. Wm. Baker. In the issne of July 15, Bro. Baker makes this statement:

Not long since a minister visited this city by invitation who was of a denomination which has no existence here. His mission was truly Christianlike, coming to do good. Bnt he met with little or no favor from the different denominations, was not invited to go into any pulpit. And when he, through friends sought one for a few days that was unoccupied it was refused him. And he obtained one only by paying rent for it, as one would rent a storehouse or shop. And when he was introduced to ministers as one of another denomination they turned away giving him no encouragement to work and labor for sonls which are perishing for the bread of life, and which he breaks in his preaching to the joy and comfort of hearts."

Of conrse we know nothing of the circnmstances above revered to. Bnt Chattanooga has world wide reputation. Not long since the corner stone of a Methodist church was laid in that city. A Jew was invited to take part in those services, and that was right; the honse of the Lord shonld be for all people, but no colored man was allowed to mix in that throng; they were permitted, we believe, to stand on the opposite side of the street and look on. A nnmber of papers were pnblished in the city, a copy of each save the one edited by a colored man was placed in a box laid in that corner wall. More recently in the discussion of the qnestion of the great nniversity, certain persons are anxions to have located in that city, a vigorons effort was made to secnre a pledge from onr chnrch anthorities that colored students should be forever exclnded from its halls. This is only one side of the qnestion. There is another side. All along these years certain white men in Chattanooga have been falling into the arms of their colored sisters and mnch has been done towards obliterating the color line. This is the other side of the question, and to ns is fnll as Christian as the other. In snch a city, we shonld look for just snch a state of things as the Way of Holiness describes, and of which he complains. We do not wish to be connted impertinent, bnt we would like to ask the Way of Holiness if this minister so impatient to break the bread of life to the perishing was refnsed admission to the colored chnrches? Was it the colored clergymen who turned away from this brother, "giving him no encouragement to work and labor for the perishing?" We fear that Bro. Baker in his desire to make out a case forgot the colored chnrches entirely. As the editor of the Way of Holiness he ought to be free from the awful sin of caste. No person can play fast and loose with this sin without falling into its damning power. We believe with all our heart in the doctrines and experience of Bible holiness, and that when the heart is filled with all the fullness of the incomprehensible love of Christ, this evil spirit of caste will be driven ont.

The Methodist Quarterly Review.

The Quarterly for July opens with a fine steel-plate portrait and an appreciative biographical sketch of the late Dr. R. S. Dashiel, by Rev. Wm. Kelley of Brooklyn. Young men entering npon the work of the ministry will find the recited lessons of a pnre life eminently suggestive and encouraging. Dr. Abel Stevens follows with a paper on "Remarkable Problems of our Population." His text is taken from a recent pnblication of the French Geographical Society, and is a prophecy of M. Simonin, a French scientist, as to the future possibilities of the United States, which forcibly reminds us of a saying of one of our profonnd philosophers who is reported to have said: "If men could foresee as clearly as they can hind see, they wonld not make so many mistakes." Dr. Stevens refers to the rapid growth of the colored population as a problem which the future must solve. Thankfully and confidently we leave it with the future. The political and moral elements in this qnestion Dr. Stevens proposes to discuss in a future number. And if not too late we want to remind the Doctor of one of his own sayings: "It is only in the dark that men see ghosts."

"Results of the "First Methodist Ecumenical Conference," by Rev. J. O. A. Clark, D. D., Macon, Ga., is a well written review and estimate of the inflnence of that gathering held in London 1881.

D. Wise, D.D., follows with a good paper, taking for his text John Kible and the tractarion movement in England. This article will be read with great interest; the subject is attractive.

Rev. J. H. Potts, M. A., anthor of "Methodism in the Field," has a well prepared paper on "The Wesleyan Conditions of Church Membership—its Modifications."

"Missionary Methods," by D. Curry, D.D., is a valuable paper, full of valuablo suggestions to our preachers. We qnote the following to give our readers an idea of the advances made in recent years:

"Down to the end of the first qnarter of the present centnry only a small portion of the nations were accessible to the gospel. China and Japan were hermetically sealed against all foreigners, and especially hostie to anything like Christian propagandism; and India, thongh largely ruled by Eng lishmen, was carefully shnt np against Christian missions. In these three great pagan empires were comprised not less than 600,000,000 souls—or more than half of the hnman race—all of which vast mass was, during the next half century, thrown open to the preaching of the gospel. At the earlier date the attitude of nearly all Roman Catholic governments toward Protestantism, and especially toward Protestant missions, was intensely hostie and intolerant, while to-day the gospel may be preached in its pnrity in all these countries with comparatively little interrnption from their governments. Formerly it was the law—and it was sternly enforced in Turkey and other Mohammedan conntries—that a Mnsselman becoming a Christian shonld be pnt to death; but all that is changed, and the Moslem convert is now secnre against all legal interference in his new profession. These changes are so great, and indeed wonderful—so far beyond what could have been dreamed of by the most hopeful before they came to pass—that the most active imagination can scarcely keep pace with the actnal facts, so as to adeqnately appreciate this wide-spread and thorongh revolntion which has taken place in the political and diplomatic, as well as the social and indnstrial relations of the nations of the world."

"Popnlar and Perilons Driftings," by Rev. Orid Miner, Syracnse, N. Y., is a practical paper on onr national tendencies. We think that some of the anthor's statements need some slight modification. We hope to have a further opportnnity to speak more extensively of some of the papers in this nnmber.

The synopsis of qnarterlies and the book table is in Dr. Whedon's best style, excellent and eminently snggestive. We are sorry that so worthy a periodical is not more generally appreciated. We heartly commend it to all. Only $2.60 per year.

We listened to a sermon not long since when the preacher said, "Brethren, you mnst be steadfast in the work of the Lord. You take a tree and plant it in this yard this year, and then take it up and plant it in another yard next year, and then in some other yard the third year, and sure as yon live that tree will amonnt to nothing. It has had too mnch planting. So yon mnst be steadfast." There is a philosophy in this illustration. It is possible for men as well as trees to have too mnch planting. Now and then there comes a man into the Methodist ministry who has a hereditary bias to badness. He needs the restraining influence of a strict religions discipline, but there is a flabbiness in his moral nature, and he refuses to endnre the restraints imposed by the chnrch, and Jeshurun-like he kicks, bnt not becanse he is fat. The front door of the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch is open only to receive people. The other day we sat down for a few moments and looked over the history of certain men who had steped down and ont of the rear door of the Methodist Chnrch and ministry, and with one or two exceptions we found them men of decayed morals. A very brief examination brought ont some startling revelations. We pity those ministers who, because of the restraints imposed npon them by the discipline of the church, step down and out of the church; they leave noble company for a generation of "wandering stars and dead beats."

The public announcement of the fall of George R. Bristor is no way surprising to us, we had an experience with him over two years ago that prepared ns to hear of most any nnreasonable and wicked conduct. As to the special immoralities of which he is now found guilty, we do not care to speak. He was not a gradnate of any College. He left Dickinson before gradnation nnder a clond. He began his ministery in Delaware, was tranferred to the Louisiana Conference and stationed at Ames Methodist Episcopal Chnrch. He fonnd the church nnited and harmonious. There was a debt of long standing, but active measures had been taken by Gen. Bussey, Dr. Hartzell and others for its payment. Mr. Bristor, when he came devoted his energies to this work and during his pastorate the entire debt was paid. His peculiar style of oratory drew large congregations, but did not add to the financial or spiritnal strength of the chnrch. His general administration was not approved by the anthorities of the chnrch. Bnt at his own reqnest a nnmber of time repeated, he was transferred back to his former conference. Notwithstanding this, he led his personal friends here to believe that he had been arbitrarily removed from his charge. The subseqnent disgraceful proceedings to prevent Dr. Webb, his succesor, from entering upon his work, abundantly demonstrated the spirit that cansed him to leave Ames chnrch torn by dissension and weaker in every respect than it was before he entered its pulpit.

As a rule we are not in love with strikers, yet we recognize the right of men to organize for the protection of their labor and put their price upon their toil, and to refnse to work unless paid. Bnt strikers more often fail than succeed, and when they do succeed success is purchased at a price that even the victors cannot afford to pay. So working men have rarely been benefited by them. The telegraph operators of America have a brotherhood similar to that formerly maintained by the locomotive engineers. They are for the most part skilled workmen, and yet their pay is far below that paid masons, stone cutters, carpenters, plasterers, wagon makers, etc. Then they are required to work more hours each working day than laborers, and Sabbath beside, for which they get no compensation. This is their second complaint. Then they complain of an unjnst discrimination against female telegraphers, though it is conceded that they do their work quite as well as the men. At the same time it is claimed that the telegraph companies are rich—certainly their stocks command a preminm. To us it is evident they can afford to pay their employees reasonable wages. The demand to pay the women the same they pay men for doing the same work is eminently jnst. It is sheer meanness to ask a woman to do work for one dollar that they pay men two dollars for doing. The demand for rest on the Sabbath is right, and we hope will be insisted npon. In this we should be glad if every railroad condnctor, engineer, brakesman, and street car-driver, with every laboring man in the United States and Canada, whose employer is so godless as to demand work npon the Sabbath would strike. This we feel safe in saying—all strikers that go against any and all discrimination in wages for the same work done, and that aim to give the laboring man a quiet Christian Sabbath shall have onr prayers and sympathy. This, donbtless, is only another of those strikes which will be adjusted by snpply and demand.

A thing that is worth doing at all is worth doing well, as well as you can. It was said of one of England's great lords that if he had only been a boot-black he would never have rested satisfied until he had become the best boot black in England. If a young man finds himself the lowest clerk in store, or office, or in a shop; or on a farm, and would he like to rise to a better place, his surest way is to do his present work well. No man is worth anything for a higher place who fails in a lower place. The minister who wants a better appointment must do his work well where he is. The work of saving men, and building up churches is a work of hard labor rather than of contemplation. Paul, Peter, Luther, Wesley, were great personal workers. Brothers, if you want a better appointment next year, improve the one you have this year. Do good work where you are. There is no appointment on earth so well worth your time and attention as the one you now occupy. There is now and then a minister who spends more time in mourning over his bad appointment than he does in trying to make it better. That man will always have a poor appointment.

The Times-Democrat syas: "Mrs. J. Ellen Forster, the well-known temperance advocate, in an address at Ocean Grove, N. J., Tuesday last, stated that 1000 Methodist preachers are going to stump the State of Iowa at the next election in behalf of prohibition, and that 1000 preachers of other denominations would join them." These 2000 clergymen are right. The saloon keepers of Iowa are their greatest enemies; both cannot live and prosper in the same State. We say to the clergymen:

"Watch, and fight, and pray:
The battle ne'er give o'er,
Renew it boldly every day
And help divine implore."

Plain truth-telling is not censoriousness. Reproof of wrong doing is not a bad temper. A refusal to approve of caste churches and caste schools is not disloyalty to the Church.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

A. Hilton, Hahnville: "The second quarterly conference met in St. John the Baptist parish. Elder Dale in the chair. Reports were presented in writing and in perfect order. Pastor had received this quarter $45; elder $3.25. One Sunday-school reported with 40 scholars enrolled. We observed Children's Day at St. Charles M. E. Church. Collection $1.35. We are now struggling to raise money to build a parsonage."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. Mann, Concord: "The camp meeting for Ebeneezer circuit, begins on Aug. 17, at Beach Hill camp ground, to last two Sabbaths. All ministers in particular are invited."

J. Braden, Nashville: "Rev. J. P. Price, presiding elder of the West Tennessee Dist. Tenn. Conference laid the corner stone of a new church in Paris on Thursday July 19th. A large congregation of interested people were present. We have twenty-five members and at the meeting on Thursday forty dollars were collected. The lumber is nearly all on the ground. Rev. J. W. Hall is pastor and is pushing his work forward, God be with him."

MISSISSIPPI.

D. Bradford, Pontotoc: "Elder Shumpert visited us, administered Lord's supper to 83; collection was $14.65. Our church is ceiled save on one side, and the work is going on."

Notes From Nashville.

The quiet of the mid summer is on our city. Many have gone to the "Springs" which abound in middle Tennessee. The most recent attraction is "Monteagle," which has been called the "Southern Chatauqua." It is situated on the plateau of the Cumberland mountains on the eastern edge of Franklin Co., about 115 miles southeast from Nashville, and much nearer to Chattanooga. The plateau is over two thousand feet above the sea level. The grounds are beautifully undulating, and have been greatly improved by cleaning off much of the small timber and underbrush, and laying out the place in drives and walks. The buildings on the ground are the amphitheater and boarding hall, with about fifty tents large and small. This is the first season such an institution has been attempted in the South, and the out look is quite encouraging. The writer spent one day (20th to 21st) there. The literary exercises consisted of an address on the Apostle Paul, by President Thompson of the Otterbien University of Ohio. An address on the Common Schools of the country by Dr. J. H. Vincent, and a second on the Old and New Methods in Sunday-schools. With classes in Elocution, Normal teachers' conference, children's meeting, vesper service, with school of languages filled up the programme of the day. The attendance at the Amphitheater to hear the lectures varied from seventy-five to about four hundred. The latter being the largest congregation to hear Dr. Vincent. The place is easy of access, and as yet the crowds have not been so great, as to greatly tax the capacity of the branch road from Cowan, on the Nashville Chattanooga, and St. Louis railroad. The scenery is beautiful, and the healthiness of the mountain air will no doubt make this a famous resort in the near future. The lack of large quantities of water, and the fact that only one branch railroad runs to the place, up a grade of several miles in length, of over a hundred feet to the mile, will be a serious inpediment in the way of attracting the crowds which attend at Chatauqua.

The discussion of the progress of the colored race must be by the facts of history, as they are made by the race itself. The good is not so easily seen as the bad, nor does it make so great an impre[illegible] the observer. Human nature rejoices in pointing out defects in others. It must be expected that the vices of the colored race will be noted as well as their virtues, and that the vices will be made prominent is also to be expected under the circumstances, The mistake however that is made, is taking a bad specimen of the race and holding it up as the true type of the whole. It is the same argument which is applied to the church. A poor broken down morally bankrupt Methodist is taken as a real type of Christian character, and the character of the church graded according to a down right backslider.

Let the Tuckers and Evans write on. It will bring out the facts of the bad, and no doubt we shall have the places pointed out where this state of things exist and there the church will know where missionary work is most needed. Yesterday I listened to a colored brother, an exhorter, who could not read well enough to read a scripture lesson, with any fluency. He did not quote his text correctly, nor give any explanation of it, but talked for twenty minutes in a rambling way, and towards the close of his talk, he put in the whine, the sing-song and the vociferation. He said no foolish thing, but gave real good advice about living by faith and doing right.

To take this as a specimen of the colored pulpit, in Nashville would be a grave error, and while there may be much of such pulpit performance in the country, to say that all the colored preaching is of that character is gross misrepresentation. A writer may have a few facts unfavorable to the race, but it is not always wise or logically safe to draw general conclusions from them.

Rev. John Seay, the oldest member of the Tennessee Conference, now a superannuate, has given to the church in the bounds of the conference, for the benefit of the colored people, for education, church building, support of preachers and for the promotion of the cause of temperance, during the history of the conference, over four thousand dollars, and to one of the churches for the whites over five hundred dollars. He is now in his eighty-ninth year and quite feeble, yet able to go about and attend to his business. He proposes to leave his whole property to the church. He waits the coming of the Master in faith of a welcome through riches of grace, into the rest of saints in glory. There is need that others to whom the Lord has given of His treasures of silver and gold do likewise. The Methodists of to-day need to be more liberal in giving.

J. BRADEN.

The Old Church.

MR. EDITOR—The position I occupy, and the things I daily see and hear compel me to say a word about the old Church that has done so much for me and my people. Ever since the organization of the Louisiana Conference we have had a class of men who have been ready to serve the Church whether in large or small appointments, men who have been ready to work and die for the Church. We have also had a class of grumblers, trouble makers, who have always stood in the market ready to leave the moment the Bishop declined to give them just the appointment they desired. The Savior says "the hireling feareth because he is an hireling." Now, it seems to me, if men loved the Church they would, like Paul, receive their small appointments with gladness and work the harder. Sometimes I am told that that this is a white man's Church and that colored men cannot show their manhood. This is to me the most perfect nonsense. For the reason real manhood, whether in a black, brown or white skin, like a city o an hill, cannot be hid. Nor is this a white man's Church, and I thank the Lord that the old Methodist Episcopal Church is not a colored man's church. To me it is the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ, and his arms are open to receive all races. White men, colored men; red men, men of all shades of color, and tongues are freely welcome here. One complains because he has been always kept on small appointments. I want to ask this brother how can one expect large appointments who has always been more successful in scattering than in gathering? He who fails on a small appointment will certainly fail on a larger one. Another sees in himself wonderful ability; he sees what his brethren cannot see. In his own estimation he is the great man of the conference; while with his brethren he is the least. His talent is not recognized. To this brother let me say "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted." St. Paul says "If a man think himself to be something when he is nothing he deceiveth himself." "Live humble brother, live humble." "The bell done rung." But who are these restless spirits, and from whence have they come? They are not from our own Sunday-schools. These have been trained and educated in the Church and have come to love her doctrines and Discipline. Nor are they from our Universities. These also have been tried—tried, some of them, as by fire, and they have been found to be true. The men who have given the Louisiana Conference the most trouble, with one or two exceptions, have come to us from other denominations. They were not satisfied where they were, they are not satisfied with us, and I fear they are wandering stars for whom there is no rest or satisfaction either in this world or in the next. They are what St. James calls double-minded men, unstable in all of their ways, now inclined to one church and now to another, now governed by one principle and now by another, "he that wandereth is like the wave of the sea." The wave of the sea has no stability. It is at the mercy of every wind, driven and tossed every way. So these men have their hands stretched first to this church, then to that church, and then to some other church. For what John Randolph called the world's seven principles, namely, two small fishes and seven barley loves, they are ready to serve any church. I have been on what were called bad appointments as all of my brethren well know, but my love for the church has been unchanging, and if my life and work do not secure me the position I desire I shall not play turn-coat, but work on and do the best I can to bring our people to a higher and a better life. I write this, Mr. Editor, because it seems to me that some one ought to speak for the Church. I take all the responsibility. I only ask you to give it a place in the SOUTHWESTERN, and ask the Lord to bless the word I have written.

STEPHEN PRIESTLEY.

Freedmen's Aid Society—Our Teachers.

BY DR. RUST.

It affords me pleasure to pay a tribute of respect to the noble band of Christian teachers employed in our schools; for in attainment and character they can not be excelled by an equal number in any part of the country. Turning away from tempting offers of honor and of gain, moved by love to Christ and this poor people, they entered upon this work, and for years have toiled on in patience and hope, amid reproach and opposition, sustained by an approving conscience and the grace of God. No greater sacrifices for Christ have been made during the present century than those made by our teachers in the South and no toilers in the vineyard of the Lord have been so imperfectly appreciated and so inadequately rewarded.

The work perfomed by our teachers has been purely missionary, none in foreign lands being more perfectly so. These workers are no less worthy than those toiling in distant lands, and their influence in the world's redemption is no less effective and enduring.

About 10,000 people attended the funeral of Tom Thumb.

Resolutions of Approval.

At a regular meeting of the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting, held Thursday, July 26, 1883, the following resolution, offered by Rev. M. C. B. Mason, was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, We have read with pleasure and profit, in the last issue of the SOUTHWESTERN the address of Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B.D., delivered at Holly Springs, Miss., on the 12th of June, 1883, entitled "Watchman, What of the Night?" and,

Whereas, The address as a defense of our race, in answer to the false and outrages charges of the Rev. Mr. Tucker, is both timely and deserving; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the New Orleans Preachers Meeting do hereby heartily endorse the sentiments expressed by Bro. Albert and sustain him in the position which he takes and ably demonstrates that the Negro is not retrograding; further, be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Bro. Albert, at Shreveport, La., and to the SOUTHWESTERN for publication.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Guide to Holiness comes to us filled with excellent matter. It is illustrated by a wood cut of Bishop Peck, and an appreciative paper on the Bishop by Rev. G. Hughes, one of its editors. The Guide is certain improving under its present management.

Dio Lewis's Monthly, is a new magazine devoted to the mission of making sanitary science popular. The No. 1, for August, is on our table. It is published by Clarke Brothers, 68 and 69 Bible House. New York. Terms $2.50 a year, 25 cents a number.

Our Little Ones for August (Boston: Russell Pub. Co.) tells about "Brother Jonathan," "Ten Little Toes," "How Peter was Lost," etc. Price $1.50 per year.

The American Antiquarian (Chicago: Jameson & Morse,) for July is a number of more than ordinary interest. "A Part of the Navajo Mythology," by W. Mathews, has never before been presented. An editorial on Indian migration and the mound builders, shows how the different earthworks correspond to the different races in the Mississippi valley. There is also a readable essay on civilization in Mexico. Price $3 per year.

"Capital and Labor, and the Duty of Governments in Regard to Them," is the title of a pamphlet by Henry McKinney, Great Bend, Pa., Price 10c.

The question of olive culture in the United States is the kernel of an article by Mrs. Blanicardi, called "Under the Olives," which will be an illustrated feature of the August Century. For many years olives have been grown successfully in California, and they promise to become a valuable product of that State.

The scene of "The Bread Winners," the anonymous novel which is to begin in the August Century, is laid in one of the Western Lake cities before and during the great labor riots. Among the characters are several of the laboring class. The story is bjectively written, and is said to contain a large amount of incident and action. The plot involves a suggestive and careful, but not obtrusive, study of important problems in American life.

The August Popular Science Monthly" is vigorous. Its most important article is on the Bell Telephone Company. Dr. Nathan Allen discusses the changes that are going on in the native New England population in the light of the results of the last census. There is a masterly article by W. D. LeSueur on "The Anarchy of Modern Politics," that will be read with profound interest. An account is given by Professor Tyndall of his experiments to ascertain the effect of atmospheric moisture in restraining the radiation of heat from the earth's surface. Professor T. H. McBride describes the geological structure of "The Little Missouri Bad Lands" as a means of accounting for their origin. Dr. Oswald continues his papers on "The Remedies of Nature," and Mr. William T. Hornaday has an interesting and suggestive paper on The Mental Capacity of the Elephant." The election of Mr. Herbert Spencer to membership in the French Academy is discussed in the Editor's Table. THIRD QUARTER. LESSON VI. August 5th THE CITIES OF REFUGE. (Joshua xx, 1–9.)

After seven years, at last, Canaan belonged to the children of Israel. Every one had a certain part and all the families had a home. They must have been very glad for a home, after all their years of wandering in the desert and the battles after they came into the promised land. God still watched over them and the people set the tabernacle up [illegible] Shiloh, and worshiped God there.

Among the Israelities, if a man killed another the nearest relation of the dead person might kill the slayer at once. Sometimes this killing might be without intention, but the friends of the person killed might think the slayer did mean it and kill him for it. Now Joshua was to have six cities, called cities of refuge, and all the roads to them were to be smooth and easy to run over. Then if a man killed another and was not a real murderer he could run there and be safe. If a real murderer ran there then the judges heard all the story and as soon as they knew he was guilty he was given up and had to die.

Don't you see how careful God was with his people? He never gave a law and left room for any mistake, so he gave cities of refuge with guide-posts all along to show the way to them.

The Bible says if we hate any one we are a murderer in our hearts. Sin makes us break God's law, and broken laws bring punishment. God loves us as he did his people then, and gives us all a refuge. This safe refuge is Jesus. When sin is tempting us we can fly to him. The guide-boards are our lessons, text, and sermons, they tell us the way to Jesus, so we can all fly to him and be safe.—Western.

The Housekeeper.

PARIS CAKE.—One pound of butter, one pound of pulverized sugar, one pound of well sifted cornstarch, whites of twelve eggs. Beat the yolks of the eggs thoroughly, add the sugar and beat again; then add the well-beaten whites of the eggs, then the cornstarch, and lastly add the melted butter very gradually; beat all well together. Bake one hour.

BROILED POTATOES.—Parboil large potatoes, peel and cut them into thick slices. Broil the slices on a gridiron over a clear fire until brown on both sides. Serve in a hot dish, with pepper, salt and butter.

COLD SLAW.—Take two-thirds of a cup of vinegar, one egg, two tablespoonful of salt, half teaspoon of mixed mustard, and butter size of an egg; stir until it boils. When cold, pour over the shaved cabbage.

Onions cut up with food for chickens are said to be an effectual remedy for chicken cholera. A little ground ginger mixed with their meal once every day or two is also beneficial when symptoms of cholera appear.

ECONOMICAL SOUP.—Peel six potatoes, four turnips, two carrots, two onions; cut up into small pieces adding a little celery, and toast a slice of bread rather brown; put into a stewpan with two quarts of water. Simmer gently for three hours, or until all is reduced to a pulp. Salt and pepper to taste. Pass through a sieve, and mix in two teaspoonfuls of mushroom ketchup. Warm and serve.

COTTAGE PUDDING.—One cup of sugar; half cup of butter; one egg; cup sweet milk; two tablespoonfuls soda, dissolved in milk; two teaspoonfuls cream tartar in the flour; three cups flour; half teaspoonful extract of lemon. Sprinkle a little sugar over the top just before putting in the oven, bake in a small breadpan, and when done cut in squares, and serve with sauce made of two tablespoonfuls butter, cup of sugar, tablespoonful flour wet with a little cold water and stirred until like cream; add a pint of boiling water, let boil two or three minutes, stirring all the time. After taking from the fire add half teaspoonful extract of lemon.

RICE PUDDING.—Two large tablespoonfuls of rice to one quart of milk, one small cup of white sugar, one cup of cut-up raisins. Let it stand in a warm place three hours, and bake one hour. The addition of one or two eggs spoils the pudding, rendering it firm and dry. Four eggs and half the rice, previously boiled, will make a delicious custard, with a few grains of rice at the bottom.

BROILED SARDINES.—A dish which may tempt a failing appetite or be relished by a convalescent [illegible]. Take two or three sardines from the box, drain all the oil from them, and broil them; then lay them on slices of buttered toast.

Bananas sliced and served with ice-cream are very delicate and dainty. They should be sliced and [illegible] powdered sugar scattered [illegible] for about an hour [illegible]. Set them in the [illegible] for that length of time.

Uncrowned.

Uncrowned, among the lowly,
Walked the Bards in the days that bath flown,
Dropping words of wisdom like jewels,
With ne'er a yearning for earthly throne;
For thoughts of their's were born to cheer
The hearts of the oppressed poor,
And they've sipped the sweets from those dear words
Of the uncrowned kings gone before.
Then cast your thoughts out on life's wide stream,
To cheer the poor struggling souls there,
Every joy of thine, and riches of thine,
Let suffering humanity share.

How To Prepare To Teach A Sunday-School Lesson

1 Read slowly and thoroughly the lesson, verse by verse, several times if necessary to get its full meaning and scope. Even commit the verses to memory.

2. Read corefully the context, those portions of Scriptdre with which the lesson is connected.

3. Examine thoroughly and critically all parallel Scriptures form marginal references in the Bible.

4. From study of the lesson, context, and the parallel Scriptures make careful analysis of the lesson, in writing, substantially as follows:

(1.) Central or leading thought or thoughts.

(2.) Persons mentioned—their characteristics

(3.) Places mentioned—location, geography, history.

(4.) Events—historical, important natural, supernaturl.

(5.) Illustrations—symbols, types.

(6.) Archœolgy, references to ancient manners, modes of thought, life, habits, customs.

5. Thoughtfully and prayerfully consider the application of the lesson and its teachings to the class and its individual members.—Thomas Simpson in the Sabbath School Journal.

Clip out the above and paste in your Bible.

Money will buy a great many things, but it will not buy what makes a gentleman. If you have money you can go to a store and buy clothes. But hat, coat, pants and vest do not make a gentleman. They make a fop, and sometimes come near making a fool. Money will buy dogs and horses, but how many dogs and horses, do you think, it will take to make a gentleman? Let no boy, therefore, think he is to be made a gentleman by the clothes he wears, the horse he rides, the stick he carries, and the dog that trots after him, the house he lives in or the money he spends. Not one of all these things do it—and yet every boy may be a gentleman. But how? By being true, manly and honorable, by keeping himself neat and respectable; by being civil and courteous; by respecting himself and others; by doing the best he knows how. And finally, and above all, by fearing God and keeping His commandments.

Obedience.

"Sir," said the Duke of Wellington to an officer of engineers, who urged the impossibility of executing the directions he had received, "I did not ask your opinion; I gave you my orders, and I expect them to be obeyed." Such should be the obedience of every follower of Jesus. The words which he has spoken are our law, not our judgments or fancies. Even if death were in the way it is—

"Not ours to reason why—
Ours but to dare and die;"

and at our Master's bidding, advance through flood and flame.

"What is promised to the righteous?" asked a mild and amiable Sunday-school teacher of a small child at the far end of her class. "Eternal bliss," quickly responded the child. "Quite right, my dear child," said the mild and amiable. "And now tell me what is promised to the wicked?" "Eternal blister, ma'am," was the prompt reply. The teacher pronounced it theologically correct, but peculiarly depressed.

Re-Investigated.

A Remarkable Statement Fully Confirmed by Three Important Interviews.

An unusual article from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle was published in this paper recently and has been the subject of much conversation both in professional circles and on the street. Apparently it caused more commotion in Rochester, as the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well known not only in Rochester, but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days since, which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquires which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed an editorial necessity.

With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion at his residence, when the following interview occurred.

"That article of yours, doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. Few people ever get so near the grave as I did and then return, and I am not surprised that the public think it marvelous. It was marvelous."

"How in the world did you, a physician, come to be brought so low?"

"By neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true I had frequent headaches; felt tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the next; felt dull, and indefinite pains, and my stomach was out of order, but I did not think it meant anything serious."

"But have these common ailments anything to do with the fearful Bright's disease which took so firm a hold on you?"

"Anything? Why, they are the sure indications of the first stages of that dreadful malady. The fact is, few people know or realize what ails them, and I am sorry to say that too few physicians do either."

"That is a strange statement, doctor."

"But it is a true one. The medical profession have been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. We doctors have been clipping off the twigs when we should strike at the root. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels indicate the approach of Bright's disease even more than a cough announces the coming of consumption. We do not treat the coughs, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, stomach, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said more than one-half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it doctor."

"Precisely. Thousands of so-called diseases are torturing people to-day, when in reality it is Bright's disease in some one of its many forms. It is a Hydra headed monster and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first."

"Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy—Warner's Safe Cure. I am getting my eyes thoroughly open in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also. Why, there are no end of truths bearing on this subject. If you want to know more about it go and see Mr. Warner himself. He was sick the same as I, and is the healthiest man in Rochester to-day. He has made a study of this subject and can give you more facts than I can. Go, too, and see Dr. Lattimore, the chemist, at the University. If you want facts there are any quantity of them showing the alarming increase of Bright's disease, its simple and deceptive symptoms, and there is but one way by which it can be escaped."

Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the Doctor's words, the reporter bade him good day and called on Mr. Warner at his establishment on Exchange street. At first Mr. Warner was inclined to be reticent, but learning that the information desired was about the alarming increase of Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that in the past ten years its growth has been 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishops Haven and Peck, and others. This is terrible, and shows a greater growth than that of any other known complaint. It should be plain to every one that something must be done to check this increase or there is no knowing where it may end."

"Do you think many people are afflicted with it to-day who do not realize it, Mr. Warner?"

"Hundreds of thousands. I have a striking example of this truth which has just come to my notice. A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis, and was showing the students what the indications of the terrible malady were. In order to show the contrast between healthy and unhealthy fluids, he had provided a vial, the contents of which were drawn from his own person. 'And now, gentlemen' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health,' and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command both left him, and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys,' and in less than a year he was dead."

"You believe, then, that it has no symptoms of its own and is frequently unknown even by the person who is afflicted with it."

"It has no symptoms of its own and very often none at all. Usually no two people have the same symptoms, and frequently death is the first symptom. The slightest indication of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one. I know what I am talking about, for I have been through all the stages of kidney disease."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes, I have both read and heard of it."

"It is very wonderful, is it not?"

"A very prominent case but no more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured?"

"I know it can. I know it from the experience of hundreds of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty, I thought there was little hope, and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying, 'there goes a man who will be dead before a year.' I believe his words would have proven true if I had not fortunately secured and used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Cure."

"And this caused you to manufacture it?"

"No it caused me to investigate. I went to the principal cities, saw physicians prescribing and using it and I therefore determined, as a duty I owed humanity and the suffering, to bring it within their reach and now it is known in every part of America, it is sold in every drug store and has become a household necessity;"

The reporter left Mr. Warner, much impressed with the earnestness and sincerity of his statements and next paid a visit to Dr. S. A. Lattimore at his residence on Prince street. Dr. Lattimore, although busily engaged upon some matters connected with the State Board of Health, of which he is one of the analysts, courteously answered the questions that were propounded to him:

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner some three years ago, Doctor?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did this analysis show you?"

"The presence of albumen and tube casts in great abundance"

"And what did the symptoms indicate?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys"

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No sir. I did not think it possible. It was seldom, indeed, that so pronounced a case had, up to that time, ever been cured."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

"Yes, I have chemically analyzed it and upon critical examination, find it entirely free from any poisons or deleterious substances."

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused and to meet the protestations which have been made. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question and the statements they make cannot for a moment be doubted. They conclusively show that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, alarmingly increasing and that it can be cured.

GROUND TO POWDER.

Crushed in the Mill that Stops Neither Day nor Night.

"Oh, yes, that is the almost universal fact, and not a particle of wonder about it, either. Most literary men are the slaves of desk work and prisoners within doors. They eat at any and every hour indicated by the clocks. In other words, they jump onto the hopper of mental labor and trust in Providence to squeeze through between the mill-stones without being ground into meal. Nature enforces the health contract, however, and they tumble into the bag with disordered stomachs, and the resulting nervous and bilious headaches, sleeplessness, and all the rest of it."

Having thus outlined the doleful destiny of the average brain-toiler, Mr. J. R. Francis, associate editor of the Religio-Philosophical Journal, of Chicago, leaned back in his office-chair and paid to the memory of the lost litterateurs whom he known the tribute of a sigh.

"It's sad enough," remarked your correspondent, sympathetically; "but what can be done?"

"Well," said Mr. Francis, "although I haven't the slightest personal interest in doing so, I recommend PARKER'S GINGER TONIC for all the ills that literary flesh is heir to. I have used it myself, not only for digestive disorders, but in my household, for Coughs, Colds, and pains generally, and it meets these cases more promptly and radically than any other remedy I know of. Brain-workers on the Press, in the Law, the School and the Pulpit, will find this Tonic one of the few things that fill the bill."

HISCOX & Co., Chemist, of New York, who are the proprietors, desire to call especial attention to the fact that PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is not to be classed with the essence of ginger, or with any simple preparation. It is a complex and elaborate combination, and covers the range of actual and seated disease. Sold at 50 cents or $1 per bottle. You will save by buying the larger size.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed, and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

The leading business men of Providence, R. I., comprise the Hunt's Remedy Co., and they guarantee all testimonials published by them to be genuine. The following, dated May 4, 1883, from Mr. W. [illegible] Blanchard, Lowell, Mass., is but one of the thousand remarkable cures that are being made by this wonderful medicine. Mr. Blanchard says: "I have been greatly [illegible] for over six years with acute [illegible] disease. I have tried many medicines [illegible] received no permanent relief. A [illegible] recommended me to use Hunt's Remedy. I purchased a bottle of one of our druggists in Lowell, and commenced [illegible] at once, and after using two [illegible] entirely free from all pain, [illegible] myself cured, and I cheerfully recommend this wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy, to all the sufferers from [illegible] and liver disease."

AT LIBERTY.

For a number of years I was afflicted with kidney and gravel disease, and suffered with pains in my limbs and back at times so severely that I could not endure [illegible] and several so-called cures recommended for these diseases, but they did [illegible]. A friend of mine that had [illegible] Remedy, and pronounced it [illegible] urged me to try it, and I [illegible] at Geo. E. Hall's drug [illegible], and before I had [illegible] bottle I began to feel much better [illegible] pains in the bladder and kidneys [illegible] a good deal, and after using [illegible] bottles I found that Hunt's Remedy [illegible] all that it was recommended to [illegible] relieved all the pain, my appetite [illegible] gained several [illegible] have renewed [illegible] of my years, [illegible] at liberty to publish [illegible] may be the means of some [illegible] by the use of your truly [illegible]

[illegible] says that you [illegible] of an [illegible] well, also, to [illegible] a piece [illegible]

A good story is told of the late Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg. It seems to have been a rule of St. Luke's Hospital that no religious services not Episcopalian should be conducted there. A terrified nurse once ran to the doctor saying: "Doctor, doctor, a Methodist preacher is praying with one of the patients." "Stop him," said he, "before his prayer reaches heaven."

All experience teaches that laws are useless unless there is a manhood behind them, sustaining them by a healthy public sentiment. We need more manhood.

Many a small man is never done talking about the sacrifices he makes, but he is a great man indeed who can sacrifice everything and say nothing.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 140 Power's Block, Rochester N. Y. 49-n6 13t-eow

The barrel in Ohio has probably been tapped. The disgruntled Cincinnati Enquirer says: "Let the harmony be sufficient to go clear around." We never heard of it being called har-mony before.—Inter-Ocean.

New York.

Mrs. Twist, No. 18 Avenue D, says she has been troubled with worms for more than a year, and that she took one bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., which brought away from her over three hundred worms, big and little. She now believes herself to be entirely free from disease.

Messrs. D. & J. W. Colton, of Winchester, Ind., happened last spring to get some of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. After selling a few bottles, the demand became so great for it that their stock was soon exhausted. They state that it has produced the best effect wherever used, and is very popular among the people.

Andrew Downing, of Cranburgh township, Venango county, gave his child one teaspoonful of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and she passed 177 worms. Next morning, on repetition of the dose, she passed 113 more.

Jonathan Houghman, of West Union, Park county, Iowa, writes that he is unable to supply the demand, as the people in his neighborhood say, after a trial of the others, that none is equal to Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge.

New York.

Mrs. Hardy, 119 Suffolk street, writes us that she has been troubled with worms for some three years, and that she used one vial of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., which brought away over fifty large worms. Her usual good health immediately returned.

The Great Church LIGHT. [illegible]

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

Lost Friends.

DEAR EDITOR—I want to inquire for my wife, Patsey Johnson; also two children, Gabe and Nathan Johnson, who formerly belonged to John Webster of Harrison county, Texas. My address is Marshall, Texas. LEVE JOHNSON.

DEAR EDITOR—I want to inquire for some of my relatives, my mother, sister and brother. My mother's name was Louisa Goodrich, and used to belong to Squire Edmond Goodrich, on the Gallatin turnpike, seven miles from Nashville, Tenn. My sister's name was Georgiana Goodrich, and brother was William Wesley Goodrich. The last I heard of them was about seventeen years ago; they were then living in Nashville, Tenn. Any information about them will be thankfully received. Address me at Lamaurie P. O., La., for Rev. John Sparks, in the care of Mr. Breaux.

FELIX AUSTIN,
Formerly Felix Goodrich.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my relatives. My mother left all her relatives in Kentucky. Her father and mother were Bennet and Deliley Johnson; her brothers were Rolling, Elisha, Westley and Bob Johnson, and also a brother named Smith Bolett, by father; her aunts were Betty and Sally; she left them all in Cloverport, Ky. They all belonged to Zeak Fisher, brother of Clayton Fisher. My mother was named, at that time, Sally Johnson; she left her son in Elizabethtown, Ky., seven miles from Harding county; before peace was declared his name was Henry Clay Brown; she used to belong to Thos. Brown, brother of Elisha Brown, and her name was at that time Sally Brown, but is now Sarah Forrest. My father, Hardy Forrest, now deceased, left his relatives on Stanley's Creek, Gaston county, North Carolina. His parents were Samuel and Lucy Forrest; brothers, Moses, Orange, Jerry and Wart Forrest and a sister named Margaret Forrest. My guardians, Geo. and Sally Hunter, left the city about fifteen years ago, and said they were going to Norfolk, Va., but I never heard from them. I am anxious to hear from all my relatives. Ministers in Kentucky, North Carolina and Virginia will please read this from their pulpits. Any information will be thankfully received. Address, Chestnut, near Valence street, New Orleans, La. BENNET FORREST.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my mother, if possible to find out her whereabouts. Her name is Malinda Gill. We were seperated in 1843, in Wake county, North Carolina, when I was about 2 or 3 years old. We belonged to Col. Oaddis (who was my father), he sold us to Israel Gill; my mother being high-tempered, Gill sold her and kept me. Rev. Purefile, who carried her to Roseville, where he kept a hotel. When Israel Gill bought mother from Col. Oddia we lived in Raleigh, N. C., then Gill moved with me to Texas. Any information of her whereabouts will be thankfully received. Address me at San Felipe, Texas, care Mr. C. H. Graves. HENRY CLAY.

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can changes become required by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

It is with pleasure we notice the fact that the early English Text Society, of London, England, as an acknowledgement of the high order of instruction in the department of English in the Norfolk Va., College for Young Ladies, has awarded as prizes to the College, a large number of its most valuable publications. A College like this, established for the higher education of the young ladies of the South deserves special mention. The success of this College has been marvelous. It has been in operation only three years, and yet 313 pupils were matriculated during the last session. We refer our readers to their advertisement contained in this number of our paper.

L. W. ELKINS, P. E.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren :—At the last session of our conference, over three hundred dollars were subscribed to pay the debt on the church at Brownsville. These subscriptions should be paid as soon as possible. Up to this time only two or three subscriptions have been paid to Dr. Kynett or reported as paid. Do not put this off till conference which will be here soon. You will find the names and amounts subscribed on the 31st page of minutes. Forward the amount to Dr. Kynett by postal order. Let all be paid before conference. Will the preachers call on the laymen who subscribed at Brownsville and collect and forward the amounts to Philadelphia? The members of conference will bear in mind, in taking up the Church Extension collection, that our assessment is double what it was last year. We have met the conference assessment for several years by taking up a collection at conference. To meet this assessment will require about two and a half cents per member. Can we make it? To meet all the benevolent claims on the conference in full, will require about thirty cents a member. How many of our members cannot pay thirty cents during the year for benevolent purposes? How many can and do pay many times that amount? How many do not pay one cent? Try to get every one to do something. Let our collections show that our love for Christ and His cause is increasing.

J. BRADEN, Secretary.

CHANGE OF TIME BATON ROUGE DIST. CONF.

By request of the brethren the time for the Baton Rouge District Conference has been changed from the 25th, of July to Thursday the 30th of August, 12 o'clock m. at Jackson, Louisiana. The same arrangements to reach Jackson as previously mentioned will stand except parties must take Port Hudson and Clinton train at Port Hickey on Wednesday the 29th, and will be met at Robin's station by wagons.

Brethren will please see to it that all reports are written in due form. Now is the time to push all the benevolent collections. We must excel our past record in this matter. From this time forth lose no opportunity to raise Gilbert-Haven School of Theology subscription funds. Push your collections for the "Southwestern." Every charge will be expected to pay over to the presiding elder on his round its assessment toward the expenses of the delegates to the next General Conference. Push every spiritual and temporal interest of the church, and let this quarter show grander results than ever. We can't afford to be outdone by any district in the Louisiana Conference. Let every man stand at his post and faithfully work to excel the result of all previous years' work, and our success is assured.

Wilbor's Compound of Pure Cod-Liver Oil and Lime. The advantage of this compound over the plain oil is, that the nauseating taste of the oil is removed, and the whole rendered palatable. The offensive taste of the oil has long acted as a great objection to its use; but in this form the trouble is entirely obviated. A host of certificates might be given here to testify to the excellence and success of "Wilbor's Cod-Liver Oil and Lime," but the fact is that it is prescribed by [illegible] faculty is sufficient. Editorial Notes.

King Alcohol is the boss of the hoodlums. Strike him down and his grand army will be speedily suppressed.

The New York Times will please credit clippings from this paper to the New Orleans SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and thereby oblige us and our cotemporary of the Church South, the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

It is said that at the seashore camp [illegible] held by our brethren of the M. E. Church South, that [illegible] persons were converted [illegible], and that few persons were more [illegible] at the altar services [illegible] Keener and his three [illegible] Revs. John, Christian and [illegible].

[illegible] Administrator of Improvements employed a man who had been twice convicted of murder, [illegible] when he at last got on a [illegible] spree and committed some [illegible] of hoodlumism he was forthwith discharged. The line had to be drawn somewhere for the protection of the civil service.

An old presiding elder in Texas writing to this office says, "I have come to the conclusion from what I [illegible] hear that the ——— [illegible] is in a great fever of ex- [illegible] want to go to the [illegible] conference. No more sin- [illegible] be saved till that is [illegible] P. E. was alone for [illegible] but he has now joined [illegible] rest, and they demand [illegible] be sent." The martyrs are [illegible] dead. We have a host of [illegible] are willing to serve the [illegible] positions that call for no [illegible].

[illegible] speaking a wrong word [illegible] never be unsaid; the [illegible] act done can never be undone. And yet no man can be [illegible] with God till he is straight [illegible], so no man who has been [illegible] of wrong should rest until [illegible] has done his utmost to make [illegible]. If he has wronged [illegible] he must make restitution [illegible] has said wrong [illegible] promptly and openly [illegible]. Let his confession [illegible] distinct as his ac- [illegible] as possible let [illegible] the false impression [illegible] corrected, that the [illegible] uttered are re- [illegible] has wronged [illegible] or by act can [illegible] wrong [illegible] he can correct his [illegible] not come [illegible] the top [illegible] trans- actions. Some men seem to think than they can slander, and abuse in a thousand ways and settle it all with the Lord by giving him a little money, singing a few gospel hymns, or saying earnest prayers, but it is an awful mistake. These are all well enough in their place but they can never amend for slander, robbery or any abuse of men. May God help us to find out our mistakes before the day of judgment comes.

In a late issue of the Nashville Christian Advocate the following appeared: "Did Mr. Wesley ever profess to be entirely sanctified?" To this question there was this answer. "He did not." To this the Christian Witness and Advocate of Bible Holiness says, to say that Mr. Wesley did not do a given thing, or make a given profession, is not so easily proved. We might not be able to prove that he did; but no man under the heavens can prove that he did not. while the presumptive evidence is clear that he did make such confession." Well said Bro. McDonald.

According to the Texas Advocate, M. E. Church South, the average Methodist preacher in Texas works for a salary that holds him and his family on the verge of starvation; it is doubtful whether there is one preacher in twenty in Texas who could pay the funeral expenses of a wife or child were such a sad bereavement to come upon them. The Richmond Advocate, Dr. Lafferty's paper, referring to the action of the Minnesota presiding elder's convention on tocaceco says: "Our sub Bishops laugh at such resolutions." In the Virginia Conference "quid rides." That is true; the "quid rides" supreme through all the South, in the church and in the saloon.

Capt. Webb was doubtless a strong man and a good swimmer, but the poor man, like thousands of others, over estimated his abilities. He sought notoriety and gained it in an unwished and unwise way. "I never expect to see you again," said his guide who rowed him out to the rapids, "You do not know me I am an Englishman" the Captain replied as he sprang into the stream. That was a suicidal leap, the power of the seething current was too much for him, and now he is a dead man as the result of his own foolishness. His body was found and the inquest showed that he was neither drowned nor battered to death on the rocks, but that his life was squeezed out of him in the awful pressure of the whirlpool. We can see no thing but an inordinate love of notoriety in this foolhardy leap of Capt. Webb. We could wish so strong a man a better ending.

In an address at the preacher's meeting at San Francisco, Bishop Merrill speaking of the many good things resulting from the centenary celebration said:

"We would have brought to our mind the fact that the Methodist Episcopal Church is the oldest Epicopal Church in the United States.

"Frequently, when persons had said to him that they were members of the Episcopal Church he answered by asking "Which?" This question usually caused great surprise, and he was obliged to explain by stating that the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1784, and the Protestant Episcopal in 1787, hence, the Methodist was the oldest and, as all know, much the largest Episcopal Church in the United States."

Clark Chapel.

Interesting Reopening Exercises—An Excellent Sermon and Some Fine Music.

[From Nashville Daily American, Monday July 30.]

Yesterday was the occasion of the reopening of one of the strongest colored churches in the city—Clark Chapel M. E. Church. The auditorium has been beautifully frescoed after the most approved fashion, while the wood work is veneered dark walnut and the floor carpeted with a beautiful all wool french pattern, and the window sash changed from square to gothic formed and stained glass. No house of worship in the city has a more comfortable or neater auditorium than Clark Chapel. Every seat was taken yesterday morning, but so perfect was the ventilation of the building that there was none of that sense of suffocation often felt in more pretentions churches,

Rev. L. M. Haygood, pastor of the church, acted as presiding officer.

Rev. Dr. Shipp, of Vanderbilt University, occupied a chair in the pulpit.

The services were opened by a stirring voluntary by the choir, "The God of Israel," Rossini. It was evident from this effort that the congregation would not suffer for lack of good music. The choir numbers fourteen voices, seven male and seven female.

A scripture lesson was then read by the Rev. L. M. Haygood, Rev. J. Braden, who was down on the programme for this portion of the services, being unavoidably prevented from being present.

The congregation than sang a hymn, "Zion," and prayer was offered by the Rev. C. O. Fisher, D. D., of the Connectional Book Depository, at Atlanta, Ga.

Another beautiful voluntary, "Nearer my God to Thee," was sung by the choir.

A very powerful sermon was then preached by the Rev C. O. Fisher, D. D. Text—"Watch ye; stand fast in the faith. Quit ye like men; be strong."—2 Cor., xvi, 13.

Dr. Fisher impressed upon his congregation the fact that there is a great conflict going on in the world between sin and righteousness, and that it was impossible for any one to remain neutral in this conflict. A negative Christianity was contrary to all the teachings of the Scriptures.

A more attentive and well-behaved congregation never listened to a sermon, and many were the fervent responses elicited by the powerful utterances of the preacher.

Prayer was then offered by Rev. L. M. Haygood.

"O, be Joyful in the Lord," a pleasing voluntary, was sung by the choir.

Owing to the absence of Rev. J. Braden Mr. Haygood said that the church must content itself for a history of the church with that given in the "History of Davidson County," which he proceeded to read.

Mr. Haygood then read a financial statement, which showed between $1,100 and $1,200 expended for repairs, bringing the church in debt $200.

The Sunday-school was complimented for having paid $102 toward the repairs. A collection was then taken up to meet the debt mentioned above.

One of the finest pieces of music of the morning was "Gloria," Mozart's 12th mass, which was admirably rendered by the choir during the reception of contributions to the debt.

Each member of the congregation was furnished with an envelope, in which they either deposited their donation or named the sum on a slip, and then carried up to the tables where the secretaries received them.

The congregation then sang, "All hail the power of Jesus' name."

After some announcements by the pastor the choir sang, "Set Watchmen," the congregation sang the doxology, and was dismissed with benediction by Dr. Fisher.

In the afternoon a large congregation was present, and engaged in the following exercises:

Voluntary, by choir, "I Was Glad."

Scripture Lesson, Rev. D. Cook.

Hymn, "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," Dennis.

Prayer, Rev. Alfred Bowman.

Sermon, Rev. L. M. Haygood, Text, Gen. 3, 15.

Singing, "O, Come Let Us Sing Unto the Lord," Choir.

Collection.

Letters, regretting their inability to attend, were then read by the pastor, from Dr. M. W. Taylor, M. Williams, J. J. Holland, A.M., D. W. Hays, H. Primm, A. Phillips, W. S. Butler, J. P. Price and others.

Benediction.

At night the house was filled to its utmost capacity, and the following programme observed:

Voluntary, "Beautiful are Thy Towers," choir.

Hymn.

Prayer.

Voluntary, "Children of the Heavenly King."

Sermon, Rev. C. Fisher, D. D.

Prayer.

Address.

Voluntary, "Gloria," choir.

Collection.

"Thanks be to God." choir.

Benediction.

The total collection for the day amounted to $176, almost the entire amount of the debt.

La Teche Seminary.

La Teche Seminary is located on the Bayou Teche, 100 miles west of New Orleans, and four miles from the village of Franklin, in one of the scenes of Evangeline, immortalized by America's greatest singer, Longfellow. This institution is conducted upon a broad, humanitarian basis, open to all, irrespective of sex, or previous condition, and without sectarian basis.

WHEN ORGANIZED.

La Teche Seminary was founded by the Rev. W. D. Godman, D.D., in 1875, and from the first it has been patronized by the Freedmen's Aid Society, and has always had a place in its list of institutions, as published in the annual reports.

WHAT IS THE SCHOOL DOING?

In 1875 the number of scholars was 138, of whom 32 were of academic grade. In 1876 the school was in charge of Mr. R. L. Thompson. In 1877–78 it was taught by Miss Mahaffey. In 1778–79–80 it was suspended during the absence of the president in the North. In 1881 it was reorganized. The number of scholars for that year was 215, the list being published in the catalogue of the New Orleans University. In 1882 the number instructed was 255. March 12, 1883, a happy concourse of persons, composed of scholars, teachers, citizens and visitors, witnessed the opening exercises of the seminary in the new hall, which is a part of the reconstructed Orphans' Home. The seminary has furnished the New Orleans university with excellent recruits every year, and some of our youth have been among her best students.

OUR FUTURE.

What shall it be? Shall we ever rise to prominence as a people? What will give us the greatest respectability? A writer has said, the prosperity of a nation comes from well directed industry; its happiness from an impartial execution of the laws; its greatness from the indomitable spirit of its people. Have we industry? Have we equal laws? As a people have we an indomitable spirit? The homes that dot the fields of this State, many of them were earned by the labor of men who were turned loose without homes, without education, without any business qualifications, and the worst of all, improvident. These will speak for their industry in terms more eloquent than words. What does Dr. Hartzell say, "They are gaining property. They own $15,000,000 in Louisiana. They pay taxes on $500,000 of property in Atlanta, Georgia, and in that whole State they own probably ten millions. That means nearly one hundred millions in property for the Negroes of the South acquired mostly since the war. That is not much for 6,500,000 of people, but it is a good beginning."

OUR SCHOOLS.

The reports from the officers of Freedmen's Aid Society, report expended during the past year, $110,745.70. 25 institutions centrally located in the South; six of which are legally chartered; the balance, schools of high grade. In four years from these institutions have gone 400 Biblical students to preach an intelligent Gospel; 18 law students, who will do their duty as impartial pleaders of an equal law; 37 medical, to care for the bodies and health of our race; 195 collegiate, to train the youth of the race, and to inspire lofty aspirations in the developing South. 1,292 normal, eminently fitted to train; 3,500 in all departments. What a stream, a flood of influence to heal the race of the malady of ignorance, vice and disease?

HOW TO GAIN RESPECTABILITY.

We must gain for ourselves a permanent position in this country, state and parish. This can only be done by acquisition of education and wealth. Education is the bulwark of a nation. We must educate or perish. Here, in the land of our bitterest oppression, severest trials, and difficulties, we are to have the privileges and achieve our most brilliant success. Parents, every dollar you spend for the education of your sons and daughters, is just that amount of money put at compound interest for your children when of age. Do you not wish to see your sons and daughters occupy positions which you could not, because of existing circumstances? Though some of you may have possessed the latent ability to fill any station in the gift of the nation. Give your sons and daughters a chance.

Patience! Wait! Wait on the Lord! Time will wear away the deepest opprobrium heaped at our door! Advantage and culture will raise the most abject race to power and influence. Let our motto be—virtue and honesty. Greater devotion to our civil calling, education, and the acquisition of wealth.

Kuklux Again.

IN TENNESSEE.

Wartrace, Tenn., Aug 2.—Masked midnight marauders have again made their appearance in this vicinity, after remaining quiet for about five years. Last night a party of a dozen or more disguised men went to to the house of a man named Clinton a white wood-chopper, living four miles out on a Shelbyville farm. They broke the door down and carried him and his wife out in different directions, about 400 yards from the house. They then made Clinton bare his back and kneel down, when four of the men gave him four blows each with a hackberry bush. His back to-day presented the appearance of raw beef. He says they also beat his wife. Before going they warned him to leave the neighborhood in twenty-four hours. Clinton has been accused of keeping disorderly women about his house, but nothing can justify this exhibition of lawlessness. A party of masked men also visited the cabin of a negro who lived about a mile from town, this morning before daybreak, and make him take his things out and burned it. His wife was sick, so they took her out and laid her under a tree on a pallet. Subsequently a white neighbor came and took her to his home. It is a source of anxiety and alarm to all good citizens to see this revival of the Kuklux work.

IN GEORGIA.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 2—A large and enthusiastic meeting of the best citizens of Banks and Jackson counties met to-day at Maysville, to take some action in regard to the raids of a lot of lawless persons upon negro homes and whipping and shooting negroes. Strong resolution condemning such voilance were passed. It seems for some time past there had been a gang of Kuklux molesting negroes in the vicinity of Maysville. Numerous outrages have been committed in the last two weeks, such as giving 175 lashes to Cad Bush, and unmercifully whipping Nancy Prickett. Recently about fifteen or twenty Kuklux visited the plantations of Minard Sanders and James Holland. They took down the doors of cabins, shooting Berry Sanders, and whipping Alexander Brooks, Warren Bryson, Glenn Stout, and others negroes. Several negroes have since abandoned their homes and crops for fear of being killed. In Jackson county, it is said, a negro of bad character named Bob Ransom was called on a few nights ago by a party of fifty masked men and whipped severely. One of the party then shot Ransom in the mouth, the ball coming out at the back of the neck. Ransom is not expected to live. Some murders are reported elsewhere, but the truth is not known, there being many conflicting stories told.

From Nashville.

DEAR BROTHER—I send you a copy of American of this city, with Dr. Haygood's speech in. I dedicated a new Church at Mt. Zion on the 29th ult., Murfreesboro' District, Rev. B. B. Manson, pastor. The house is neatly finished and will be used for school as well as for Church. It is 25x35 and completely finished, painted within and without. Debt about $80. The collection was $35. There were about 600 people present.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TENNESSEE.

S. Bennett, Soddy circuit: "Our third quarterly meeting passed off nicely. Elder Provine was present and attended to every part of his work, his address to the Sunday-school on education was one of the best I ever heard. The people were all pleased. The collection for the presiding elder was $5.20, for the bishops $1.10. Our people are going up, they love the SOUTHWESTERN."

L. J. S. Bell, Philadelphia circuit: "Children's Day was strictly observed with blessed results. An appropriate address was made by the pastor, and the collections were as follows, R. Jones 80 cts., Marilla Ballard $1.20, J. Pollock $1.00, H. Lee $1.40, Mary F. Backstou $1.20, J. Pollock $1.20, Ella White $1.20, an advance over last year of $3.85. June 24 we were favored with a wonderful address from Bro. J. H. Brooks a former student of East University. Bro. Brooks is a young man of great promise. [illegible] comes a cry from all parts of this land for educated men who [illegible] open up and cause our people to understand the wonderful things in the word of the Lord."

J. Kanseer, Manchester: "When I came to this place we had but few members and no church. Now we have a nice church all paid for and a good membership. I opened the door of the church and all the baptists but three, and Cumbelites but one joined our church. We observed Children's Day and had a pleasant time. The people are poor, but I expect to have all my obligements to take with me to conference. No preacher can tell what he will have to bear till he has tried. Bro. [illegible] Kay is my presiding elder and I followed his advice and have [illegible] to the Lord and the Methodist Episcopal Church by [illegible] We have a good Sunday-school, prayer and class meeting."

MISSISSIPPI.

[illegible] circuit: "John [illegible] as a result of a protracted meeting 16 converts. Children's day was duly observed. [illegible] in concert, [illegible] of scripture by the pastor, preached [illegible] $3.10."

[illegible] McKinneyville: "I [illegible] to report my work. After my sermon the Lord gave me souls. I organized a class of fourteen members. [illegible] way back, the poor and need help; the [illegible] have no books. My school numbers twenty."

LOUISIANA.

J. Wright, Natchitoches: "[illegible] with the request [illegible] I held my third quarterly conference July 28. All [illegible] were presented in writing. [illegible] Children's Day at Union chapel. [illegible] were present: Baptist, Wesley [illegible] Hon. Addresses [illegible] by Mr. Scott and [illegible] people enjoyed much. The largest [illegible] given by Wesley Chapel raised $15. [illegible] were greatly encouraged [illegible] resolved to make [illegible] one of the great [illegible] This is one of the [illegible] to win souls."

[illegible] Grove: "I [illegible] are moving [illegible] meeting at [illegible] were converted, and also received [illegible] June 17 was set [illegible] We had a [illegible] children. The [illegible] prepared [illegible] The excitement [illegible] teachers [illegible] appropriate. A [illegible] and well [illegible] were delivered [illegible] Watson, P. C. The col. [illegible] $5.10, after serving [illegible] and every hungry man, woman and child, was well cared for."

TEXAS.

A. C. Culbreath, Huntsville: "W. B. Pullem held our third conference, preached a grand sermon, administered the sacrement to 96. Collections $11.20. The pastor reported 100 visits, made nine conversions, seven received into full membership and 27 on probate. Benevolent collections $1.75. Children's Day $5.10. Trustees had raised $34.00. All of our hearts have been made sad by the sudden death of Bro. Richard Grant, he was killed by a saw-mill explosion, he lived long enough to tell us that he was going to rest with Jesus."

L. Felder, Patterson Circuit. "I have received twenty-four into the church since I come to this work. Our church is nearly rotten down. We are making arrangements to build another one, 36x50, with a gallery, and expect this fall to raise the required sum. Our presiding elder, M. H. Nichols, was with us July 2d. We had a profitable time. Children's Day was observed and our collection was $5."

"Ask."

It is a little word, but how full of meaning; everything of good seems to be summed up in it. It is a command of God, imperative, and yet how lovingly given.

In every condition in life we need something stronger than ourselves to depend upon, that we know cannot fail us. There is sin in the world, and things are not as they should be. We have trials and temptations; we have losses of property and friends; we have bitter disappointments, and we suffer from disease; we never know what sorrow the future may bring to us. God in his great goodness has given us the word of life, in which there are commands to guide us and promises to sustain and comfort us. "Ask," in itself, seems almost sufficient to guide us safely "o'er life's troubled sea." God knows our needs, but it is according to his will that we acknowledge to Him our weakness, and in His strength go forth to our duty. As we hold the Bible in our hand, we may ask that light be so shed upon its pages that we may understand its teachings, and that we may be able to obey. Are we not as Christians, living beneath our privileges? Do we appreciate our blessings, and do we live as unselfishly as we ought? As we look over the world we see a great conflict going on between right and wrong. We see the darkness that prevails in heathen lands and the cruelties that are practiced there. Human life is not valued; women are no better than slaves, and customs very absurd, because arbitrary laws, from which there is no relief, only as the light of the Gospel may dawn upon them. Here in our own land we not only have the Bible, but every means of improvement we need. What we do not know, we may by exertion. "Grow in grace, and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ," seems to mean that there is no limit to what God may do for us, or what we know of Him, only as we place the limit ourselves by failing obey His requirements. There is a great responsibility where there is so much light. Our blessings might be taken from us and we might be even worse than the heathen, but many people are asking, and receiving, and God's mercy still endures, and we are growing and learning. It is not far away in the past when millions of human beings in this highly favored land were slaves, living in ignorance, and had not the right to serve God according to the dictates of their own conscience. It was a greater abomination than could be carried, right in the blaze of the Gospel light, and it is now no more. If there had been less of sin, and more of living up to the light, it never could have been. What terrible wall—caste—that slavery built about the colored people, must yet fall before the prayers of the faithful. We trust the day is coming not far in the future, when people will cease to seek happiness and prosperity in opwressing the weak, or building themselves up on the ruins of others. Christians will keep on praying, and in that is our only hope.

Life is a probation. We are here on trial for the great future beyond the grave, and a preparation for that is of the greatest importance. If our lives are in accordance with the teachings of the Bible and the guidance of the Holy Spirit, we need be in no doubt as to the future. We cannot live right each day in our own strenghth. We need to ask God for spitual strength. We need to ask for daily bread, for home and friends and health and employment, and for patience and resignation, and for whatever else we need. We, as earthly parents, are made happy by the privilege of caring for our children. "If ye, then being evil know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father, which in Haven, give good things to them that ask him." Who knows with what tender yearnings he views our persistence in refusing to ask for what we meed.

Our sin-smitten world needs more faith in God as a tender and loving parent. We may ask God for help in every emergency. How often on the journey of life there comes to us a time of darkness and uncertainty. "Ask and light comes, and we may go joyfully on our way. Doubts may come, sorrows may accumulate, but we may "go and tell Jesus," and we will find that we can look beyond the clouds when the sun shines, and all is bright.

"Then my soul, in every strait,
To thy Father, come and wait,
He will answer every prayer,
God is present every where."

Pleasant Grove Circuit Sunday-School Institute.

MR. EDITOR:—I desire to give a brief report of our second Sunday-school Institute, held at Pleasant Grove circuit, June 8, 9, 10, 11, 1883. The institute opened at eight o'clock, p. m. The church was filled with both with black and white. Rev. L. M. Moore gave an address of welcome; was glad to see both black and white present. The Methodist Episcopal Church knew no man on account of his color. Miss Ida M. Comond presided at the organ, and gave us sweet music. Our pastor then took the chair, and the following programme was carried out:

When is the best hour to open a Sunday-school?

Was it the love of money or of sin that caused Judas to betray his Master?

Was Judas a sinner from his youth?

Should little boys play on the Sabbath?

How may a Sunday-school help the Church?

Is it right to collect money on the Sabbath?

Should those who cannot read come to the Sunday school?

How may officers and teachers increase the Sunday-school?

Should those who use tobacco or snuff teach in the Sunday-school?

Should one teach in the Sunday-school who makes uses or sells whiskey?

Should one be employed as a teacher who does not attend the regular church service, nor support the Church?

How may a Sunday-school promote the welfare of the community?

Should we work to induce others to attend the Sunday-school?

What is the best book to be used in our schools?

How many ways can one steal, lie, covet, or murder?

What is it to love one another, and how may officers and teachers live loving?

Who should read the Bible?

What is the work of the Sunday-school?

Should teachers in our Sunday-schools attend picnics where they allow dancing?

Should not all the officers and teachers use all their influence to keep the scholars of our Sunday-schools from attending these places?

These questions were discussed and generally answered to the entire satisfaction of the Christian men and women who were present. Bro. Moore showed himself to be the right man in the right place. As a Sunday school worker we have never had his superior. At the close of the institute he delivered a sermon of great power taking for his text Acts 14–22. It is hardly possible for me to give anything like a correct outline of this sermon. It will be long remembered by those who heard it.

Why am I a Member of The M. E. Church

BY REV H. W. TATE LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

I will briefly state I am a member of the M. E. Church that was organized in 1784. Our church was always opposed to slavery, and labored for its extinction. Our great founder Rev. John Wesley, was entirely against the slave system. He called it "the sum of all villainies." During Mr. Wilberforce's noble effort against slavery in the Bristish Parliment, Mr. Wesley wrote him to "Go on in the name of God, and in the power of his might, till even American slavery, shall vanish away before it." At Conference 1784 the question was asked "what shall we do with our friends that will sell and buy slaves?" Answer, If they buy with no other design than to hold them as slaves, and have been previously warned they shall be expelled, and permitted to sell on no consideration." Further, "what shall we do with our local preachers who will not emancipate their slaves in the States where the laws admit it? Answer try those in Virginia one year, and suspend the preachers in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. Truly she is the abolition church. "No person holding slaves shall in future be admitted into society or to the Lord's supper, till he previously comply with the rules concerning slavery. At the General Conference in 1844 Bishop James O. Andrew having married a wife who owned slaves, his case was considered and after long and exciting debate the General Conference determined that it was their sense "he should desist from the exercise of his office until the impediment should be removed." the brethren of that conference from the South adhered to the practice of slavery and withdrew from us and organized themselves into the "M. E. Church South" the ensuing year. Bishop Andrew was declared one of their bishops and retained his slaves. The M. E. Church in this division lost 500,000 members, and the control of much church property and many literary institutions, yet she did not sacrifice her principles against slavery. Our discipline upon the subject is strong, seen in the following paragraph 37, "We declare that we are as much as ever convinced of the great evil of slavery, we believe that buying, selling, or holding of human beings, to be used as chattels is contrary to the laws of God and nature and inconsistent with the Golden Rule, and with that rule of our discipline which required all who desire to continue among us to "do no harm," and to "avoid evil of every kind." We therefore affectionately admonish all our preachers and people to keep themselves pure from this great evil, and to seek its extirpation by all lawful and christian means." The influence of the M. E. Church has always been engaged to destroy the great evil of slavery, though she lost in many instances. On this question her record is clear.

The M. E. Church has been in the lead on the temperance question. As early as 1743 in preparing his General Rules, Mr. Wesley inserted a strong rule against "buying or selling spiritious liquors or drinking them unless in cases of extreme necessity." This so far as known was the first rule of the kind published by any church organization. In 1789 the conference denied all persons who engaged in the manufacture of grain into liquor. The General conference of 1876 declared that "we are unalterably opposed to the importation, manufacture and sale of all kinds of distilled, fermented, and vinous liquors designed to be used as a beverage and that it is the duty of every member of the christian church to discountenance and oppose the evil at all times by voice and vote." "We are fully convinced of the wisdom of total legal prohibition." Unfermented wine is recommended to be used on sacramental occasions. Other Methodist bodies are opposed to intemperance but not so bold and definite as our church.

Again ours is a church of no color line. There are some exceptions in a few localities among some of the constituents, but that distinction is fast vanishing away. As the people become more intelligent the less there will be of it. When our people, lay and ministerial are more enlighted, and better cultured religiously they will arrive to respect and promotion in our church as rapid as they are worthy.

The M. E. Church is for the people regardless of race or color or previous condition of servitude. We are not an ecclessiastical body for a particular people or race of same complexion, but a church for the world—which is our parish. The Jews thought they were to have no dealings with the gentiles, but God taught them that "of a truth" he "is no respector of persons." "But in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him," "and that he hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth." So our church is broad hearted enough, the platform on which we stand is wide enough, to send her noble sons and daughters to the perishing heathen of Africa, sunny, chime with the apostolic spirit saying: "Let a thousand fall before Africa be given up," and thence to China with her millions of worshipers of idols, and other mission fields desiring "to know nothing but Christ and him crucified." We will not be satisfied till all the world from the least to the greatest are saved by the blood of Christ.

Our colored brethren have been said to be in an inferior relation to that of the whites of our church, but that is false—we are not under the whites but equal with them, we are a part and parcle of the same M. E. Church. Ordained by the same bishops with as much precaution, entitled to the same church privileges, and performing all the functions any preacher or member of our church does. Do not be led by every wind and doctrine you hear said against our church, for they are not always true, though from the lips of professed Christians. The only question upon which exception is taken is the colored bishop. We have already had two colored bishops in the persons of Revs. Francis Burns in 1858 and John Wright Roberts June 20th 1866. The powers of these bishops were limited to Africa, but we are now ready if the church needs him for a bishop from among our brethren, not as a colored bishop with limited powers to preside and superintend over the colored conference of our church and no more, but when there is a man elected from among us, let him be a bishop full fledged with the function of any other superintendent in our church—regardless of conference or territorial limitations. Not until then do we need a bishop from among us. This is only a question of time.

The educational and religious benefits are worthy of careful consideration. Dr. Hartzell has well said that "aside from the spiritual influence of the pure gospel, there is no such beneficent power at work among the negro race in the States to-day as the M. E. Discipline." He [illegible] properly co[illegible] best opportunities [illegible] being trust between the M. E. Church and others. The Methodist Episcopal Church is a militant body contending for the ten commandments and the glory of a pure people." The grand old mother church came to our relief in the South just as soon as the war closed, ready to lift our much abused and helpless race from the night of ignorance and vice to an intelligent and Christian people. What was our condition when her faithful workers came? We had very few churches, no schools, were unqualified for citizenship and usefulness in life. Other denominations made their fields principally among the whites of the South where there was of course more wealth but our church came to help the most needy and abused negro. She was not above working for the christianizing, educating and elevating of us, though the poorest and most outraged people of the South, to atone for the wrongs done us by "the sum of all villainies"—slavery. In 1866 the Freedmen's Aid Society was organized. It has for its object the education of the colored people of the South. To this end we have established 25 institutions of learning which are centrally located, easy of access, with an influence extending all over the South. Six chartered schools, with full collegiate powers, four theological seminaries, one medical college, and fourteen academies, with one hundred professors and teachers instructing 3,506 pupils, classified as follows: Biblical, 110; law—normal, 1,470; intermediate, 414; primary, 383. In [illegible] our church raised for the Freedmen's Aid Society for educating the colored people, $99,402.58; collected and disbursed during fifteen years, $1,088,040.64. Is there any other Methodist church doing so much annually for the education of the Negro in America? There is not. I am prepared truthfully to say our church has done, and is doing, more for the elevation of the colored man than any other. Our increase in membership (colored) since the war has been 167,123; average per year 14,080; value of church property, $2,003,129. Now I have commenced to say why I am a member of the M. E. Church, and hope to tell you all the reasons some future time. Our church! the chaste and venerable mother of Methodism adhering to the primitive doctrines of Christianity moves onward, with charity to all emblazoned upon her banner, and with arms open to welcome back to the fold all of her prodigal children, regardless of color or nationality, to help do our humble part of good for suffering humanity, home and abroad, and harm no other Christian church, but regard all as workers together for God.

Letter from Houma.

HOUMA, July 27, 1883.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN:—Please give space for a few words concerning our church-work at Houma, La. The conference certainly made no mistake in sending Rev. A. J. Ford to us. His has been one constant, persistent effort to build up the spiritual interest of the church, to keep her out of debt, and to meet the various benevolent collections, as set forth in the discipline. He did not show signs of somnolence on his arrival, nor has he shown any since his arrival among us. He engaged forthwith in the work, with a determination to succeed. Thus far he has not failed of success. Several have been added to the church, and the attendance of the Sunday-school has been increased.

The official meetings are held every Saturday. The leaders are required to make weekly statements of their classes, thus keeping the minister informed as to the relative usefulness of each member—spiritually and financially. The choir is in a better condition now than it has been since its incipiency. All the members read the music tolerably well. Hon. Joshua Pollard, the representative of Terreboune parish, is the teacher; he understands his business, too. We all feel gratified in having him among us.

The choir is preparing to give a concert to assist in raising means to repair the church. Dialogues have been procured and select music for the occasion. The concert will take place Aug. 31st and Sept. 1st. Should any of our friends and sympathizers desire to come and witness the exercises and to assist us with that which is needed in repairing our edifice, let them do so.

We cordially extend the invitation to all. Yours in Christ.

H. S. HAWTHORNE.

Home, Sweet Home.

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.
A charm from the skies seems to hallow us there,
Which seek through the world, is not met with elsewhere.
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
There's no place like home!
There's no place like home!

An exile from home, splendor dazzles in vain;
Oh! give me my lowly thatched cottage again!
The birds singing gayly, that come at my call,
Give me them, with the peace of mind dearer than all.
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
There's no place like home!
There's no place like home!

How sweet 'tis 'neath a fond father's smile,
And the cares of a mother to soothe and beguile!
Let others delight 'mid new pleasures to roam,
But give, oh! give me the pleasures of home!
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
But give me, oh! give me,
The pleasures of home.

To thee I'll return, overburdened with care;
The heart's dearest solace will smile on me there,
No more from the cottage again will I roam;
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
There's no place like home!
There's no place like home!

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE.

Who Pays The Bills?

The traffic in strong drink is a fearful source of expense and loss. We know who makes the money out of it; the distiller, the rumseller, and they alone. But a question which more intimately concerns us is this: Who pays the bills? The question is not whether the rumseller shall grow rich or the rum drinker shall grow poor. It is not whether the rum drinker shall keep his money, or the rumseller shall win it from him; but there is a vast amount of loss and expense in which neither of them directly participate. We may be silent while the rum drinker wastes and spends that which belongs to him, which is but little, and which daily grows less and less; but an avalanche of wreck and ruin results from this traffic, which neither the rumseller nor the rum drinker endures, and yet the bills must be paid, those expenses met. Who pays the bills?

Who pays for the fires kindled by drunken men? Who pays for the ships wrecked by tipsy pilots, or lost through drunken captains or drunken crews? Who defends the city from riots incited by men who are maddened by alcohol? Who pays for the feasting and junketing of [illegible] public officials? Who feeds the drunkard's hungry children? Who provides for the drunkard's broken-hearted wife? Who supports the beggarly tramps who, having wasted their money in drink, wander about the country? Who repairs the losses caused by the failure of intemperate merchants and reckless and half intoxicated business men? Who makes good the damage done by drunken workmen, and the hindrance to business caused by the sprees of intemperate employees? Who pays for the railroad wrecks caused by drunken conductors and engineers? Who pays the money that the drunkards borrow that they may obtain strong drink? Who builds the asylums where crazy drunkards [illegible]? Who supports the idiot [illegible] of drunken men? Who [illegible] of officers for watching [illegible] rowdies? Who pays [illegible] and sheriffs for catching [illegible] murderers? Who pays [illegible] and juries and judges [illegible] drunken criminals? Whose [illegible] jailors, turnkeys [illegible] keepers to take care of [illegible] of crimes committed [illegible] Who pays the expenses [illegible] committments and [illegible] occasioned by the crimes [illegible] men? Who pays [illegible] and burned [illegible] Who builds [illegible], which but [illegible] unoccupied? Who endures the sufferings and losses and brutalities which are due to the recklessness and insanity of drunken husbands and fathers? Who pays for inquests held on drunkards found dead by the wayside? Who pays for a pauper's coffin and for digging a drunkard's grave in the potter's field, when the last glass has been drunk?

Who pays the bill? The drunkard cannot pay them, for he has wasted his substance in the cup. Will the rumseller pay them? He has neither the disposition nor the ability to do it. Whoever would attempt to hold a rumseller responsible for the ruin he has wrought would "sue a beggar and catch a louse."

The fact is, you and I, and the sober, industrious, toiling portion of the community must meet all these bills. The drunken rowdy whose head is punched in the street fight is cured in the city hospital at our expense; the drunken beggar is fed from our table; his hungry children come to our doors for bread, and we cannot refuse assistance to his broken-hearted wife; and when, at last, having wasted his substance in riotous living, he comes to the almshouse, the asylum or the prison, honest, sober, temperate men pay the bill for supporting him there. There is no escaping it. We may protest and object; we may growl at taxes and find fault with beggers, but ultimately and inevitably we must foot the bills. We cannot have the privilege of spending our own money, nor can we even enjoy comfort of saying how it will be spent.

Probably one dollar in every ten of the hard earnings of honest toiling laborers throughout the nation is in some way devoured by this rum devil which haunts the land, and howls about our homes to waste and ravage and destroy. For every ten dollars which the laboring man earns, he may count on being robbed of from one dollar to a dollar and a half to meet the expenses of this infernal traffic.

So, gentlemen, taxpayers, business men, farmers, capitalists, stockholders and gentlemen of leisure, walk up and draw out your pocket-book and pay your rum bills; one cent out of every dime, one dime out of every dollar, one dollar out of every ten, ten dollars out of every hundred, one hundred dollars out of every thousand that you earn or gain. You say that you do not use the article. That makes no difference; it is used, the nation permits it, and you pay for it: so walk up and settle.—Delaware Signal.

The Suicide of Ahithophel.

BY REV. PAUL WHITEHEAD, D. D.

And when Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he saddled his ass and arose, and gat him home to his house, to his city, and put his household in order, and hanged himself, and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father."—II. Samuels, xvii., 23.

A case of suicide! An ancient one too—2,900 years ago!

Increase of suicides in our time. Probably owing to increase of care, and spread of atheism, and other false religious doctrines.

Melancholy lessons learned from modern and recent cases—the violence of passion; the curse of strong drink; the woes of poverty under grinding covetousness; Hood's "one more unfortunate;" the aching and desolation of the a heart "without God and having no hope in the world."

Does this ancient case teach us nothing?

I. SOME OF THE PARTICULARS OF THE CASE.

1. It was very deliberate self-murder. Time to reflect on that ride home, while setting his house in order, etc. Plan and method about it all. Selected his mode. Neither poison nor the sword (favorite methods of ancient times), but the rope. Said to be the least productive of suffering. Arranged his affairs; no phrenzied desperation; no lunacy; no crazing fury. The cool, deliberate resolution of a strong will.

2. It was the suicide of a very able and distinguished man. David's chief counselor. Rank equal to Secretary of State in our Government, or Cheif-Justice of Supreme Court. Man of surpassing sagacity and foresight. (See xvi., 23.) Power to discover winning side. Went to Absalom by no love for rollicking youth or gay scoundrels; saw he was playing (humanly speaking) a good card.

II. CAUSES OF HIS SUICIDE.

1. Disappointment. "When [he] saw that his counsel was not followed," etc.

Personal chagrin is a tremendous motive with many. Ahithophel's self-complacency was increased by his successful career, etc.,—his reputation. Stung to the quick. Might have borne it from David, but not from Absalom!

2. He foresaw the ruin of Absalom's cause. The adoption of Hushai's counsel he believed—and rightly—to be fatal. He did not know it to be treacherous—but he saw it was ruinous—if well-meant. Embarked with men who ought to have gained the part of success, but he saw they were going to the bottom; he would go ahead of them; do for himself what the headsman would be ere long (if he spared himself) required to do for him.

3. A deeper cause—deeper—for it destroyed restraints. (Such as fear of God, dread of death, love of life, etc. How calmly he disregards these!) viz: Unbelief in God and Eternity.

Proven by his conduct. Utter want of principle. False—treacherous—tricky—plotting and scheming with Absalom in secret. Unpatriotic—no care for country: a friend of bad men. Absalom engaged in sedition, privy conspiracy, rebellion, and murder. Ahithophel counseled a bold scheme to slay David; to do it himself. This he proposed to David's soul—the son not long before recalled from banishment by a doting father's love! All this to have power not before enjoyed! Unlicensed power in a State governed by a bad, ambitious monster of ingratitude! He was then a selfish, deceitful villian—having faith neither in God, nor man, nor good. For virtue and noble ends he substituted keenness—"long-headed, level-headed" management.

But the game went away—"agley, as says Burns, concerning schemes "o'men and mice;" and he "threw up his stakes!" Nothing else to live for! Nothing to look for beyond—to hope or fear!

REMARKS.

They may plot, and do it well; but a sublime and all-powerful Providence counterworks (see xvii., 14), and they tread on the verge of ruin and destruction all the time.

It may have temporary success, but comes to terrible grief in the long run. Let us "trust in the Lord and do good." Neither in private life nor in public affairs need we be afraid of "the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass."

The Absaloms and Ahithophels will come to a bad end. Ignominious death will conclude a career which began with a great flourish of trumpets. David's behavior as he went from his capital is a good model for men oppressed and distressed by the power of corrupt and wicked men. How resignedly he leaves all to God! when he sends back the ark (xv., 25). Better to die with such a man than reign with Absalom; and so thought Ittai the Gittite—born Philistine though he was.—Southern Pulpit.

The Little Bird.

A little bird with feathers brown
Sat singing on a tree—
The song was soft and low,
But sweet as it could be.

And all the people passing by
Looked up to see the bird
That made the sweetest melody
That ever they had heard.

But all the bright eyes looked in vain,
For birdie was so small,
And, with a modest dark-brown coat,
He made no show at all.

"Why, papa," little Gracie said,
"Where can this birdie be?
If I could sing a song like that,
I'd sit where folks could see."

"I hope my litttle girl will learn
A lesson from that bird,
And try to do what she can,
Not to be seen or heard.

This birdie is content to sit
Unnoticed by the way,
And sweetly sing his Maker's praise
From dawn to close of day.

So live, my child, all through your life
That, be it short or long,
Though others may forget your looks,
They'll not forget your song."

Advice To Young Christians.

Not a day without private prayer, reading a portion of Scripture striving to do something for Jesus and self examination; receive, too, this counsel in addition:

Not a day without some special unusual prayer for some neigbor or acquaintance or some part of the mission field or some blessing you have never or very seldom asked before.

Not a day without some very thoughtful examination of some single sentence in the Bible until you have gained from it some fresh and fuller view of truth.

Not a day without some little act of self denial, such as giving up a comfortable seat to some one else or surrendering some advantage of your own for another or some little sacrifice for the dear Savior's sake.

Not a day without a few minutes spent in trying to realize the abiding of Jesus Christ and in being ready should he come again.—J. H. Cooke.

A certain well-known bishop was in the habit of pausing frequently in his sermon, poising his fingers on the desk before him, and drawing a long breath before recommencing. A little boy in the congregation became very impatient at the long services, and was often admonished by his mother. At length, seeing that the child's impatient increased, she whispered during one of the pauses: "Be quiet; he is almost through." "No, he isn't; said the little fellow; "he's swelling up again.

The editor of a Michigan paper attempted to state that a certain newly-married couple had gone to Niagara Falls, where they would spend their honeymoon, but the types made him say that they "would spend they money soon." He wasn't very far out of the way, we suspect.

A man went home the other night and found his home locked up. After infinite trouble he managed to gain entrance through a back window, and then discovered on the parlor table a note from his wife reading; "I have gone out. You will find the key on the side of the step."—Washington News.

Good sense and good nature are never separated, though the ignorant world has though otherwise. Good nature, by which I mean beneficence and candor, is the product of right reason.—Dryden.

Isn't a woman wet enough with a cataract on her eye, a waterfall on her head, a creek in her back, forty springs in her skirt, high tied shoes and a notion in her head?

A traveler relates how on his last voyage home, at sea, a cry was raised—"A wreck! a wreck!" Hastening to the poop the saw on the larboard bow a small flag, or signal of blue cloth, distinct among the top of the waves about two miles off. Two flagnres were discerned; a white man and a man of color sitting waist up in the sea. The flag of England, symbol of help and deliverance, was hoisted, a boat lowered, and five stout and willing hands pushed off to the raft. Every eye was stretched towards the point. No one moved, not a word was uttered, even breathing seemed difficult. But when the first man, and the second, still, benumbed, and swollen with the water, had been softly lifed into the boat, the pent-up feelings found utterance in the almsot simultaneous exclamation, "They are saved!" Some persons wept, others seemed ready to faint under emotions of sympathy and joy. How much more deeply shall there be "joy in the presence of the angels of God" under a keener estimate of the value of spiritual life; and gladness in the progress of the work of redemption "over one sinner that repenteth."

Temperance.

There are more temperance certainties than temperance questions; more both in number and importance. For example, it is certain:

1. That distilled liquors are a dangerous poison; should never be used as a bererage; and as a medicine only with the extremest caution and under the wisest advice.

2. That wine and beer; if ever useful, except medicinally, are always more or less dangerous; most dangerous for those who crave them most, especially dangerous for the young, and for persons of sanguine and nervous temperament. Every reader of this paragraph knows scores who have been injured by excessive use; how many can he mention who have been injured by abstinence?

3. That the liquor traffic, as now conducted, does more injury to society, produces more crime and pauperism, breaks up more homes, and destroys more life than all other dangerous traffics put together.

4. That the State has always a right of self-preservation; and that it has, therefore, a right to enact such laws—prohibitory or regulative—as experience indicates to be most efficient for the purposes of self-preservation. If France has a right to prohibit the sale of American pork because there are trichinæ in some pork, America has a right to prohibit the sale of liquor because there is poison in a great deal of liquor.

5. That it is the duty of society to pass such laws as are passed, and in general to do whatever is practicable, in the present state of public opinion, to reduce the evils of drunkenness and the liquor traffic. The free sale of liquor, whether with or without the seeming sanction of law, is suicide.

6. That, finally, whatever temporary relief and incidental help may be obtained in dealing with the liquor problem from legislation or moral suasion, the real, radical, fundamental remedy is a Christian public sentiment which will condemn drunkenness as a sin, not condone it as a weakness; the ultimate temperance society is the Christian church; and the instruments for reform are the pulpit, the press, the Sunday school and individual example.

By the side of these temperance certainties the temperance questions are of minor importance and significance.—Christian Union.

Dr. Talmage, in a recent sermon, stated that 250,000 persons in New York and Brooklyn receive charitable assistance. The first thought with almost every one is. This must be a great exaggeration; but a careful examination of statistics bears out the assertion. The Herald shows, from the reports of the Charity Organization Society, that 40,000 families applied for releif in New York last year, and that this probably represents 200,000 persons in New York alone, while 50,000 more will be easily furnished by Brooklyn. These people are not absolute paupers, but are on the road to pauperism. The problem of a quarter of million of people in these two cities needing help from the public is one of great magnitude and pressing importance, and the proper solution of which is intimately connected with the future well-being metropolis.—N. Y. Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1883

Our agent, Bro. Wellington Peters, at St. Paul, Galveston, Texas, is working nobly for the SOUTHWESTERN. He has our thanks.

We learn from the Methodist Advocate that the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the white conferences are to have a Methodist convention at Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 11, 12, and 13 next. It is a significant fact, upon which we make no comment at present, that members in the mixed and colored conferences are not called to meet in this convention. Still the world moves, but not backward.

Dr. Rust returned from a flying trip to New Haven, Connecticut, where he went by the instructions of the executive committee of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and purchased the beautiful Sheffield property for the site of our new University at Chattanooga. The Times, of Chattanooga, thus speaks of the purchase: "The university committee have purchased a site for their building for $30,000, and it is one of the finest locations in the universe, no lovier spot can be found in lovely East Tennessee. Commanding a full view of [illegible] Ridge, Lookout Mountain, Walden's Ridge, Raccoon [illegible], it stands in the midst of [illegible] that will live in [illegible] of history while time [illegible]."—Western Christian Advocate.

[illegible] earnestly hope that this [illegible] spot is never to be marred [illegible] the erection of a caste school. [illegible] patiently and confidently wait [illegible] developments of the future.

A Word About The Centennial.

The writer honestly believes in the doctrines and discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in her people. He believes that take them as they are, they are anxious to do right, and are willing so far as they understand them to meet all the obligations of duty and service required by the church. What they most need is intelligent instruction, faithful and honest dealing, just what many of them do not get. It becomes those who occupy the position of teachers to see that their preaching does not go out in an ill-digested harangue of disjointed words. He who by God's providence occupies the position of an instructor and a leader of the hosts of Israel needs himself to be well instructed. Methodist preachers ought not only to be familiar with the origin and history of Christianity, but also of the Methodist Episcopal Church. An acquaintance with its history gives the preacher numerous interesting and powerful illustrations for enriching and adorning his discourse, and enforcing the truth.

We are fast coming to the great Centenary of Methodism. In the latter part of 1739 the "United Society" was organized by John Wesley in London. In 1839 Methodists throughout the world with songs and tears celebrated the centennial anniversary of their rise.

In 1766 Methodism was introduced into this Country. In 1866, it was just a hundred years old in America.

This was soon after the close of the war. The Union had been preserved, slavery had been overthrown, and the great heart of the church was full of Doxologies, and with a thank offering amounting to full eight millions of dollars, the Methodist Episcopal Church celebrated the rise of Methodism in this Country a century before.

At the Christmas Conference which met in Baltimore 1784 we date our complete organization as a church in this country. On that year a "Deed of Declaration" was transferred from Mr. Wesley to the "Legal Hundred," so that all the rights and franchises that formally inhered in him, now belonged to them; and it being one hundred years on Christmas 1884 since the Methodist Episcopal Church was formed in America, the Bishop, acting under the instruction of the last General Conference, have issued an address to the Church, setting forth the plan for the celebration of the Centennial of American Methodism, and they recommend that our people every where he called upon to contribute of their means to build up the educational institutions of the church. The General Conference strikes the key note at $10,000,000 as a thanksgiving offering.

A large portion of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South have special reason to enter heartily into the proposed celebration. To-day they are blessed with freedom, they are on the highway to a new and glorious civilization, schools are open to their children, and the old Mother Church is gathering in the young men and women by thousands each year. It seems to us that our people in all the South ought to hail this one hundreth anniversary of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America with demonstrations of joy and thankful offerings to the educational institutions of the Church in the South.

The Louisiana Conference proposes to raise $10,000, towards the erection of a building for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology in connection with the New Orleans University. We need intelligent action.

Work for the Season.

This is a heading we often see in our agricultural journals. We think it especially appropriate to the SOUTHWESTERN at this time. There was a time when our church papers felt called upon to defend our doctrines and discipline. Free grace and free will, universal atonement and universal freedom in accepting or rejecting the provisions of the gospel, assurance of salvation, possibility and danger of falling from grace, the possibility and privilege of living without condemnation in the serene heights of perfect love. These great central truths of Methodism were denounced from the general pulpit and press, sometimes with argument, but more generally with satire and invectives. Then perhaps it was the chief duty of our church papers to defend our doctrines and usages. But those days are past. The doctrines, hymns and usages once so peculiar to us have become the common property of the church. Our Methodism has nevertheless gone on, built her own walls and extended her own lines. By her success she has infused her views and practices into other churches. Success is success the world over, and in this world nothing succeeds like success. It is the successes of our Methodism that has led so many to adopt her methods and usages. It is the hundreds and thousands of thousands converted at our altars who have entered other communions and leavened their lump that has made them so completely like our own. It is a wonderful contrast. Then Methodism was out in the cold, barefoot, the least, the poorest and the most despised; now she is first, the richest and the most honored. It is not merely in her influence, but in herself she is strong, rich, great and powerful. We do not claim that the SOUTHWESTERN has had any prominent part in the defense of our doctrines or peculiar usages. But there are certain reforms that always grow out of the gospel, for the defense of which the SOUTHWESTERN has always been set. Upon the question of total abstinance and prohibition its record is clear. It has been an earnest devotee from the start of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. This divine breath was breathed into its nostrils when it become a living soul. Through evil report and good report it has been true to God, his church and the colored race. Its mission is far from being ended. It is still set for the overthrow of the harpy Caste, and for the propagation of the truth as it is in Jesus. Some have been zealous in the defense of the doctrines but a little unfaithful in the application to the condition and needs of men. The SOUTHWESTERN has been the faithful and fearless advocate of the whole gospel. Here its record is clearer than any other journal published by our church. We think that it has always been right. But there are great questions that still press upon the Church and nation. The brotherhood of man is a doctrine most uniformly accepted by the Christian people of America, but its application to the condition and needs of men is most unchristian. Against enormous wealth, ancient usage, political power, social contempt, and the general embruting of the masses, the great battle with slavery was fought out to its glorious issue. But the conflict is not ended; the seething pot must continue to seeth till all brethren in Christ can sit together in the congregations, kneel together at the altars, partake together of the sacrament, preach from the same pulpits and mingle in the same Christian circle. Till this is done much remains undone.

The Time Limit.

The Central Christian Advocate and the Pittsburg Christian Advocate have recently put themselves to considerable trouble in making a somewhat extended canvass of the popular feeling throughout the country among the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church with regard to the Time Limit. We are not advised as to the theory upon which the inquiry was prosecuted, or what rules were followed in the selection of persons and places, or whether these were supposed to reflect public or mere individual preference. It appears however that a larger number of presiding elders, pastors, college professors and presidents, and eminent laymen, including merchants, physicians, lawyers, farmers, and editors, in Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia were quietly and simultaneously interrogated as to their views on the extension of the time or the removal of the time limit. If we knew that all of these answers were given with due care we should certainly place a high estimate upon them. But as Dr. Buckley observes, "some of the writers on both sides show that they would have done well either to give simply their opinions or to delay offering their reasons till they had done a little thinking on this subject." We fear that too many of them will be like the presiding elder "who voted in the convention to memorialize the General Conference in favor of removing the time limit," but now in a published letter he appears as one "opposed to it and in favor of extension." Our brethren may pity our stupidity, but we say frankly, to us these letters are hardly worth a moment's serious consideration; they give us no information upon which we can rely, which we fear that they are not opinions carefully formed. Our wonder is that the New York Advocate, a paper whose chief characteristic is facts, and never deals in uncertainties, should make so solemn a thing out of a matter on which it was so well persuaded so "little thinking" had been done. We are opposed to the removal of the time limit, we like what some call the itinerant machine—the quick and quiet way in which it removes men, and the unfaltering promptness with which it gives to all our preachers a pulpit, and all of our churches a pastor. Nor can we see how its removal can have the least tendency to bring to the church a single good promised. A settled itinerancy is one of the problems of these times we cannot comprehend.

The Cholera.

This terrible scourge has at length been developed in Alexandria, so that nearly all the important places in Egypt are, more or less, infected. The death-rate at Cairo is full 400 each day. All Europe was never more thoroughly alarmed than now. All the governments are instituting radical quarantine regulations. It is said that a number of ships are on their way to the United States, and it is feared by many that they will bring the germs of the disease along with them. Our only hope is that our great seacoast cities will take time by the forelock. There never was more need of stringent regulations. We are not only threatened by cholera from the East, but all along the line of the Gulf shore the yellow fever has posted its skirmishing line, waiting the first opening made by negligence to push through and overrun the country. Certainly New Orleans needs to keep up a careful watch and a rigid quarantine, and if possible avert the awful calamities of other years. In New York very stringent quarantine rules are continually enforced. Every vessel from any part of the world where any epidemic disease exists, is detained for five days on her arrival and sent to the quarantine anchorage. If at the end of that time no disease has been manifested either among the crew or passengers, they are permitted to have their freedom, and the vessel may go to her dock; but if such vessel have a cargo of what may be termed quarantinable matter—such as rags, paper, hides, skins, feathers, hair, horns, hemp, and woolens—they must be landed at the quarantine warehouse and be disinfected. Then the vessel is fumigated in the most thorough manner. If a vessel arrives having quarantinable disease on board, the sick are immediately transferred to the floating hospital, the cargo treated in the above way, and the vessel disinfected. The passengers and crew who are not sick are kept five days on inspection, and at the end of that time are released if no case of disease has declared itself among them. There is probably no greater enemy to health than filth. We are glad to know that the health departments of the city are cleaning up the streets and alleys. We think that it behooves every citizen to exert themselves to the utmost to prevent the accumulation of filth around their dwellings.

Hazing at West Point.

It was first-class sport for Cadet Hartigan and his friends to handle their victim roughly, to throw him into the ditch and bruise him severely. But to be dismissed from the United States Military Academy under disgrace, after having by three years hard study won a position as one of the best students in the first class, is not a little humiliating. Some may call it a severe punishment. We are thankful to be assured that Secretary Lincoln has taken this matter in hand, and that the War Department is determined to put a stop to hazing at the West Point Academy. This is a matter that has been complained of for years, but as no action has hitherto been taken the cadets have paid no respect to the orders issued to them. But the expulsion of Cadet Hartigan of the first class, and otherwise a good student, for hazing will, we hope, improve the morals at West Point. This offense was an aggravated one. A new cadet who was on duty was assaulted, abused, beaten and shamefully bruised, but when it was reported to Secretary Lincoln that Hartigan was the organizer and leader of the movement he was dismissed immediately from the Academy. If there are other cadets at West Point who like the sport of hazing let them remember the fate of Hartigan. Let this case be made a precedent, and hazing will soon cease at West Point.

Circuit and City.

Rev. A. J. Goodloe, of West Harpleth, Tenn., is a circuit preacher. In a letter to the Nashville Christian Advocate, he reads a short homily to city preachers, and gives these words of caution as to the loss of young men by the snares of city life. It is a word of caution that needs to be often repeated. Read:

"A young gentleman of excellent family and decided promise, who professed religion and joined the church since I came to Douglas circuit, has taken a clerkship in the city, and learned to dance since he went there. No restraint being put upon church members there in regard to the dance, and seeing them engage in it with the utmost freedom, he came to the conclusion that it was lawful, and that he might also participate in it.

And thus it is continually. When I go to a member of my charge as I did to this young man, who has become connected with the dance, or those who take whisky privileges, I am confronted with the statement that these things are allowed in the city churches, while I am evidently regarded as a presumptious meddler in matters of which I am ignorant. The "big preachers" are in the cities, and they certainly know more about these things than "little circuit rider," is the sentiment that obtains with these people. Some are falling upon a plan of taking their membership to town, while living on the circuit, that they may enjoy the liberties of city Methodism, and others have threatened to do likewise.

"I do not charge my city brethren with winking at these sins, but I am telling what ought to be told; and I do say unless measures are adopted to arrest these evils, and others, in the city churches, it will be next to impossible to prevent the country charges from being overrun by them. Brethren, we must act together in the matter of discipline, or we had as well surrender our colors to the army of worldliness who have encamped in our sanctuary, I do not see why we cannot do so; indeed, it seems the easiest thing in the world for us to co-operate in this matter."

The salaries of the clergymen of the United States are about $6,000,000 a year. The dog tax nets the Government about $16,000,000 a year; and the Commissioner of Agriculture says it costs $50,000,000 to feed them.

PERSONAL.

—President Arthur is now visiting the Yellowstone Park.

—W. B. Schmidt has been elected President of the Times-Democrat Publishing Company.

—Mr. Longfellow's property, including $40,000 worth of copyrights, has been appraised at $356,000.

—President Arthur's son has been fishing in the Northwest with the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise.

—Hon. Montgomery Blair, the last survivor of Lincoln's cabinet at the time of the emancipation proclamation, died at his residence at Silver Springs, Md., on the 27th ult.

—By the will of the late Henry L. Kendall, of Providence, R. I., the public library of that city receives $175,000 and other charitable causes about $50,000, including $6,000 to the Unitarian Association.

—Mr. Shinichiro Saito, the Japanese official who has become secretary to General Foote, United States Minister to Corea, is well known in Boston. He bears the degree of LL. B., obtained at Harvard.

—C. W. Campbell, Principal of Houston Seminary, Texas, is spending a few weeks in New Albany, Wilson Co., Kansas. In a personal note to the Editor Bro. Campbell says: "Prohibition and prosperity certainly go hand in hand in this beautiful Country. May stay here and associations with the people of the State has convinced me that prohibition is not a failure. We meet with acquaintences from the East who have came here to live where they could be out of the way of temptation and they are building up nice homes with the earnings that use to go to the dram shop."

—The Chrsstian Standard has the following: Hon. Charles G. Baker, the leading layman in the Independent Methodism, at Baltimore, was asked by the Liquor Dealers' Protective Association, if he had signed a petition for local option, and threatening, if he had, to withdraw their custom from his glass works. He promptly replied, that "he did not distinctly, remember having signed such a petition, would make inquiry, and if he had not would do so immediately." May the Lord multiply this generation of Bakers.

—Rev. J. W. E. Bowen, pastor of the Revere St. M. E. Church in this city, late a student of the Gilbert Haven School of Theology, New Orleans, pledged a sum of money in aid of that institution. This he will have to raise by subscriptions from friends of this important school in this vicinity. We are glad to join with others in aiding him in this enterprise. Bro. Bowen is a noble illustration of the excellent work accomplished in Freedmen's Aid seminaries, and we trust he will be generously aided in raising the amount for which he stands pledged.—Zion's Herald.

—For several years past Gen. Joseph A. Ekin has been the officer in charge of the quarter-master's department, and the government manufactories and stores at Jeffersonville and Louisville. He has been a faithful officer, a courteous gentleman, and a thorough Christian. Under his administration the government interests have been carefully and faithfully managed. He is still in health and activity, but by a seemingly foolish law of Congress he must be retired on account of age. Gen. Ekin's successor, Col. Rufus Sexton, is ordered to report at Jeffersonville, Ind., before Aug. 3, 1883, at which time the General is ordered to retire. Gen. Ekin will settle permanently in Louisville, where doubtless he will be active in religious and Church matters. He has made a most excellent record as a United States officer.—Western.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TENNESSEE.

S. B. Danley, Capleville: "Elder Price held our quarterly conference. Benevolent collections were good. Paid to elder this year $45. Children's Day was observed."

LOUISIANA.

M. C. B. Mason, Haven chapel: "On Sunday, July 29th, our reopening services were held. It was one of the grandest days that our church here has ever enjoyed. Rev. L. P. Cushman, our beloved presiding elder, preached the first sermon in the evening, Bros. J. F. Marshall and T. G. Montgomery having preached in the morning, and was followed by Bros. M. J. Dyer, T. J. Johnson S. Priestly, P. King and T. Jackson. The glory of the Lord was with us, Zion strengthened and our people much encouraged. One deserving feature of the meeting was that all of our ministers who were present subscribed and paid something on our church debt. The Y. M. L. D. and the H. B. Associations were out and rendered financial aid. After services we were invited to the elegant home of sister Hall where a splendid dinner was prepared for us. Sister Hall is not a member of our church but has more than once offered her services to help us. The Lord will bless such willing hands to do good. Collection $30.55."

The Sunday-school picnic given some two or three weeks since by the Haven chapel was a grand affair. The Sixth Street and Simpson chapel M. E. Sabbath-schools were out as invited guests. Every thing passed off quietly, pleasantly and lovely, and when the large gathering of young and old started for their homes all felt that it was good to be here. J. H. Norwood is the faithful superintendent.

TEXAS.

W. L. Malloy: "Our second district conference will convene at Clarksville, Aug. 29. We hope to dedicate our new church at that time. We want a new man and, would like to have you come and help us. Our work is moving on grandly. Bro. Moore at Paris circuit has received sixty on probation and over ten have been baptized, and other brethren report great success."

J. T. Jacobs, Pleasanton: "I appointed camp-meeting July 15th, under the direction of Elder Mack Henson. I was looking after the work at Brackettsville and Eagle Pass, and was not present until 14th. Elder Henson had the camp on fire. This is the only revival we have had in four years. To date 2 conversions, 2 in full connection, 13 on probation, 1 reclaimed, 9 baptisms."

J. M. Scott, Caney: "My work is in good condition. Have had six conversions this year; am going to have a protracted meeting. My people wanted a camp-meeting but I was sick and not able to attend it. There are some additions, and 5 on probation."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. R. Jordan, Roseneath: "Elder G. W. Barney held my second quarterly conference, lectured and preached an excellent sermon. We have two Sunday-schools, and the work is in a growing condition; [illegible] with 34 average attendance. Paid elder this quarter [illegible] $23.25. Dismissed 2 [illegible], 8 received in full membership."

[illegible] District Conference.

[illegible] district conference for [illegible] at the M. E. church [illegible] the Methodist Episcopal [illegible] the city of Corinth, [illegible] o'clock, Thursday, [illegible] presiding elder [illegible] presiding. On [illegible] was elected [illegible] was called [illegible] the circuit upon the churches, and quite a number had been converted and added to the church. Each pastor's name was called and reports made which were encouraging to all. Collections had been fair, some had collected as much as $15 on Children's Day. Rev. J. A. Bowen, pastor of the M. E. Church South, of this place, and the Rev. Johnson, pastor of the Corinth circuit M. E. church—both were introduced and spent as much time with us as they could. After they had listened to us for a long time they were kindly asked by the chair to say something. The Rev. J. A. Bowen came forward and said how highly he was pleased with the way that we were conducting business, and said that he had never seen any man that could conduct himself in parliamentary style any better than Elder Shumpert; he was also glad to see so much union and sympathy manifested among the pastors of the two churches.

We found Corinth alive in the grace of God. There was a large attendance during the session and the people were so well pleased they invited us to come again and bring the whole Mississippi conference. The following resolutions were adopted by a rising vote:

Your committee on periodicals makes its report:

Resolved, That as we have Book Concerns at different places under the Methodist Episcopal church.

Resolved, That we will do all we can to have our people purchase disciplines and hymn books, and all other books that are recommended by our church.

Resolved, That we endorse the latest style of the SOUTHWESTERN in its new dress, and will ever hold it up before our people in the pulpit, and have them to subscribe for it and pay for the same.

Respectfully,

W. H. H. GALLION,
P. JAMESON,
W. M. GATEWOOD.

Rev. John W. Davis, pastor on the Corinth circuit, asked the conference if they could help him, as one of his churches was about to be sold for debt that had been hanging over it for some time. He had 16 members at that point, with the best church-house on the circuit; the amount due is $40, and the members are not able to pay it. Rev. P. Jameson was not in favor of helping people to do what they could do and ought to do for themselves. On motion, the members of the district conference headed a subscription, and paid what they could in cash, to help pay the debt, as follows:

W. H. H. Gallion $1, P. Jameson $1, J. M. Shumpert $1, B. L. Crump $1, J. L. Pratt $1, James Trice 50c, S. S. Quinn 50c, B. W. Sims 25c, A. Boyd 25c, J. Yeates 50c, J. W. Davis 50c, A. Carr 50c, W. Johnson 25c, N. Anderson 50c, W. M. Gatewood 50c, A. W. Wright 50c, L. L. Shumpert 25c. N. H. Williams 25c.—Total $11.10.

Brother Davis thinks by this move the people will pay the other with pride. The gentleman being present, whom they owed, after seeing that all right, said he would take off $5, and give them time to pay the balance.

From San Antonio.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Boerne is a German settlement about thirty miles north-west of San Antonio, and belongs to this work. We have seven members at this point, and these live from eight to ten miles apart. They are very poor and scarcely able to do anything for the support of the Gospel or anything else. As their pastor they seem to love me, but they have never been able to give me more than $2.25 since I was appointed to this work.

The Sunday school, until quite recently, has been an entire failure. It now numbers between 35 and 40 and only 19 of this number are able to read. The parents seem to care but little whether their children go to the Sunday school or stay away. It is a fact that where ignorance is most dense, and education most needed it is the least desired.

I held a three days' meeting at this point which resulted in a general quickening of the members, the reclaiming of one back-slider, and two joining on probation. The place of worship is constructed of rifted timber driven into the earth, covered with mud in the inside, and a badly constructed roof. This is what has been called the Church at Boerne, and even of this the trustees have no deed. I would respectfully urge that our preachers see to it that at all points where our people contemplate erecting a Church that they see to it that a good title is given to the land.

In view of the fact that our work at San Antonio demanded my entire time I have, with the consent of my Presiding Elder, placed the work at Boerne in the hands of one of our local preachers, who will give them more attention, and I trust be instrumental in gathering a good society at that point.

At San Antonio our people are going up. We are having a school taught by a Mr. Simms, who seems to be a man of Christian patience. Our prayer is that much good may come to us and our children thro' his instrumentality.

Fraternally, J. R. CARNES.

Letter from Corinth.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN:—This year is my third at this point. On my return from conference, I was welcomed back by the members and friends by an ovation that excelled all my expectations, and I was provided with numerous articles of provisions so arranged as to be emblematical of the bounteous harvest that was in store for me at this place this year.

To date the improvement on church property excels any previous year. Our financial records show collections to date $327. The church and parsonage newly painted. With all of our improvements the church has no outstanding indebtedness—except on the estimates for presiding elders and pastors for this year and benevolent causes, which will be met O. Order for twenty dollars to be placed to my credit on SOUTHWESTERN, our most valuable church organ clothed with the glitter of new dress and filled with gems of profound thought.

Our district conference convened here July 12th, 1883, and we certainly enjoyed the most successful season I ever witnessed. The brethren appointed to discuss the various subjects before the conference, acquitted themselves most admirably, showing that they had given much consideration to the work. Our conference was visited by Rev. J. H. Bowen, of the M. E. church of this city, Rev. Johnson, also of this city; both gentlemen addressed the conference and eulogized our deliberations in the highest terms. J. M. Martin, Esq., editor the Corinth Herald, and sheriff B. F. Williams, friends of ours, called and took great pleasure in witnessing the deliberations, and sheriff Williams responded to the call of a collection liberally. The entire collection during conference amounted to $55.65. The white ministers who visited the conference during its session, have, since its adjournment, expressed themselves highly pleased with the presiding older, J. M. Shumpert.

The good people of Corinth had made ample provision for the entertainment of an annual conference, and the whole cry was, give me more preachers. Sunday, 15th, 200 souls communed at the Lord's table. The conference being attended by nearly all the leading ministers of the district; and the people of Corinth are so well pleased with the proceedings of this conference that they would willingly entertain a district or annual conference at any time.

The leading citizens of Corinth claim that there has been a radical change during my administration, and earnestly wish that I could be returned again. These expressions are sustained by the spiritual and financial prosperity of the church. 46 souls have been added to the church this year; 36 converted in the spring revival. Sabbath-School from 55 to 75, regular attendance. In summing up, I am thankful to my God that all bids well for future success. Respectfully,

W. H. H. GALLION

Trinity Charge Moves On.

Messrs. EDITORS:—We made a rally on the 15th inst.—the third Sunday in July—to raise money to liquidate some accounts that hang about our church. While I do not wish to be burdensome, I beg you to allow me space to give the names of those who paid their subscription. At the same time you will please bear in mind that many whose names do not here appear gave quite freely. We raised in all $133.45. Rev. G. W. Smith, of Galveston, was with us by special invitation and preached at 3 and 8 o'clock, p. m. The following gave $5 each: H. Franklin, R. Dobey, C. Chatman, L. Cluff, H. Taylor, Wm. Churchill, A. Jackson and Dr. C. B. Ramsey. F. Vance, $4.50. The following paid $2.50 each: J. Phillips, G. Thomas, Lavinia Perstine. Class No. 7. R. Dobey, leader, $2.25. The following gave $2: Cynthia Lee, Mary Springer, Annie Grant, Emma McFadden, Eliza Brown, Lucinda Pullam, Louisa Butler, Millie Green, William Loomis, Edward Jackson, Alice Johnson. Little Sallie $1.75. The following paid $1.50: Jas. Kyles, A. Russell, Candace Bentley D. Brighton, Lewis Rhodes, R. White, Annie Carter, Mary Riley. Sallie Thomas $1.25. The following gave $1: L. NEW BOOKS.

Point Prominence. The history of a Church. By Rev. Y. B. Meredith. Walden and Stowe, Cincinnati, Price $1.00.

We have read this book with unflagging interest. The author, himself a minister, has sketched true to life the character of most every Methodist he preacher has yearly comein contact with. It is a book for these times, and all times. We wish it could be read by all the members of our church, especially by those who are inclined to use close figures in fixing and paying the pastor his salary. While we believe that there is a growing disposition to make more adequate provisions for the support of our preachers, we still think that as a class they are poorly paid. This is a book that the minister can afford to circulate. It will put corn in the hopper and meat in the barrel.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Harper's Magazine for August is a brilliant number. The frontispiecis, "A Town Garden." Mr. Lathrop, in his admirable paper, "The Heart of the Alleghanies," describes the characteristic industries that have made Altoona and Pittsburgh. There are some remarkably fine portraits of famous American horses. George Von Bunsen's article on the German Crown Prince will command general attention. Mr. C. H. Farnham's article, "The Canadian Habitant," is the result of much and patient observation of French Canadian life R. F. Zogbaum describes the military manœuvres of the French army. Colonel Higginson, in his eighth American History paper entitled, "The British Yoke," gives a concise and comprehensive review of the events which led on to the Revolution. Lieutenant J. D. Jerrold Kelly, U. S. N., writes about the "Modern Yacht," discussing the comparative merits of the sloop and cutter types. Harriet Prescott Spofford contributes a brief romance, novel, and somewhat humorous. The Editor's Easy Chair discusses the Brooklyn Bridge, the Occupations and Education of Women, the Philosophy of Jenkins, etc.

The Boston Musical Herald for July has a number of readable articles, musical criticisms, four pieces of music, and the usual notes on current events in the musical world.

The North American Review for August opens a very spirited discussion of the subject of "Moral Instruction in the Public Schools," by the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton, who offers a practical scheme for conveying ethical instruction without reference to religious tenets, and the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, who maintains that the Bible must be made the basis of all moral teaching. Henry D. Lloyd exposes the tricks of speculation in grain, which operate to make bread dear, and maintains that they should be repressed by law, as being in opposition to public policy. "Woman in Politics," by ex-Surgeon General Wm. A. Hammond, is a caustic discussion of certain facts of nervous organization which in his opinion render the female sex unfitted for participation in public affairs. Hon. Francis A. Walker reviews "Henry George's Social Fallacies," criticizing in particular his doctrines of land-tenure and rent. The evils resulting from "Crude Methods of Legislation," both national and State, are pointed out by Simon Sterne, who advocates the adoption of certain rules of legislative procedure which, in English practice, have been found to serve as an effectual barrier, both against lobbying and against the mischiefs of ill-considered law-making. Charles F. Wingate writes of "Unsanitary Homes of the Rich," and there is a joint discussion of "Science and Prayer," by President Garfield and Thaddeus B. Wakeman. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York, and for sale by booksellers generally.

The numbers of The Living Age for July 21st and 28th contain Frederick II., and Maria Theresa, Edinburgh Review; The Responsibilities of Unbelief; A Conversation between Three Rationalists, by Vernon Lee, Contemporary Review; Agnostic Morality, by Frances Power Cobbe, Contemporary Review; A Northman's Story, Longman's Magazine; Reminiscences of Walter Savage Landor, by Lady Lytton Bulwer, Tinsley's Magazine; Rudder Grange, Saturday Review; Lord Lawrence, Quarterly Review; Luther by James A. Froude, Contemporary; Mrs. Delaney in Ireland, Temple Bar; The First Warning, Cornhill; Terra Cotta, Novelty Magazine; Norwegian Building, Builder; with an instalment of "The Wizard's Son," the conclusion of "The Little World, a story of Japan," and the usual amount of choice poetry. KIDNEY WORT

"I could find no remedy for my kidney complaint and rheumatism," writes Mr. A. R. [illegible] of [illegible] Hill, Florida.

The Housekeeper.

POTATO CROQUETTES.—Season [illegible] mashed potato with pepper, [illegible] and nutmeg. Beat to a cream, with a tablespoonful of melted butter to every cupful of potato. Bind with two or three beaten eggs, and add some minced parsley. Roll into oval balls, dip in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs, and fry in hot lard or drippings. Pile in a pyramid upon a flat dish, and serve. They are nice with a little cream beaten up with them.

BREADED EGGS.—Boil the eggs hard, and cut in round, thick slices; pepper and salt; dip each in beaten raw egg, then in fine bread crumbs or powdered cracker, and fry in nice dripping or butter, hissing hot. Drain off every drop of grease, and serve on a hot dish for breakfast, with sauce, like that for fricasseed eggs, poured over them.

FRITTERS.—One pint of flour, four eggs, one teaspoonful of salt, one pint of boiling water. Stir the flour into the water by degrees, and stir until it has boiled three minutes. Let it get almost cold, then beat in the yolks, then the whites of the eggs, which must be previously whipped stiff.

HOW TO MAKE SCANDAL.—Take a grain of falsehood, a handful of runabout, the same quantity of [illegible] tongue, a sprig of the herb backbite, a teaspoonful of don't-you-tell-it, six drops of malice, and a few drachms of envy. Add a little discontent and jealously, and strain through a bag of misconstruction, cork it up in a bottle of malevolence, and hang it up on a skein of street yarn; keep in a hot atmosphere; shake it occasionally for a few days, and it will be fit for use. Let a few drops be [illegible] before walking out, and the desired result will follow.

POULTRY NOTES.—Greasy water [illegible] that used for boiling vegetables [illegible] more to make a soft [illegible] for the hens than to throw away.

[illegible] is cheap, and where there are rat holes in a hennery [illegible] kerosene into them. If [illegible] a gallon will drown out, [illegible], or dislodge a colony of [illegible], it will pay. For the fowl [illegible] it is good to rid them of vermin.

A piece of woods or rocky land [illegible] with bushes is a nice addition to a chicken yard. Its shade [illegible] grateful in hot weather. [illegible] is not difficult to make [illegible] for them by judicious tree [illegible] shrub planting. Ground naturally wet will not do for fowls.

CORN LOAF.—Four eggs, whites and yolks beaten as light as possible separately; one quart of corn meal; quarter of a pound of butter; two quarts of boiling milk; a [illegible] of salt mixed well [illegible] the corn-meal. Melt the butter [illegible] the milk, and scald the corn[illegible] with it, beating and stirring until it becomes perfectly [illegible]; then add the light yolks [illegible] the stiffly beaten whites. [illegible] oven. Half the [illegible] will make a good sized [illegible]

[illegible] CABBAGE.—Take a [illegible] cabbage and cut out [illegible] fill the vacancy with stuf[illegible] cooked chicken or [illegible] very fine and highly [illegible] rolled into balls [illegible] the cabbage [illegible] and boil in a cov[illegible] two hours.

[illegible] CUSTARD.—Peel and core [illegible] apples; [illegible] until the [illegible] to boil [illegible] cup [illegible] rind [illegible] and a few [illegible] When [illegible] put in the [illegible] syrup and pour over them; make a soft custard with the yolks of four eggs, three tablespoonsful of powdered sugar, and a scant quart of milk. When cold spread it over the apples. Whip the whites of the eggs, flavor with lemon, and place on the custard. Color in the oven.

Something About Bread-Making

By the process of bread-making it is intended to convert the flour of certain grains into a cellular structure, in which it is most easily chewed, saturated with the fluids of the mouth, and digested. In order to arrive at this end, alcoholic fermentation is resorted to from olden times, by introducing the same in the dough by means of brewers' yeast. Thus a small part of the flour is converted into glucose, which again is transformed into alcohol and carbonic acid. The former is recognized by its peculiar vinous odor, exhaled by the loaves, when sufficiently raised. Both gases produce the raising of the dough—i, e., the porous and spongy appearance.

By this fermentation the flour not only loses weight but the bread also attains qualities which may injure the process of digestion.

In order to evade this inconveniences chemists have long ago searched, to impart the spongy structure of the dough by other means than yeast, respectively by substances evolving gaseous bodies or which, in the oven are transformed into gases themselves. To the best known belong the bicarbonate of soda and cream of tartar, certainly well known to all housewives. And with regard to most of the baking powders of the trade, they are mainly preparatious containing these substances. However, it cannot be said of any of them that they exert a beneficial influence on the system, not to speak of the adulterations, to which most of them have lately been subjected.

We are glad to learn that Prof. E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge, Mass., who held the chair of chemistry in Harvard University, invented some time since, a baking preparation forming an exception to those spoken of which has already attained universal reputation.

The idea by which Prof. Horsford was guided, was not only to furnished a substitute for brewers' yeast, but also to provide those nutritious constituents of the flour lost in the bran in the process of bolting. These are the so-called phosphates, which are also the nutritive salts of meat, and of the utmost importance for the building up of the organism. If we take into consideration that the nutritive value of wheaten flour is from twelve to fifteen per cent. less than of the wheat grain, and that this loss is now restored by Prof. Horsford's invention, then we must look upon it as of the greatest national economic importance. As Justus von Liebig, said: "The result is the same, as if the fertility of our wheat field had been incressed by one-seventh or one-eighth."

It is easy to be nobody, and we will tell you how to do it. Go to the drinking-saloon to spend your leisure time. You need not drink much now—only a little beer or some other drink. Meantime play dominoes, checkers, or something else to kill time, so that you will be sure not to read any useful books. If you read anything, let it be the dime novel of the day. Thus go on, keeping your stomach full and your head empty, and yourself playing time-killing games, and in a few years you will be nobody, unless you should turn out a drunkard or a professional gambler, either of which is worse than nobody. There are any number of young men hanging about saloons just ready to graduate and be nobodies.—Watchman.

Womanly Wisdom.

An American Lady Discovers a Secret Which She Reveals for the Benefit of Women.

(New York World.)

Several years ago the American public were aroused by the entree upon the stage of a little lady who had been previously but little announced. She was one of an innumerable number of aspirants for public favor and had no instrumentality, aside from her own talents to cause recognition. In spite of this fact, however, she quickly achieved a warm place in the heart of the public which she has continued to hold ever since. When it was announced, therefore, that Miss Maude Granger would star the coming season in the play "Her Second Love," written by Mr. John A, Stevens, it was only natural that unusual interest should be manifested not only in theatrical circles, but in other branches of the community. This was specially the case, as it was known that Miss Granger had, for the past year, been in exceedingly delicate health, and the determination to star in a strong emotional play was the more surprising. One of the staff of this paper was accordingly deputized to see the popular lady and verify the rumor or announce its incorrectness.

Miss Granger's countenance is familiar to hearly every one in the United States. It is a face once seen never to be forgotten Features remarkable in their outline and contour are surmounted by a pair of large and deep eyes indicative of the greatest soul power. It is easy to see where Miss Granger obtains the ability to portray characters of the most emotional nature. She possesses within herself the elements of feeling without which no emotion can be conveyed to an audience. The man of news found the lady at her home in this city and was accorded a quiet welcome. It was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and color of her countenance both indicated.

"Is it true Miss Granger that you contemplate a starring tour the coming season?"

"Yes, indeed. My season begins in Chicago on the 16th of July. From there I go to San Francisco and then play the remainder of the season through the eastern and western states."

"Are you confident your health will permit such an undertaking?"

A ringing laugh was the first reply to this question, after which she said:

"Certa'nly. It is true I have been ill for the past two years, but now I am wholly recovered. Few people can have any idea of the strains a conscientious actress undergoes in essaying an emotional part. It is necessary to put one,s whole soul into the work in order to rightly portray the character. This necessitates an utter abandonment of one's personality and an assumption of the character portrayed. If this is an emotional part it is necessary to feel the same emotions the part is supposed to feel. For more than a year I actually cried each night in certain passages of a part I was playing. The audience considered it art. Probably it was, but those were none the less real tears and the effect was none the less trying upon my health."

"But do you anticipate avoiding this in the future?"

"Not in the least. I expect to have just as great a strain as before but with restored health and a knowledge of how to retain it I do not fear."

"You speak of a 'knowledge of how to retain health.' Will you please explain what you mean by that?"

"You must be aware that women by their very natures are subject to troubles and afflictions unknown to the sterner sex. The name of these troubles is legion, but in whatever form they may come they are weakness which interfere with every ambition and hope in life. I believe thousands of noble women are to-day suffering agonies of which even their best friends and relatives know little or nothing, and when I reflect upon it I confess it makes me sad. Now all this misery arises largely from an ignorance of the laws of life or a neglect to carefully observe them. I speak from the depths of a bitter experience in saying this, and I am thankful I know the means of restoration, how to remain in perfect heath."

"Please explain more fully."

"Well, I have found a remedy which seems specially adapted for this very purpose. It is pure and palatable and controls the health and life as, I believe, nothing else will. It is really invaluable and if all the women in America were to use it I am quite sure most of the suffeing and many deaths might be avoided."

"What is this wonderful remedy?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"And you use it?"

"Constantly."

"And hence believe you will be able to go through the coming season successfully?"

"I am quite certain of it."

"A few questions more, Miss Granger. Will you please give me a list of the parts you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in public?"

"I first played for some time with the Amateurs in New York and Brooklyn. I then went to the Union Square theatre for two seasons, after that to the Boston Globe of one season and then to Booth's theatre in this city. Next I supported John McCullough and afterwards starred in Juliet, Camille Rosalind, etc. Subsequently I oreated the part Cicely Blaine in the Galley Slave and also starred in Two Nights in Rome, playing the part of Antonia. The past year I have been playing in the Planter's Wife and the coming season as I have said, will be devoted to Her Second Love."

As the writer was returning home he fell into a train musing and wondering if all women in this land who are suffering could only know Miss Granger's experience and the remarkable results achieved by the pure remedy she used how much suffering might be avoided and how much happiness secured.

Eye Service.

Upon going into a down-town office last week, I saw two boys at work addressing envelopes—or rather, one was at work, while the other his pen in his hand, was looking out of the window.

Their employer was seated near by, and when he caugth my eye, he smiled

"Which of those two boys is the better workman and the most valued do you think?" he asked me in a low voice.

"The one at work, I should supposed," I rejoined.

"No, sir; that lad who is looking from the window now does so because he thinks there is no harm in it—does it, you see, under my eyes. On the other hand, while my eye is on them, the other boy is the most industrious, but I find in my abence he does nothing. So you see he adds deceit to his fault. I would not trust him out of my sight."

"It seems to me that neither of them is worthy very much."

"To be sure," came the immediate answer, "a boy who attended to his duties at all times would be best; but a boy who renders eye service merely, who cannot by trusted to work without watching, is not to be tolerated."

The man who had seen this had seen much of the world; he knew whereof he spoke, and perhaps some of our our yung readers will profit by his words.—Gracious Words.

An old colored preacher in Atlanta Georgia, was lectnring a youth of his fold about the sin of dancing, when the latter protested that the Biblo plainly said: "There is a time to dance." "Yes, dar am a time to dance," said the dark divine, "and it's when a boy gets a whippin' for goin' to a ball."

DEAR EDITOR:—I am inquiring for my relatives. I am from Cambridge, Dosset county, Md. I was owned by Dr. Terbner. My name is Mary. I came from there about the year of 1855 to New Orleans. I was brought by trader Wilson, and sold to H. L. Green. My father was named Thomas, and my mother's name was Emily. I had a sister by the name of Eliza. the others named Maria, Ageline and Willet; three brothers named Aaron, Jim, Thomas. My name is Mary Johnson. Address me at Lawrence, Wilson county, Texas.

MARY JOHNSON.

DEAR EEAR:—I am very anxious to find the whereabouts of my two daughters. They left me ten years before the war, right here, and were taken to Texas. We belonged to Thos. J. McGuffen, a son of Hugh McGuffen. They were carried away by Mrs. Smith. The eldest was Ginsey, 10 years old; Nancy 8 years. It strikes me that they stopped near Natchitoches or Milan. I have no kin but in Georgia, Burk county, Waynesboro. My mother's name was Siley; father's was Thomas. Futher belonged to Thos. P. Jones; mother belonged to the widow Belcher. I use to go by Mary Spotts, now Mary Clarra. Address me, care of Rev. H. J. Wright, Natchitoches, La. May 29.

DEAR EDITOR:—Robert Booker wishes to know of the whereabouts of his sister Henrietta Mauor. Last knowledge of her she was at Columbia, Murray county, Tennessee, on the 15th day of February, 1867. At which time he joined the 38th Inantry, U. S. A., to go to New Mexico. Any information from the above named person will be gladly received. Please direct to Mark Henson, box 303, Austin, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR:—I wish to find my mother, from whom I was stolen in time of the war by the Jayhawkers. When I left her she went by the nume of Kansas Payen. My name at that time was Martha Payen; my sister's name was Mary Payen. I would be proud to learn her whereabouts. Address me at Webb City, Mo.

MARTHA SMITH.

DEAR EDITOR.—I wish to find my son Isaac Payen that separated from me in the time of the war. My name was then Nancy Payen, and is now Nancy Parker. Address me at Fayetteville, Arkanass, in care of Th. R. R. Duncan.

"Uncle," said Johnnie, "why are boys like railroad cars?" "I don't know; why are they?" "Because they sometimes can only be kept on the right track by the use of switches!"

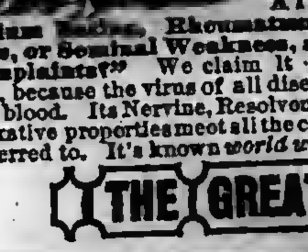
SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. NERVINE



"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. E. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed. and are now given for the first time [illegible] the original words and music. The [illegible] has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—*Rev. How to Kill a Church.

The following recipe is taken from the New York Observer:

1. Don't pay your pastor's salary. This is an all important direction. Be sure to follow it closely. Although you solemnly promised to pay him a certain amount, and at stated times, no matter; don't pay, or only what you feel like paying, and when it is perfectly convenient. Don't obey the Lord when he says, "The laborer is worthy of his hire," (Luke 10 : 7.) By and by you will have the satisfaction of seeing your church "going down"

2. Don't attend to your official duties in the church. Look upon your office as only an honorary or ornamental institution—not an Aaron and Hur arrangement for holding up the hands of the pastors in doing the Lord's work.

3. Don't go to prayer meetings. That's an old-fashioned institution. It isn't needed in the "modern" church. Church fairs, and concerts, and festivals are much more necessary. These bring money into the treasury from the outside sinners.

4. Don't attend church regularly. Forsake the assembling of yourselves together, except on bright, sunshiny days.

5. Don't pray for your church.

6. Don't give toward its support, or only a little now and then when you can't well help it.

7. Don't encourage your pastor in any way whatever.

8. Don't take your church paper.

9. Don't do anything toward helping the Sunday-school.

10. Don't give anything, or very little, toward the various causes of beneficence.

11. Do what you can to gender strife and discord among the members.

12. Lastly, be fully conformed to the world.

The above directions, fully carried out, will most certainly give you success in killing the church. Ordinarily you need practice only a few of the above directions, and you will succeed. But if you love a church and don't wish to kill it, then don't practice according to the above receipt.

Maine Men.

From Bath, Me., we have received, under date of May 15, 1883, the following statement of Geo. W. Harrison, the popular proprietor of "The Restaurant": "A few years since I was troubled so severely with kidney and bladder affection that there was brick-dust deposits in my urine, and continual desire to urinate, with severe, darting, pains through my bladder and side, and again, dull, heavy pressure, very tedious to endure. I consulted one of our resident physicians, but I received no benefit from the treatment, and fearing that the symptoms indicated 'Bright's Disease,' the most dreadful of all diseases, I made up my mind that I must obtain relief speedily or I would be past cure. I consulted my druggist, Mr. Webber, and after ascertaining my symptoms, he recommended the use of Hunt's Remedy, as he knew of many successful cures affected by that medicine in similar cases here in Bath. I purchased a bottle, and before I had used the first bottle I found I had received a great benefit, as I suffered less pain, my water became more natural, and I began to improve so much that the second bottle effected a complete cure; and my thanks are due to Hunt's Remedy for restored health, and I cheerfully recommend this most valuable and reliable medicine to my friends, as I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure to do so."

"Being well acquainted with Mr. George W. Harrison at the time of his sickness, referred to in the foregoing testimonial, I can certify to the correctness of the statement made by him,

"W. G. Webber, Druggist.

Blacksmiths' Troubles.

Having had occasion to use a remedy for kidney troubles, I noticed an advertisement in one of the papers of the remarkable cures that Hunt's Remedy had made all over the country. I purchased a bottle at one of our druggists here in Manchester, and after using it for a short time found that it was helping me wonderfully, and one bottle has cured me completely—have no indigestion, and am hearty and healthy for one of my years (65), and can truly say that Hunt's Remedy is a medicine that has real merit, and I do not hesitate to recommend it to the public in general. J. F. Woodbury, 56 Manchester St., Manchester, N.H.

Laugfellow's estate has been inventoried at $350,000 of which two-thirds is personal property.

By law we abate any nuisance that offends any of the senses; we forbid the publication of any lewd prints and impure literature; we force men to close a slaughterhouse or glue-factory because they offend our olfactories and breed disease; there is a heavy fine for selling decayed food of any kind, and why in the name of reason and good morals shall we not destroy anything that offends the moral sense of a community? Shall we allow a lazy man to place his beer-shop or whisky mill right under our noses, so that the stench of stale ale, and sour beer, and mean whisky shall fill the air; shall we permit such traps to be set for our sons, where they may be robbed of health, and character, and immortal hope; shall we allow these nurseries of crime to spread and grow under legal protection; shall these people fatten on the sins and follies of the hard working people whose earnings they so greedily secure for drink? We say a thousand times No!—Baltimore Methodist.

Young and Middle-aged men suffering from nervous debility and kindred afflictions, as loss of memory and hypochondria, should enclose three stamps for Part VII of World's Dispensary Dime Series of pamphlets. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

In seventy-four counties in Iowa a man has to be a temperance man to stand any show for a nomination or election to any office. In twenty-five counties in Iowa a man has to be a whisky man to stand any good show of nomination or election to any office. This rule applies to both parties. Is there any other State in the Union that can make such a proud showing on this question?—McGregor News.

"Have you mistaken the pew, sir?" blandly said a Sunday Chesterfield to a stranger who had entered it. "I beg pardon," answered the intruder, rising to go out; "I fear I have; I took it for a Christian's."

Sick-Headache.

Mrs. J. C. Henderson, of Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "The use of two of Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets a day, for a few weeks, has entirely cured me of sick-headache, from which I formerly suffered terribly, as often, on an average, as once in ten days. Of all druggists.

At Kildare as the train went down towards Jefferson, on Friday, a negro wench and her companion, a young negro man, took their seats in the ladies coach. The conductor and brakeman succeeded in inducing the man to leave, but the woman "fought nobly" and held her position to Jefferson. Returning the same day another negro woman occupied the middle seat in the ladies coach dressed to kill" with a big cabbage in her lap. Civil Rights is well enough when men only have to stand it; but as the coaches on the T. & P. are all first class why should ladies be annoyed by the presumptuous impudence of negro women who will fight for a seat with them?—[Interstate News.

The motto of the Democratic party since the days of Andrew Jackson has been. "To the victor belong the spoils." Under the operation of the time-honored principle, the colored woman was clearly entitled to her seat after she paid for it and licked the conductor and brakeman.—Arkansas Mansion.

DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated Liver Pills

In offering to the public Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, as a remedy for Liver and Bilious Complaints, we presume no apology will be needed. The great prevalence of Liver Complaint and Bilious Diseases of all kinds throughout the United States, and particularly in the West and South, where, in the majority of cases, the patient is not within the reach of a regular physician, requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be safe and effectual. That such is the character of Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, there can be no doubt. The great success which has invariably attended their use, will, we think, be sufficient to convince the most incredulous. It has been our sincere wish that these Pills should be fairly tested, and stand or fall by the effects produced. That they have been so tested and that the result has been in every respect favorable, we call tens of thousands to witness who have experienced their beneficial effects.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not held forth or recommended, (like most of the popular medicines of the day), as universal cure-alls, but simply as a specific for Liver Complaints, and those symptoms connected with a deranged state of that organ.

FEVER and AGUE
Or CHILLS and FEVER.
AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A WONDERFU[illegible]d
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

The Story of a Great Discovery.

There appeared not long since, in the [illegible] weekly Inter-Ocean, a remarkable article with the above title, occupying nearly five columns of that able journal. It describes very clearly and with particularity the inception, development, and successful result of an effort [illegible] thoroughly educated and intelligent [illegible] physician to discover an element [illegible] combination of elements in nature which would without resort to drug [illegible] cure disease through a [illegible] of weakened or exhausted [illegible] and his forces to their normal condition. The scientific aspect of the discovery is so clearly explained in the article [illegible] both the learned and unlearned [illegible] basis of facts and legitimate [illegible] upon which to rest. Many of [illegible] practical results already obtained [illegible] the use of this new vitalizing [illegible] and in cases of the most desperate character, where all remedies had [illegible] and the most skillful physicians [illegible] are given in [illegible] value as a health [illegible] by individuals well [illegible] known throughout the [illegible] who have in their own persons [illegible] wonderful healing power. THIRD QUARTER. LESSON VII. August 12

THE LAST DAYS OF JOSHUA. (Joshua xxiv, 14-29.)

This lesson is one of our very prettiest pictures from the Old Testament. The lesson name is The Last Days of Joshua. We must picture an old man 110 years old. He has been with the people all the long forty years, and has brought them into the promised land, but now he must leave them. He knows he must die, and wants to say good-bye to the people. He called them all together at Shechem, and the old man talked O such a sweet good-bye talk. He told them about God's love and goodness to them. He knew it all. He had seen the manna fall, he had drank water sent by God when the people were thirsty, he had seen the waters divide, and then, too, he had seen Israel punished when they disobeyed God. Then Joshua asked them a question, and it is your golden text. Choose you this day whom ye will serve. The people heard and answered. "We will serve the Lord." Joshua no doubt was glad to hear them say this, he knew how often they had done wrong and forgot God, so now he wanted something to remind them of their promise when he was gone. So Joshua set a stone up under an oak tree to help them remember their promise to serve God.

Israel had a great many reasons why they should serve God. We can all see this, but can we always see how many reasons we have to serve him? God asks us this very question, and we must answer it. Whom will we serve? God wants your whole heart, and if you love something more than you love him, then you serve it, not God. You can serve your own self, love pleasure, money, or friends more than God. Some little people serve dress; they think more of it than of their Bible. Some serve God part of the time and something else the rest. This won't do. God wants you all the time. Our golden text is God's question to us. What is our question to him? Can we say we will serve the Lord? Every one can do this and keep the promise, because God will help every one who tries to follow him.—Western.

Answer This.

Is there a person living who ever saw a case of ague, biliousness, nervousness or neuralgia, or any disease of the stomach, liver or kidneys that Hop Bitters will not cure?

My mother says Hop Bitters is the only thing that will keep her from severe attacks of paralysis and headache. Ed. Oswego Sun.

My little sickly, puny baby was changed into a great bouncing boy, and I was raised from a sick bed by using Hop Bitters a short time. A YOUNG MOTHER.

No use to worry about any Liver, Kidney or Urinary Trouble, especially Bright's Disease or Diabetes, as Hop Bitters never fails of a cure where a cure is possible.

I had severe attacks of gravel and Kidney trouble; was unable to get any medicine or doctor to cure me until I used Hop Bitters. They cured me in a short time. T. R. ATTY.

Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases which can be prevented with Hop Bitters if taken in time.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 2, 1875. Sirs—I have been taking Hop Bitters for four years, and there is no medicine that surpasses them for bilious attacks, kidney complaints and all diseases incident to this malarial climate. H. T. ALEXANDER.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 25, 1875. Sirs—I have been taking Hop Bitters for inflammation of kidneys and bladder, it has done for me what four doctors failed to do—cured me. The effect of the bitters seemed like magic to me. W. L. CARTER.

Gents—Your Hop Bitters have been of great value to me. I was laid up with typhoid for over two months, and could get no relief until I tried your Hop Bitters. To those suffering from debility or any one in feeble health, I cordially recommend them. J. C. Stoetsel, 688 Fulton st., Chicago, Ill.

Cholera has been declared epidemic in Bombay.

Ministers Sound Its Praise.

Rev. Mr. Greenfields, Knoxville, Tenn., writes as follows: "Samaritan Nervine permanently cured my son of epileptic fits." Here's food for thought. Sold by druggists.

Owing to Fenian threats the Lord Chief Justice of England is being strictly guarded.

Is your face dry and scaly? Use Dr. Benson's Skin Cure and restore its smoothness. $1, druggists.

HAVE YOU TRIED IT?

THE OLD ADAGE, THAT AN OUNCE OF PREVENTIVE IS WORTH A POUND OF CURE, WAS NEVER MORE APTLY ILLUSTRATED THAN BY HIM WHO TAKES HIS DOSE OF TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT BEFORE THE MORNING MEAL. FOR IT NOT ONLY GENTLY REGULATES AND PURIFIES THE SYSTEM, BUT IS A PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE, WHICH NO ONE OUGHT TO DISREGARD. ALL DRUGGISTS HAVE IT.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

Minnesota Democrats nominated W. W. McNair for governor.

Hon. Austin F. Pike has been elected U. S. Senator from New Hampsire to succeed Hon. E. H. Rollins.

The French have issued a proclamation to the Tonquinese, promising to punish their oppressors and destroy the city of Hue if necessary.

The whole-hearted support which George William Curtis recently gave the present administration, through Harper's Weekly, has now been followed up by a still more emphatic indorsement of President Arthur as a civil-service reformer. The good faith with which he has complied with the spirit of the act itself meets with the unqualified and ardent approval of the high priest of political reform. This is a deeply significant fact, and reflects credit upon both gentlemen. It shows that Mr. Curtis is disposed to be fair, and that President Arthur's course has been absolutely above criticism.—Inter Ocean.

Dr. Attions G. Haygood, agent of the John F. Slater educational fund, on the 2d, at Monteagle, Sunday-school Assembly on Cumberland Mountains, delivered an able address on the education of the negro. It is the strongest appeal for the cause of education of the colored race, based on the necessities of morals and good citizenship, humanity and Christian duty, yet delivered by a Southern speaker. He stated, as a practical question, that every child, white and black, should have from his parents or from the government an equal chance for elementary education in the common schools, which, to be efficient and reach the case, must be backed by the government.

In another column will be found the advertisement of David C. Cook, of Chicago, who issues some remarkably cheap Sunday-school publications. By reading them something of advantage may be learned. Mr. Cook, for several years, has been doing a thriving business in his line. Send for specimens of his publications.

Enormous Saving to Schools

7c. S. S. LIBRARIES.

Over three million sold already. The enormous expense of the Sunday-school library a thing of the past. $3 to $4 now buys a library which before cost $13 to $65. The largest and best of books at less than 7 cents each. First fifty-two reprints of the best books written. Selections from over 1,000 volumes—original prices varying from 60c. to $2.15: the whole fifty two books originally costing $57.45, averaging $1.10¼ each. Volumes from No 52 to 104 written expressly for us, by the best Sunday-school writers. Above 104 partly new and partly reprints. In printing so cheaply we do not sacrifice durability or quality. In point of fact, our cheap books will out last the expensive ones. Being wire-stitched, the leaves can not come out unless torn out. The limp covers preserve the books better than the heavy board covers of the ordinary books. Being flexible, they can be bent back, folded over, or even rolled, without injury, making them almost indestructible. Every book thoroughly sound and evangelical, but nothing sectarian or partisan. Each book numbered and containing descriptive catalogue of the whole.

Editorial Notes.

It is announced that The Montana Christian Advocate closes the present Conference year on a self-supporting basis. It is a power for temperance and the church in a great mission field.

A croaker is a man who recognises no excellence in the world except what is dead and gone out of it, save, always, the virtue that still abides in the person of himself. There is in this contrast a strong depreciation of the [illegible] and piety of others, with an [illegible] glorification of his own—a woeful blindness to any goodness except the goodness in poor, inflated self.

[illegible] is not to be reformed, [illegible] and saved all at once. [illegible] our attacks upon the evils that afflict a community [illegible] one at a time. He who attempts to remove all the abuses of society at once will surely be over[illegible] and discouraged. It is the individual who possesses singleness of purpose who accomplishes most in this world. One thing at a time.

M. C. Butler, United States Senator from South Carolina, has little [illegible] with negro laborers, and [illegible] his State would be better [illegible] thousands of them would em[illegible]. Mr. Butler's record at [illegible] was not [illegible] to his colored fellow-citi[illegible] and he may rely on them to [illegible] his political prospects [illegible] an honest vote can be [illegible] in South Carolina.

It is no credit for an ordinary preacher to have so much to say that he has to leave the last half of his sermon unsaid. That man has too much sap in his kettle, he had better boil down a little before he goes into the pulpit.

Rev. Carl O. H. Thomas, of Natchez, has sent us a pamphlet containing two addresses delivered before two Mississippi conferences of the A. M. E. Church, entitled "Biblical Historiography," and "Methodist Factions, and obstacles which prevent their organic union."

A correspondent at Gallatin, Tenn., writes us about a recent occurrence in that place: "A colored girl was returning home shortly after dark, when a so-called white gentleman met her and attempted to put his arms around her. She went home and to her only protector, who is her father, and related the affair to him. The father went to the white man about it, who regarded it as an insult for a "nigger" to say anything to him about insulting his daughter, and began a fight, in which the negro came off victorious. The next morning the white man seized his pistol, went for and shot the negro, but fortunately the ball failed to enter the skull, only making a scalp wound. The white man was not arrested. I could name several more such acts, but am anxious to know where the right is in such an act."

The most interesting feature of the proceedings of the Sunday school Assembly at Monteagle, Aug. 2d, was the address of Atticus G. Haygood D. D., on "The Education of the Negro" published in this week's issue of the SOUTHWESTERN. We think that it will be read with interest, and we earnestly hope it may be found profitable for instruction and encouragement to all who are concerned about the future of the colored population of this country. We believe that it is important that we send our missionaries to the ends of the earth. But there is no more important work for the Methodist Episcopal Church than the Christian education of the Negro. None that has half so much of real humanity or any more of Christianity about it. We owe to ourselves, and to the generation that is to follow, that as a church we double our efforts for their education. And to the satanic proposition that we turn aside and build one or two great central universities right in their midst, from which their young men and women shall be forever excluded, every member of the Methodist Episcopal Church ought to say, "Get thee behind me Satan, for thou savorest not of the things that be of God but those that be of men," and by men who are governed more by their prejudices than by the ten commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. We know what some of the brethren are saying, but as we are nearing Jordan, the time and place of crossing over to the marriage supper of the Lamb, and as Jesus is the Son of man, our brother, and the brother of every man, we cannot write otherwise. Just now al sects in religion and parties in politics are rushing after the Negro. Do our brethren need to be told that they connot surpass these rivals by erecting churches and schools from which they are to be excluded?

La Teche District Conference.

ALEXANDRIA, La., July 25, 1883.

DEAR EDITOR:—The La Teche District Conference has met and transacted its business; had a grand and glorious time; singing, praying, preaching, shouting, convicting sinners, and taken up collections. It was decidedly an act of wisdom when our General Conference said, that district conferences could be had if wanted; and under the direction of an able presiding officer, and a committee on programme, equal to the needs of the times—these district conferences will be a power, extending an influence for effectual good outside its bounds unequalled by the annual or quarterly conferences. For religious and theological training of the ministry and laity of the church, every district of our Southern conferences should have one, at least once a year; at the close of ours the verdict of its members was that its session created a demand upon their mental resources in excess of their mental ability to supply; and some of them said to me, Sam, from now on I will live in my books. Our district conference session was a success throughout. I don't doubt but what our worthy presiding elder felt as though he was a Bishop, from the grace of manner with which he presided over its deliberations—his address, his speeches and decisions were expressions of high mental training, moral culture and personal worth, that won to him the hearts of his brethren, and he is to them what no other man of the Louisiana conference can be, except it is Rev. J. C. Hartzell. The pastoral reports, together with the presiding elder's, presented to one's mind a general aspect of push and prosperity from one end of the district to the other. The interests of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE were not forgotten, if speeches and words of good cheer are to be taken into account. The closing ceremonies of the conference were as impressive as that of our annual conference. The reading and adoption of resolutions, the closing sermon by Rev. J. Sparks, the farewell address of the president, the reading of the appointments of the local preachers, were attended with the same impressions upon our dear people as at the close of our annual conference session.

The following are the resolutions adopted by this session of the district conference, with appointments to each charge on the district, for benevolent collections to be raised this year:

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, The one great curse that has been thrown across the pathway of the Negro race in America, is the ungodly principle and unchristian prejudice against color. As a matter of course it is expected this hydra-headed monster would find germs of growth among the ignorant and vicious, but that it should rear its monster-headed visage in the midst of the Christian Church is surprising, and is not to be tolerated; therefore,

Be it Resolved, That the members of the La Teche District Conference pledge themselves in the name of God and humanity to use every effort and their influence to crush, stamp and wipe it out. And,

Be it further Resolved, That we are determined more than ever to stand by the course pursued by the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and that we recognize the fact that it stands in the very front of all of the official organs of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the denunciation of the great and monstrous sin of caste and color prejudice. And that we pray God's blessing upon it and its able editors, Revs L. P. Cushman and A. E. P. Albert; and that under the hand of God it may increase its circulation second to none of our church journals.

Resolved, That we urge upon our local preachers, exhorters and members everywhere to subscribe for it, and use every advantage to increase its circulation everywhere among our people.

Resolved, That we fully give our unqualified endorsement to the course pursued by Rev. A. E. P. Albert, as assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and for the able and manly defense and vindication of our race in his address at Rust University, Holly Springs, Miss., against the attacks of Rev. Dr. Tucker on the Negro race.

Resolved, That we invoke the divine blessing and success on the labors of our much beloved Brother and devoted friend, Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell, D.D., in the work of assistant secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society.

Resolved, That we heartily approve the course of Rev. A. E. P. Albert, as presiding elder of our district; and that we pray Heaven's choicest blessings upon him and his companion Sister O. V. Albert.

Resolved, That we pray God's blessing on our dear Sister J. C. Hartzell; and under the hand of God she may speedily return to the field of usefulness in the Woman's Home Missionary Society, with ability to do more than ever for the cause of God and humanity.

Resolved, That we will do all in our power to raise our subscriptions, as subscribed at our last annual conference, for the building of the Gilbert Haven School of Theology; and that we will extend every helpful influence to secure the end in view.

Resolved. That no person shall be licensed to exhort, or preach, by this district or by any of our quarterly conferences, unless he attends the Sabbath-school and takes our church paper, and that cases of actual inability to comply with these requirements shall be left to the discretion of the quarterly conferences.

Resolved, That we express our gratification, and great satisfaction with the grand results being accomplished, by the mother Methodist Episcopal Church through the agency of the Missionary, Church Extension, Freedmen's Aid, Sunday-school, Tract, and Educational and Bible Societies, and that we will secure as large contributions for the support of these societies as possible, in all of our charges.

Resolved, That the work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society has our hearty approval, and that we give all possible encouragement to the devoted sisters who have, or may join in its work among us.

Resolved, That we feel more encouraged than ever to continue the holy war against intemperance, and Sabbath desecration, that we will contend more vigorously than ever until we succeed in stopping the tide of intemperance, and rescue the Christian Sabbath as a day of sacred rest and worship.

Resolved, That hereafter each pastor will observe the disciplinary course relative to the presiding elder's salary, and that the quarterly assessment be fixed at 25 cts. per member.

Resolved, That the thanks of this conference; are hereby extended to the president and secretaries of the conference, for the faithful and impartial performance of their duties, to the Weekly Central Express, Louisiana Democrat, Daily Town Talk, for their kindly notices in their paper concerning the conference sesson. To the mayor, council, and citizens of Alexandria, for their hospitality and extended courtisies. To the pastor, officers, members and sexton, of Murray Street M. E. Church, for their unreserved kindness, and hospitality.

Resolved, That any deacon within the bounds of the La Teche district conference known to transcend the powers of his office by consecrating the elements of the Lord's Supper, he shall be at the next quarterly or district conference ensuing publicly censured, and on repetition of the same offense the presiding elder shall proceed as the Discipline directs in the trial of preachers subject to the decisions of the district conference.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Did He Do Right?

A few days ago Rev. Mr. James, pastor of the Baptist Church in West Point, Miss., was called upon to perform, or to baptize, a candidate by a mode of baptism that his denomination is not accustomed to follow in this part of the country.

The case was about as follows, to-wit: A lady, who lived in West Point, was not a member of any church, but was a visitor of the Baptist Church, while her people, I think, are members. This lady was taken severely ill, and during her illness she repented and confessed her sins to God, and was happily converted. She desired then to be baptized before she should die, as it was quite evident that she could not get well any more in this world. The question arose, then, who should baptize the sister. The Methodist minister was mentioned. This was protested against by her people and friends, because the candidate's life-long leanings had been toward the Baptist church. Whereupon the Baptist minister was chosen to baptize the sister. Bro. James, who is one of the leading Baptist divines of his denomination in this State, was sent for and came immediately. When it was explained to him what was wanting, he said that there was no pond, creek or river convenient for a person in her condition to be baptized in. The candidate said that made no difference with her, that she would be satisfied with a little water poured or sprinkled upon her. This settled the matter. The good Baptist brother called for a little water in a basin or pitcher, and he baptized the sister with water in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

A few days afterwards the sister died in great peace and with the full assurance of being saved with Jesus. Some have asked, did he do right? And it is rumored that he is to be tried for his offence, by his church or association.

As this was the dying request of the sister who, it was believed, had been truly converted, I don't think that his church should deal harshly with him, for many think he did right.

Negro Education.

Masterly Address on a Grand Problem of Social Economy.

DR. ATTICUS G. HAYGOOD AT THE MONTEAGLE ASSEMBLY, AUG 2.

The feature of the proceedings of the Sunday-school Assembly at Monteagle, yesterday—and, indeed, the featnre of the entire summer session—was the powerful address delivered there on "The Edncation of the Negro," by Dr. Atticns G. Haygood, president of Emory College and agent of the John F. Slater fund. The address was as follows:

There is nothing pecnliar in the subject I am to discuss at this time. The edncation of a negro is the education of a human being. In its essential characteristics the hnman mind is the same in every race and in every age. When a negro child is taught that two and two are four, he learns just what a white child learns when he is tanght the same proposition; the teacher uses the same faculties of mind in imparting the truth as to the sum of two and two. The two children use the same faculties in learning the truth; it means the same thing to them both. In farther teaching and learning the methods may vary, but the variations will depend less on differences of race than on peculiarities of the individual. What is here advanced is so obviously true, that any human being trying to teach any other human being that two and two are four would naturally use the same method in conveying the truth of the statement, and would certainly expect the same result when the truth was once apprehended.

All this has nothing to do with the question: Which child learns most readily? Or with another question: Which child can learn most? If I were called on to answer these questions I would say, as to the first, the negro child of ordinary intelligence will apprehend that two and two are four as readily as a white child of ordinary intelligence. Except in the mind of a fool there is no more in this statement to excite prejudice than if one should affirm that a negro boy ten years old weighs as much as a white child ten years old, or that he can jump as far.

TWO THOUSAND YEARS THE START.

As to the second question, I would answer in perfect frankness I do not know how much either can learn, and that, therefore, I do not know which can learn most. If urged to answer the question which race, as we find them to-day in this country, is capable of the higher mental training and culture, I would answer this is a very different question. For the capabilites of a race are the results not only of their original ethnic endowment but of their ethnic history for many generations. As applied to these two races the condition of the problems of their education are not now equal, nor can they now be made equal; for the white race has fully two thousand years the start. The ethnic development of the Britons was higher before Julius Cæsar than was the ethnic development of the African tribes, from which our negro fellow-citizens were taken some generations ago. Nothing should less need proving than the doctrine here set forth. Any stock-breeder can expound to you the force that is in the law of heredity. Ask the wise man who breed race horses, Jersey cows, hunting dogs, or even canary birds. They attach great importance to pedigree and they can tell you why.

I do not propose to discuss the relative capacity of the two races; my theme is a very different one. Besides, I am not prepared to discuss that question; I do not know any man who is prepared to discuss it; neither race is sufficiently educated to furnish a guage of its possibilities. As to the negro nobody knows even approximately what he can do; his experiment is just begun. Until recently he had no chance; to-day he has a small chance; till the Gospel and common sense have conquered the prejudices of [illegible] of the white race he will not have the best conditions for showing what he can do. Considering what small chance he has had and the short time in which he has been allowed to learn, his achievements seem to me to be most remarkable. But on this point, I know very well that, as is usual where feeling enters into judgments, those who know the least from personal investigations will make the most dogmatic assertions and most vehement denials.

The proposition that I am here to advocate is this and this only: The negro in the United States ought to be educated.

The first reason I offer is in

THE FACT OF HIS HUMANITY.

He ought to be educated because he is a man. At this point I say nothing to those who deny the essential unity of the human race; I speak to those who do believe in the essential unity. For one, I believe in the essential unity of the race and I belive in the brotherhood of the race. I believe therefore, in all brotherly help and service wherever and however I find any human being. For the very same reasons that I believe in sending the gospel, and the Christian civilization that goes with it, to China, I believe in giving Christian education to the negroes in America. And lest, by some possibility, there should be some misapprehension as to the truth I hold, let me say: I believe in giving the opportunities of Christian education to the negroes for the same reason that I believe in giving the opportunities of Christian education to white people—that is, because they are alike human beings, and by natural, God-given right should have the best opportunity God's providence allows them for becoming all that they are capable of becoming. So long as I believe in Jesus Christ and His Gospel, I cannot stand upon a lower platform than this. I think I know what He would say on this subject. It is He who spoke of himself as "the Son of Man," the brother of every man; it is He who gave us the parable of the Good Samaritan and the Sermon on the Mount; it is He who lived for all men and died for all men; it is He who will tell us how to discuss and answer questions that involve the rights and needs and destinies of human beings. People who have opinions they are afraid to carry to Jesus Christ had better change their opinions.

THE KEYS OF KNOWLEDGE TO EVERY CHILD.

At this point I offer all I care to say at this time as to the extent to which the negro's education should be carried. He should have opportunity to learn all that he can learn, because he has the right that God gave him when he made him, to become as much of a man and as truly a man as his nature allows. This right he has in virtue of his humanity—right cannot be diviner. How much he can learn, of what developments he is capable we of to-day do not know; our children will not know; for the education of a race implies the education of generations. But individuals of the negro race have done enough in the matter of advanced education; hundreds of thousands of them have done enough in the matter of elementary education, to put to flight utterly the theories and arguments that a generation ago we of the white race, with few exceptions, accepted as the final orthodox philosophy on this subject.

As a practical question I would say: Every child in this country, white and black, should have from his parents, or from the Government, an equal chance for elementary education. I believe in what Americans mean by

THE COMMON SCHOOL.

There should be shools enough to give to every child the rudiments of learning; if you please the "three R's." And these should be good enough to teach the rudiments thoroughly. Such schools there must be if the children of the Republic are to be educated; if they are to be efficient, if they are to reach the case they must be backed by the Government. To accomplish their end, wisely, justly, efficiently, there must be a fair and equitable distribution of the school funds, without distinction of race. I rejoice that every State in this Union—with perhaps one exception—does now, in principle at least, use its school fund without distinction of race, so that in the opportunities of elementary education there may be justice to both races.

What comes after this universal elementary education? The answer is simple and to me obvious; whatever individual capacity, aided by the benevolence of good men and the wise enterprise of the churches makes possible. Give them all, black and white, the keys of knowledge and then let them unlock as many doors as they can. I pity the coward who is afraid to give a human being this chance. Little danger is there that any race will rise too high, that any individual of any race will learn too much truth There is no danger more remote than the danger of over-education; there is no danger more imminent than the danger of under-education and false education. And there is no part of the civilized world that at this time has greater need to concern itself with the social and political and moral perils that lurk in wide-spread ignorance than our own well beloved and fair sunny South of the year 1883.

ARGUMENT ON THE LOWER PLANE.

With not a few persons of good business faculty and shrewd wordly wisdom it often happens that an argument on the lower plane of policy goes much further than an argument on the higher plane of truth and right. They are prone to forget that there is no wise policy that is against right and that while God reigns there cannot be.

I will offer the argument on the lower plane. The negro is here and here to stay. He is a citizen armed with that thunderbolt of political power, the ballot. That it was given to him unwisely because untimely, and without conditions that would develop in him a wise conscience as to the use of it; that as a rule he is unfit to be a voter—all this I understand fairly well. But this is not the subject to discuss at this time. He is a citizen, he is a voter. In some States he is in the majority; in every Southern State he is a tremendous power—a power, whether he uses it or designing white men use it. It is about time to consider facts. His citizenship is a fact and his presence here is a fact. There are now at least seven millions of negroes in this country; nearly all of them are in the Southern States. They increase rapidly and steadily—faster than the white race. Some writers have attempted, with small success, to impeach the United States census tables. This much may be said on this point; these tables are the highest authority we have on this subject.

TEN TIMES IN A HUNDRED YEARS.

What do the census tables show? Thoughtful men will consider the answer to the question. The increase in the total population of the United States from 1870 to to 1880 was 30.06 per cent.; the increase of the white race, aided enormously by foreign immigration, was 28.82 per cent.; the increase of the negro population, unaided by foreign immigration, was 34.78 per cent.

Some writers, of name and position, have endeavored to break the force of these figures by calling in question the accuracy of the census tables and by seeking, in the comparison of longer periods, as from 1840 to 1860 and from 1860 to 1880, to prove a smaller percentage of increase. One good man has offered personal observation against the conclusions of the census of 1880.

If they want the best test for comparison let them try ten decades instead of two sets of two. One hundred years ago there were in this country about seven hundred thousand negroes; now, there are seven millions. That is, they have multiplied ten times in a century. How many will there be in 1993?

A man who does not know that voters ought to be

does not know enough to be argued with. The illiterate vote of our Southern States is simply appalling, and the illiterate vote is increasing. From 1870 to 1880 there was an increase of illiterate votes in the Southern States of nearly two hundred thousand. Figures may not be interesting to a mixed audience, but they are sometimes very instructive. I will give you a few on the illiterate vote of our section of the Union.

In Georgia the illiterate white vote in 1870 was 21,899; in 1880, 28,571; the negro illiterate vote was in 1870, 100,551; in 2780, 116,516. In Kentucky the white illiterate vote in 1870, 43,826; in 1880, 54,956; the illiterate negro vote in 1870 was 37,899; in 1880, 43,177. In Tennessee the white illiterate vote was in 1870, 37,713; in 1880, 46,948; the negro illiterate vote was in 1870, 55,938; in 1880, 58,601. In Texas the white illiterate vote was in 1870, 17,505; in 1880, 33,085; the negro illiterate vote in 1870 was 47,255; in 1880, 59,606. It has increased in every one of these States

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE SCARED.

Let those philosophers who think that "education spoils the poor for laborers" take heart. The uneducated adults among the whites and blacks, in the South, increase in numbers. If ignorance makes better laborers there has been great advance in our industrial resources since 1870. There were among us nearly two hundred thousand more grown men who could neither read nor write in 1880 than in 1870. Alas, there are more illiterate women than illiterate men. Doubtless 1883 would show still farther progress—downward.

THE VOTES OF IGNORANCE.

Surely it cannot be necessary before this assembly to point out the perils to our institutions involved in this large and increasing illiterate vote.

How are the votes of ignorant men determined? 1. In small part by the counsels of the wise and good citizen. I say in small part for the bad and designing demagogue has more power over the ignorant vote than has the good and unselfish patriot. 2. The votes of the ignorant are largely determined by prejudice. Out of prejudice proceed conflicts and all manner of social and political wrongs. 3. The votes of the ignorant are largely influenced by bribes, offered in one form or another. And this means power and corruption without end and bottomless. The worst thing about this huge illiterate vote is not the incapacity of the voters to use their ballots wisely; the worst thing about it is this: ignorance fits them exactly to become the tools of corrupt men of superior intelligence. With an illiterate vote large enough to hold the balance of power elections are, for the most part, dictated by demagogues and manipulated by villains. It is left to intelligent, industrious and honest citizens to settle the costs of corrupt government.

THEY SAY, "TEACH HIM MORALS."

I am not unacquainted with the answer to all this as a plea for the education of the negro. "Book-learning," we are gravely informed, "is not sufficient; the negro needs education in morals." This is true, and true as to the negro because true as to all other men. But will sensible men seriously urge the negro's education in morals as an objection to his education in books? Is book-knowledge, then, in itself unfavorable to good morals? Is ignorance the master of devotion and the nurse of religion? then recall the fierce Arabs who put torch to the library of Alexandria and bid them burn down your colleges and school-houses; bid them destroy your books and stop your busy press power. Then, stop all education—stop all thinking—vegetate and die.

It is unmitigated nonsense—this miserable pretense of reasoning that since the negro does need betterment in his morals the school-house is not good for him.

A most significant fact may be mentioned at this point: the only white people in this country who are expending either much service or much money in the effort to improve the negro's morals are also the people who are expending more money and service in the endeavor to teach him the knowledge of books. It is also true that those who have the most to say about negro's need of education in morals, as a reason for not educating him in books, are precisely the people who are not doing anything of consequence to educate him in anything. To a plain man there seems to be a degree of sham and cant in their talk.

FOUR ROOT OBJECTIONS.

The objections to the negro's education that control men's opinions have their origin in four roots, closely united.

1. In ignorance; there are not a few who are, at bottom, opposed to all education.

2. In stinginess; multiplied thousands deny their own children education because it costs money. Money is their god. There are some white men in this country who, by some sad mischance, are both fathers of families and the owners of good properties, but they are too mean and too near barbarism to educate their children. They are traitors to their sacred trust of fatherhood and a disgrace to the human race. And as to public schools, to which the children of the poor may be taught the rudiments of education, objection, with most people, would close—if it cost them nothing. I have yet to meet one man who opposed the schools somebody else's money paid for—unless from a sentiment worse than avarice.

3. In prejudice — prejudice against the negro because he is a negro. Avarice is a mean spirit, but this sort of prejudice is meaner. It is cowardly and ignoble; it is, root and branch, utterly unchristian. If any think that my language is too strong, let them test their prejudices. Take them to Jesus Christ and ask Him to approve them. Test them in the light of the Sermon on the Mount and of the Judgment Day. How mean they look in that light!

4. In apprehensions that appeal to two classes of fear:

(1.) The apprehension that the education of the negro will spoil him as a laborer. I know what I am talking about when I say that this fear is at the bottom of much of the current opposition to the education of the negro. I go among the people and keep my eyes and ears open.

If the argument that supports this apprehension be worth anything it proves too much, for it is just as good as an argument against the education of the poor whites. Education will as certainly spoil them for laborers. The spirit that is capable of such an objection to the education of the poor of any race is selfish, cowardly and essentially mean. It is worthy only of the Dark Ages. It is at bottom a plea for the tyranny of "bossism." Put into form it says this: "I am, by virtue of money, or shrewdness, or learning a sort of 'boss' among my fellow-men; I must keep them in ignorance that I may keep them down and be better able to play the 'boss.'"

But there is nothing in the argument; it is false all through. For no man is better for anything in the world to be done because he is ignorant. A trained dog is better than a wild dog. Ignorance is not a qualification for anything that God intended man to do. It is first, last and all the time disqualification rather. Every principle of right and justice denies it; any law of political economy condemns it; the history of the human race repudiates it.

Intelligence spoils no man for anything that a man ought to do in this world. And were it otherwise, what right, before God, has one human being to keep another human being in ignorance in order to keep him in slavery? These questions go to the bottom, and we must go to the bottom in settling questions of rights and wrongs between man and his fellowmen.

THE RUSSIAN SYSTEM.

What is history good for except to teach us by its examples? If history teaches anything it teaches that no social, or labor, or national, or race problem was ever yet truly solved by mere repression—by merely trying to keep human beings down. It is in our times seen at its best and worst in Europe; it is the Russian system. It fails always and everywhere; there is in it dynamite and death and hell. It must fail, for in its very heart it is tyranny and the eternal powers are against it.

A NEEDLESS SCARE.

(2.) With some there is opposition to the education of the negro from a vague fear of something that is called "social equality." Just now, the poor negro is in a place where "two seas meet." There are two classes of extremists: One is in mortal terror lest the negro should become somebody; the other is morbidly anxious that he should assert claims to what he is in no wise fitted for. If between the two he does not lose his balance he will deserve the respect of both. There never was in this world, in any nation or community, such a thing as social equality, and there never will be. The social spheres arrange themselves to suit themselves, and no laws promulgated by State or Church will change the social affinities and natural selections of men. Men choose the circles for which they have affinity, seek the companionship they prefer, and find the places that are suited to them.

After all it would be well to remember that the great and good and wise God reigns among men, that He will reign when we are all gone from this world, and that He has more concern about the welfare of men than they can have about themselves, and that He who has ruled in the history of the nations since the beginning of the world has purposes of His own which, in His own good time, He will work out in blessings to the whole race of man.

Conscience is wiser than reason. When we cannot know what in the world's sense is politic, we can always know what in God's sense of things is right. Everywhere and forever the right thing is the politic thing.

THE QUESTION NOW.

But the question is no longer a question as to what we prefer; it is now a question as to what can be done. These millions are here among us; they are citizens; they are voters—taking part in the government of this whole nation. When a man of sense can't have his own way he will seek the next best thing he can get. It may well be that we would not choose that the conditions of our very difficult problem should be what they are. But they are what they are. Only fools have contempt for facts. It is now in the providence of God left to us to choose our own problem; it is ours to accept facts and to do the very best we can. Nor is it any longer a question whether the negro will be educated. The work was begun before Appomattox; it has now been going on ever since; it is now being pushed with more vigor than ever before. Of this we may be sure; the negro will, sooner or later, be educated. The State Governments recognize him in the public school administration; liberality has spent more [illegible] millions of dollars in [illegible] since the surrender of [illegible] cause for the education of the negro. With our approval or without it, this work [illegible] right to go on. I [illegible] for those who have carried it on thus far, for the liberal [illegible] who have given [illegible] of money, and for the devoted men and women who have given their personal service. That some cranks are marplots have appeared among them in the course of twenty years is no more an argument against the great work itself than is the discovery of an occasional hypocrite and scoundrel in the pulpit an argument against Christianity.

During most of the time that this work has been going on in our midst, its promoters have had little countenance or encouragement from us. Many times they have been opposed and despised and made to feel our contempt.

ABSURD AND CHILDISH.

In all truth and common sense, there is no room for discounting, in any respect a white man or woman simply for teaching negroes. It is utterly absurd. I believe it to be also sinful. Let us consider our attitude on this subject for a moment. We have the negroes to cook for us and if they do not know how, as is often the case, our wives and daughters teach them. We employ them in all sorts of ways. When elections come on we ask not only their votes but their "social influence." Candidates, from Governor to coroner, do this, earnestly, invariably, and without social discredit. We sell goods to them, we buy from them, we practice law for them, we practice medicine for them, and it is all well enough. In all business relations, except teaching, so far as I can remember our ways on this subject, whether as employers or employes, we think it all very nice and so do our wise neighbors. How utterly childishly absurd it is to "make an exception" if one teaches a negro child how to spell, to read and to write. Will some master in such fine knowledge explain just wherein it is seemly to sell goods to a negro, or to buy from him or to practice law for him, or to give him medicine, or even to preach to him sometimes, but a thing abhorrent to teach him whatever he can learn that we can teach? Of what shams we are guilty.

Think of people going into raptures over David Livingstone, explorer of Africa and pioneer of Christian civilization, and then turning up their noses at a teacher, not because he is ignorant or ill-bred or bad, but because, forsooth, he teaches a negro school.

A word more I add on this point. If the best results are to be achieved, both for the white and the black races, in the education of the negro, then Southern white people must take part in the work of his education.

TIME CHANGES AND THE GRAVE BURIES.

Let us take courage; prejudices that must hold their own both against conscience and common sense must die after awhile. Great changes occur in the life time of one generation and the law of morality buries the bitterest prejudices in the grave. How great revolutions in sentiment fifty years may produce many facts of our country's history illustrate. It has been only fifty years since a fierce multitude in Canterbury Green, Conn., mobbed a cultivated and Christian woman only because she was teaching a few negro children.

THERE ARE SIGNS OF PROGRESS

In May, 1882, at the late General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the College of Bishops, in their quadrennial message to the conference, earnestly recommended some adequate provision for the better preparation for their work of colored teachers and preachers. The committee on education reported in favor of the plans suggested by the bishops; the general conference, without a dissenting voice, adopted the report of the committee. The result so far is the appointment of a board of trustees, the sending forth of a general agent, the selection of a place and the election of two of the best men in that church to serve in the faculty of Paine Institute, Augusta, Ga. For several months the general agent and the president, both of them distinguished and old ministers in that church, have worked hard with small success.

It may be considered "unparliamentary," but I take leave to ask, did the general conference mean anything by the action it took on the subject of negro education in Nashville, Tenn., in May, 1882? If so what did it mean? It is incredible that we should have in this history a case of conscience like this; too much conscience to repudiate a duty but not enough to do it—just enough to use good words. If that general conference represented the church in its action on the subject of negro education, how are we to interpret the non action of that church when asked to do what the general conference put into words?

If it did not represent that church what is to become of a church that does not even put into words its recognition of an obvious duty? What finally will be the attitude of this church if it shall drop the work which it solemnly declared, through its bishops and its general conference, that it ought to do and that it promised to do? It will be discredited and it will never recover from the wound given its own heart by its own hand.

Other churches in the South have small occasion to glory over the church whose general conference action I have discussed, for none of them have done anything worthy of special mention; few of them have even gone so far as to talk of doing anything.

QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER.

If the churches of the South take no part in the Christian education of the millions of negroes in our midst, what will be the verdict of history upon their course? A far more important question is this: What will be the verdict of the Head of the Church of the Lord God Almighty, the Father of us all? And what will be the result in the life of these churches if God should see that by taking no part in the work angels would be glad to do they have made themselves unworthy to be trusted with that work? Can the churches of the South consider any questions that more deeply affect the very roots of their life.

THE ONLY PLATFORM.

It is one of the sad things connected with the difficult problem of the two races living together in this country that not a few good people of both races have despaired of its solution. The author of the Declaration of Independence wrote, it is said, in 1782 this prediction: "Nothing is more certainly written in the book of fate than that these people are to be free; nor is it less certain that the two races, equally free, cannot live in the same government."

It does not surprise me that Mr. Jefferson made both these predictions. As to the first, there was at that time in Virginia and other Southern States a strong party that favored the emancipation of the slaves. As to the second, he had studied French philosophy more than he had studied Christianity. If this country had been pagan Rome or infidel France, the first prediction would have failed—the slaves never would have been set free by the will of man. Had they been set free, the second prediction would have been fulfilled, for in a pagan or infidel country the two races could not be "equally free and live in the same government." They would not have been set free had this not have been a Christian country; as it is a Christian country the two races "equally free" before the law, can "live in the same government," and the problem of their free citizenship can be solved.

As to this whole subject, full of difficulties as those best know who have personal relations to it, there is just one platform on which Christian people can stand. Our problem with those millions of negroes in our midst can be properly solved, not by force of any sort from without the States where they live; no more can it be solved by repression within those States. It can be worked out only on the basis of the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. On this platform we can solve any problem whatever, whether personal, social, industrial, political, natural, or ethnical that Providence brings before us. On any lower platform we will fail and always fail.

"Give Us a Call."

BY ELLA WHEELER.

[Suggested by seeing these words in a saloon advertisement.]

Give us a call! We keep good beer,
Wine, brandy and whisky here,
Our doors are open to boys and men,
And even to women, now and then.
We lighten their purses, we taint their breaths,
We swell up the column of awful deaths.
All kinds of crimes we sell for dimes,
In our sugar'd poisons, so sweet to taste.
If you've money; position or time to waste,
Give us a call.

Give us a call! In a pint of our gin,
We sell more wickedness, shame and sin
Than a score of clergymen, preaching all day,
From dawn to darkness could preach away.
And in our beer, (though it may take longer,
To get a man drunk, than drinks that are stronger),
We sell out poverty, shame and woe,
Who wants to purchase? Our prices are low,
Give us a call.

Give us a call! We'll dull your brains,
We'll give you a headache and racking pains,
We'll make you old, while you yet are young,
By lies and slander, we'll train your tongue
We'll make you a shirk, from all useful work,
Make theft and forgery seem fair play,
And murder a pastime sure to pay;
Give us a call.

Give us a call! we are cunning and wise;
We are bound to succeed for we advertise
In the family papers; the journals that claim
To be pure in morals and fair of fame.
Husbands, brothers and sons will read,
Our kind invitations, and some will heed,
And give us a call; we pay for all
The space in the papers we occupy,
And there's little in this life that money won't buy.
If you would go down in the world and not up,
If you would be slain by the snake in the cup,
Or lose your soul in the flowing bowl,
If you covet shame and a blasted name,
Give us a call.

"It Gives Itself."

One day, when Beppo had been begging a long time and had got nothing, he came to an open place where there was a fountain. He knelt before it and took a long draught of the cold water, and rose from his knees refreshed and encouraged. He had been sad and weary before. In the beautiful city (Florence) where this little Italian boy lived there are a great many beggars, and he found it very hard to get enough to eat.

At the very moment when he rose from his knees he heard a voice saying, "Little boy why do you drink from the fountain?"

Beppo looked around in surprise A pretty lady stood beside him. In one hand she carried a bag and some books and papers; a little girl, very ragged but bright and happy looking clung to the other.

"Why do you drink from the fountain?" asked the lady again.

"Because I am hungery, and no one gives me any bread," answered Beppo, showing his empty wallet.

"And who gave you the water?" asked the lady.

Beppo smiled with all his white teeth. "It gives itself," he said.

"Come with me and I will give you some bread," said the lady. "You need not be afraid; this little girl is coming."

Beppo was never afraid. He followed the lady across the open square where the fountain stood; they went in at a door in a large house, and up some stone steps to a room where a number of children were gathered—poor children like Beppo, in ragged cloths, with great black eyes and white teeth, such as all little Italians have. It was a mission Sunday school, but Beppo did not know that, and indeed he had quite forgotton that it was Sunday.

The lady led Beppo to a corner and gave him a nice piece of bread from her bag, and while he was eating she gathered the other children around the piano to sing. Beppo listened while he ate. They sang in Italian, but the words were those which American children sing:

"Jesus the water of life will give, Freely, freely, freely."

Beppo thought of the fountain and wondered if that was the water of life, and felt almost sure that it was when he heard the children sing:

"Come to the fountain—oh drink and live!
Flowing for me and for you."

It made him very happy to hear this, and he thought that Jesus was very kind, through he did dot exactly understand.

Beppo has been to the Sunday school a great many times since then, and he knows more about Jesus, and loves and serves him. He is not a beggar boy any longer, for the lady has found a place for him to work and earn his living. Often as he goes of erands for his master, he passes by the fountain in the square before the church, and it always makes him think with love of Jesus, who "gives himself" to those who thirst after righteousness.—Morning Star.

Going Down Grade at Lightning Speed.

Alfred Haynes left his beautiful home surrounded by English scenery to explore foreign lands. He, the eldest son, the darling of the household, how tenderly had he been cared for in that Christian home! Loving hands had equiped him with all needful things for this far-off journey. The last farewell is spoken to kind parents, brothers and sisters, and he presses forward to battle with life and self maintenance so eagerly sought by the boys of every clime.

A few weeks find him in an American city, with no employment, and the days drag wearily. His money is almost gone; pride forbids him to send home for more. Self-willed, he prefers to take the wrong road, and soon he finds himself in want. From this he beats his way on railroads, and helps himself to food. Meeting with no opposition he becomes bold, and silencing his conscience by saying, "Well, I cannot get work, I will not starve, I must have money at all hazards." Private houses are entered, goods purloined. Stores are next broken open, the night police discover him, and his next resting-place is the station house. The trial and commitment follow in quick succession, and then the long weary days in the common jail, days of helpless waiting, and in less than three months from the outgoing from that God-fearing home he is alone in his prison cell sentenced for two years in a western penitentiary. Alfred sees his mistake now, too proud to do right, he must submit to legal discipline. He is only eighteen years old; but these lessons will not have been taught in vain if it brings him out safely. "He is passing under the rod." In time these wounds will heal; but the scars never. The letters sent home by him are filled with loving words, and here and there glimpses of a higher and better life are revealing themselves to him. How poor, weak humanity shows our depravity, while the divinity of Christ is manifested in us only by his own loving hand.

health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of BROWN' IRON BITTERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 26, 1881.

Gentlemen:—I have suffered with pain in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medicines, and was treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters; I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well—pain in side and back all gone—soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and flesh. It can justly be called the king of medicines.

JOHN K. ALLENDER.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is composed of Iron in soluble form; Cinchona the great tonic, together with other standard remedies, making a remarkable non-alcoholic tonic, which will cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Weakness, and relieve all Lung and Kidney diseases.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 16, 1883.

According to the Commercial Gazette in seventy of the eighty-eight counties of Ohio the Scott law has obliterated 1,019 saloons, which is about 12 per cent of the whole number. The agregate amount realized from the tax in these counties is $1,494,200.

People who have large sums of money on their person, and are inclined to lose their wallets, we advise to go directly to Chautauqua. Pack thieves never break through nor steal there. Then if one loses his portmanteau, clothes, and money, he is sure to have them all restored. According to the Assembly Herald this is almost a daily occurrence.

Mrs. M. M. Haughn, widow of Judge Charles Haughn, recently assassinated at Jefferson, Texas, publishes a card to deny the infamous statement the murderers sent abroad to deceive the public as to the real cause of the crime. The statement alleged that Mrs. Haughn believed that the murderer of her husband was a negro who sought to avenge a wrong done a daughter or sister by her husband before marriage. It is a complete fabrication. Judge Haughn was an active Republican and a devoted friend of the colored people, and he was about to try cases involving [illegible] election frauds. These [illegible] the Texas ku klux hold as their warrant in denouncing the [illegible] as a bold, bad man. Prohibition.

Few matters are giving certain political leaders more trouble than the prohibition movement that is sweeping the country with such force. The last session of the Legislature of Missouri passed what is known as the Downing License law. One of the provisions of this enactment was the prohibition of the sale of all intoxicants on Sunday under penalty of forfeiture of license by the offender. Governor Critenden seems determined to enforce the law. In a letter to the Police Commissioners he says: "No body or class of men can be permitted to defy or nullify a law against the moral sentiment of two-thirds of the people of the State." But the rum interest of St. Louis is solid, representing a a class and a business with whom there is not the faintest glimpse of moral and Christian principle. It is the organized strength of the "plug-uglies," the "riff-raff," the lowest order of the sporting community, the worst elements in society, with a few shrewd men who know how to handle and use this low element for their own selfish ends. Most of the saloon keepers of St. Louis are persons of foreign birth, several hundred of these have violated the Sunday law, and have been arrested and cited for trial. This has created a great bluster among the liquor sellers. And now the Democratic Central Committee of St. Louis, twenty three members present, unanimously adopt resolutions against the enforcement of the Sunday law. They say: "It is antagonistic to our usage and custom, and because its enforcement would entail an unnecessary depreciation of property in our city without a corresponding benefit to anybody whatsoever." It is well to look at this. The law is on the statute books; the constitutionality of it has been affirmed by the Supreme Court of the State, but here are certain men of the regular Democracy, professing to speak for the Democracy of St. Louis, who propose to defy and nullify the law. We have but little to expect from Gov. Crittenden. There is evidently to be a contest between law and order, between whiskey and prohibition. On one side there is law, order, prohibition, peace and prosperity; on the other there are the plug-uglies, the riff-raff, the freebooters, nullification, whiskey and Democracy. The future for St. Louis is not very promising. We need Governors who will enforce the laws and make a judicious use of hemp.

The Telegraph in China.

Nearly fifteen years ago a telegraph wire some fourteen miles long was stretched from Woosung up to Shanghai. It was used mostly to announce the arrival of vessels, etc. But its life was short. Several mysterious deaths occurred along the line of the wire. The Toutai of the province concluded that it was an offense to the Fung shui, the spirit of wind and water, and he issued an order to have it taken down. But mark the change. The city of Hangchow is now connected with the whole Christian world by means of the telegraph. It has been built by the government and connects at Sacchow with the line that was built last year from Tientsin to Shanghai. A branch of the same line runs to Naukin. The government is pushing this line on to Canton, so when that point is reached there will be a continuous line from Tientsin, near Peking on the north, to Canton on the extreme south of the Empire. This, we believe, is the first step that the Chinese government has taken in the telegraphic field. This line, we are informed, is full fifteen hundred miles long, and is to be followed by lines in other directions. Our missionaries inform us that the fears of the people are considerably excited, and that the priests have taken occasion [illegible] money to repair their temp[illegible] by selling charms to be [illegible] round their necks, to ward off any injurious influence that may come from the displeasure of the spirit of the wind and water because of the telegraph. This is certainly progress. Here is a government that fifteen years ago, out of pure superstitious notions, ordered the wires taken down, so far delivered as to rise above their superstitious fears, and and has at this time erected fifteen hundred miles of telegraph lines. This shows that Christianity is making its influence felt in this vast empire. So far, then, as the government checks the power of superstition it becomes a co-worker with the missionaries.

Do Not Lie.

If you wish to have the reputation of an honest man, do not lie. If you wish to avoid bringing disgrace upon yourself, your family, and the church of which you are a member, do not lie. If you wish to obtain such credit as your business may sometimes seem to require, do not lie. If you wish to retain the confidence and remain on terms of friendship with those with whom you do business, do not lie. If you wish to avoid embarrassing others, keep your promise and pay what you have promised and as you promised, and do not lie. If you desire to prevent mistakes and keep out of broils and litigation, do not lie. If you wish to aid in the circulation of money do not keep in your pockets cash you have collected for other parties, send along soon, and do not lie. If you would do by others as you would have them do by you, then speak the truth and do not lie. If in the expectation of death you have any desire for the approval of God, do not lie. If you have the least desire to dwell with the white robed throng, do not lie. All liars are to have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone, and if you would avoid that place, do not lie. "Who shall ascend into the holy hill?" asks the psalmist, and this is the answer "He that maketh righteousness, and that speaketh the truth in his heart." "He that telleth lies" says Daniel, "shall not tarry in my sight" While hell is described as the great mansion-house of liars. "The unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers. and whoremongers, and socerers, and idolaters, and all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

M. J. Dyer, Sixth Street: "No church in the city of New Orleans has a more enterprising class of young people than Sixth Street. On Friday and Saturday, 3rd and 4th inst., they gave a grand concert under the management of the following persons: Fannie Elliott, Maggie Gallagher, M. J. Ritchie, America Wilson, Louisa Davis, W. B. Williams, Thomas Williams. and H. Wilson, for the benefit of the church. They saved for the church $63.15. We feel under obligations to these our young friends, and where all did so nobly it may be considered out of place to make special mention of any one. May the spirit of the living God come down upon all of our young people and make them as living stones in the temple of the Lord. On Monday, the 6th instant, our Sunday-school held its first annual picnic at Orange Grove. It was a delightful place, and all present, whether young or old, seemed joyful and happy. The ice cream and lemonade were nice. The amusements of the young people were innocent and harmless. The singing was good. We all felt that it was good to be there. The schools connected with Haven's and Simpson's Methodist Episcopal Chapels, also St. Peter's A. M. E., joined with us in the festivities of the occasion. Our own Sunday-school is doing a good work. It is one of the living, interesting and progressive schools of the city."

John Franklin, Simsport: "I am getting everything to work together for good. Received 4 in full connection, 15 on probation, baptized 6. Sunday-school is growing, and I have received a library for it worth having. Children's Day was observed."

TENNESSEE.

J. B. Bradford, Purdy: "My third quarterly is over. Elder J. P. Price was on time as usual, and the church was very much revived. Paid pastor $18, and the presiding elder $4.50, and raised something on all other claims, and 14 were at the altar for prayer."

Wm. Dwegans, Alamo: "My third quarterly meeting was held by elder Jesse Price. We had a glorious time; services being largely attended. Total raised $18.20; paid presiding elder $10.50; pastor $6.25; on old debts $48. for building and repairing $56. Paid to pastor up to third quarter $89.20. Present indebtedness of church $28.40. Deaths during the quarterl, received 6, children baptized 48, adults 2. We shall pay all our debts. Church is prospering. Sunday-school is largely attended. The Sunday-school institute last quarter resulted in great good. R. P. McKinley, of [illegible] nessee college, and S.B. Dauley, of Memphis circuit, were with us. Shall push all benevolent enterprises."

A. Roach, Riceville circuit: "My protracted meeting just closed at Eastport, held two weeks. 3 conversions. Our camp meeting will commence second Saturday and continue through following Sunday of September. Come one, come all."

J. L. Massey, Martin: "Elder Price held our third quarterly meeting. I was sick when he came, and the meeting was held in my room. All the brethren had written reports, showing that all had done something for the Master. We had also Rev. J. J. Barr, of Sharon, Rev. John Gaston, of Union City, and Bro. A. F. Lane, just received from the A. M. E. Church. Paid elder $12, pastor $41.65. We raise something on every cause."

H. W. Simmons: Gallatin: "Our third quarter was held at Union Hill, July 21. The presiding elder was with us. He preached for us on Sunday. Our church there is in a very inconvenient place, almost an impossible matter to get any nearer than a half mile of it in a vehicle. Membership only ten in number. Collection was $4.25. We are trying to complete our church there before cold weather. It is very unfit in its present condition for services during the cold season of the year."

ARKANSAS.

We clip this from the Herald, of Little Rock: "Rev. I. G. Pollard, presiding elder of the Argenta district, M. E. church, is undergoing examination before a committee on the charge of unlawful separation from his wife, and conduct unbecoming a Christian minister. Rev. Elkins, presiding elder of the Hot Springs district, is presiding. The church is represented by Revs. W. O. Emory and G. W. Sams. Quite a number of representatives of the cloth are in attendance from the distant fields." And this from the Herald, 9th inst.—"The trial of Rev. I. G. Pollard at Wesley Chapel was concluded last Monday. It lasted seven days, and resulted in an acquittal."

TEXAS.

R. Reeder, Gonzales: "I arrived in this city on the 29th of April. My efforts have been all that I could expect, resulting in forty-nine conversions, and have succeeded in reclaiming seven backsliders to the cause of Christ. Thirty-nine of those converted united with our church and were duly baptized. Presiding elder expressed himself well pleased. 118 persons rallied to the altar for sacrament."

The Sabbath School

When the Sunday-school first sprang into existence it seemed a great moral necessity. The people at that time were generally ignorant, and the larger number had no desire to become more intelligent. To obtain their daily food and raiment was the height of their ambition without giving any thought to their mental condition. Such a state of affairs naturally brought about an entire indifference to the higher needs of man. The Sabbath became simply a day of recreation, and under these circumstances the children were left to amuse them selves as their inclinations might lead them. The result was great ignorance of God's law and of its requirements. But, a few men were impressed with the thought that Sunday might be used as a day to collect in the children and give them instruction. The children were gathered together and taught to read, and when this had been accomplished, the Bible was used as a text-book, thus serving a double purpose, learning to read, and learning God's law. In the course of time schools became so common that all had the paivileges of an education, and the Sabbath-school is now only a place for the study of the Bible. Now I would apply these thoughts to the needs of the colored people. When any race, white or black, have been kept in a state of slavery for two or three centuries, the result cannot be otherwise than a weakening of the mental condition of the people so held in bondage. The first thing to be done is to arouse in them a desire to become improved in their mental and social life. As the mental is improved the natural result will follow, an improvement of the moral qualities. Our people are largely dependent upon their daily labor for their daily bread, and the Sabbath day comes to them as a day of rest. It is often said "change is rest." A portion of the Sabbath spent in mental labor will not interfere with the physical labor of the week, but will rather be of benefit, by drawing away the thoughts from the physical weariness. The Sabbath-school then seems to be peculiarly adapted to the wants of our people by furnishing them the time and place where they may learn to read, and also gain a knowledge of God's word of truth. Our childaen should be brought together on the Sabbath, not making it a task for them to come, but as a delightful gathering, everything being made so pleasant that they will gladly come again. Good, lively Sabbath-school hymns should be sung accompanied by some musical instrument. When our children have been brought into the common schools, and the Sabbath schools, then it may be said that we are on the road to become the equals of any people. Education, with a firm trust in God, is our only hope.

Another Financial Move for Trinity M. E. Church.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—A few days ago Mrs. H. A. Jones, one of our members, assisted by a committee, consisting of Messrs. C. McGuire, F. Johnson and W. H. Clark, gave an entertainment for the benefit of the church. They offered the following prizes for those selling tickets: For ladies—1st, a pair of gold bracelets; 2d, ear-rings and breast-pin (gold); 3rd, a glass tea set. For gentlemen—1st, an ivory-handle gold pen; 2d, a carved glass ink-stand. Tickets sold at 10 cents each. The sellers brought in the following amounts: Miss Ella Louis, $21.05; Miss Nancy Russell, $20.50; Miss Netfie Dibble, $17.30; Miss Media Flake $5 70; Miss Theresa Degaultie, $1.40; Miss Alice George, $1.20, and Miss Phillis Haley, $1; Mr. W. H. Clark, $2.10; Mr. G. McDonald, $5, and Mr. C. McGuire, 80 cents. Total, $86.05. The prizes were awarded accordingly. The refreshment stands netted the following amounts: Ice cream, by Mrs. A. C. Jones, $17.30; lemonade, by Miss P. A. Winn, $6.60; fruit, by Miss M. Flake, $3.75; meat and coffee, by Miss A. Riley, $10.05; nuts, by Miss M. Kelly, 50 cents. Other stands netted the following: Toy table, by Mrs. Annie Carter, $5; grab bag, by Miss Nancy Russell, $1.75; post office, by Miss Ella Lewis, 90 cents, and received at the door, etc., $2.40. Total $48.25. Grand Total $134.20. Expenses $18.75. Net receipts from the entertainment, $115 45. They divided it as follows: To trustees, $80; to stewards, $25; to the cause of Church Extension, $10.

I give this account of the entertainment because I consider it a marvel of success; also, I want the brethren and friends to see what Trinity folks can do when they try. I want them to notice how light the expense is. Yours,

I. B. SCOTT, P. E.

At Marshfield, Indiana, recently, a doctor insane with the use of whisky, got on a heavy spree with a farmer by the name of McShene, and while the latter was in a stupor from whisky or chloroform, proceeded to dissect him. He had made several cuts on the back of his subject's head and above and beneath the eye, when his own liquor evidently overcame him. When found McShene was lying unconscious under a bloody sheet.

Hot Springs District.

Half the year is gone, and in looking back over the six months of grinding toil and meager salaries of the preachers, the wonder is that we have done anything. But notwithstanding the peculiar dificulties under which we have labored, being harrassed with local wars, mob, and riots, we have in the very face of difficulties of the most discouraging features succeded.

Arkansas City: O. Wheeler was appointed to this mission, but finding no members there, and success seeming to be impossible, owing to the overflow, I changed him to another field, but have supplied the work with another man and am trying to organize in that difficult field.

Camden: J. T. Thompson pastor. This is a new field, the work hard and difficult; many disconraging features; no chnrches, but Bro. Thompson is an earnest preacher, working for Christ.

Centre Point; H. H. McAlister pastor, is in a prosperous condition, a few conversions, and a goodly number of accessions. Bro. Mc. will be heard from in the future.

Fulton: Ed. Spencer, pastor. Bro. S. has had a hard time, but has had some success.

Hot Springs; W. H. Crawford pastor, has had some increase in membership. The spiritual condition seems to be good. The best love feast and class meeting I ever attended were there.

Little Rock; W. O. Emory pastor, reports some success to the quarterly conferences,—an increase in membership and finances.

Paraclifta; G. W. Baber, reports work in good condition—more than fifty accession and a goodly number of conversions.

Lewisville: O. Wheeler present pastor. Work in bad condition, but we hope for good results, for the Lord is remarkable for raising the dead.

Pine Bluff Station: S. Johnson has done a good work—is in the new church having a revival, eight converts and fifteen accessions.

Pine Bluff circuit: C. G. Brooks, is toiling on, and having some success though the work is hard and difficult, but there is light ahead.

Red Land: J. G. Thompson is having some success. This a new work, but gets no aid from the Missionary Society. Bro. Thompson is doing a work that requires a consecrated heart to do—a work that few preachers in Little Rock Conference would be willing to do.

Swan Lake: G. G. W. Taylor was appointed pastor but refused to serve. I then appointed Wm. Fuller, whom I had to move from Texarkana to this work, but he did not go to it. For the present it is attached to Pine Bluff Circuit.

Texarkana: Wm. Fuller was appointed to this charge, but owing to some internal and some external [illegible] the work came near [illegible] on his hands in a short time, and I had to remove him and appoint Rev. M. Lockman from Lewisville there to save the work. Bro. Lockman is gaining ground, and there is hope for Texarkana yet.

Washington: G. B. Donnelly is doing well and building up the work. He is universally esteemed. [illegible] not his equal, as a preacher, in the Conference.

Wattoo: Edward Pinkett, is having a very hard time. But few members and they poverty stricken, ignorant, superstitious and believe in all kinds of witchcraft.

I find that superstition is one of the [illegible] strongholds upon the [illegible] of South Arkansas. Many of them are firm believers in the [illegible] degrading forms of African [illegible], and church members, [illegible] Baptists, but not a few [illegible], frequently join in the [illegible] and Ebo dance. This is [illegible] field, but love for humanity and love for God impel us [illegible]. May God bring us [illegible] the blessings of that [illegible] to abide con[illegible] light of the Son [illegible] beneath whose [illegible] of color shall [illegible].

From Waco District.

MR. EDITOR:—We are still moving onward. It happened that the closing part of five weeks' trip was in the northern portion of my work. June 7th and 10th bring me to Majors and Gatesville, of which Rev. A. Taylor is pastor; his quarter was held. The brethren were on hand; the business was well attended to. preaching at 3 p. m.; after which the Lord's Supper was administered to 23 persons. This work is a new one. Bro. Taylor is one of our old men—he cannot preach as loud as some—but he is one our best planners; he and the brethren are striving hard to build a church at Gatesville and are progressing; with a little aid from the Church Extension they will be able to accomplish the work. At Majors, a Baptist preacher and six other men, disturbed the community by taking out one of their neighbors and mobbing him. It created a great excitement; justice has overtaken all but two, and they, it is said, are the main doers of the crime—all colored. Leaving here brings me to Millville, of which Rev. A. Brack is pastor. His quarter was held June 23rd and 27th. Brethren were well notified and on hand. Report of the pastor shows increase of fifteen conversions. Everything passed off lovely. I found him in a protracted meeting. I preached two nights; three were happily converted. This is one of our new appointments. Heretofore our preachers traveled three counties; now the work is divided into two appointments. Bro. Brack is another of our old time men, full of the missionary spirit, preaches well and with vigor; skillful in management of revivals, he always has success. Sunday was a high day for Methodists at Milford. At 11 a. m. I preached and afterwards administered sacrament; six joined the church, seven were babtized, many came forward for prayer. Sister M. A. T. Perkins, from Central Tennessee College, Nashvil'e. Tenn., is doing a grand work in the Sunday-school here with a corps of teachers. O. Hunter, superintendent; L. Black, assistant; L. S. Richardson, Bible teacher. She being opposed by other denominations, has completely captured them all by her love for her people and church. She is a Methodist, and in fact she has done as much as any preacher we have sent to that place. She shows every mark of genuineness as a lady and teacher. She takes a first grade certificate and is very familiar with music. Leaving here brings me to Fort Worth, of which Rev. E. Hall is pastor; his quarter was to be held July 1st, but he being unwell, his congregation was not notified, though I preached for him Sunday, at 3 p. m., and administered sacrament to six. This is a new appointment. He had organized a small society of sixteen the first of this year; but the largest part is transient—not any settled home—and only six of them remain. The work in this part of Texas is a hard one for our church among our people. It is also hard among the whites. I do not think our church will be able to do much in Fort Worth. I called to see Rev. Watkins, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, white, and spent a short time with him, he seemed to be in good spirits.

I went from here to Dallas, of which Rev. P. Gates is pastor. His quarter was held July 7th and 8th; brethren were on hand; his reports show some increase of membership; Sunday-school in a very good condition; business passed off nicely; preaching at 11 a. m., and 3 p. m. after which sacrament was administered to sixty; two joined the church by letter; our members here stand firm.

At Sherman, Rev. Jacob Marshall, a local preacher, is pastor, having charge of the work. His quarter was held July 14th and 15th. He represents the work on the increase. One was taken into the church. A storm had blown down part of the church, but they have it so as to worship in. Bro. S. Scroggins and himself anticipate doing a good work here. Sister M. Marshall in the Sunday-school has thirty-five or forty scholars in attendance; I preached and administered sacrament. The congregation was small on account of rain. At 8 p. m., we had a good attendance. The preacher, Rev. Jefferson Buel, has never made his appearance, and his excuses are very very weak. He has not met any quarterly or district conference this year.

At Denison Rev. Green Bragner is pastor. I found him in a protracted meeting getting everything in readiness for the dedication of their new church, and in expectation of being ready for the quarterly conference; as a result of the meeting two joined the church by letter from the Baptist church. A good many came forward for prayer. Rev. P. Gates, from Dallas, rendered him good service. His quarter was held July 21 and 22. The finances were not conducted as well as they might have been. As this was his first beginning in church building I hope it will give him a good idea. The trustees indebtedness to the workmen was $56; paid $73; they owe $56 yet. Sunday at 11 a. m., P. Gates preached. The sacrament was administered to 35 members; collections $10.24. At 3 p. m. Rev. C. W. Hargitt of the M. E. Church, Denison, was invited to assist in dedicating the new church He preached a grand sermon, which every one enjoyed, with power, and full of thought; he held the audience spell-bound for one hour; after which collection, $13. Then the trustees presented the church to be dedicated, Bro. Haggitt reading the part pertaining to it. He is a good preacher, and I pray God blessing upon him in his work. The collection for the day wrs $27.56. We have only 29 members at Denison. The church is worth $600.

Letter From Benton.

MR. EDITOR.—We are getting on very well at this place. When I came, February 8th, I found the people cheerful, but in a very bad old house for a church. It was nearly rotted down, and propped up on one side. I took away the props in March and let the building fall. People told me that when money was plenty they could raise $10 a month for all purposes, including pastor's salary. I went to work and since that time have raised $450 from the people. and $200 from the Church Extension Society, making a total of $650 in the four months ending June 30. We have raised $55 in this month, increasing the amount to $705. The church is 50x32 feet, of good lumber, nicely weather-boarded, painted white. Overhead it is painted a light, sky blue, the walls grey. The altar is ten feet long, and raised one foot; the pulpit is ten inches higher than the altar, and covered with Brussels carpet. There is a raised platform for the choir. There are 18 benches, 46 seats. The church is lighted with two chandeliers, with large flowered globes. The dedication took place the first Sunday in July. Presiding Elder G. W. Barney preached a very able sermon. Rev. P. Harris, of Yazoo City, assisted. Rev. J. Cannon, of Deasonville Circuit, preached in the afternoon. There are only two churches on this work. The upper one, called Double Springs, is small but they are trying to tear down their old barn and build a new church. They have quit blowing the cow horn and bought a nice bell.

We have received about 20 in the church, and have over 40 on probation. Sunday-school has grown from sixty scholars in February to 185 now. Rev. James Wilson, a local preacher, was a boss carpenter in building the church. Times were hard, but we owe very little on the work just completed. We haxe a society organized to finish the debts, known as the Home Mission of Wesley Chapel. Prof. V. Nelson is President, M. Jones, Secretary; D. Green, Treasurer. For dedication three large arbors were built, and about 800 people were present. Membership is 150. We are preparing for a protracted meeting. Yours, in Christ,

D. D. GOODWIN.

Benton, Miss., July 25.

Loyalty to the Church.

MR. EDITOR.—I hope that I shall not be called impertinent. I earnestly desire to treat every man as a Christian gentleman, but I hate shams. I think that a person who professes religion at home and does not live it when he is away is a sham, a cheat. So I think that a man who is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church when he is at home, perhaps a steward, a class leader, or local preacher, and comes here to the city and never identifies himself with any of our churches, but goes to other churches, has become a sort of a religious tramp; he is to me almost a sham. I think that he should go to some of our churches, and help build up his own church. I know a number of young men at the Customhouse who when at home have been considered as pillars in the M. E. Churches in the communities where they have lived; some of them are local preachers, one of them has been highly honored by the church, but here in the city they seldom attend any of our churches. Now it seems to me, Mr. Editor, that these men owe it to themselves, and to the church that has done so much for the colored people, that they attend some of our churches and help us in our Sunday-schools and other departments of church work. I wish, Mr. Editor, that you would say something to correct this evil. For the right.

M. J. DYER.

We do not see how any man who is loyal to God and his church can be running around and spending his time and giving his money to help others when his own church stands in need. We advise these brethren to concentrate all their time and energies to the building up of their own church. They will accomplish most for God and the church by staying at home.

Hot Springs District Conference.

MR. EDITOR:—The Hot Springs district conference of the Little Rock conference was held in the Methodist Episcopal church, Texarkana, Ark., June 7. Rev. L. W. Elkins, P. E., in the chair. G. B. Donnelly was elected secretary. The several pastors reported their work as in a very prosperous condition. Bro. Crawford was with us and preached by special invitation, taking as his text, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." The sermon was good from beginning to end. Most of the preachers were prepared with well written essays that were read and discussed with great interest. The presiding elder reported the district as in a prosperous condition; he urged upon the brethren the great need of their being careful to take up the various benevolent collections as the discipline directs. The conference was a great success. All were charmed with Bro. Elkins, and many said that they did not think that a Bishop could do much better.

G. B. DONNELLY, Secretary.

Mr. E John Ellis, one of the New Orleans Congressmen, has made a very damaging confession. He admits that he paid a lobyist and blackmailer at Washington by the name of George $300 to keep to himself what he knew about the "backbone" land grant to the New Orleans and Pacific Railroad Company, and that he was subsequently reimbursed by Mr. Wheelock, President of the backbone road. If he were a Republican, Mr. Ellis would forthwith be heralded throughout the country as a pocket edition of the late Oakes Ames, but being a Democrat, very little attention will be paid to the matter, especially as Mr. Ellis is an elegant gentleman and a member of one the first families of Louisana.—Inter-Ocean.

Rev. Wm. Davis writes from Washington. La., "Our people commenced picking cotton on Monday. The staple is good."

"M." writes from Charenton La., to the New Iberia Sugar Bowl: "In this neighborhood their seems toexist, I might say, a criminal negligence or apathy on the part of parents for the education of their children. We have several schools here, which are poorly patronized. I have one in my immediate neighborhood, presided over by one of the most learned and talented men of this parish: a graduate of one of of the best colleges of the United States, and very often he has not scholars enough to supply a fund to buy his clothing; whilst the children around are as thick as blackberries in June, and still a coming. The negroes have recognized the value of education; they send all their children to school, and if a little darkey proves refractory, they simply (as they express it) wallop him and he is bound to march to school. Let us hope that the white parents will open their eyes before it is too late, or have the humiliation hereafter of seeing their children going to a darkey to have their letters and papers read to them. This is no fancy sketch, but it stares us in the face."

The Citizens' League of Chicago begun quo warranto proceedings on the 6th against Jno. B. Drake, proprietor of the Grand Pacific Hotel, to test the validity of the ordinance passed by the council a few days before the States license law went into effect fixing the price of a saloon license at $103 instead of $500, as provided by the State law. This was done to bring matters to a speedy issue. The saloon keeers have thus far been fighting for a delay.

NEW BOOKS.

The Office of the Holy Spirit. By Dogan Clark, M. D. National Publishing Association for the Promotion of Holiness. John Inskip, Agent, 921 Arch Street, Philadelphia. Price, 75 cents.

This is a book that must prove of great value to all who read it. The Holy Spirit is defined not as "a thing, an influence, attribute, an emanation, but a person." He is not the breath of God, the power of God, the life of God, but God Himself. Dr. Clark in a clear definite and scriptural style sets forth the relation of the Holy Spirit "to the unconverted world," "the individual believer," and "to the visible church." The book indicates a clear religious experience on the part of its author, and the reading of it must serve as an incentive to greater efforts for a better religious experience. We discover no erroneous or false statement of doctrine or experience in this book. We wish it could be read and carefully considered by our preachers and church members generally; it would not only correct some erroneous and false notions, but would lead to a deeper Christian experience in the hearts of believers.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Manhattan for August has a lengthy article on Florence the Beautiful, illustrated by pictures of places, paintings and statues, for which the great Italian city was noted. There is also a paper on "Carpets and Carpet Designing," and quite a budget of sketches and miscellany. Manhattan is a very attractive mazazine. New York. $3 a year.

Electra for August opens with a "Half-Hour in Constantinople," followed by a general supply of miscellany. Price 20c.

The Boston Musical Herald for August, gives portrait and sketch of Otto Bendix, eminent pianist and teacher, a native of Denmark. An editorial item regrets that there is so little enthasiasm for the organ in Boston. There is foreign corespondence and personal mention, and the usual supply of music with notes. Price 15c.

"Will New York be the Final World Metropolis?" is a question W. C. Conant will ask in the September Century and answer in the affirmative with a curious array of facts and argument. He predicts that before another century passes New York's population "will surpass that of London, and that it will be the unrivaled center of finance and commerce, of luxury and fashion, of art and literature—the heart and brain, in a word, of the civilized world."

A pretty little song called "Pit a Pat," which costs 30 cts. is published by O. Ditson & Co., Boston. Dr. Peck writes it J. H. Grass makes the music. The publishers also send the following as specimens of their sheet music publications, of which they generally issue about two pieces, (one song and one instrumental piece) per day: "O, Vision entrancing," (40 cts.) Soprano Song from Esmeralda, by Goring Thomas. "Brier Rose," 30 cts. Graceful Piano Piece by Giese. "Romanza in Eb" for Violin and Piano (40 cts.) by Sivori. "O, that we two were Maying." (40 cts.) Song by Hullah. "Little Bo Peep Waltz," (30 cts) by Westenfield. and "Sweet little May," (40 cts) Song by Dr. Preston Sweet.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. The teachers of the public schools have certainly had much to contend against and their position is growing rapidly worse; at a meeting of the School Board, a motion was carried that the schools remain closed until November 1st; that no teacher be elected until fifteen days before the opening of the schools, and that all salaries commence from day of opening. The fault is not with the School Board that such action should be necessary, but with the Council in making so limited an appropriation for the support of the schools.—N. O. Price Current.

KIDNEY-WORT

"Kidney-Wort has given immediate relief, in many cases of rheumatism, falling under my notice."—Dr. Philip C. Ballou, Monkton, Vt. April 30, 1882.

"I never found even relief, from rheumatism and kidney troubles till I used Kidney-Wort! Now I'm well."—David M. Hutter, Hartford, Wis.

The Housekeeper.

[illegible] PERFUME.—Gather all the fragrant roses you can—no matter if you are a week gathering—and when you get a good many, take an iron mortar and pestle, like a druggist has, fill the mortar and pound the leaves to a pulp. It will be quite like a lump of dough. Then take your thimble and use it for a measure—fill it full of the mixture, empty out into your hand and between your palms roll and roll, until you make a compact little ball, round as a marble. Make up all your rose dough material this way, place on plates and dry in the sunshine. They will be dark and brown-looking, but "The scent of the roses will cling to them still."

These are put in drawers and trunks and bandboxes, and among your table and towel linen.

Carbolic acid is sure destruction to all insect life, and if used with [illegible] is not detrimental. To use it cheaply, make a strong solution of soap and water, and to each gallon of water add a tablespoonful of carbolic acid. This preparation not only keeps insects from trees and plants, when applied, but [illegible] serviceable in poultry houses, stables, pig sties, and all other places that need protection against vermin, for even rats will get out of its way if poured into their holes.

RICE CREAM.—Boil two ounces of fine rice in water for five minutes, strain it, and boil until tender in a quart of new milk. Rub the rice through a sieve to a pulp, and add to it any milk not absorbed in the boiling; half an ounce of gelatine to a pint of the rice and milk. The gelatine can be soaked and dissolved either in milk or water. Stir over the fire until mix[illegible] sweeten and flavor to taste. [illegible] the cream occasionally until [illegible], then lightly mix in the whites of two eggs beaten to a strong froth; when on the point of setting put it into a mould.

OMELET PLAIN.—Five eggs are enough to use in a medium-sized saucepan. Beat the yolks and whites separately, add two tablespoonfuls of new milk to the yolks, [illegible] salt; stir together; have the pan very hot; put in a lump of butter the size of an egg. As soon as melted pour the yolks into the pan, and then the whites; toss the eggs carefully together with a silver fork, shake the pan until the eggs begin to thicken; leave the [illegible] two or three minutes to brown, then loosen the edges with a knife; fold over, then turn on a hot platter. Serve immediately.—Philadelphia Press.

Croup can be cured in one minute, and the remedy is simply alum [illegible]. The way to accomplish the deed is to take a knife [illegible] and shave off in small [illegible] about a teaspoonful of [illegible]; then mix it with twice the [illegible] of molasses to make it palatable [illegible] administer it as quick [illegible]. Almost instantaneous [illegible] follow by vomiting.

WHITE CAKE.—This is an excellent and well-tried recipe. Whites [illegible] eggs, a small cup of butter, a [illegible] of powdered sugar, two [illegible] of flour, juice of half a [illegible] teaspoonful of baking [illegible]. Mix the baking powder [illegible] the flour, beat the butter [illegible] cream and add the flour [illegible] it in gradually until [illegible] paste. Beat the [illegible] to a stiff froth [illegible] powdered sugar [illegible] gradually [illegible] butter, adding [illegible]. As soon as [illegible] together bake [illegible] oven. When [illegible] cool, cover the [illegible]. Beat [illegible] a stiff [illegible] pow[illegible] of a [illegible]

[illegible] DIET.—[illegible]

[illegible] table reports to the British Medical Journal the result of his year's experience without meat. At first he found the vegetables insipid, and had to use sauces to get them down. As soon as he became accustomed to the diet all condiments were put aside except a little salt. The desire for tobacco and alcohol left him spontaneously. Then all his digestive functions became regular, and he found himself wholly free from headaches and bilious attacks. After three months a troublesome rheumatism left him, and at the end of the year he had gained eight pounds in weight. He believes he can do more mental labor than before and that all his senses are more acute. For breakfast he has brown bread, apples and coffee; dinner consists of two vegetables, brown bread and pie or pudding; for tea he rejoices in bread and jam, with milk and water, and for supper bread, jam, cold pudding, and, as a luxury, boiled onions. Eggs, milk, butter and cheese are used only in very small quantities. The dietist is a docter, and his statement is drawing out many similar ones from medical men.

BAKED APPLE DUMPLINGS.—Pare and take out the cores of the apples without dividing them, and make crust to taste; roll the apples in the crust, previonsly sweetening them with moist sugar and taking care to join the paste nicely. When formed into round balls put them on a tin and bake for about half an hour or longer; arrange them pyramidically on a dish and sift over them some powdered white sugar.

FIG LAYER CAKE.—Two cups of white sugar; one half cup of butter; two and a half cups of flour; one cup of milk; two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and the whites of eight eggs; flavor with vanilla. For the filling take one cup of stoned raisins and one lemon, peeled; chop together; then add one-half cup of water and one cup of sugar.

It is a coincidence worthy of note that while our Methodist brethren find their system increasingly unpopular, the independent and voluntary plan in other denominations has been tending for many years past to shorter and shorter pastorates, and that there seems to be an increasing embarrassment in the delay often encountered, both by ministers and churches, in passing from one pastorate to another.—Congregationalist.

The Gospel Song.

Behold the lamb! much loved of God,
Slain for our sins;
He bore for us the chastening rod,
Remission wins.

His blood, it was the precious price
Which paid our debt,
The all-atoning sacrifice,
It cleanses yet.

And love impelled him from his throne
To suffer here,
The sins of all the world atone,
Then draw us near.

Come, then, by faith, and test the word,
God's power know;
And wash your garments in the blood,
Be white as snow.

Yes, come unite in one accord
To praise and psalm,
We'll claim no merits of our own,
Saved by the Lamb!

Preaching the Gospel.

Dr. Sprague tells the following anecdote of an evangelical clergyman of the English Church, named Jones. The story was given him by the Rev. George Burder.

Mr. Jones had a college classmate who entered the ministry at the same time with himself, but was a mere man of the world, and knew little and cared nothing about the true Gospel. This man, conversing one day with Mr. Jones, said to him half jocosely, half seriously:

"Why is it that you are so popular as a preacher, and so few come to hear me, when every body knows that at the university I was considered greatly your superior?"

"Why," said Mr. Jones, "the reason is that I preach the Gospel."

"The Gospel?" said the other; "so do I; almost every text I preach upon is from Mathew, Mark, Luke or John."

Said Mr. Jones, "You may do that and yet never preach Jesus Christ."

"Well," said the other, lend me one of your sermons and see what effect it will have."

He actually did lend him one, and he preached it as he had engaged to do; and as he was coming out of the church at the close of the service he was accosted by a man who in listening to the borrowed discourse had been thrown into a state of anxiety in respect to his salvation.

Says the minister, some what confused by the strange result of his preaching—"Wait, wait say nothing about it till the people have all gone out."

After the congregation had retired the anxnious inquirer began further to explain himself, when the clergyman interrupted him by saying,

"But what is the matter with you? I see no occasion for making yourself so unhappy."

"Matter," replied he, "why your preaching has made me feel like a condemned criminal, and I fear there is no mercy for me."

"Well, really," said the minister, "I am very sorry that I have wounded your feelings—I had no intention of doing it. But since you have got into this uncomfortable state, I advise you to go and see Mr. Jones."

The Power of Prayer.

Spurgeon tells of a woman who wanted the use of a school house for a Sunday-school. The man to whom she had to apply was a sceptic; and before going to him, she asked God that she might have the house. She then asked the man, and he said:

"No! The school-house was built for secular learning, and we want none of your Bible nonsense."

"Well," said the woman, "I didn't ask you first; I asked a higher one than you, and I believe I shall get what I want, because I mean to pray for it until I do; for, do you know that when I pray with all my heart, there is something that always gives way? Sometimes it is a man's health, sometimes his life, but always something; and I am certain when I get the full strain of prayer on, something will snap."

And something did snap. The man couldn't get the matter of this woman's praying out of his mind, and he sent word to her that she might have the house.

Dr. S. E. Potter on Gen. Grant.

The Rev. Elbert S Potter, writing in the Christian Intelligencer of a trip to West Point in June, 1866, describes his meeting Gen. Grant on the steam-boat, details his conversation with him, and comments upon it as follows: "The conversation ranged over a variety of topics, and gave me impressions of Gen. Grant which have remained until this day unchanged. Without egotism, without vanity, of clear perceptions and of profound convictions, an earnest believer in Christianity as a divine revelation, an ardent lover of his country, he seemed to me then a seer and an oracle, with a mastery of language seldom equaled by Professors of elocution. Often afterward when I heard, as I did, that Gen. Grant was a fighter and nothing more, I had the opportunity to reflect upon the malignant cruelty of ignorance and the remorseless animosity of partisan spite. For to me in a conversation of about an hour and a half General Grant appeared to have acquired a fineney and an art in the use of speech worthy of admiration. He had a full and ready vocabulary, and selected his words with a nicety of scholarship men of affarirs seldom evince. His words, too, went to the mark straight. There was no curve, no zigzag line for them. At lenght the fragrant and excellent cigar had come down to a quite diminutive stub, when West Point, where the General would land, was in sight, and after an exchange of courtesies I took my leave. On public occasions since, I have seen and heard the ex-President, the latest being in the Bedford-Avenue Reform Church, Brooklyn, but I never felt the fascination of his power, and the charming manliness of the man, as I did on that June morning of long ago. And without wishing to challenge any opinion, I desire to close this letter by saying with emphasis, like other great benefactors Gen. Grant has been the selected victim of more abundant lies than ungrateful republics commonly coin. And yet he remains to-day the colossal figure among the grandest of the worthy sons of America."

"I Know a Thing or Two."

"My dear boy," said a father to his only son, "you are in bad company. The lads with whom you associate indulge in bad habit. They drink, smoke, play cards and visits theaters. They are not safe company for you. I beg you to quit their society."

"You needn't be afraid of me, father," replied the boy, laughing. "I guess I know a thing or two. I know how far to go, and when to stop."

The lad had left his house, twirling his cane in his fingers and laughing at the old man's notions.

A few years later, and that lad, grown to manhood, stood at the bar of a court before a jury which had just brought in a verdict of "guilty" against him for some crime in which he had been concerned. Before he was sentenced he addressed the court, and said, among other things: "My downward course began in disobedience to my parents. I thought I knew as much of the world as my father did, and I spurned his advice, but as soon as I turned my back upon home, temptations came upon me like a drove of hyenas, and hurried me to ruin."

Mark that confession, ye boys who are beginning to be wiser than your parents. Mark it, and learn that disobedience is the first step on the road to ruin. Do not take it.—[Selected.]

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to inquire for my people. I left them in Mississippi. We were parted in 1849, as near as I can remember, in Smith county. Father was a preacher. I had two sisters; the oldest was Harriet, next Kittie. They were taken to Jackson by John Currie to his brother David Currie. My sisters Martha and Anna Jane were taken by Miss Elizabeth Currie. Sister Mary and I belonged to John Currie. We were brought to Texas. Sister Mary was brought by Manning and I by John Currie. Address me at Bedias, Texas.

LEVEN CURRIE.

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to inquire for my mother and father. Mother was Aggie Harris, and father was Billy Broadneck. I left them in Rockingham county, N. C. When I left mother belonged to Billy Harris and father to Dr. Broadneck. My young master carried me to Blountsville, East Tennessee, when I was twelve years old. His name was John Harris. He took with me two brothers, Isaac and David. He sold me at Blountsville, and kept my brothers. There were nine of us children, and the others remained in North Carolina. I never heard of them any more. The oldest were Aban and Billy. Sister was Renie. Aggie was the baby when I left. Address me at Centreville, Tenn., in care of Mr. W. B. Bruce. NATHAN CHRISTMAN.

DEAR EDITOR:—I wish to make inquiry for my people. Father was Henry McCaskell, and lived on Chickesoby river, Warren county, Miss. Mother was Reana; belonging to Mrs. Lot, who kept a toll-bridge on Dog river, in Green county. I went then by the name of Charley Lot. Frank McCormick brought me to Texas. Address me at Tabernacle M. E. Church, Galveston, Texas.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-ly

—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.
By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.
WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.
A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time [illegible] the original words and music. The [illegible] has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.
"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

My Wife's Nervous Affection.

"We had ceased to hope that my wife's nervous affection could be cured," writes Rev. J. A. Edie, of Beaver, Pa. "Many physicians failed to do her good, but Samaritan Nervine has cured her." At druggists.

Charley went to see the apple of his eye the other evening, and, after a proper amount of affectionate conversation, said: "I'll give you a pair of ear-rings, dear, if you'll earn them by letting me bore your ears." "Haven't I earned them already, then?" queried the fair object of his affections.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., Dear Sir:—For many months I was a great sufferer. Physicians could afford me no relief. In my despair I commenced the use of your "Favorite Prescription." It speedily effected my entire and permanent cure. Yours thankfully,

MRS. PATL R. BAXTER,

"Look Out for the Engine."

I am a locomotive engineer, and have been for twenty years, and am now running on the Maine Central Railroad. Life on an engine, as all engineers know, is very trying to health and strength. The continual jar of the engine, and strain on our long trips all tend to weaken the kidneys and urinary organs. In addition to this, ten years ago, I met with a severe accident, and was taken from under my engine with severe internal injuries, which gave me great pain. I was laid up for six months, and suffered more than I can describe, and more than I wish to suffer again. I resumed work but my kidneys began to disturb me, and my nervous system seemed to be out of order. I could not sleep, as my water demanded such constant attention that I was kept awake a great part of the night; to urinate caused severe pain. I employed the best medical skill in Portland and elsewhere but continued to grow worse.

I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy as I found that many of my friends in Portland had used it with great success, yet I had no faith that it would reach my case. However, I sent for a half-dozen bottles at one of the drug-stores in Portland, and from the use of the first bottle found a great relief. My water was much better and the pain in the back and limbs greatly relieved. I continued its use until I had used ten bottles in all, and it has been to me a wonderful blessing, and I have deemed it a duty and privilege to recommend it to those troubled in a similar manner; and you may publish this for the benefit of our railroad men and the public in general, as it has completely cured me, GEO. W. BRADLEY.

Cause for Alarm.

Alice E. Curtis, of Brunswick, Me., writes us on May 15, 1883: That she has suffered very much at frequent intervals with kidney disease, and the attacks were increasing in severity so steadily as to cause alarm. Her aunt, Mrs. N. M. Small, persuaded her to use Hunt's Remedy, and after using several bottles Miss Curtis has been freed from the severe aches and pains to which she had long been accustomed; and further says that Hunt's Remedy never fails to relieve the severe pains in the side and intense backache, and Miss C. pronounces it a real blessing to women for all kidney diseases, and she cordially recommends it for the many ills and pains peculiar to women."

L. CARTER, M. D.

New York.

I do hereby certify to the public, that a child of mine, four years old, being troubled with worms, I was induced to purchase a bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros. of Pittsburgh, Pa., which I administered; and the result was, it brought away an immense number of worms in bunches and strings, many had the appearance of being cut to pieces. My child is now enjoying most excellent health. I take pleasure in recommending it to both young and old, as one of the best medicines I ever used.

MRS. ANN JAMIESON, 38 Ninth Street.

Mrs. Quigby, No. 182 Essex street, New York, writes us that she had a child which had been unwell for better than two months, she procured a bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and administered it. The child passed a large quantity of worms.

The Only Genuine

McLane's Vermifuge,

Is the Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge.

PREPARED BY

FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

The New York Advocate says: "Sad intelligence concerning Dr. Strong and his family comes to us from E. M. Jenkins & Co., the tourist agents, who arranged the 'itinerary' for the doctor and his party. His second daughter died last week at Lucerne, from congestion of the lungs and gastric fever. His son, whose illness so long detained the party in the south of Europe, is recovering but slowly. The sympathies of the entire church will be with Dr. Strong, as, with his stricken family, who can no longer bear to linger in lands so painfully memorable to them, he abandons his long cherished project, and returns to his saddened home."

"Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills cured me and my sister of nervous headache," Miss L. M. Chamberlain, Fairfield, Ohio.

The much-abused Eads jetty system at the mouth of the Mississippi River has proved a great success; and is to-day proving invaluable to the commerce of New Orleans, which means the commerce of a vast area of country. The fruit alone which comes to that port is an immense trade, branching out in every direction, Chicago and San Francisco getting lemons, etc., through those same jetties.—Inter-Ocean.

In Mr. Spurgeon's inexhaustible fund of illustrative stories is one of a man who used to say to his wife, "Mary, go to church and pray for us both." But the man dreamed one night when he and his wife got to the gate of heaven, Peter said, "Mary, go in for both." He awoke and made up his mind that it was time for him to become a Christian on his own account.

In consideration of $150,000 given by citizens of Ordway, Dakota, the Methodist University of Dakota has been located at that place.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

USE THE

TRADE MARK

A WONDERFUL and SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

SUNDAYSCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON VIII. August 19. ISRAEL FORSAKING GOD. (Judges ii, 6-16.)

Israel did serve God while the elders, who lived longer than Joshua, were with them, but when the elders died the fathers and mothers who had heard Joshua were all gone, too, their children were men and women, and now do you think they followed in the ways of the good old fathers? O it would seem as if they would. They surely knew all about the wonders God did for their fathers. The good old people must have told them about it. They could see the great stone under the oak, and it had God's law on it, but in spite of all this they forsook the Lord God of their fathers. O it does seem strange! Were they so busy when they heard all the story that they forgot it all? We can not tell why they did, but they grew up without loving God, and at last worshiped the sun and moon and stars instead. They left God, and so were punished. God no longer protected them, and their enemies soon overcame them, and they suffered greatly. Going away from God, or forsaking him, brought Israel only sorrow and pain. Don't we do as badly? We all hear how Jesus died for us! how he suffered and loved us! and now all we can do to show how sorry we are for all his pain is to obey him. We hear, and oh how often forget! Isn't that [illegible]. Now let us ask Jesus to help us remember our lessons, and to keep us from forsaking him. —Western.

The following incident deserves to be noted not only for its rarity, but also to encourage a struggling race. At the closing exercises of a school in Newport, R. I., a boy named Hammet and a colored girl named Rice were found to be equally deserving of a prize of $75 for proficiency in Greek. But by a [illegible] condition the prize could only be given to a boy. The master of the school stated the facts of the case and explained that Miss Rice was equally deserving of the prize with Hammet, but that under the circumstances nothing could be given to her. Hearing of this, a well-known gentleman of this city, sent the master a check for $75 to be given to Miss Rice, saying that he desired to place the girl, colored though she was, on an equality with the boy.

DEATHS.

Sister Matilda Parker died in Capleville, Tenn., July 21. She was converted in 1880, and belonged to the Sunday-school.
J. W. MATHEWS.

Sister Lucinda Robinson died May 1, in full triumph of a living faith. She joined the Church at Orange, Texas. She leaves a husband and five children.

Sister Lizzie Reed came to us from the A. M. E. Church in 1880. She leaves a mother and four children. She died in hospital of small-pox. J. SMITH.
Beaumont, Texas.

H. B. Jackson departed this life July 25. He was not a church member, but during his illness he professed a hope in Christ, and believed he found forgiveness.
P. H. HILL.
Durant, Miss., July 8.

Sister Charlotte Hale, of Daleville Circuit Miss., died July 19, 1883, aged 80 years. She has been a good, faithful member of the church for many years; she said she was ready and willing to go.
M. WHITE.

Eva Brooks, daughter of Cherry and Anderson Brooks, died Aug. 6, aged 3 mouths and 29 days. J. L. MASSEY.
Martin, Tenn.

Bro. Monroe McCurdy and Sister Francis Hall departed this life, recently, in full triumph of Christian faith. The church has lost a member but Heaven has gained a saint. The former was an enthusiastic local preacher in our church. He was preaching, singing and praying while he was dying. They died about ten minutes apart. Both corpses were in the church at once. This is the second time this incident has happened. Two weeks ago Sister Janey Eldridge and Sister Mary Freeman both died on the same day and were buried at the same time. A few weeks previous Sister Eliza Redman and Sister Argie Vandilier. These all died in the faith. "Having received their promises and were persuaded by them that they sought a better country whose maker and builder was God."
J. F. MORELAND, P. E.
Cumberland Furnace, Tenn.

Brother Richard Jenkins departed this life July 16, 1883, in the full triumph of a living faith. In the death of Bro. Jenkins the church at McCreanors sustains an irreparable loss. A faithful steward and a zealous leader, it may be said of Bro. Jenkins that he was a man who tried to do the will of his Heavenly Father, and whose life was wholly devoted to his church and his family. He has been called up higher. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss. The church sympathizes with Sister Jenkins in this her great bereavement.

We are so glad that Henry Ward Beecher has again, for the fortieth time, defined his theological status. Things get very much adrift when he neglects this solemn duty two or three weeks beyond the time. This time he is at Chicago, and the light beams out from there like a revolving light on a bleak coast. We are still safe.—California Advocate.

Editorial Notes.

The Mormons carried every county, save one, at the recent election. They continue to proselyte and increase their political influence over the surrounding territories year by year.

In a private note from Ocean Grove, N. J., to the editor, Dr. Rust says: "The Educational Assembly and the anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid Society have been grand occasions. Our God is marching on." And so the Methodist Episcopal Church goes marching on, taking no backward steps.

is a little too near the borders of open rascality. The men who study and settle questions upon this platform cannot avoid serious mistakes. To all Christians we recommend the platform of the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount.

The Kansas Methodist reports: "The preachers of the Methodist church throughout the state are taking an active part in the temperance work. They speak with no uncertain sound, and are found in the front rank. The Lord grant that the true citizens may arise in their might, and crush out this evil.

Rev. I. B. Scott, Secretary, has our thanks for a pamphlet copy of the proceedings of the State Convention of the Colored Men of Texas, held in Austin July 10-12. It is interesting reading matter. The reception and reply to Governor Ireland was a neat and manly thing. The report of the committee on grievances, Rev. Mack Henson, chairman, is moderate, although a recital of grievances can do nothing more than make up the historical record of the times. It needs education, force of character and sublime courage to remedy the grievances of the Negro, and above all patient and steady self assertion.

After holding out twenty days the striking telegraph operators were compelled to surrender. Those who can will go back to their old situations, at the old rate of wages, after signing a renunciation of the Brotherhood, and agreeing never to belong to a similar organization while in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Many of the strikers whose places were filled by outsiders will not be given work. They have had the sympathy of the country, but their contest was doomed to defeat from the outset because of the superior organization and vast capital of the Western Union Company. The agitation attendant upon the strike has given new life to the proposed government postal telegraph scheme, and will not be without some good results.

"A good many years ago there was a clergyman, almost blind, riding into one of the Western villages on horse-back. He was coming into the village slowly, when he heard a voice at the sidewalk saying: "Hello, sir; wouldn't you like to come in and rest awhile?" "Why," said the minister, "I am very tired; my horse is tired; I recognize your voice; I wish you were the good Baptist deacon that you used to be." "Why," said the voice at the sidewalk, "come in, I will take care of you anyhow." So he went in. Three or four weeks passed on. This clergyman was riding into the city of Springfield, Ill.; coming slowly in, hardly able to find his way. Again he heard a voice from the sidewalk saying: "Hello; wouldn't you like to find a Baptist deacon to-day?" "Certainly," said he, "I would; I am very tired and very hungry." "Come in, then, I will be your Baptist deacon now." So he drove into the barn, his horse was taken care of, and the minister—almost blind—sat down to the table. Turning to the gentleman at the head of the table, he said: "And to whom am I indebted for this great Christian kindness?" and the gentleman who sat serving at the table, said; "My name is Abraham Lincoln." [Applause.] A beautiful specimen of Christian kindness."

The people of Jackson parish, La., in mass-meeting declared themselves opposed to lynch law.

The National Educational Assembly.

The second annual meeting of the National Educational Assembly was held at Ocean Grove N. J. August 9, 10, 11, 12, conducted by J. C. Hartzell, D.D., Assistant Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

E. H. Stokes D.D. President of the Ocean Grove Association welcomed the Assembly. Dr. Hartzell defined its purpose, and said there was an educational crisis in the Nation. "We must have more education, and it must be of the right quality." Gen. Eaton, United States Commissioner of Education, read a paper in which he said that the two courses open to every human life were improvement and degradation. Subtracting all that was accidental or temporary in modern progress, it was evident that the increased power of human growth, action and thought was produced by education. Austria, taught by the experience of Sadowa, and France, by the experience of Sedan, were fostering education in every way. In 1870, England accepted the modern idea and in six years school attendance in London increased 75 per cent., while during the same period pauperism and crime sensibly diminished. The popular culture of Scotland had been improved by recent legislation, and Ireland had been endowed with an efficient system of education. It was noticeable that the apprehended decrease of interest in religious training had not been perceived anywhere in the United Kingdom. The final efforts of great moral movements like those of Luther and Wesley were to be measured by their educating power. Gen. Eaton dwelt upon the important part that the English language had taken, and would hereafter take in the progress of education and upon the immense influence on social and moral forces exercised by the teacher.

At the afternoon session Mr. J. P. Wickersham spoke on the subject of "National Aid to Popular Education in Europe." He said no one desired the Government of the United States to undertake the control of popular education in this country. That duty was best discharged by the several States, each for itself. While opposed to any intermeddling on the part of the general Government with the practical work of popular education, the speaker was warmly in favor of aiding in a judicious way, by appropriations from the national Treasury, the struggling school systems of the South. Senator H. W. Blair, of New-Hampshire, delivered an address on "The Conditions and Prospets of National Aid to Common Schools," in which he alluded to the power as well as the duty of the Nation to secure the education of the people, so that they may intelligently enjoy and exercise the rights of citizenship. I believe the expenditure of national money can only be made for national uses; that it can be justified in support of common schools only because the national good requires the education of the national child, who is to become the national citizen; that the best possible way to expend the money of the Nation is under the supervision of officers having a direct responsibility to the Government. The Rev. Herrick Johnson, D.D., of Chicago, presided at the evening session and addressed the assembly.

The morning session of the second day was devoted to consideration of the question of the Negro in America. R. S. Rust, D. D., of Ohio, Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, presided. Robert R. Doherty, assistant editor of the New York Christian Advocate, asked whether the illiterate should be stumbling-blocks or stepping-stones. W. H. Ward, D. D., editor of the Independent, read a paper on "The Dangerline in Negro Education." The Rev. J. C. Price, of Salisbury, N. C., discussed "The Special Work of the Negro in America." B. T. Tanner, D. D., editor of the Christian Recorder, Philadelphia, read a paper entitled "The Color Line: What it is, and What Does it Threaten?"

At the afternoon session a paper by Dexter A. Hawkins, of New York, upon the relation of education to wealth and morality and pauperism and crime, was read. It said that one of the most important questions in social science was how to increase the wealth and morality of mankind and reduce pauperism and crime to a minimum. The Rev. C. W. Cushing, D. D., of Rochester, N. Y., spoke on the relation of education to moral character. He said the the whole character must be educated, secular education not being sufficient to insure moral character, which was alone the result of proper Christian training. Rev. A. D. Mayo, of Boston, spoke on the educational opportunity and duties of the South. He gave a very encouraging review of the increase of public school facilities in that section.

In the evening a public reception was held of missionary teachers and preachers who have labored in the South since the war. Six thousand persons were present. The Rev. C. H. Fowler, D. D., of New York, Missionary Secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, presided. The Indian brass brand from the training school at Carlisle, Penn., furnished the music. Representatives of the leading religious denominations responded to Dr. Fowler's address of welcome. Gen T. J. Rosecrans offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Christian men and women who in the past 20 years have labored as teachers and missionaries in the South, healing the wounds of war add laying the foundations of all social order in intelligence and virtue, deserve and have our heartiest thanks, our highest honor, our profoundest gratitude. Their praise is in all the churches, and their record is on high. While the American Union stands, while Christian civilization lasts, these workers and their work will abide in growing influence, lustre, and power.

At the third day's session Herbert Welsh, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. A. S. Quinton, President of the Women's National Indian Association, and J. H. Haworth, delivered addresses on the subject of Indian education. A letter from Secretary Teller favoring the education of the Indians, was read. Among others things he said:

If we put 5 per cent. of the Indian youths in school, and return them at the end of three or four years to the tribe, they will be unable to withstand the evil influences that surround them, and they will make no impression on their heathenish associates. But if, on the other hand, the Government will educate 30 or 40 per cent of the children, the minority, with their superior knowledge, having enough associates to form their own society, will conquer and subdue the greater number of ignorant youths. The time has come when this work can be well and cheaply done. The Indians is ready and willing to receive civilization at our hands, in the only way he ever will, that is through labor and education. He cannot and ought not to be supported as a pauper. He must accept civilization and become a producer among men, or disappear as a race.

Prof. Caldwell read a paper on "Illiteracy Among the Whites of the South." He thought that one great reason of the illiteracy was the fact that the poor whites had never been lifted out of the rut of their fathers.

The Assembly closed Sunday night, 12th inst. During the four days 12 sessions were held, and the attendance ranged from 2,000 to 6,000. The enthusiasm continued till the end. Over 50 papers were read and addresses delivered by as many prominent Christian educatoinalists from 15 different States and Territories, and representing seven denominations and as many professions. In the morning the Rev. Dr. Moss, of Indiana, preached, and in the afternoon, Gen. Bussey, of New Orleans, delivered an address. Dr. J. P. Newman, of New York, preached in the evening and addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Morgan, of Potsdam, N.Y.; the Rev. Mr. Wood, from the South, and Dr. Kynett, of Philadelphia. The closing remarks were made by Dr. Hartzell.

Shreveport District Conference.

The first annual district conference of the Shreveport district met in Shreveport, La., Wednesday morning, Aug. 8th., at the St Paul M. E. church. There were seventy-seven members present. The presiding elder, Rev. Stephen Duncan, called the conference to order with some appropriate remarks, after which Revs. V. Chapman and H. J. Wright were elected secretaries. The district includes 19 pastoral stations and circuits and takes in all of North Louisiana. Among vistors present and participating in discussions and exercises were Rev. S. E. H. Morant of Alexandria, Rev. J. F. Marshall of New Orleans, Rev. A. E. P. Albert B. D., presiding elder of the La Teche district, Rev. Samuel Davage of New Orleans, Rev. P. W. Williams of the A. M. E. church, Rev. F. S. Shernan of the C. M. E. church, and the following ladies: Mrs A. V. Albert of New Orleans, Mrs. M. J. Wilson of Mansfield, and Mrs. P. Powell of Alexandria.

The work of the conference included reports, essays, and discussions upon various subject of interest presented by different members of the conference. The temperance cause was ably represented on Friday night at St. Paul's M. E. church. A crowded house assembled upon the occasion and were thoroughly inspired with the supreme necessity of temperance reform. The speakers were Rev. V. Chapman, of Mansfield, Rev. J. S. Patterson, of Bastrop, Rev. A. E. P. Albert, and Rev. J. F. Marshall, of New Orleans.

A peculiar feature of the conference was the universary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society. In this meeting Mrs. M. J. Wilson, of Mansfield, Mrs. Peggy Powells, of Alexandria, and Rev. S. E. H. Morant, of Alexandria, and others presented essays and made other remarks touching the power and influence of women in the great work of lifting up the people. The interest manifested throughout this meeting, as well as the enthusiasm manifested in the temperance anniversary, heralds the dawn of a better day in that section of the state, for no greater evils curse the people than ignorance and intemperance. The various discussions upon the subjects of education, temperance, Sabbath observance, morals, economy and the doctrine and policy of the church, as ably represented by the presiding elder, Rev. S Duncan, the visiting brethren and members, cannot fail to be productive of much good.

Among the resolutions was one addressed to the national educational assembly, in session at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, in the following words: "The Shreveport district conference now in session in this city send greeting and bid you God speed. The great needs of our people are the Bible and spelling book. God bless the work of the national educational assembly until this southland and this nation shall be flooded with the blessing of Christian education." Also.

Resolved, That we will contend more vigorously until we succeed in turning the tide of intemperance and rescuing the Christian Sabbath as a day of sacred rest and worship.

Resolved, That we feel gratified at the results accomplished by the great mother Methodist Episcopal church, through the agencies of the missionary, extension, freedmen's aid, Sunday-school, tract, educational, and Bible societies, and that we urge upon our people their claims.

The following complimentary resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this conference be, and they are hereby, extended to our elder, Rev. Stephen Duncan, for his impartial ruling, the secreteries for their faithful services, the Texas and Pacific railroad, for reduced rates, to the Shreveport Daily Standard and Times for courtesies shown in the free use of their columns, and to the pastors and members of our two churches in this city.

The conference also passed resolutions condemning the utterances of Rev. Dr. Tucker, reflecting upon the morals of the colored race.

The next session of the conference will be held in Bastrop, La.

Amid many shouts and hallelujahs, the conference finally adjourned Saturday evening with the benediction by the Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D.

The Spanish authorities have enjoined newspapers from publishing any news of the revolt except that furnishrd by the Secretary of the Interior; and editors must abstain from commenting on the situation.

The wife of United States Senator W. B. Allison, while suffering from an insane attack, drowned herself in the Mississippi, at Dubuque, Iowa, Sunday evening, Aug. 13. The body was not found until Monday morning, and attached to it was found a rubber coat filled with stones.

The citizens of Bloomington, Ind., have contributed $50,000 toward erecting a fire proof building for the Indiana university, in place of the one which was recently burned.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. Hason, Columbus: "Elder Duncan held my second quarterly conference. The reports were good for a young work. We held a union meeting. Revs. D. Shelby, C. Crockett, G. W. Shelley and C. Mack were with us; also the choir of Allenville church. Collection was $26 for the day."

C. D. C. Bryan, Bayou Goula: "The children are rallying to our Sunday-school. There are four old persons who attend. One is father Quash Washington, who is 115 years old, and he is much interested. Superintendent is Louis Earle; Secretary, Willis Rhone; Treasurer, Miss Madora Dupree; Librarians, Major Henry Sanders and Henry Edwards. There are 40 scholars enrolled. We are practicing the children for an exhibition. St. Luke M. E. Church has 16 members. On the 15th we had a glorious time, and two souls were added to the Church. The congregation has given me for my support $40, for other purposes $10. We need a new church to advance our cause here."

Randolph Lucas, Jeanerette: "Our pastor, Braxton Bolden, reached home after district conference highly delighted, but he was sick for two or three days. We expect to start building this month. Pray for our success."

F. D. Bowers, Springfield: "Our second quarterly conference was held July 25. Our congregation, though few in number, were pleased to hear a noble sermon from Elder Dale. The pastor reported the church in a growing spiritual condition. Sunday-school is flourishing. Collected this quarter $54.50; paid Elder $3, pastor, $15. We have our lumber on the ground, and money in the treasury to repair our church."

Arthur Lacey writes from Union Chapel, New Orleans, that on July [illegible] an [illegible] meeting was held under the [illegible] of the pastor, Rev. S. [illegible]. They think very highly of Rev. [illegible] E. P. Albert's address, and speak of him as a [illegible] of Union Chapel.

MISSISSIPPI.

P. [illegible], [illegible]: "A new [illegible] has been established here by a [illegible] member of our church, [illegible] S. [illegible], who is also teacher of Sunday-school. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attend Sunday-school and church service; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] membership. It is doing great good."

[illegible], Edwards: "The second [illegible] for this [illegible] July [illegible]. The report from the pastor showed work of improvement, had built a new church five miles from Edwards. I preached in it the fifth Sunday in July. It is too small to accommodate the people. Received by letter 5, on probation 5; conversion 5. Our next conference has been appointed to be held at our new church ([illegible]). Children's Day was [illegible]; collection $2. The [illegible] have paid pastor, sec[illegible]"

[illegible]: "Since [illegible] came to this work [illegible] some attention. [illegible] growing rapidly. [illegible] blessed us [illegible] I was con[illegible] day school, [illegible] M. A. McAllister, has just closed with good results. This teacher greatly assisted us in Sunday-school. There has been but little sickness in the community. We have taken steps to get a church bell."

TEXAS.

E. Lee, Navasota: "Please correct the mistake in print in regard to the cost of the new church built here. It will cost $2000 instead of $200."

S. Coleman, Waelder. "We have some in our church who belong to none, and some who do not attend from month to month. Now, if Heaven is easy to get to, we will be all right, if we do as they do, otherwise we had better go to church. Some of these members appear to be happy, and to rejoice, but I think God will have something to do with them."

TENNESSEE.

G. C. Hasden, Perryville: "Our third quarterly conference was held by Rev. E. Manson. He preached a forcible sermon on Sunday. Three conversions; three joined the church collections for elder. $6.35; pastor, $10.05; missions, $1; Church Extension, 25c.; Freedmen's Aid, 40c.; bishop, 35c."

A. Phillips, Murfreesboro: "I held quarterly conference for Rev. C. Seward, July 14–15. His work seems to be in a prosperous condition. They will soon have their new church finished, probably by the last of August. Collection $17. The sisters gave a festival and raised $15. Bro. Seward will soon be ready to lay the corner stone of Cherry Valley church, and is a good worker."

J. L. Massey, Martin: "Since we have found members of the Church in Union City we have been doing all we can to get some place of worship. The opposition to us is strong. The white Methodists are going to build a new brick church, and they offer us their present frame church and lot for $1350. It is right in the heart of the city. If we could possibly get it we should have success in that place."

ARKANSAS.

E. D. Spencer, Fulton: "My work is in very good condition. We have no church house to go into in a circuit of forty miles, and one little school house. The prospect is good in Fulton for a new church. We laid the corner stone June 6. Byron Hally, of the M. E. Church, South, met with us. Rev. G. B. Donnelly, of Washington, preached us a noble sermon. It is a hard task to build here, as the Baptists and the C. M. E. Church have had about 12 or 15 years the start, and have preached against us to the people. Friends are asked to help us in any amount from 25 cents up to $1, and I will publish their names in the ADVOCATE. We have a small Sunday-school in a bad location, but Children's Day was observed and 65 cents collected. Meetings will be held in Millbrook, Fulton and Richmond. The people are calling me to preach for them. I preached last Sunday night to a crowded house. Pray that the M. E. Church may be built up in this southwestern part of Arkansas."

Pomeroy's Democrat says: "Some years ago we had in our employ a man who several times a day ran out of the office to buy a drink of whisky. Every time he went out the cashier was instructed to drop ten cents in the drawer to our credit. At the end of seventeen months, the man who had gone out so often had drank himself out of a good situation, and the drawer when opened was found to contain four hundred and nine dollars, which we loaned to a young mechanic at seven per cent. interest. He used it to purchase a set of tinner's tools. On the fifteenth of February, 1876, he returned it to us with interest, saying in his letter that he had a wife and two children, and property worth five hundred dollars. The other fellow is a bummer, hunting for food."

Alcohol was first invented and used to stain the cheeks of the ladies in Arabia, 968 years ago. It now stains noses.

Faith Cures.

I have been reading lately in our church papers about faith cures and faith establishments. About two years ago I read in the "Divine Life, edited by Dr. Lowrey, an account of a woman, supposed to be incurably diseased, who was restored to health and usefulness in answer to prayer. I thought that Dr. Lowrey must believe it, and as I knew him to be a man of deep piety, it made a strong impression upon me, and I resolved to study the subject, and I have, and prayerfully, too. The result is I am happier. God seems nearer to me, and I read my Bible with a new interest. "Call upon me in the day of trouble and I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me." Trouble often comes from which we need deliverance, and we may have it, on condition that we call upon God, as promised us in many places in the Bible. The kind of trouble is not clearly specified. "All things are possible to him that believeth." "Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses." The possibilities of faith are very great, unlimited, but I do not believe we can exercise it so as to receive any very great manifestations of His power, unless we are emptied of self, and are willing to have God work in His own way, and in His own time. To pray for a thing simply to use it for selfish purposes, or in any way except to glorify God is presumption, from which dire misfortunes may come. There seems to be an increasing interest in the subject of faith cures, and we are assured that wonders are being performed in answer to the "prayer of faith." By some who are leaders of religious thought, whose advice has always been worthy of consideration, we are cautioned against giving the subject too much credence for fear of running into fanaticism and superstition. By others we are asked to examine the Word of God, and to study His promises, and see for ourselves whether these things are so. This seems to be a time when people are giving special attention to the study of the Bible. We have Bible readings for every day in the week and on Sundays. Christians everywhere, in Sunday-schools, and in various other ways, are teaching the Word of God. We certainly ought to be learning more and more of His goodness as the result of so much thought. What is the object of our study, if it is not for increased light and faith? Since the world began there has been no real advancement that has not given rise to much discussion and often bitter opposition. There seems to be a disposition to be satisfied with present attainments, and a desire to stand just where we are instead of obeying the command: "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ," and the result is we live beneath our privileges. It is said of Dr. Cullis, of Boston, who is doing a great work of faith, that several years ago he became convinced of God's willingness to do greater things for us than we have generally received, because of our unbelief, pressed the Bible to his bosom, and resolved that, henceforth, he would believe every word of it and obey it. The world is looking on with much interest at the result of his faith, and no one who knows him chooses to call him a fanatic. All seem rather to suppose that he is called of God to a special work, and so of George Muller, of Bristol, England, who is supporting 2,000 orphans by asking and receiving aid from God as he needs it.

God has promised to forgive our sins and to root them out, and we think we are willing to part with them, all but that sin of unbelief; how we nurse it, and how it grows, and it robs us of everything? If Jesus were here in person we think it would not take us long to decide what to do with our sin-sick souls and bodies. "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and to-day, and forever." Verily he is here, and we may tell him our troubles, and he loves us, and sorrows with us. "Like as a father pitieth his children." Jesus taught us to pray for our daily bread. That is not a spiritual need. May we not as well ask for bodily healing, even if we have broken physical laws? Is not the Creator of laws stronger than they? It may be that in His dealings with us He choses to obey certain laws. Are we sure that we understand all the laws that God has made? Do we know all that we may? We would have stronger faith if we would not try to measure God by our own small ideas. No doubt it is His will that we should believe some things without knowing why, until He chooses to teach us, and that may be after we have put on immortality.

The more I think of these things and study my Bible the more I am sure that in our communion with God we may call Him right to us and tell Him all our troubles, even sickness, for that is trouble indeed, and often unfits us for the work that He has given us to do. If we could make our Heavenly Father an ever present friend we would live to a better purpose; we would be more free from suffering, and we could rise above the world, and there would be power in our prayers to claim all that we need to make us very useful and happy. He permits sickness and sorrow to come sometimes so that we may learn to sing "the new song" with a sweeter melody, and be even happier. Let us make faith establishments of our own homes, where we may read the Word of God and obey it, and do a great work of faith for ourselves and those around us.

The Past, Present and Future of the Negro.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BY F. BUNTON, JULY 4, 1883.

Ladies and Gentlemen—This topic is one which has been agitated by eminent men for a number of years and is full of interest. The Bible and all ancient history afford us many instances of men and nations who have, by something peculiar to themselves, become illustrious. Cæsar, Hannibal, Alexander, Napoleon and Washington on account of their military talent and bravery, Socrates, Pythagoras, Galliléo, Newton and the Websters, on account of their ready brain have caused much comment and indelibly written their names upon the pages of history. The Israelites, we know, were subjected to the Egyptians a number of years. The Grecian and Roman nations on account of their warlike disposition are recorded in history, and the record has been handed down even to this generation. The United States at one time was subjected to England, but, by the assistance of Jehovah, through her leading spirits, this day 107 years ago succeeded in declaring and maintaining her independence, from which result we are permitted to celebrate the glorious Fourth of July.

And so it has been that, from Adam to the present day, men have, as individuals and races, reputed themselves by ennobling deeds and works; likewise the persecutions they have undergone. But of all men and races none have caused more anxiety and deeper thought, or none whose past, present and future condition has been more agitated, or, I may say, as much so as that of the Negro race. The year 1620, so full of interesting events, was marked by one which will long exert a momentous influence on our destiny. This was the introduction of Negro slavery. The commerce of Virginia, which had been entirely monopolized by the London company, was now thrown open to competition, and in the month of August a Dutch man-of war sailed up the James river and landed 20 Negroes who were sold as slaves. This opens the history of the African race, destined to be one of the leading races that have ever lived. The history of the race is wonderful and interesting. For more than two centuries it served in bondage, dubious as to its humanity; for the brute has, at no time, suffered punishment exceeding that inflicted upon the slave. We do not intend to endeavor to picture the crimes and horrors of slavery for our powers are too inadequate; the pen cannot depict them, and the muses appealed to by Homer and Virgil to relate the cruel wrath of Achilles, and sing of the warrior Aeneas, would remain silent if asked to sing of these crimes, and the "thousand tongues" prayed for by the Christian to sing the praises of God, if attempting to chant the cruelties of slavery would and could only do so very briefly, for the half has never and will never be told.

God had not designed that the Negro should live subjected to other races all his days, for by the perusal of history we find that gradually he instilled within the hearts of men, men who were identified with the very race to whom the Negro was subjected, a desire to eradicate slavery and liberate the slave. These men, at the peril of their lives, used their time, talent and money to accomplish this end, and by the assistance of the devout prayers of the slaves, God permitted them to be successful. A proclamation is issued heralding freedom to the slave.

From how the history of the Negro becomes more interesting. Gradually his privileges open; among them the one, permitting him to educate. We are taught that all men, the Negro included, were created free and equal, and we have learned by experience that by freedom men show their qualifications and what they really are, and in no case has this been more clearly demonstrated than in the past twenty years of the freedman. He has utilized his chances, and the present shows men of the African race who appear to advantage in all of the vocations of life, ready to compete with any opponent if necessary. He is represented in colleges, not only as a bright scholar, but also as a competent professor, solving difficult mathematical and scientific problems, accurately translating the classics and assisting in the diffusion of knowledge generally. In the professions he is also found, for to-day he visits the sick and accurately administers medicines, appears before magistrates and eloquently discusses law in behalf of his client, ascends the pulpit and expounds the Word of God intelligently, unfolding some of the mysteries recorded in Sacred Writ. In fact he is satisfactorily filling all callings of life. No longer is he the miserable wretch doomed to degradation, but he is a man, and the world knows it. If in 20 years he has made such wonderful improvement, imagine, if you please, or if you can, his future improvement.

The future of the Negro is bright and promising. Judging from analogy, or using the indicative method of reasoning, we predict that the next decade of years will show the African race at least the equal of any other. His future prospects are more favorable than those of the past, for it has been shown that, notwithstanding the bitter adverseness shown him, he has struggled to elevate himself, has surmounted every obstacle and to-day asks no unusual favor, but only an equal chance. As the present depended upon the past education, so the future depends upon the present. What we will be in the future can be determined to a great extent by the interest taken in education. True we have taken an interest in education, but how insignificant our erudite number when compared with those educable. As has already been said, we have doctors, lawyers, ministers, statesmen and other learned men among us, but the number is small, and the world daily calls for more educated men and women. Let us labor to supply the deficiency. Let our motto be: Education and Integrity. Educate the heart, for out of it are the issues of life; educate the brain, for the developed brain has conquered the world. The future prospects of the Negro race depends upon the younger element, and they are to be just what they make themselves; if they improve their chances then life is enjoyable; but if, to the contrary, their life is void and a failure, for the world is what we make it.

In conclusion let me say, parents use every endeavor to educate your children, for upon you are they dependant. Young gentlemen be not satisfied merely to read and write, but grapple with the higher branches, so that you may be able to reason, argue and instruct to the welfare of your race. Young ladies, be not satisfied just to live, but let true womanhood be the object of your endeavor. Prize virtue as a hand-maid of God. Know that the world prizes and esteems the true and virtuous woman. And may He who created us in his own image grant that the day be not far distant when illiteracy, as a general interference, be obliterated from among us, and instead of hundreds, thousands of intelligent men and women be numbered in our ranks; so that the Negro, from not only among the enlightened races, but also across the ocean on the sunny shores of Africa, be classed as intelligent beings, and the race that suffered in bondage be allowed all privileges and be fully and fairly represented. Then will be fulfilled the prophesy, "Ethiopia shall stretch forth her wings." For today she points with pride to her eminent divines, her many physicians and lawyers who are too numerous to be mentioned, and to her Hon. Frederick Douglass, B. K. Bruce and H. R. Revels, who, though only 20 years have been given them for advancement, stand as brilliant luminaries in that galaxy of stars which, with their resplendant beams, shall ever illuminate the future prospects of the Negro with honor and success; and from whose biography succeeding generations will take a retrospective view and exclaim with vehemence, "Dum vivamus, vivamus!"

FOR THE SOUTHWESTERN.

The Freedmen's Aid Society.

But little can be said of some men that will either add to or detract from their greatness. They have so imbedded themselves in the minds and hearts of men that respect and admiration of their nobleness cannot be abated. They are involuntarily honored. Such were Luther, Wesley, Washington and Lincoln. No words could make their honor more illustrious. So with agencies that have instituted reforms and helped the needy, and lifted from the mire of ignorance thousands of our race. The Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church is such an agency. Words can hardly add to its past record. They may possibly to her future usefulness. Before the smoke of battle had fairly cleared away the church of freedom (we call it so) had advanced her lines from a little south of the Ohio into the midst of the belt of darkness caused by slavery. She did not go to the rich, to the educated, the refined, to the people who had influence and power to reciprocate favors; but to the poor, the despised, the downtrodden. Said our blessed Savior: "The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the Gospel preached to them." The Freedmen's Aid Society's message is to the needy. It was born to the extirpation of the evil of ignorance, and an introduction to the light of Christian knowledge. In this work the church has been greatly blessed. Giver and receiver have been richly rewarded. Under the inspiration of love for humanity men have toiled patiently on. Schools have sprung up all over the weary waste places, and rays of moral beauty have radiated to the utmost South of South. At times the battle has been most unequal. The power of truth has slowly triumphed. The roughness of the way and the jostling of difficulties have tried the faith of the founders of this Society, and the fidelity of its chief managers. They have proven faithful, and with money and men have gone forward in this work of reform. We cannot tell the results. Other churches and societies have engaged in the work. The statistics show a wonderful decrease in illiteracy. Another decade at the present rate of progress will make these to compare not unfavorably with some nations of better opportunity. This success is largely due to the fidelity and earnestness of the societies engaged in this field. What of all this? Shall we be content to admire the energy that has so largely helped forward this favorable state of affairs? This will not answer. The same devotion that has produced these good results should inspire us anew to greater efforts; and we need to be reminded that the work is yet great before our Church. Who will give money to build a school? Who will endow a college? Who will go and toil yet on a salary less than they can make elsewhere, because they are impelled with a sense of duty, and will labor in the face of caste, and cowardice, and wickedness, and the prejudice of a people made so by most unfavorable surroundings? The Society needs men more than impressed with a duty. This work needs men with strong convictions, men with strong individuality and unselfish devotion to the cause. Paul said: "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." I suppose Paul lived in more troublesome times. We have enough. Let us have, then, the Wesleyan spirit of devotion. Let us stand by this ennobled agent of good, the Freedmen's Aid Society, and the men who have stood at the "wheel." Let us bring up a rousing collection at the next conference for this cause. Cannot each pastor make his collection [illegible] per cent. larger than last year? It is needed, imperatively needed to sustain and enlarge the work of the society. Could any one take his position on the field, and see the struggling, plodding, toiling men who brave the battle storm, with all odds against them, and witness the throes of a nation of men struggling into the light of Christian freedom, he could not but say, "I will do more for this agency of the church." W. H. DAVIS.

MR. EDITOR—The third round on San Antonio district will close by the 11th of August. The revival season is now in full blast. Some of the charges on the district have enjoyed extensive revivals, and we have promised to inform the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN [illegible] success has been on this [illegible] distant day; however, the [illegible] affects us in more [illegible] still we have moved [illegible]. At Fredericksburg, [illegible] our four days camp meeting [illegible] in 13 [illegible]tioners, 2 [illegible] into full [illegible] church revived. [illegible] Edmonds has [illegible] revival, in [illegible] he reported [illegible] conversions, many reclaimed, and many accessions; now I have the report that his late revival at Pleasanton succeeded in [illegible] every unconverted person [illegible] at that place, reaching [illegible] circuit, forty miles [illegible] all the persons belonging to other denominations [illegible] with our church. Bros. Edmonds and Jacobs are reaching this frontier country for more than [illegible] miles along the border. [illegible] Jacobs has supplied the [illegible] ever since Bro. [illegible] up the work [illegible] of Bro. Brown, [illegible] that can be done, [illegible] being, and I [illegible] circuit with him. [illegible] Bro. R. Reeder [illegible] in a revival meeting [illegible] has been here, which resulted in 49 conversions and [illegible] 39 of these [illegible] our church. The whole circuit [illegible]. Yesterday [illegible] baptized [illegible] children, 116 [illegible] people [illegible] work of improvement. The church is in good spiritual condition, as well as financial. We shall tell you more about revivals and improvements on the district in our next. Here I wish to say that I have sold 225 good books this year; 175 of these were Dr. J. H. Potts, D.D., "Methodism in the Field." I wish to say of this book that it is the book for the Methodist people, none can read it without knowing a great deal about the M. E. Church. It is, if anything, more than what the author claims for it. Most of those who have purchased the book of me have expressed themselves highly pleased with it. Many say it is more comprehensive than Dr. Porter's "Compendium of Methodism." The book deserves a wide circulation, is the humble opinion of the writer; and will claim popular favor upon its own merits. I have only to hope I may be successful in distributing hundreds of copies of it in the future. Yours, for success,

MACK HENSON.

Mr. Groesbeck on Reform.

Cincinnati, Aug. 2.—The Hon. W. S. Groesbeck, upon the invitation of a number of Democrats, delivered an address to-night at College Hall upon civil service reform. Judge J. B. Stallo presided and introduced the speaker. The hall was well filled.

Mr. Groesbeck, after referring to the resolution of the Ohio Democratic Convention of June last, demanding a thorough reform and purification of the civil service, said that the purpose of civil service reform is to secure a greater fitness in the immense body of officials, clerical and administrative, whose duties are the same under every Administration, and in no sense political; to separate Congress from the appointment of these officials, and to relieve the Executive Department from the importunities of small politicians clamoring for offices as a reward for personal party services. He said that at last we have a law on the statute-books which will begin, if it cannot complete, this great reform. The law has no application to Congressmen or any officers elected by the people, or to Judges, Cabinet officers, or to any of the officers whose appointment by the President requires the sanction of the Senate. It does not change the tenure of office as some persons seem to suppose. Under it the power of removal for cause remains; but it does forbid the removal of an officer for declining to submit to political assessments. After referring at great length to the provisions of the civil service law, Mr. Groesbeck said that in the early days of the Republic such a law was unnecessary, because then the offices to be filled were so few that the heads of departments and of the higher offices might personally know, select, and supervise the officials under them. Now, with more than 100,000 men required to administer the affairs of the Government, even if relieved of every other duty they could not possibly do so.

In this emergency, said the speaker, two ways of proceeding are before us. According to one, which is known as the spoils system, all offices, political, clerical, and of every character, are vacated whenever the Administration is changed. Such has been the practice for the last 50 years. The other way of proceeding is commonly known as the merit system. It recognizes the existence of parties, and takes it for granted that when either of them is in power it will fill the commanding positions with partisans, in order that its doctrines and policy may be vindicated and upheld. The merit system, therefore, touches no conspicuous or influential officer; it applies only to the great body of inconspicuous, unnoticeable, and obscure ones, and demands that they shall be selected for their fitness, and not for their partisanship. The people cannot go to the polls and select these many thousands of officials, nor can they directly appoint them; but the people command that hereafter they must serve them, and not the politicians, and that they be chosen for that purpose only. So at last they have done, and what was begun a quarter of a century ago, is now in part finished by the new civil service law. The law, if faithfully administered, will accomplish at least three good results. It will improve the civil service, it will improve Congress, and it will improve the executive department of the Federal Government. The merit system will improve the civil service not merely in the qualifications of the officials, but also in their character and trustworthiness, making them more independent, more manly, and more self-respecting. It is one thing to obtain a position by questionable party service, and quite another to obtain it openly by personal worth. The provision of the law forbidding the levying of political assessments will make the official independent, and the knowledge that he does not hold his position at the mere caprice of a Senator will make him manly and self-respecting. Congress will be improved by the operation of the new law, because when this immense patronage which they have held so long, and which has been so potent a factor in every campaign, is taken from Senators and Representatives; when candidates for Congress can offer to their constituents nothing but themselves, their characters, abilities, and principles, a different class of men will be elected to the national legislature, and the Republic will gain greatly by the blessed change. The executive department will be improved by taking from it the tremendous patronage which in the hands of an unscrupulous man might be turned against the very life of the Nation. Mr. Groesbeck referred to the sad experience of the late President Garfield in his controversy with the Senators from New York which was a death struggle over Federal offices, and was scarcely ended before the President was murdered by a disappointed office-seeker. "Suppose," said the speaker, "at the time of Garfield's inauguration there had been a law like this, saying to Guiteau: 'It is useless to apply to the President, for he is forbidden to appoint you to an office, unless your qualifications and fitness have been ascertained and formally certified.' The murder would not have been committed, and we would have been spared the most shameful tragedy in our history."

Referring to the claim that civil service reform would result in establishing an office holding aristocracy, the speaker ridiculed it as absurd, showing that the aristocracy would be of letter-carriers and Post Office clerks. He thought that the law was incomplete because it did not apply to the present office-holders, whom the Republicans refused to turn out, but it was a good beginning, and the clearing out of the Augean stables would follow in good time. Mr. Groesbeck concluded: "The reform is inaugurated, and it will go on from strength to strength until it shall take charge of and regulate all the offices within its appropriate jurisdiction, and in due time it will be adopted by the States, and especially by the large and and expensive municipalities. It is a business necessity, and it is right.

A New York lady, while visiting the West, had some experience with a cyclone. While asleep at a friend's, the house was blown over and the lady pinned to the earth by a heavy rafter. It was supposed that she was crushed; but when they dug her out, she opened her eyes and sleepily murmured, "Jane, I feel a little uncomfortable! Unfasten my corsets."

If you experience bad taste in mouth, sallowness or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "billous," and nothing will arouse your liver to action and strengthen up your system equal to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." The Inquisitive Fisherman.

Once there was a fisherman
Who went to catch some fish;
He took with him a basket
And a little china dish.
"I'll use one for the fishes.
The other when I sup;
For if they meet my wishes,
I'll cook and eat them up!"

He fished and fished the whole day long
From morn till late at night;
He baited hooks and watched his bob,
But could not get a bite.
He then threw down his rod and line,
And vowed he'd go below,
To find out what the reason was
The fish had used him so.

The fish all gathered round him,
Each wagging his own tail,
From the little polly-waggy
To the great gigantic whale.
Some fish were looking scaly,
And some exceeding thin,
But all were glad to see the man,
And offered him a fin.

They said: "We have no china dish,
For basket snug and tight;
But we are very prudent fish,
Who think before we bite.
We do not need to cook our prize
Ere we sit down and sup."
And so, before his very eyes,
They ate that fisher up.

A Good Plan.

Two boys were going down the street of a little village one hot, dusty day.

"I'm very dry," said one of them as he wiped the sweat from his face, "and I'm tired too. Ain't you, Robert?"

"Yes, I am," answered Robert. "Let us stop somewhere and rest and get a drink."

"I am favorable to that plan, said the other lad. "Here's a cool-looking place; let's go in."

The place he referred to was a saloon. On the windows were painted in gilt letters, "Liquors and Cigars. Come in."

"No," said Robert, shaking his head, "I won't go in there. Let's go on farther."

"But why not stop here?" asked the other lad. "The place looks pleasant—more so than any other place I can see."

"Yes, it looks pleasant enough," said Robert; "but it's a saloon. They sell liquor there."

"What of that?" asked the other, "We're not obliged to drink any of it if we go in, are we?"

"Well, no," answered Robert; "but I don't like getting into the habit of lounging about such places. There seems to be something about them that fascinates a fellow. I've watched the men who go in there, I've heard them talk about it. They say they know they ought not to hang about the saloon, but if they stop to-day, to-morrow they want to go again, and something seems to draw them there in spite of their better judgment. They don't visit a saloon very often before they get to smoking and drinking and playing cards, and the first they know they are neglecting their business for the pleasure they find in this kind of life. It's down, down, down all the way, and from what I've seen of this drink business it seems to me it's just as it is with us when we take a run down hill; we get to going faster and faster, and we can't stop till we reach the bottom; it seems as if we were obliged to keep on going when we get fairly under motion. It's just so with most men who get into the habit of drinking; when they get started they can't stop till they get to the bottom. I don't want to get started. I don't want to put myself in the way of being tempted to start; so I think best to keep out of the saloon. As long as I keep away I'm safe."

"You're right," said the other. "I didn't think of that. I don't want to be a drunkard any more than you do, and I'll shake hands in keeping out of the starting place of drunkards if you will." And they shook hands on this good resolution, and I hope they will always adhere to it.—Temperance Banner.

Patience Taught by Nature.

BY ELIZABETH B. BROWNING.

"Oh dreary life!" we cry; "O dreary life!"
And still the generation of the birds
Sing through our sighing, and the flocks and herds
Serenely live while we are keeping strife
With Heaven's true purpose in us, as a knife
Against which we may struggle! ocean girds
Unslackened the dry land, savannah-swards
Unweary sweep,—hills watch, unworn; and rife
Meek leaves drop yearly from the forest trees.
To show above the unwasted stars that pass
In their old glory. O thou god of old,
Grant me some smaller grace than comes to these!—
But so much patience, as a blade of grass
Grows by contented through the heat and cold.

The path of duty in this world is not all gloom or sadness or darkness. Like the roads of the South, it is hedged with ever-bloom, pure and white as snow. It is only when we turn to the right hand or the left that we are lacerated by piercing thorns and concealed dangers.—Jas. D. Kerr.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. The Secret of the universal success of Brown's Iron Bitters is simply this: It is the best Iron preparation ever made; is compounded on thoroughly scientific, chemical and medicinal principles, and does just what is claimed for it—no more and no less.

By thorough and rapid assimilation with the blood, it reaches every part of the system, healing, purifying and strengthening. Commencing at the foundation it builds up and restores lost health—in no other way can lasting benefit be obtained.

I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel none of the old troubles, and am a new man. I am getting much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer, and now make my trips regularly. I can not say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. D. C. MACK.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not contain whiskey or alcohol, and will not blacken the teeth, or cause headache and constipation. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, dizziness, nervous debility, weakness, &c.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1883.

At Laverne, Minn., Aug. 5, Bishop Foss dedicated a new church edifice, and a sum was raised more than sufficient to pay off the remaining indebtedness.

The American Sunday-school Union, Philadelphia, offers a premium of $1000 for the best book, written for the Society, upon "The obligations and advantages of the day of rest." The book must be popular in character, of a "high order of merit," and consist of not less than 60,000 nor more than 100,000 words.

We have on sale the very readable pamphlet of Dr. Marshall, of Vicksburg, a prominent member of the Mississippi Conference of the M. E. Church South, being his reply to Dr. Tucker's assault upon the Negro race in the Protestant Episcopal Congress at Richmond, Va. Persons desiring copies should send in their orders at once. Price 25 cents, and a discount on orders for five or more copies.

The Board of Education urgently requests all educational institutions of the Methodist Episcopal Church to send to its Corresponding Secretary during August their statistics, revised to date. It is not sufficient to send catalogues, though they are valued for reference. The statistics called for must be furnished in the tabulated form adapted to publication in the "Year-Book" of the Church and the Report of the Board. There was so much neglect on delay last year as to cause the entire exclusion of the statistics from the "Year-Book." Such a result may be prevented this year if the responsible officers will promptly respond to the present request, which is also addressed to them severally by special circular.

All Christian men agree that prayer is valuable, but they differ as to what its value is. They have also given many definitions to prayer, but these are not harmonious. We suppose that the real essence of prayer is asking God for something. It is the crying of the soul to [illegible] for help. It is not necessary that a word be uttered. God is a Spirit, and prayer is just the appeal of the human spirit to the divine for help in some particular way. If God hears prayer certain things must take place which would not take place if the prayers were not offered. This is a critical point, and here the teachings of the [illegible] are clear, and so clear that [illegible] passages are [illegible] if this is not [illegible]. Abraham prayed [illegible] and God heard Abraham. [illegible] fire of the Lord burnt [illegible] the people they cried unto [illegible] and Moses prayed unto the [illegible] was quenched. [illegible] in the bitterness of his [illegible] prayed unto the Lord, and [illegible] was forgiven. "Elias was [illegible] to like passions as [illegible] and he prayed that it might [illegible] rained not on the [illegible] space of three years [illegible]. And he prayed [illegible] the heaven gave rain." [illegible] the Lord shut [illegible] months. When Peter [illegible] two soldiers, [illegible] the church made [illegible] unto [illegible] Lord sent his [illegible] Peter and deliv[illegible] expectation of [illegible]. Cornelius prayed four [illegible] stood before him [illegible] and assured him [illegible] were heard. [illegible] and his [illegible] [illegible] they not prayed. [illegible] came to an [illegible] condition of our [illegible] duty to ask [illegible] God's com[illegible] to Him [illegible] joy may be full.

The Comforter.

Eighteen hundred years before the advent of Christ the prophet Joel said: "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions; and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit." Christ, before his departure, told his disciples that it was expedient for them that he go away. That if he did not go away the Comforter would not come, but "if I depart I will send him unto you. I wil pray the Father and He shall give you another comforter that he may abide with you forever." Here the Comforter is described as a person. Christ uses the masculine gender in speaking of him. He calls him "The Comforter." He told his disciples that he would send him, and that when he is come he will abide with his people forever, and guide them "into all truth." After his resurrection the Savior repeated the promise. "Behold I send the promise of my Father upon you;" and then adds "but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." For the fulfillment of this promise the disciples tarried in that upper room at Jerusalem, and held their ten days prayer meeting. And when the day of Pentecost was fully come He came, and to each believer he is a living, conscious, personal presence, saying "Lo, I am with you always." He comes not merely to dwell in temples made with hands, though they be ever so costly and elegant. He dwells in the heart of the believer. Our hearts are his temples. Not at special seasons. He comes to make our hearts his temple, his home, his abiding place. The writer loves to linger here. Multitudes of times has his heart been cheered by the promise "He shall abide with you forever." There need be no intermission of His presence, of His gifts, of His grace, of His power in the hearts of believers. When He comes self ownership ceases. We are not our own; we have been bought with a price; we belong to self no longer; and He who has bought us, not with silver and gold, but with His own blood, comes to take possession of His property by the indwelling presence of the Comforter. From this time onward our all belongs to Christ. We have no more, and no longer any claim upon our time or talents, all belongs to Him who bought us. This is a truth that the individual Christian needs to realize. It will give great peace of mind, an abiding rest of faith. It will give steadiness and strength of purpose. It puts into the heart of the disciple the strength of Almighty God, so he is able to resist all the assaults of Satan. It was His presence that gave such decision and strength to Wickliffe, Huss, Luther, Knox and Wesley. It is the presence of the Comforter that has kept the church alive amid the persecutions of past ages; it is His presence that keeps the flame of divine love and truth burning in the hearts of His people now. Let us be careful not to offend this guest, but walk in His light and strength until our work is done.

One Conflict Ended.

Our contemporary of the Methodist Advocate, in a well written paper on "Education Auxiliary to the Church," says: "As our educational work in the central South begins to take shape, let us gather wisdom from the past and avoid the mistakes that have been made in other sections. We have no money to waste in an attempt to build up rival institutions. But each school should be a competent part of one thoroughly organized and harmonious system. Just as the sun is the center of our planetary system, holding each and every satellite in a rigid and beautiful order, so should our great Central University be in this system of church schools. Let the academies, seminaries and colleges revolve around this center with as little friction as we observe in the harmonious whirl of worlds above us. Arrange a uniform system of text books, and adopt a uniform pronunciation of of the ancient languages, so that a student may pass from one institution to another of the same grade, with such convenience as a pupil passes from one Methodist Sunday-school to another, under the Berean Lesson system. Then make the course of study in the seminaries such as will prepare students for the freshman class of the university, and with such other regulations as may be adopted, our school will be under one general system, and will form a grand force in the Master's work." To all of this the SOUTHWESTERN says Amen. It has but one look, and can have but one intent. It needs no explanation. Read, "Each school should be a component part of one thoroughly organized and harmonious system." The time of the singing of the birds has come. The icy winter of the despotism of caste is melting under the sunlight of the Gospel of the Son of God, and will soon pass away. God is great and God is behind the country and church keeping before them the paths of real progress. The despised of our brethren are in our midst. Their great offense has been their color. But the time is near when all through this country we shall care no more for the color of a man than we do for the shape of his shoes, the style of his coat, or who his ancestors were. The public mind may debate this question, and men may answer it according to the prejudice of their head and hostile hearts, but so long as God is in this country there can be no doubt as to the issue. This whole cloud of caste, the chilling remains of the system of slavery, will all dissolve and disappear in the Christian unity of kindred hearts. We believe that God looks with special tenderness upon those places where black and white kneel together and get converted, upon those churches where they worship together, upon those pulpits where they stand and preach together, upon those altars where they kneel together and receive the sacrament, and upon those schools where black and white children study and recite together.

We cannot conceive of anything more ill timed, more short sighted, more criminally stupid than the erection of schools from which pupils are to be excluded because of their color. It is an enormity we have no language to describe. For the sake of giving it a name we call it the religion of delirium tremens.

PERSONAL

—Senator Don Cameron, is improving in health under the care of an English physician.

—Rev. R. P. Mitchell, M. E. Church, South, has been elected President of Aberdeen Female College.

—Senator Randall L. Gibson has abandoned his trip to Europe and will remain in the north until the senate meets in December.

—General Sheridan's mother is eighty-three years of age, and still lives in the house at Perry, O., in which "Phil" was born.

—Ex-Governor John Evans, of Denver, was elected Lay Delegate to the General Conference at the recent Lay Conference in Denver.

—Samuel J. Howard, a leading colored man and philanthropist of New York city, died recently. By fortunate investment in Brooklyn real estate he had amassed a fortune of $100,000.

—Rev. A. A. Johnson, after a two month's visit North, in the interest of Texas Wesleyan College, returned to Fort Worth greatly improved in health and encouraged by the outlook.

—Gen. A. S. Badger collector of the port, had the misfortune to lose his second son, aged between 9 and 10 years, from scarlet fever, on the 14th. The funeral was attended by Mower Post G. A. R.

—Dr. Dean writes that "Dr. Rust is selecting the Faculty of the New Orleans University with much care, Miss Josephine Cowgill is to spend part of her time as assistant in moral instruction, and Miss Mary H. Dean has been selected as teacher of music."

—The Inter-Ocean says that the quarterly meeting conference of Centenary Church, Chicago, has selected Rev. Dr. Ross C. Houghton as the successor of Rev. Dr. A. C. George, and will ask Bishop Foss to make the appointment.

—In a note to the editor, dated Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 13, Dr. Dean says: "The Educational Assembly closed last night and was a success. Dr. Hartzell had everything finely arranged. Bro. Vaughn, President Traver, of Leland, and many other workers in the South are here."

—The many friends of Capt. Charles W. Boothy are glad to learn that he stood highest on the list in the recent civil service examinations, and has been appointed keeper of the record room in the Customhouse, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of J. Henri Burch.

—Rev. S. Duncan, presiding elder of the Shreveport district, gave us a pleasant call last week. Bro. Duncan reports an unusual degree of prosperity on his district, and thinks that at our next conference the district will show a good increase in all departments of church work.

—General Grant being informed that a director's car was at his disposal for a trip to Long Branch on Sunday, politely declined it, saying: "I always tried not to travel on Sunday when I held office, and there does not seem to be any reasonable excuse for it now."

—Dr. Robert Moffat, for many years a missionary in South Africa under the auspices of the London Missionary Society, and father-in-law of the late Dr. Livingstone, died in London, England, Aug. 10. He was the author of the translation into the Bechuana language of the Psalms and the New Testament.

—We are in receipt of a postal from Rev. L. W. Elkins, relative to the recent church trial of Rev. I. G. Pollard, presiding elder Little Rock District, of Little Rock Conference. He says: "Bro. Pollard's investigation lasted six days. He came out without the smell of fire upon his garments. The committee acquitted him of all blame, and said that 'under the circumstances he had done right.'"

—We were glad to welcome our Assistant back to the sanctum for a few days. During his absence he has been over his district holding quarterly conferences at each point; held one district conference, attended one on the Shreveport district and made a trip to Marshall, Texas, secured nearly one hundred subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and returned hale and happy. Best of all, he reports the outlook full of promise, and the cowardly ignoble and utterly unchristian prejudice against the colored people fast wearing away.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

T. Jackson, Simpson Chapel, New Orleans: "Children's Day was observed and the church was beautifully decorated with flowers and other things suitable for the occasion. Collection was $4.55. The parade was grand, and there were not seats to accommodate the attendance."

D. J. Price, Robelene: "This town has been building for only eighteen months, and has about 1000 inhabitants. It was incorporated three months ago. There are three churches—two Methodist and one Baptist. S. S. Wright, pastor of our church is intelligent, and appreciated by the people. There are two public schools, and I am principal of one with 50 pupils. Children's Day was observed, and there was a pic-nic, marching through town, and speaking at the church. Collection $1.50. Peter Cox is Superintendent of Sunday-school. Whiskey is the great evil of the town."

MISSISSIPPI.

There are no end of societies, and S. L. Jones, of Enterprise, sends us the printed constitution of a new one, intended to work for the social and moral welfare of the people. These societies can be commended only so far as they do not conflict with efficient Christian duties in the churches, by division of the energies and means of their membership. Let the society at Enterprise hold their loyalty to the church as of first importance.

J. J. Harris, Mud Creek: "I have just closed a glorious revival at Big Hill Church, with 14 conversions and 12 accessions—one a Baptist preacher. The people were very hospitable. May God bless Rev. Geo. Dross and his little band of workers at Big Hill Chapel."

TEXAS.

S. Coleman, Waelder: "Bro. L. Reed is going right ahead with his work this year. There is a fine Sunday-school, with 35 or 40 scholars. Sister Rachel Williams and Bro. W. W. Christian are faithful laborers in it."

C. M. Moore, Lovelady: "I am striving hard; have had some success, notwithstanding the coldness there was when I came here. I have received 12 members. At White, a few Sundays since, we heard an excellent lecture, given by Rev. R. K. Whiting. It was the right thing in the right place. May God speed him on. There were about 250 persons present."

R. K. Whiting, Crockett: "I am moving on; have received into the church 24; have built a neat house for worship. Elder Ripetoe was with us a few weeks ago and the people were glad to meet him."

A. A. Mason, Lone Oak: "Children's Day collection was $5.40. It was a day of great value. Essays on education were read by R. F. Harper, J. Crawford, Misses Amy Hall, Annie Henry, Lottie Hopkins and Maggie Harper."

J. R. Carnes, San Antonio: "We have at last commenced work on our church, preparing for conference, and hope to have everything ready. The estimated cost will be $2425."

A. Williams, Orange: "The congregation is good. Sabbath-school has an average attendance of 75. Received on probation 15. We have built a new parsonage, nicely finished; also a new church worth $1000. Have raised for all purposes, $825. Present indebtedness $400. We are working hard to get out of debt."

TENNESSEE.

C. S. Seward, Alexandria: "I wish to say something about our new church work in DeKalb and Wilson counties. We laid the corner stone of the church here July 4, 1881, and have it up and covered, and part of the flooring laid. We will hold the district conference in it. There are three churches in course of erection at this place; it is a Methodist center, and there is a great demand for a good church. A debt of $150 I hope to clear by subscription promptly. On Aug. 11, 1883, we laid a corner stone at Cherry Valley. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. O. Green. We raised $40. We will try to have the church ready for next quarterly conference. Our protracted meeting has just commenced."

ARKANSAS.

Rev. S. W. Gamble reports a good meeting at Boston Mountain, Ark., where he was assisted by Revs. Titus, Barker and Fulkerson. The new society now has 33 members. A church building will be erected.

Rev. J. S. Edwards, of Green Forest, Ark., has just closed a meeting at Hale Barren's S. H., which resulted in 11 conversions and 8 accessions. Revs. W. J. Powers and Masters kave assistance in the meeting.—Central.

Dr. George took the collection for the Freedmen's Aid Society at Centenary Church last Sabbath morning. The amount assessed to the church is $100. When the absent members are heard from it is believed that fully twice that sum will be realized.—Northwestern.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Lessons From History—No. 1.

BY REV. JAMES A. DEAN.

MR. EDITOR:—I propose, with your permission, to present to your readers a few historical facts, together with the lessons they seem to teach. I shall confine myself to no one subject; but, as the events of the world are continually varying, and as history, which records them, constantly changes from topic to topic, so shall I do in presenting them. Next to our own experience, as teaching us wisdom, is the experience of others; and in many respects the latter is superior to the former. The events are not so interwoven with our own prejudices and predilections and consequently we can judge of them more justly. We can trace the results of acts through years, and frequently through generations, and learn their lessons beforehand, whereas, our own experience is very brief, and we cannot learn the consequences of our own course of action till it is frequently too late to profit by their teachings. The experience of others is also, in multitudes of cases, and especially in those recorded in history wider and deeper than our own, and therefore more emphatic in its lessons. No person is wise who neglects to store his mind with the facts of history, and to ponder upon those facts till they teach him the wisdom that lies stored within them. I have thought therfore, that it would not be labor lost, nor space wasted in your paper, to draw from the storehouse of history a few of its prominent facts, and some of the lessons they may suggest. Some of your readers, not the older ones alone, but the younger ones, also, may thus have their minds drawn to the reading of history; and, what is of more value, they may accustom themselves to search out the practical lessons that history teaches in every one of its myriads of facts. I may limit my labors to this one article or may extend them indefinitely, to be determined by either of two facts—whether I become tired of writing them, or you, as guardian of the interest of your readers, become weary of publishing them. In fact it would not be surprising if both these barriers should arise at the end of this first article.

The first subject that I present is that of SOLDIERS.

Gibbon says: "On the first entrance of a soldier into the service an oath was administered to him with every circumstance of solemnity. He promised never to desert his standard; to submit his own will to the commands of his leaders; and to sacrifice his life for the safety of the Emperor and the Empire. The attachment of the Roman troops to their standard was inspired by the united influence of religion and of honor. The golden eagle which glittered in the front of the legion, was the object of their fondest devotion; nor was it esteemed less impious than it was ignominious, to abandon that sacred ensign in the hour of danger. Regular pay, occasional donations, and a stated recompense, after the appointed time of service, alleviated the hardships of the military life; while on the other hand it was impossible for cowardice or disobedience to escape the severest punishment. The centurions were authorized to chastise with blows, the generals had a right to punish with death; and it was an inflexible maxim of Roman discipline that a good soldier should dread his officers far more than the enemy." (Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Dean's Abridgment, Vol. I, page 5.)

Here we have quite a number of facts regarding the soldier; the military oath, the attachment to his standard; his implicit obedience; pay and pensions on the one hand and dread of punishment on the other; and, as the foundation and the crown of all, inflexible discipline. Modern nations have not been slow to follow the example of Rome, and they have had the best of reasons; not only do all these qualifications commend themselves to one's judgment, but the Romans, under such influences, were almost always conquerors. Every one of the principles underlying the above facts is a stimulus to soldierly conduct, and an aid to conquest.

But it is not the soldier alone that is stimulated and made successful by these qualities. Examine the biographies of those men that have accomplished the most in any walk of life, and you will find that all these principles; with less or greater modifications, have urged them on to activity, and insured their success. Few men succeed in a marked degree, without as unfaltering a zeal and faithfulness to their vocation as the soldier to his, or without the hope of reasonable reward for faithfulness, and the apprehension of evil results if they [illegible].

But there [illegible] higher lesson that [illegible] these facts. The soldier is the type of the Christian. All the soldierly qualities are to be exhibited in the latter, as really as in the former; and all the facts that lead to energy and success in the one, are brought to bear upon the other. There is the same oath of faithfulness in the solemn vow to be true to his heavenly King, as the soldier is true to his ruler and commander. And that vow must be repeated from time to time, as the Roman soldier was to renew his oath at the beginning of every year. It is a singular fact that our word sacrament, an ordinance in which the Christian pledges his life to the service of the Divine King, is derived from the Latin word that expresses the soldier's oath of faithfulness to the Emperor. That oath was styled a [illegible].

In conclusion we would say: First, The Christian, like the soldier, must be obedient to the orders of his commander. Our great Captain is the Lord Jehovah, and his orders are found in the Bible. From no other source can we accurately learn them. Every one that can read is under the most solemn obligations to read God's word, and thus learn his commands. It will not do to trust to our own imaginings, or even to our memories, in all cases; but we must daily "search the Scriptures," to know our Captain's will. Second, No soldier expects to escape conflicts; and, indeed, without them he never becomes perfect. The Christian must expect the same. The order of his Commander is "Fight the good fight of faith." Paul was able to say of himself, "I have fought a good fight," and this entitled him to say, as every true Christian may also say, "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me in that day."

There are other valuable lessons, as that of discipline, of rewards, and of the final triumph. But these will come in future numbers, in connection with passages of history that suggest them.

Strikes and "Careful Legislation."

The Evening Post has been, since the strike of the telegraph operators began, the most respectable champion of the position that men who quit work in large numbers, because their wages do not suit them are enemies to society, and that there ought to be some way of keeping them at work whether they are satified with their wages or not. This is the case, at least, according to the Post, in great corporations like the raidroads or telegraph companies. "This government of large bodies of men in industrial organizations is a recent phenomenon to which it is absurd to try to apply rules derived from the petty disputes of factories or workshops employing a few dozen or a few hundred hands." The men employed "in railroad or telegraphic service are an army, and have to be governed as an army, and the fundamental principle of army management is that there can be no division of authority, and that nothing, however reasonable, can be yielded to dictation." "For whatever is wrong in corporate management the remedy is to be found in careful legisation, and not in egging on employes to strike."

Now what, precisely, do these remarks mean? We should be very glad to have the Post tell us, if it can. Why are rules derived from the petty disputes of factories and workshops—whatever the expression may mean—inapplicable to the tremendous disputes of railroads and telegraph companies. The only "rule" that we know of that has been so "derived" is the right of free contract. A man who is receiving a dollar a day has a perfect right to say that he will not work for less than two or for less than two hundred, or that he will not work at any price, and so long as he and his family do not become chargeable upon the public it is nobody's business how long he refrains from working, and there is no power which can lawfully compel him to resume work. And what one may may do, a few dozen or a few hundred men employed in factories or workshops may do, or the "10,000 to 40,000 men which [sic] some of our modern corporations now employ." Why not? What is the difference? Of course there is none. If the places of the men who decline an employment can be filled at less wages than they demand, there is an end of the matter. They have made a mistake, and they must take the consequences. If their places cannot be so filled, their employers have made a mistake in not paying them what they demanded at once. "The public" has no concern whatever in the transactionso long as the parties keep with in the law. The pretense that the men employed by railroad and telegraph comanies are, or onght to be, on a different footing from the men employed in factories or workshops, and have fewer rights, on account of the greater importance of their function to the [illegible] and non-[illegible] [illegible] wheat to be sent [illegible] over the Northern Pacific is engaged in a public function of [illegible] the same importance, and is exactly as liable in law or equity to have his relation with his employer detemined by the State as the operator who [illegible] for the train that [illegible] or the brakeman who help to manage the train.

But while the public has no rights with regard to strikes in raidroads and telegraph companies that it has not with regard to any other strikes, both parties in strike may appeal to public sympathy which may be indirectly of considerable value to the side to which it is given. And public sympathy will be determined by the public estimate of the comparative reasonableness of the positions of the two parties, and of the merits of the litigants as well as of the litigation. "The theory," [illegible] the Post, "that the [illegible] to pay higher wages [illegible] the Council of the Brotherhood to a share in its control of its subordinates, because the managers are wicked men who have watered their stocks, bears strong marks of having originated in some nursery." The "theory" appears to have originated in the office of the Evening Post—at least we have never heard of it anywhere else. But it is an entirely legitimate appeal to public sympathy that the company has reduced the wages of its operators in order to pay larger dividends upon a capital of which at least half represents no investment whatever. And, as a matter of fact, the moral character and public disservices of Mr. Jay Gould have been as potent to create public sympathy with the strikers as even the moderation and good sense with which the strikers have conducted themselves; and it seems to us entirely natural and wholesome that it should be so.

If the Evening Post's comparison of men employed by the great corporations to an army, and its assertion that they have to be governed as an army, mean anything whatever—and upon this point we would not rashly commit ourselves—they mean that some other principle than that of free contract must prevail in the relations of these corporations to the men in their employ. That is to say, a man must enlist in the service of the company, as a soldier enlists in the service of the Government, and contract himself for a term of years out of his right to contract, and this condition cannot readily be distinguished from slavery. "Careful legislation" which undertakes to keep a man at work when his wages are not satisfactory to him cannot possibly take any other shape than that. And it is scarcely to be expected that the American people will take such a tremendous stride backward as this merely to oblige managers of coporations who find it more convenient to treat the men in their employ as they treat inanimate tools than to treat them like freemen.—N. Y. Times.

Rev. A. W. Mangum, in a communication to the Nashville Christian Advocate, makes a pleasant reference to Dr. Dean, and his work as an educator in the South, in the early part of his public life when he had charge of a school in North Carolina:

The Principal of the school was James A Dean—also a graduate of Wesleyan University. He was a goood scholar, an apt and faithful teacher, and an earnest Christian. He built up a school in the woods, in a retired, rocky, hilly locality, in old Orange. By energy and fidelity he achieved early success, soon drawing patronage from distant parts of the State. He worked like an Oberlin, and was accomplishing most gratifying results in his efforts to spread abroad the benefits of Christian education, when there came a fatal interruption to his usefulness. He was an abolitionist in sentiment, and yet wooed and won an Orange girl that owned slaves. When his views on slavery became well known of course he was no longer acceptable as a teacher. He was for a time a professor in Randolph-Macon. He was disliked by some of them on account of his Northern opinions, was unfortunate in the adoption of his policy in the premises, and in a short while ended his connection with the institution. He has since been in high positions in educational work at the North. He was, I think, for some time President of a colored institution in Tennessee. A year or two ago he was invited to Durham, N. C., to establish a high school. He returned a D.D., with much experience in travel, study, and teaching.

Dr. Dean has had a long and successful career as an educator. His riper years have not blurred the clean record of his youth. He is now doing grand service for the Church as President of the New Orleans University.

For furnishing worthless matter to Houghton, Miflin & Co., publishers of the Postal Guide, Boston, Mass., thereby adding $30,000 per year to the expense of the Government, Postmaster-General Gresham summarily removed Major Kirby, chief of the railway service, who admitted that he was in the pay of the publishers.

The Danger of Over-Exertion.

A Stalwart Man Becomes Weaker Than a Child and Then Recovers his Former Strength.

(Waterloo, N. Y. Observer.)

In these days of rowing giants and athletic heroes fine physical development is more observed than ever before since the time of the Athenian games. A man who shows the elements of physical power is looked up to far more than in the days of our ancestors possibly because there are fewer specimens of well-developed manhood than then. An emissary of this paper met a magnificent specimen of physical power a few days since in the person of Dr. A. W. McNames, of Waterloo. His muscles, which showed unusual development, were as hard as wood. At his request the writer sought to pinch him in the arms or legs, but found it wholly impossible. A realization of what is meant by an iron man was fully made manifest.

"Have you always been so stalwart as this?" Inquired the news gatherer.

"Not by any means," was the reply. "When a young man I was always strong and active and felt that I could accomplish anything. This feeling so took possessions of me on one occasion that I attempted to lift a box which four found it impossible to move. I succeeded in in placing it on the wagon, but in two minutes from that time I was unconscious and remained so for hours and when I recovered consciousness I vomited a large quantity of blood. From that day I began to grow weak and sickly. I believed that I had suffered some internal injury and experienced a general debility, which seemed similar to the effects produced by malaria. My back was very weak. I had no appetite, and at times loathed food. My lips were parched and cracked. My head felt as though it were entirely open at the top and it pained me on the side intensely. In six weeks' time I had fallen away from 208 pounds to less than 170, I was in a most wretched condition. I was completely discouraged."

"What did the doctors say to you?"

"Almost everything. I consulted no less than six different physicians. They all treated me and none did me any good. At that time I was suffering intensely. I could not sit upright but was obliged to rest in a cramped, uneasy position. I was compelled to urinate every five minutes and I passed over three quarts every day. I was not living, I was existing.

One night (how well I remember it!) my wife had put the children all to bed when the feeling came over me that I should live but a very short time. My wife and I talked matters all over and I gave the minutest directions as to what she should do after I was gone. I was not in a flighty condition by any means for the doctor, on leaving town the day following, bade me good-bye, saying he never expected to see me again, for I was suffering with Bright's disease of the kidneys in its last stages. Within the next few days more than twenty friends came to bid me good-bye. Among the number was Dr. John L. Clark. He asked me what I had used in the way of medicines. I told him. He than recommended a remedy of which I had heard much, but about which I was very skeptical. If faith were an element of power it certainly was lacking in my case.

"And so you did not try it?"

"On the contrary, I did try it and to my surprise it seemed to go to just the spot. Indeed, it was the most palatable thing I had taken into my mouth for months. I relished it."

"And did it cure you?"

"Do I look as if it did."

"Yes, indeed. What was it?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"A proprietary medicine!"

"Of course. What of that? I suppose I once had as great a prejudice against advertised medicines at Ann Arbor, Michigan, I used to vow with the rest of the class that we would fight all such remedies at all times. When a man comes down to the last hour, however, and bids his wife and friends good by, such bigoted prejudices as these all vanish, I can assure you and any remedy that can cure is gladly welcomed."

"And how have you been since then?"

"As well–or better, than before."

"Do you still exert your strength?"

"Certainly. But I do not over-exert, as formerly. My strength is increasing every day, and my health is number one. I know that my life was saved by Warner's Safe Cure, and I believe it is the best medicine that was ever compound by any chemist or physican. I am willing the doctors should sneer at me for such a statement if they choose, but I have proven its truth, and am prepared to stand by it."

The above experience should be of great value to all who are suffering. It shows the deceptive nature of this terrible malady; that all symptoms are common to it and that there is but one way by which it can be absolutely avoided.

SISTER RIDNOUR'S SACRIFICE; with other Sketches. By Mrs. C. F. Wilder, Cincinnati: Walden & Stowe; 269 pages. Price, $1.

This is a volume of short and pithy papers and sketches, full of suggestions touching our duty as parent, child, father, mother, Christian, pastor and citizen, so that most any one can find a word of encouragement, admonition, instruction, in each and every calling of life. Most of the articles which appear in this volume were originally given to the public in some of our church periodicals, and were read with interest. The present volume is published at the request of the officers of the Western Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. It is a book of marked excellence, has an individuality of its own, and will be read with pleasure and profit.

Pansy for August says any subscriber who will send three new ones and $2 25, will receive a picture and the silk badge of the Pansy society. Address D. Lothrop & Co. Boston Mass.

Wilford's Miscrocosm for August has an abundance of articles for religio scientific thinkers to ponder.

H. C. Bunner has written for the September Century a humorous modern New York love story, in the quaint style and spelling of the sixteenth century. It is aptly called "Love in Old Cloathes."

Harper's Magazine for September is varied in its contents, and richly illustrated. One of its articles is on "Recent Building in New York" a critical estimate of the "New Departure" in architecture—illustrated. Frank D. Millet contributes the first of two articles on Dalecarlia, Sweden, full of quaint description, and illustrated from drawings by the author, T. de Thulstrup. Mrs. Lucy Lillie writes of the Catskills. Under the title of "Haunts of 'the Swamp Fox,'" P. D. Hay gives some very novel and interesting information concerning Francis Marion, the Revolutionary hero of South Carolina. Paul Potter, the old Dutch master, is the subject of a brief paper by E. Mason. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop contributes the first of two parts of a strong story, entitled "Prisoners!" The frontispiece is an engraving by R. Hoskin from one of the drawings by Dore for Poe's "Raven." The fifth part of "A Castle in Spain" is given. General J. F. B. Marshall tells the story of his part in keeping the English out of Hawaii in 1843. Ex-Mayor Grace contributes a timely and important article on "Municipal Government in the State of New York." The Rev. John B. Thompson traces, in a very interesting paper, the origin of the Rip Van Winkle legend. Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis contributes an admirable short story, entitled "A Silhouette." The Editorial departments are full of timely and interesting matter. The Editor's Drawer, conducted by Mr. Charles Dudley Warner, is especially entertaining.

Messrs. James R. Osgood & Co., have just published a very pretty little pamphlet, containing Col. George E. Waring's famous horse story, "Vix," which the London Spectator characterized as "genuinely pathetic," and of which Col. Higginson said, that "all Col. Waring's horses are like Dr. John Brown's dogs—genuine and half humorous creatures." Price 10c.

An article which will appear in the September Century, and which has a direct bearing on the present interest in a purer taste in art and decoration, is Roger Riordan's "Ornamental Forms in Nature," beautifully illustrated by the writer. He wisely urges architects and designers who "weary their own souls and those of their neighbors with clumsy imitations of antique styles which were themselves based on an intelligent observation of nature" to draw knowledge and fresh inspiration from the study of native plant forms.

Answer This.

Is there a person living who ever saw a case of ague, biliousness, nervousness or neuralgia, or any disease of the stomach, liver or kidneys that Hop Bitters will not cure?

My mother says Hop Bitters is the only thing that will keep her from severe attacks of paralysis and headache. Ed. Oswego Sun.

My little sickly, puny baby was changed into a great bouncing boy, and I was raised from a sick bed by using Hop Bitters a short time. A YOUNG MOTHER.

No use to worry about any Liver, Kidney or Urinary Trouble, especially Bright's Disease or Diabetes, as Hop Bitters never fails of a cure where a cure is possible.

I had severe attacks of gravel and Kidney trouble; was unable to get any medicine or doctor to cure me until I used Hop Bitters. They cured me in a short time. T. R. ATTY.

Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases which can be prevented with Hop Bitters if taken in time.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 2, 1875. Sirs—I have been taking Hop Bitters for four years, and there is no medicine that surpasses them for bilious attacks, kidney complaints and all diseases incident to this malarial climate. H. T. ALEXANDER.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 25, 1875. Sirs—I have been taking Hop Bitters for inflammation of kidneys and bladder, it has done for me what four doctors failed to do—cured me. The effect of the bitters seemed like magic to me. W. L. CARTER.

Gents—Your Hop Bitters have been of great value to me. I was laid up with typhoid for over two months, and could get no relief until I tried your Hop Bitters. To those suffering from debility or any one in feeble health, I cordially recommend them. J. C. Stoetzel, 633 Fulton st., Chicago, Ill.

The Housekeeper.

BROWNED KIDNEYS make an excellent dish for the breakfast table. Melt some butter in a saucepan, and when brown, put in slices of kidney; cut thin and rolled in flour; if you do not cut the slices thin, they should be cooked for five minutes before they are rolled in flour. One reason why kidneys, in the various ways they may be cooked, are not generally liked, is simply because they are frequently served when about half cooked, and there are a few stomachs capable of digesting a raw kidney. If onion is an agreeable flavor, put a few bits in the melted butter.

GREEN CORN PUDDING.—One dozen ears of tender corn, which however, must be fully ripe, grated from the cob, or if cut, take the pains to pass the knife through the grains before beginning to slice them from the cob. Then with the point of your knife scrape the cob clear, for the sweetest part of the grain may adhere to it. Now beat up very well three eggs, and add to them a pint of sweet milk, half a cupful of butter, one spoonful of sugar, pepper and salt. Bake in a well heated oven. In winter this dish can be prepared from dried corn, but is, of course, not so good as when made of the fresh vegetable.

CURES FOR FITS.—For a Fit of Passion: Walk out into the open air; you may speak your mind to the winds without hurting any one or proclaiming yourself a simpleton.

For a Fit of Idleness: Count the tickings of a clock; do this for one hour, and you will pull off your coat for the next, and work hard.

For a Fit of Extravagance and Folly: Go to the workhouse, or speak with the ragged inmates of a jail, and you will be convinced that

"Who makes his bed of brier and thorn
Must be content to lie forlorn."

For a Fit of Ambition: Go into the churchyard and read the gravestones; they will tell you the end of ambition. The grave will soon be your bed-chamber, the earth your pillow, corruption your father, and the worm your mother and sister.

For a Fit of Repining: Look about for the halt and the blind, and visit the bedridden and afflicted and deranged, they will make you ashamed of complaining of your lighter afflictions.—Baptist Weekly.

[illegible] OF CREAM.—Put a little more than one pint of milk in a pail, and set it in boiling water; beat two eggs, two-thirds of a cup of corn-starch, one full cup of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and some nutmeg or vanilla thoroughly together; add a full half cup of milk and stir all into your boiling milk; boil until it thickens, stirring often; it should be very thick. Cut open your [illegible] near the bottom, and fill [illegible] full of this cream; be sure the cream is cold.

COLD CHICKEN.—If you have cold chicken left from dinner, and do not know what to do with it, as there is not enough for a meal, try this way of disposing of it: Mince it [illegible], adding some minced ham, and breadcrumbs, moistened with [illegible], seasoned with pepper and salt, put in a pudding dish, and spread a thin coating of butter over the top, set it in the oven, and let it bake until it is nicely [illegible]. This is a good [illegible].

CANNING BEANS.—A writer in [illegible], says: I know [illegible] [illegible] vessel is filled, and lastly a very thick layer of salt. Then tie over the vessel a large paper and then a piece of cloth. They will keep all winter in this way in any place. Before using soak in cold water twenty-four hours. They need not be all gathered at one time, but can be gathered a handful at a time, or any convenient time. I generally gather so much every day for dinner and so much to put up; in this way I can fill a three-gallon jar in a week. Tomatoes can be canned by boiling thoroughly ten minutes, then drain off half of the water and put up in air-tight glass jars. Tomatoes must, of course, be pealed. I hope these recipes will prove as successful to others as they have done to me.

FRUITS IN TIN CANS.—The fruit put up in tin cans should be taken out when the can is opened for use. If allowed to remain after the can is opened, the action of acid juices upon the tin when exposed to the air may form acetate of tin, which is poisonous. Pour the fruit out into glass or earthenware dishes, and the danger of poisoning is avoided.

Sunshiny Husbands.

BY MRS. MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

We read so much about the obligation laid upon the wife to be a perpetual sunbeam in the house that a word to husbands on the same topic may not be amiss.

A cheerful atmosphere is important to happy home life. It is very hard for children to be good, when they are exposed to an incessant hail-storm of fault-finding from their parents. It is very difficult for a wife to maintain a calm and charmingly sweet demeanor when her husband is critical, cynical or sullen, and takes all her tender efforts with indifferent appreciation.

I know full well the air of polite amazement, or amiable incredulity with which men receive the statement of a woman's opinion that, in the home partnership, wife and not husband pulls the laboring oar. Still it is true that, let a man's business be ever so engrossing, ever so wearisome, ever so laborious, the mere fact that he goes to it in the morning, and returns from it at night, sets him above his wife in ease and comfort. For him, the slavery of routine, has its intervals and its breaks. He gets a breath of the world outside, he has change of scene daily; he sees people and hears them talk, and his home is distinctly his refuge and shelter.

Let a wife and mother love her home and her children with the most absolute, unswerving devotion, and serve them with the most unselfish fidelity, there are nevertheless, times when she is very weary.

She knows, better than any one else, the steps and the stitches, the same things done over and over, and the pettiness of the trials that come to nursery and kitchen. They are so insignificant that she is ashamed to talk about them, and I fear she sometimes forgets to tell her Saviour how hard they press her, and so, bearing her cross all alone, its weight becomes crushing.

A sunshiny husband makes a merry, beautiful home, worth having, worth working in and for. If the man is breezy, cheery, considerate, and sympathetic, his wife sings in her heart over her puddings and her mending-basket, counts the hours till he returns at night, and renews her youth in the security she feels of his approbation and admiration.

You may think it weak or childish if you please, but it is the admired wife, the wife who hears words of praise and receives smiles of commendation, who is capable, discreet, and executive. I have seen a timid, meek, self-distrusting little body fairly bloom into strong, self-reliant womanhood, under the tonic and the cordial of companionship with a husband who really went out of his way to find occasions for showing her how fully he trusted her judgment, and how tenderly he deferred to her opinion.

In home life there should be no jar, no striving for place; no insisting on prerogatives, or division of interests. The husband and the wife are each the complement of the other. And it is just as much his duty to be cheerful, as it is hers to be patient; his right to bring joy into the door, as it is hers to sweep and garnish the pleasant interior. A family where the daily walk of the father makes life a festival is filled with something like a heavenly benediction.—The Congregationalist.

A Doctor's Diploma Before a Jury.

The late Alexander H. Stephens used to tell with great gusto the following story, in which he and Robert Toombs figured:

A doctor named Royston had sued Peter Bennett for his bill, long over-due, for attending the wife of the latter. Alexander H. Stephens was on the Bennett side, and Robert Toombs, then in the United States Senate, was for the doctor. The doctor proved the number of his visits, their valued according to local custom, and his own authority to do medical practice. Mr. Stephens told his client that the doctor had made out his case, there was nothing wherewith to rebute or offset the claim, and the only thing left to do was to pay it. "No," said Peter, "I hired you to speak in may case, and now speak." Mr. Stephens told him there was nothing to say; he had looked on to see that it was made out, and it was. Peter was obstinate, and at last Mr. Stephens told Peter to make a speech himself, if he thought one could be made. "I will," said Peter, "if Bobby Toombs wont be too hard on me." Senator Toombs promised he would not, and Peter began:

"Gentlemen of the jury, you and I is plain farmers, and if we don't stick together these 'ere lawyers and doctors will get the advantage of us. I aint no lawyer or doctor, and I aint no objections to them in their proper place, but they aint farmers, gentlemen of the jury. Now, this man, Royston, was no doctor and I went for him to come and doctor my wife's sore leg, and he come and put some salve truck onto it, and some rags, but never did it a bit of good. Gentlemen of the jury, I don't believe he is a doctor any way. There are doctors as is doctors, sure enough, but this man don't earn his money, and if you send for him, as Mrs. Sarah Atkinson did for a negro boy as was worth $1,000, he just kills him and wants you to pay for it."

"I don't!" thundered the doctor.

"Did you cure him?" asked Peter, with the slow accents of a judge with a black cap on. The doctor was silent, and Peter proceeded:

"As I was saying, gentlemen of the jury, we farmers, when we sell our cotton, has got to give vally for the money we ask, and doctors aint none to good to be put to the same rule. And I don't believe this 'ere Sam Royston is a doctor nohow."

"Look at my diploma, if you think I am no doctor."

"His diploma!" exclaimed the orator, with great contempt. "His diploma! Gentlemen, that is a big word for printed sheepskin, and it don't make no doctor of the sheep as first wore it; nor does it of the man as now carries it; a good newspaper has more in it, and I pint out to ye that he ain't no doctor at all."

The doctor was now in a fury, and screamed out. "Ask my patients if I am not a doctor."

"I asked my wife," retorted Peter. "She said she thought he was not."

"Ask my other patients," said the doctor."

This seemed to be the straw that broke the camel's back; for Peter replied with look and tone of unutterable sadness. "That is a hard saying, gentlemen of the jury, and one that requires me to die, or to have powers as I have hearn tell ceased to be exercised since the Apostles. Does he expect me to bring the angel Gabriel down to toot his horn before his time, and cry aloud, 'Awake, ye dead, and tell this court and jury your opinion of Sam Royston's practice?

"Am I to go to the lonely churchyard and rap on the silent tomb, and say to 'um as it is at last at rest from physic and doctors' bills, 'Git up here, you, and state if you died a natural death, or was hurried up by some doctoral?' He says ask his patients, and, gentlemen of the jury, they are all dead! Where is Mrs. Beasley's man Sam? Go ask worms in the graveyard, where he lies. Mr. Peak's woman, Sarah, was attended by him, and her funeral was appointed, and he, the doctor, had the corpse ready. Where is the likely Bill, as belonged to Mr. Mitchell? Now in glory, expressing his opinion of Royston's doctoring. Where is that baby gal of Harry Stephens? She is where doctors cease to trouble and the infants are at rest. Gentlemen, he has eaten chicken enough at my house to pay for this salve. I found the rags, and I don't suppose he charges for making her worse, and even he don't pretend to charge for curing her, and I am humbly thankful he never give her nothing for her innards, as he did his other patients, for something made 'um all die mighty sudden."

President Arthur at Louisville.

On Aug. 1, President Arthur and Secretaries Lincoln and Folger, and Postmaster General Gresham, were escorted from the Galt House to the Exposition building. The President, after being introduced by Gov. Blackburn said:

"I count myself fortunate that I am upon the borders of the beautiful city of the South on a day which must henceforth be famous in its history, for a great undertaking; an undertaking of national interest and importance enters here and now upon its career. I congratulate the promoters and managers of this exposition that even at the very threshold of its existence it gives abundant pledges of success. The zeal and enthusiasm which they have displayed in their labors of preparation, and the frequent tidings of encouragement and cheer by which those labors have been lightened and made glad, the splendid triumphs of American genius, activity, and skill which are arranged within these walls; the presence of the eager multitude who throng these hospitable streets, all are tokens that the enterprise here inaugurated will be crowned with brilliant, far-reaching, enduring results. It will multiply the arms of industry and its operations and elevate its standards of attainments by suggesting now wants. It will invite new actions. It will disclose national resources as yet almost unexplored and point the way to their prompt and profitable development in countless ways. It will promote the arts of peace and help to bring about the works of peace, proclaiming harmony and good will and brotherly kindness throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof [Great applause.] I now declare that the Southern Exposition is open, and may God speed the fulfilment of all its lofty and ennobling purposes. [Immense applause.]

As he finished he seized the silken cord, gave it a stout pull, the great engine throbbed, a mellow chime of deep-toned bells sounded throughout every aisle and nave, and the machinery began to move. Immediately there was great cheering, and the organ, the band, and the chorus united in a festival ode written by J. M. Byers, to the air of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Says Prof. Blackie: The end of life is not the acquisition of knowledge, nor the display of knowledge, nor the exercise of any energy belonging to the cognitive department of our constitution—but the formation of character. What is the character? Character is the moral type impressed upon a man by the habitual exercise of noble emotions and a well trained will.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to hear from my mother. I have not heard from her but once since the war. She lived with Capt. Barstow, on Hager's Prairie, and afterwards with Capt. D. C. Conta. Her name was Milly and she had two girls—the oldest Bettie, and the youngest Martha; I now go by the name of Bettie Robinson. Address me, care of A. Arnold, Centreville, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—I want to inquire for some of my relatives. Father was Allen and mother Myra Cooley; sister was Romany Upchurch, and belonged to Seaborn Turner. He brought her to Texas some time before the war. Sister Mary married Jack Campbell. I left her in Alabama. My name at that time was Margaret Cooley, and I belonged to Vashon Silvan. Sister started to Texas but I stopped in Louisiana. One sister, Anneke Cooley, was left in Alabama. One brother was Benjamin, another Mandeville. I can't think of all of them. Address me at New Caney, Texas. MARGARET COLE.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people, whom I left in Virginia. Father was Peter Shields; mother Silvie; oldest sister Linde, next Sara Jane; brothers Sam, Nelson, Forlander, George Washington. My owner at that time was Crawford. I was sold down in Louisiana and came from there to Texas. Address me at New Caney, Texas. MANDA VICK.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my brothers. We were separated in Lawrence county, Ala., and I have never seen them since. My name is Nancy Birch, but when I was sold Mr. Bibb sold me to Mr. Birch. My brothers' names were George, Sam, Jarrett, Legustus, Prismus, Tanner, Nelson and Peter. There was also Lucinda and Rhetta Bibbs. Peter is with me now. Address me at Paulding, Miss. NANCY BIRD.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.
By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.
WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

Expressman Liable.

Mr. A. S. Merrill, the popular expressman of Brunswick, Me., writes us on May 15, 1883, as follows: "Having been severely afflicted for about two years with inflammation of the kidneys and bladder, so called by my physicians, I suffered with distressing pains in my back and retention of urine, caused by a stoppage at the neck of the bladder, and a complication of other diseases. I was hardly able to attend to my business, and at times would be completely prostrated. I was also affected with incontinence of urine to an alarming degree; indeed, it demanded my attention fifteen or twenty times per night, and at times it would seem impossible for me to ride down to the depot on my wagon, for every jar from the wagon would almost seem to take my life. Having failed to obtain relief from my doctor, I finally consulted our druggist, Dr. Merryman, of Brunswick, and requested him to furnish me with the most reliable and speedy cure of such sickness, for I was suffering too much for human nature to endure long. The doctor recommended me to use Hunt's Remedy, as it had been used with remarkable success in a good many cases in Brunswick and vicinity. I purchased a bottle, and received such a great relief [illegible] I continued, and had not used two [illegible] before I began to improve beyond [illegible] expectations. The pains in my kidneys and loins disappeared, I gained strength, and my water began to pass naturally, and I was able to sleep soundly, and obtain the greatly needed rest which for a long time I could not. I am fully restored health, and can attend to my business. Thanks to Hunt's Remedy for my restoration, and I highly recommend it to all who are troubled with kidneys complaints."

Could Not Lift A Pound.

The above are the words of Mrs. Harriet Bailey, of Putnam, Conn. She writes May 2, 1883: "I [illegible] troubled with kidney and liver disease for two years. I suffered [illegible] in the back and loins. Before taking your wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy, I could not lift a pound. After giving it a fair trial, I began to improve, and can now truly say it was a 'Godsend' to me, for I am now able to do my household work and enjoy the best of health. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to two of my neighbors who have been greatly benefited by it. This letter I send voluntarily, with the hope that it will be the means of inducing some sufferer to use Hunt's Remedy, and be cured as I have been."

Touch Not.

Grief banished by wine will come again,
And come with a deeper shade,
Leaving, perchance, on the soul a stain,
Which sorrow had never made.
Then fill not the tempting glass for me:
If mournful, I will not be mad;
Better sad, because we are sinful, be,
Than sinful, because we are sad.

The Norway Conference just held in Arendal has been very successful. It has been a time of great blessing and refreshment to our work. Bishop Foster rejoices very much in the progress of the work since he was here last, ten years ago. Ten years ago the work in Norway had 13 preachers, about 1,110 full members, about 150 probationers; 9 churches and chapels, worth about 80,000 crowns, and all the collections together amounted to not more than about 19,000 crowns, and the Conference was not then organized. Now there are a well organized Conference, (from 1876) 30 preachers, 27 societies 674 probationers, 3,004 full members, 26 churches and chapels, worth nearly 400,800 crowns, and all the collections for the year just closed amount to more than 50,000 crowns. of this sum about 2,800 crowns is for the Missionary Society. And then our influence as a Church in this Country has increased perhaps yet more, comparatively, for all of which all honor and praise is due to God. So writes in effect the Rev. H. P. Bergh, Conference Secretary, to the Advocate.

Toronto.

Messrs. Fleming Bros.:

Sirs,—I take this opportunity of informing you of the benefits I have derived from Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills. I have for two years past been afflicted with a severe pain over the eyes, accompanied with a nervousness and sense of dizziness; a malady beyond the power and skill of our physicians to relieve and cure, caused, as far as I myself could judge, by a diseased state of the liver and stomach. Some of the doctors tried bleeding, and various other remedies were tried, but all in vain, for the deep-rooted disease still stuck fast. At last, I procured a box of your valuable Liver Pills from a druggist here, and found after taking a portion of them, that the dizziness and painful sensation over the eyes have almost entirely left me. I will cheerfully recommend all those afflicted as I have been, to procure the valuable medicine at once, and save their time and pills, with little expense. With sincere gratitude and respect, I remain, yours respectfully,

GEO. W. [illegible], Toronto.

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, No. [illegible] Seventh street, testify that they have both been suffering with the liver complaint for about five years, [illegible] time they have spent a [illegible] and tried many remedies [illegible] Finally, hearing of Dr. [illegible] prepared by Fleming [illegible] they purchased four boxes, [illegible] according to the directions accompanying each box, and now pronounce themselves perfectly cured of that distressing disease.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

Enormous Saving to Schools

7c. S. S. LIBRARIES.

Over three million sold already. The enormous expense of the Sunday-school library a thing of the past. $[illegible] now buys a library which before cost $[illegible]. The largest and best of books at less than 7 cents each. First fifty-two reprints of the best books written. Selections from over 1,000 volumes—original prices varying from 60c. to $2.15; the whole fifty-two books originally costing $57.45, averaging $1.10½ each. Volumes from No. 53 to 104 written expressly for us, by the best Sunday-school writers. Above 104 partly new and partly reprints. In printing so cheaply we do not sacrifice durability or quality. In point of fact, our cheap books will out last the expensive ones. Being wire-stitched, the leaves can not come out unless torn out. The limp covers preserve the books better than the heavy board covers of the ordinary books. Being flexible, they can be bent back, folded over, or even rolled, without injury, making them almost indestructible. Every book thoroughly sound and evangelical, but nothing sectarian or partisan. Each book numbered and containing descriptive catalogue of the whole.

A WONDERFUL [illegible]d

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when you use them. They have been carefully examined and analyzed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H. HOUSAH, Medicated. NONE GENUINE UNLESS STAMPED.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON IX. August 26. GIDEON'S ARMY. (Judges vii, 1-8.)

You all know what an army is, but you do not know who Gideon was. He was a young man who loved God and was ready to work for him. The people of Israel had sinned and got so far away from God, that they worshiped false gods, [illegible] and they had dreadful times. The Midianites [illegible] their cattle, destroyed their fields, and not let them have any [illegible] last a [illegible] them [illegible] at last [illegible] and [illegible] them and called brave Gideon to lead them. G[illegible] him [illegible] do and [illegible] people [illegible] to him, and over thirty thousand came. The army of the Midianites was so great that this army of thirty thousand was only a very small one to fight them. But God was [illegible] spoke to them, and said all who felt afraid of the battle might [illegible] O how they [illegible] was on a [illegible] tents of [illegible] had but [illegible] wanted [illegible] and so at last [illegible] battle comes [illegible] to the little [illegible] spring, and Gideon [illegible] to drink. MARRIAGES.

At Mrs. Adline Talbot's, mother of the groom, by Rev. S. A. Cowan, Mr. V. [illegible] Talbot and Miss Lucy McKissack were joined together in holy wedlock July 4th. Mr. Talbot and his bride were for many years students of Rust University, and have been very successful school teachers.

M. M. McKissack and Miss Josephine Exum, students of Rust University were joined together in holy matrimony Aug. 2, by Rev. S. A. Cowan.

May peace and prosperity follow the happy couples.

Holly Springs, Aug. 3, 1883.

At the bride's residence, in the parish of Plaquemines, La., on Thursday evening, August 16th, Rev. Geo. W. Wells, of this city, to Miss Arraminta Williamson of Grand Prairie, parish of Plaquemines, La. Rev. A. E. P. Albert officiated. We hope for Prof. Wells and his accomplished bride a long and useful life of unclouded love and happiness. A.

Almost Insane and Cured.

"Most of the eminent doctors in the east as well as several of the medical faculty in New York City," writes Rev. P. P. Shirley, of Chicago, "failed to help our daughter's epilepsy, which began to show signs of turning into insanity. By the good providence of God we tried Samaritan Nervine, and it cured her." Your druggist keeps it. $1.50.

Church four [illegible] and died a Christian [illegible] inclined from his youth; [illegible] four years ago, his wife [illegible] a year after, leaving one child [illegible] was elected to serve in the State [illegible] and served one term honorably and creditably. He was a school teacher by profession and always gained for himself the highest esteem of both parents and pupils. Some three [illegible] severe cold from which he never recovered, but gradually grew [illegible] the 6th of July [illegible] the great [illegible] friends.

Caroline Johnson, a faithful member of the M. E. Church, and a highly esteemed resident of Holly Springs, died June [illegible] S. A. COWAN.

Sister Mary Jane Brown, daughter of Stepman and Laura Brown, 16 years, and [illegible] the favorite of the family, passed from this life into the spirits to dwell with saints of God, July 1. She joined the church Sept. 1880, and never thought herself too high-minded to acknowledge her wrongs. Around the fireside after her [illegible] mother had made their faith prayers, she would have the other children to unite with her in saying the Lord's prayer. She ranked among the best scholars in school, and never failed to attend Sabbath-school when it was in her power to be present. Her father had talked with the writer on the first Sunday in this month about sending her to Rust University. Her death [illegible] grieved [illegible] wept, and the community bowed in sorrow.

Enterprise, Miss.

Sister Lottie Stafney died June 18, aged 24 years. She was a faithful church member and leaves a husband and three children.

Mary McCullough died June 30, aged 15 years. She was a Sunday-school scholar and had professed religion. A father and two sisters mourn her loss.

Sister Violet McCaskill died July 8th, aged 30 years. She was a faithful member of the church, and leaves five children.

H. CAWTHORN.

Greenwood, Miss., Aug. 10.

Sister Mary Fulton, a member of First Street M. E. Church, New Orleans, died Aug. 6, in full triumph of faith, after a long illness.

Sister Matilda Robinson, also a faithful member of the same church died Aug. 6. She leaves a husband, mother and son to mourn her loss. T. G. MONTGOMERY.

On Aug. 10, at Martin, Tenn., Sister Elvira Chandler, one of the oldest members of the M. E. Church at that place died in the fullness of faith. She left a husband and children. Her grown son died the same night and was carried to the grave at the same time.

J. L. MASSEY.

Cornelius E. Boone, eldest son of Rev. R. Boone, a member of the Little Rock Conference, died at Sweet Home, Ark., Aug. 11. Little Cornelius was the favorite of both his father and mother, and, therefore, will be missed very much. Brother and Sister Boone have the sympathy of their brethren and companions in the ministry. Editorial Notes.

It is expected the Chilian troops will be withdrawn from Lima, the capital of Peru, about Sept. 15. The Peruvian leader Iglesias is forming an army to be prepared for the restoration of civil rule after the Chilian evacuation. Peace will be [illegible] in that [illegible] unhappy republic.

The government expects to publish a list of its pensioners with a view to the [illegible]. A [illegible] sion is as bad as a ballot-box stuf[illegible] or a [illegible] and it is the duty of every good citizen to [illegible] evidence to [illegible] [illegible] coming [illegible].

A few weeks ago the New York Sun [illegible] the Republicans [illegible] Kentucky, has [illegible] ly [illegible] the [illegible] has [illegible] for [illegible] this [illegible] of public justice [illegible]

The [illegible] Europe and [illegible] storms and floods [illegible] And if they will [illegible] aside from [illegible] and tell the [illegible] year, has thus far been one of such unparalleled disturbances in the forces of nature they will at least give satisfaction to some inquiring minds. For the present it would seem that these men have plenty of work on hand.

[illegible] has directed the [illegible] to take such proceedings as may be necessary to [illegible] it would [illegible] have been regarded with better grace as an unselfish move for the public good, it is nevertheless cause for gratification that the Governor of Louisiana has shown a disposition to investigate alleged fraud, even though the asserted guilty party be his own brother.

The Democratic candidate for Governor of Iowa having been quoted as saying in a recent speech that he was in favor of a "saloon on every hill top," a remark so significant in contrast with the famous saying of the Republican Lieutenant-Governor, felt called upon to explain. He has more respect for those who would place saloons on the hill tops than he has for those who put out false signs and sell liquor clandestinely. Candidates cannot afford to trifle with the temperance question in Iowa.

There twenty-four savings banks in New York City, and there has been an increase of 12,837 in the number of depositors during the last six months, making a total of 560,000. These depositors have to their credit $232,000,000, or $357 each. During last year the sum of $7,772,544 in interest was paid to the depositors as the annual reward of their frugality. These depositors are mainly of the laboring classes, and the figures show a fair degree of prosperity. What a pity that New Orleans has no savings banks to encourage habits of thrift.

The City Item makes the sensible suggestion that now—since the city has provided itself with a new [illegible] at the expense of its licensed gambling institutions—the Council take steps to remove the numerous maimed and impudent beggars from the public streets. The police are instructed to compel crowds of respectable citizens to move on, yet any tramp or object of human misery is allowed to fasten at one spot and display his rags or filth with little or no opposition. Let a home be given the deserving poor, and the professional beggar be denied the exercise of his vocation.

The Ohio campaign is getting warm. The liquor dealers and saloon keepers have held a meeting and decided to support the Democratic ticket, charging that the Republicans secured the passage of the Scott law, a high license law. Among Christian temperance people such action ought to help the Republican ticket more than it hurts it. Steady organized work needs to be done in the city, town, and country. And while the rum power is wholly unscrupulous and is a great power at the polls in this country, still we hope to see the State of "Mother Stewart" go for temperance by not less than 20,000 majority.

A terrible cyclone struck the northern part of Rochester, Minn., a pleasant city of between 8,000 and 10,000 inhabitants, and made a clean sweep; elevators, residences, mills, railroad engine house and other property. Twenty-five persons were killed and forty injured. As the train that left Rochester about 1 o'clock p. m., was near Zumbrota, about 6 p. m., while it was running at high speed, it was struck by a severe storm of wind and hail and lifted from the rails. Every car in the train was completely wrecked, while the unfortunate passengers were buried beneath the ruins, and many were killed and nearly every person aboard was injured.

Successful Anniversary at Ocean Grove, New Jersey.

The sixteenth anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held in the auditorium at Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 13th. Bishop Harris presided during the three sessions—morning, afternoon, and evening, and added much to the interest of the anniversary by his words of wisdom and encouragement.

FINANCIAL SHOWING.

The Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust presented an abstract of the annual report of the Board of Managers. The financial statement indicated a great advance in receipts and work accomplished over any preceding year, as shown by the following figures:

Received past year from collections	$111,077 00
Received past year from tuition and room rent	12,076 63
Total	$123,153 73
Received last year from collections	$90,401 03
Received last year from students	8,941 55
	$99,392 58
Increase in current receipts	$23,761 14

This increase in current receipts is from three sources as follows:

Conference collections	$13,954 90
Individual donations	6,681 17
Tuition and room rent from students	3,135 08
Total	$23,761 14

A remarkable feature of the past year's work has been the receipts in endowment, annuities and large donations. The Rev. E. [illegible], of Chicago, in addition to his donation of one third of the cost of a $23,000 building at Atlanta for a theological school, has given $20,000 for the endowment of a professorship in that school. Special mention is due Bishop Warren for his untiring efforts and success in securing funds for the erection and endowment of the theological school at Atlanta. The Rev. J. H. Wilbur, of Oregon, has added to his former donations an annuity gift of $2,000. Mrs. Adeline M. Smith and family gave $10,000 in real estate for Philander Smith College at Little Rock, which erects a beautiful college building, and which will be occupied next September. Michael Emeigh donates $1,100. Amount of these permanent donations, $36,100 during the year.

In addition to sustaining the school work, embracing a larger number of teachers and schools than heretofore, $66,375 have been expended in erecting school buildings. These buildings are fine specimens of school architecture and convenience, and receive the commendation and admiration of the people of the South.

Expended in school property this year	$66,375 00
Expended in school property last year	26,257 70
Increase	$40,117 30

This great increase in building has incurred a debt of $16,625 90.

Summing up the total disbursements, and comparing with last year, the showing is as follows:

Disbursements this year	$142,530 60
Disbursements last year	110,745 66
Increase	$ 31,783 94

The grand total for the year is as follows:

Endowments, etc	$ 36,100 00
Total disbursements	142,539 60
Total receipts this year	$178,639 60
Same for last year	110,745 66
Total increase	$37,823 94

Certainly the Society is to be congratulated upon so large an increase in its receipts, and in the improved character of the work accomplished. While the number of pastors is still large who neglect to present this cause to their people, yet the handsome increase from this source is encouraging. The increase of fully 25 per cent. in the receipts from students, for tuition and rent, shows that the policy of the Society to develop self-help among those it seeks to benefit is meeting with gratifying results.

The total increase over last year's receipts is more than 30 per cent. This indicates a growing confidence in the administration of the Society. It also confirms the wisdom of the last General Conference in committing the whole educational work of the Church in the South to this Society. Plans are already being inaugurated by which it is hoped that 1884, the Centennial year of the Church, will bring into its treasury a still greater increase and income.

ANNIVERSARY ADDRESS.

At the morning session Prof. Crogman, of Clark University, Atlanta, gave a scholarly presentation of the work already done by the Society, and Dr. FitzGerald, Recording Secretary of the Missionary Society, discussed with marked ability the duty we owe to the negro, because of what he had done for the nation.

In the afternoon Dr. Braden, of Central Tennessee College, Nashville, began the session with interesting reminiscences of early work among the freedmen. The Rev. Dr. Alexander Crummell, of Washington City, spoke on "The Negro and the Black Woman of America." Dr. Crummell is a cultured negro clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Fifty years ago, he, with Henry Highland Garnett, late Minister to Liberia, and Dr. Rust, attended an academy together in New Hampshire. So enraged were the people because the two colored men were admitted, that the farmers took 100 yoke of oxen and dragged the building into the woods and destroyed it. After half a century Dr. Crummell and Dr. Rust meet under such interesting circumstances, and Mr. Garnett is remembered as one of the remarkable men this country has produced. Bishop Harris referred to this historical fact when introducing Dr. Crummell. The Rev. J. C. Price, of Salisbury, N. C., spoke with great power on the certain rise of his race.

At night, the Rev. Dr. Cooke, President of Claflin University, South Carolina, opened the session with an encouraging view of educational matters in South Carolina, and paid a high tribute to Gov. Thompson, of that State, for his earnest efforts in advancing public school education.

Dr. J. M. Walden, of Cincinnati, gave a graphic description of the development of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, and of her great influence in molding the destiny of that section. Dr. J. C. Hartzell spoke upon the theme, "The New South: What Shall It Be?" He rejoiced in the commercial and educational prosperity of the South, but said the Christian patriot and philanthropist must study underlying convictions and see whether the new South was to be the old South with simply negro chatterlism left out. The Southern Confederacy of States was no more. Appomattox ended that. Now we face the Southern Confederacy of ideas, which, too, must be met, and whatever there is in it not national and truly fraternal to the negro must be eliminated. This work must be done in the school, on the rostrum, and by the press, and be made permanent by the ballot.

The McEnery Land Ring Swindle.

The following special dispatch appeared in the New York Times, Aug. 20:

New Orleans, Aug. 19.—Owing to the scandal growing out of the exposure of the operations of the Gov. John McEnery land ring and the production of evidence of the defrauding of the State to the extent of several thousand dollars by his connivance, Gov. Samuel McEnery called for the resignation of State Register Richardson as a sacrifice to public clamor. Richardson was allowed 30 days' time to vacate the office, and the Hon. James L. Lobdell, of Baton Rouge, was appointed in his place. The public understood, owing to the high character of the latter, that this change was made to prevent the State from further spoliation. It has been learned, however, that previous to vacating his office Richardson placed every dollar of the illegally issued scrip upon valuable public lands of the State to the amount of 43,550 acres. Some 15,000 acres of this land is entered in the name of Robert G. Ingersoll, of Washington, though McEnery states that he had to divide for getting his business transacted at the Land Office, at Washington. The unblushing character of this land swindle is illustrated by the fact that Attorney General Egan, who is McEnery's land partner, gave a written opinion, when applied to by the Governor, that this scrip issue was illegal.

The Times comments editorially:

One of the members of the McEnery swamp land ring in Louisiana has been dismissed from office, but in the thirty days which the friendly Governor allowed to him he succeeded in placing every dollar of the illegally issued McEnery scrip upon the State's most valuable public lands, covering in this way 43,500 acres. A dispatch published in The Times this morning shows that about 15,000 acres of this land are entered in the name of Robert G. Ingersoll, and attention is directed to John McEnery's assertion that he was forced "to divide" with persons who are not named in order to get his claims allowed by the General Land Office in Washington. Mr. Ingersoll is a lawyer who sometimes represents claimants before the executive departments. The disposal of this land indicates that he was in some way connected with McEnery's undertaking. Possibly he was McEnery's attorney and was paid in land. In the course of time perhaps the Commissioner of the Land Office will have something to say about these swamp land transactions.

Letter From LaGrange.

MR. EDITOR—I have been a reader of the SOUTHWESTERN ever since I could read well enough to read a paper, for it has been our family paper ever since I can remember, and I have been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church ever since a baby. And never before have I felt like writing on a subject like I do on this one that is brought before the public so often in your and other papers; that is the retrogression of the negro of America. Now, Mr. Editor, I am not one of those that believe we are retrograding. But I do believe that we have too much form with too little reality about our religion here in the South. I have been in this part of Arkansas for about five months, and have been spending the summer months in other parts of the State, traveling for about five years. I was born and raised in the South, therefore have some experience of the customs and manners, as well as the religion of our people of the South. Right around this village, which affords only four business houses, there are at least thirteen colored churches, the farthest of these I speak of being about five miles. I have visited these churches, and, with a single exception, they all partake in whining and groaning, which I do not believe to be essential to Christian happiness. The preachers of these churches when they start begin whining and groaning, and in a few minutes after they start you can not hear a word that may be said by the preacher. These preachers are not educated, and they say they must do something to make the people come out to hear them. A very few of the preachers have family prayer, therefore only a few members have it. There are only a few preachers among us that do not drink strong drinks and use tobacco, therefore we find only a few members that do not drink strong drinks and use tobacco. In the very face of the Bible forbidding strong drinks they use it. "Drink no wine nor strong drinks." Judges, xii, 7. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service." Romans xii, 1.

I do not, Mr. Editor, pretend to say that all of our people of the South indulge in these formalities, but I do say in the face of the great number of colored teachers that are teaching yearly, and the host of teachers of other races that are teaching among us, that the majority of our people of the South, with nearly twenty years of freedom, are carried off too much into formality in their religious worship. I do not write for the purpose of condemning anything that has been said in defense of the race. But I write hoping the near future will find us more real and less formal in the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ. Yours, truly,

N. J. STITH.

LaGrange, Ark., Aug. 18.

No Blanks.

The California Christian Advocate says:

"Of all things blanks are the ugliest. Not a blank should be seen in all the reports. They are ghastly rents, through which we look into vacuity. Fill up all spaces! Fill them full! Better reports make everything lively. The way to pay a preacher is to pay every cent. Where there is a will there is a way.

It is time to begin to make careful provision so that when Conference comes there shall not be one ghastly blank. Nothing helps like a good report.

At Le Grand, Iowa, Pastor T. Simmons recently conducted revival services seven nights. Thirty-three were converted and forty-two joined the church. These accessions form the third class organized during the conference year. The church has witnessed ninety-nine conversions and ninety-three accessions during the year.—Northwestern.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

H. James, Clinton: "Wesley Chapel is six miles from Clinton, and there is a good people here who claim Jesus as their leader. Elder Landry was with us on his second round, and his counsel was appreciated."

TENNESSEE.

H. Robinson, Spring Hill: "We are building a new church here, have the frame up ready for the roof, a house 24x40. We have received from the Church Extension Board [illegible] through Elder Pickett, $25. The [young] [illegible] gave an entertainment and made up $40 for us. The Sunday-school formed a juvenile club, gave an entertainment and raised [illegible]. We have no debt on the building, the lumber is paid for, also the workmen are paid."

A. P. Blakemore, Springfield: "We had a very nice institute, July 21 and 22. There was a lecture by Mr. West, county superintendent. Rev. Hillman, Baptist, [illegible] at 1:30. Lectures by Rev. [illegible] and J. W. Hunter followed. Elder J. P. Gregg held our third quarterly conference. We were glad to have him with us. His collection was $7.25; for pastor $20.35. He preached and administered [illegible]. Paid pastor this year [illegible] $28.70; benevolent [illegible]."

[illegible] the wonderful success [illegible] method. From [illegible] the north to the gulf, [illegible] ocean, and, in fact, [illegible] Methodism has found [illegible] the sole of her foot [illegible] her officers are the [illegible] the same way, [illegible] understand their [illegible] a preacher is [illegible] to con[illegible] [illegible] whatever [illegible] just [illegible] the Holy Ghost [illegible] whether it be a [illegible] [illegible] should be [illegible] church like [illegible] it ought [illegible] it is not so [illegible]. Now [illegible] case [illegible] stewards [illegible] the [illegible] that devolves outside of the [illegible] rulings of pre[illegible] or unwill[illegible] to observe our established [illegible] as to their boards [illegible] it law or right. No power but the General Confer[ence] [illegible] duty, or divest [illegible] [illegible] are a law [illegible] too often [illegible] at this [illegible] responsibility [illegible] [illegible] upon. It is [illegible] who is not [illegible] [illegible] are [illegible] says: "The [illegible] of [illegible] is [illegible] are fully [illegible] the purpose which the founders had in view in creating the trust. All their authority is necessarily subordinate to this end and all exercise of it beyond the legitimate attainment of this end is usurpation." No trustee, or set of trustees, in our church has the authority to close the church doors against any properly appointed pastor [illegible] the regular services [illegible] [illegible] or any [illegible] that services of any kind, within religious bounds, shall not be held. If it had not been for this [illegible] might have arisen where meetings for temperance, and the anxious cries of our benevolent societies might have been prohibited. Though a majority of the members were to [illegible] of them under such or similar circumstances, they might have no right to close the doors of the church, and if they were to do so over the [illegible] their authority, the civil law would open them. They are not chosen to represent that majority, but rather to execute the trust of carrying out the intention of those from whose benevolence flow the temporalities put in their charge. The only moneys or debts that trustees of our church property are to handle and pay are 1—Moneys raised to create or repair churches and parsonages; [illegible] to improve or furnish the same; [illegible] pay rent for our churches and parsonages; [illegible] and to pay debts [illegible] said property. (See Discipline, [illegible]) Our trustees have no right to rent the property held by them for any other purpose than such as is in keeping with the rules and regulations of the church, or prevent pastors from using said property at any and all times for any and all purposes in keeping with his position as a minister. Nor have they authority to use even the interest or any part of the money arising from the rent or sale of said property, or use it themselves, or allow others to, without paying or receiving the same from the occupants for the benefit of that congregation. Bishop Baker says: "The power of the trustees in the M. E. church seems to be restricted to the holding of real estate and such personal property as has been raised or acquired for the benefit alone of the temporalities of the church. They may take up subscriptions and collections for the purpose of erecting church property, for the payment of debts previously contracted, and for repairing and improving the real estate of the society; but they have no authority to forbid the stewards making voluntary contributions for the support of the Gospel and the various benevolent institutions of the church, nor can they claim that the funds raised for these purposes, either in the classes or in the public congregation, shall be deposited in their hands. Our economy requires that these funds shall be disbursed by the stewards, and the trustees cannot exercise their powers in such manner as to defeat the very purpose of their creation." We have but two boards in the church to collect and disburse money, and the stewards board is the other. Hence, what is not enjoined or conceived to be the duty of the first, must be the duty of the second. It is therefore plainly the duty of the stewards to arrange and execute plans and raise money: 1—to pay the presiding elder; 2—pastor; 3—[illegible], etc.; 5—to assist the poor. Hence we require the stewards to be persons of solid piety, who both know and love the Methodist doctrine and discipline, and of good natural and acquired ability to transact the temporal affairs of the church. They are to make an accurate return of every expenditure of money, and when occasion requires report the temporal concerns of the charge. If either of these boards fail to do its duty as [illegible], a change at any quarterly conference can be made. This prevents dishonest and ignorant men from doing the church injury. The pastor in charge is chairman of all boards and committees. As to the chairmanship of these and other boards in the church, much confusion and discussion can arise where this duty is shifted, by the pastor, on to the shoulders of another. There are no congregations among us where the pastor has the confidence of his official members that object to him being president. The fact is they need him there or else they don't need him anywhere. Much of the careless [illegible] work done in [illegible] [illegible] from this quarter. It matters not how intelligent the officers are, nor how honest and careful they are, that is the pastor's place and he ought to be there. I have never known yet of a church that succeeded best where the pastor never attended or presided at the official meetings. If there is a case let's put it on record.

Murfreesboro Sunday-School Institute.

The Sunday-School Institute, of the Murfreesboro district, Tennessee conference, met in the M. E. church at McMinnville, July 26th. In the absence of Rev. H. W. Key, P. E., Rev. J. Braden, D. D., was elected president, and W. C. Miller, secretary.

The meeting was opened with a brief [address] by Dr. Braden, and singing, the music being conducted by Miss M. E. Braden. Though the Institute was not largely attended by the brethren of the district, yet there was quite an interest manifested by the citizens of McMinnville and vicinity, and we had a good time. Rev. G. T. Steinback, of C. P. church, was with us and delivered a very eloquent lecture upon the S. S. work. Rev. A. Phillips, of Murfreesboro, and Rev. C. Bullington, B. F. Whitley and T. P. Braden were all present and made good speeches, which showed great determination to make the Sunday-school work a success. Rev. S. P. Bell delivered an address on the Growth of Sunday-school work.

On Friday night, the last night of the Institute, Dr. Braden gave a lecture on the great need of education among my people to prepare them for the realities of life. In this talk the Dr. got into the hearts of the people, and we believe that through the impressions made upon the people by the Dr. in his talk, and Miss Mamie with her excellent music, they will long live in the hearts of this people. May the Lord grant them long and useful lives. The trustees of our church here (white) gave us the use of their church very freely, and also Bro. Haynes, the pastor, took part in the exercise. We are still moving forward with our church and Sunday-school. Pray for us.

The Sin Against The Holy Ghost

BY THE REV. G. B. SNYDER.

Opinions on this subject, as expressed by theologians and Scripture expositors, widely differ. Probably there is no ground to hope that the future will differ from the past in this respect. And while it may reach to deeper depth than any human penetration can fathom, yet there is much about it that is plain and practical. The Pharisees (Matt. xii, 24) and scribes (Mark iii, 22) were not the only persons who might commit this sin, nor was the conduct in them condemned the only way of committing it. "All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men, but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men. And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come." "To men" and "whosoever" are general terms, the use of which here clearly shows that it is possible at any time and anywhere to commit this sin. Any sin against Christ may be forgiven, but there may be such sin against the Holy Ghost as for which there is no forgiveness.

Here a distinction is noted between sin against Christ and sin against the Holy Ghost. What is the ground of this distinction? God is one, yet three in one. To sin against either person of the Trinity is to sin against God. To offer a presumptuous insult is blasphemy, and is alike blasphemy whether offered to either person of the Trinity. But Christ embodies the Deity in the atonement made for sin. Through it alone is forgiveness offered to, or may reconciliation to God be secured by, the sinner. But this provision is made alike [illegible]. Not only did God so love the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life, but he, by the grace of God, tasted death for every man. Not only for the world in the aggregate, but for every individual member of the whole human family. The commission Christ gave to his disciples directs, "Go into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature." Indeed, the whole tenor of offer, invitation, and promise is alike broad. Any repenting, believing sinner may be forgiven. No human being, in any age or part of the world, has been or will be finally lost, because he was not covered by the atonement, or because it did not fully meet his case, or make possible his forgiveness and full and final salvation. Neither such as Jesus said "hath never forgiveness," nor any others, will ever be lost because there was no way provided for them to be saved, nor remain unforgiven because their sins were of so deep and damning a turpitude as not to be fully covered and met by the provisions of the atonement. There is no such thing as unforgivable sin this side of the bottomless pit. What, then, is the sin against the Holy Ghost, which Christ says "shall not be forgiven?"

The Holy Ghost embodies the Deity in applying the atonement, and in giving effect to the means employed for this purpose. In the case of irresponsible, this saving application is unconditional. "The free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." The entire race, while in the condition of infancy, is in a state of initial salvation. This because the remedy for lost man is applied to all unconditionally, through the agency of the Holy Ghost. But when one crosses the line of accountability he becomes master of the situation. No power in the universe can save him while he resists the Holy Ghost. Yet not every one who quenches the Spirit, or grieves or resists the Holy Ghost, is guilty of the sin which "hath never forgiveness." If that were true, few, if any, would ever obtain forgiveness. The reason given by the Saviour (Mark iii, 30) why the blasphemy there named could not be forgiven is "Because they said, He hath an unclean spirit." They had just said, "He hath Beelzebub, and by the prince of the devils casteth he out devils." The chief office of the Spirit is to lead men to the exercise of faith in Christ as the only way of salvation. Christ professed to "cast out devils by the spirit of God." (Matt. xii, 28.) These men had alleged that he did so by the prince of the devils, by which, they said, "He is in league with the devil and what claims are basely false and hypocritical." Hence, the Holy Ghost was withdrawn from these men for the double reason that what was done by his agency they perversely and maliciously attributed to the devil, which was a presumptuous insult—that is, blasphemy—and which he felt and resented as such; and also because it would be useless to seek to lead those to Christ who had firmly and finally rejected him.

Now, there are other ways in which presumptuous insult may be offered to the Holy Spirit than by refering his agency to the power of the devil. Whenever this occurs in such a way as the Holy Spirit accepts as a deliberate, intended malicious insult, he withdraws himself. Or, if one deliberately, firmly, and finally rejects Christ as a Saviour, there is no longer occasion for the offices of the Spirit, and he withdraws himself. When the Spirit is withdrawn from any one he is left in the dark, and is helpless and hopeless. For such a one there is never forgiveness, not because the atonement don't cover his case and fully provide for it, but because he has so rejected the overtures made to him as to be left without the disposition [illegible] the helps to seek and secure the salvation of his soul. Hence, the point and pith of the "unpardonable sin" is a firm, persistent rejection of the only agency by the help of which salvation can be secured. They who so reject as to be left of the Holy Spirit will not seek, and so cannot obtain, forgiveness, or escape from the perdition of the lost, "but are in danger of eternal damnation."

Simon Bolivar—Patriot and Soldier.

BY W. R. THAYER.

The genius of a race may be learned in its colonies. There its virtues or its vices develop much faster than at home, where customs and a settled state of society act as a check against sudden growth. In modern times there have been two remarkable colonizing nations, the English and the Spanish. The area which they have brought under their sways in the New World and in the Pacific is nearly similar. The conditions of conquest were almost equal, the advantage being on the side of the Spaniards. The results are as far apart as are the present position of Britain and Spain in the scale of nations. But it was only three hundred and fifty years ago that the order was reversed. When the three young monarchs, Charles V., Francis I. and Henry VIII., were rivals for election to the imperial throne, Spain stood foremost in Europe, and the then recent discovery of America opened to adventurous Spaniards a field of unknown extent, where fame or wealth were sure to be acquired. The subjects of Charles V., set out in quest of El Dorado with as much eagerness as their ancestors had sought the Holy Grail or flocked to Palestine to rescue their Lord's sepulchre from infidel keepers. The Pizarros and Cortez and Ponce de Leon pushed into the mysterious depths of the unknown continent, searching for the inexhaustible mountain of gold or for the elixir of youth. From the first, injustice and cruelty stamped the acts of the conquerors. Planted in blood, the Spanish colonies grew up in discord. The black garbed Jesuit like a shadow accompanied the mailed soldier. The inquisition ended the debasing work of the sword. Where might failed, spiritual weapons coaxed the ignorant and terrified the superstitious into abject submission. Crimes were common, because the criminal could buy absolution from the priests. Duplicity and ferocity went hand-in-hand. Under the shadow of the church vice flourished rankly. Greed of gold, lust, falsehood, inhumanity and superstition were the seeds sowed in South America by the Spaniards. Thus, although the Spanish possessions were the richest, and although the Spanish colonies preceded by a century those of England, the latter quickly took the lead in all that concerns true prosperity and progress.

When the United States became independent, and men beheld a republic established on a permanent basis, the world entered upon a new epoch of which we have as yet scarcely crossed the threshold. More than the thirteen original colonies.

"Heard the nibbed pen of Jefferson tell the rights of man to men."

In France there were ready listeners, and as the news of the triumph of liberty slowly drifted through the South American colonies they, too, began to dream and to aspire. The Spaniards still ruled their provinces in the New World by means of governors general and of small standing armies. They directed the commerce, and they treated the natives—who, by intermarriage with the aborigines, and by the natural development of six generations, presented a modification of the Andalusian type—like subjects, instead of brothers and equals. Disputes were frequent between the colonists and the crown, and so heavy lay the taxes upon the for[illegible] that material advancement [was im]possible. Education was utterly neglected, because neither the home government nor the priesthood approved of fostering this enemy which must eventually have put them to flight.

During a generation after the signing of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia the desire for liberty passed in spasmodic movements up and down the South American continent. The outbreak and success of the French Revolution and the consequent unsettled condition of Spain increased the enthusiasm and the chances of success of the colonists. It is not to be supposed, however, that although there was loud talk of the rights of man, and although windy orators pictured the beauties of a true republic and alluded generously to the Gracchi and Brutus, and all the other heroes of antiquity, the South Americans had a definite idea of practical republicanism, or that they were fitted to receive it all at once. So inured were the evils of tyranny in their nature that even the most patriotic might easily have been mistaken for a ruffian. The methods they adopted by preference were underhand, and although there were frequent ephemeral revolutions and a good deal of bloodshed, this struggle for freedom lacked the dignity and moral sublimity of its Northern model. Many joined the native party, either from a desire for personal aggrandizement or for private revenge. Assassination was a favorite weapon, and treachery was common. After periodic riots, in which the Spaniards were mainly successful, the colonists would be forced to sink back into a condition of comparative tranquillity, in order to attend to their trade and agriculture; and doubtless many merchants who grumbled at high taxes and Spanish extortion resigned themselves to bear these burdens rather than trust their lives and property to fanatical and uncertain revolutionists.

But at length day dawned and the man of whom South America stood in need appeared. This was Simon Bolivar y Ponte, the only South American who in ability and in integrity deserves to rank among the patriots of Europe and the United States. He was as practical as he was enthusiastic, as wise as he was courageous, as unselfish as he was ambitious. Although an aristocrat by birth, he was one of the world's democrats by choice. He knew the advantages of a republic, but he also keenly understood the sacrifices and the struggles which it exacts. He knew, moreover, that merely to change the form of government does not raise a people, but that they must be educated in order to be able to mount slowly the ladder of independence.

Bolivar was born in Caraccas on the 24th of July, 1783, and was sent to Madrid, where he studied law. He returned to his home in 1801, but the death of his newly-married wife soon led him to travel. In 1809 he came to the United States, and he examined republican institutions with the carefulness of a practical investigator. That he learned much cannot be doubted; for upon going back to Venezuela he openly joined the ranks of the natives and began a career of patriotism which lasted nearly twenty years. The work which Bolivar wished to achieve was two-fold: The Spaniards were to be driven out, and the natives were to be trained so as to be worthy and capable of self-government. Although at the outset the former task seemed, the latter has been proved by experience to be, the harder of the two. Men of all races have been stirred up to a point of enthusiasm where they throw off a tyrant's yoke, but far less often have they showed the ability of profiting by their victory. So true is this of the South Americans that now, after having been emancipated during nearly two generations, they are still far from possessing dignified and stable government.

Bolivar first fought for Venezuela under the patriot Miranda, and was successful in several engagements. Being routed in one unlucky fight, however, he was forced to flee to Curacoa, whence he soon renewed the attack upon the Spaniards, having only a hastily-gathered force with him. For seven years the war lasted, with varying results. More than once Bolivar was driven from his country, only to return with unquenched ardor to keep up the struggle. At length, in February, 1819, after he had [illegible] over his [illegible], he was [illegible] of Venezuela and [illegible] power. He at once set about doing for New Granada, the vast, thinly settled country to the west of Venezuela, what he had achieved at home. His march over the Cordilleras, followed by victories at Tunja and Boyaca, still remains one of the most brilliant military exploits of the southern continent. By the year 1822 the Spanish troops had been completely routed and New Granada was united to Venezuela under the name of the United States of Colombia. Bolivar was made president without opposition. Not satisfied with this success, he went down the Pacific coast, through Ecuador into Peru, which was [illegible] freedom and which with his help became free. Lower Peru [illegible] republic, [illegible] its champion [illegible] presidency was [illegible] upon him. Thus in 182[illegible] he was the chief magistrate of a [illegible] almost equal to Brazil in size. [illegible] having [illegible] of [illegible]. Not long was it be[illegible] eradicated. publics in their internecine quarrels. The precepts which he taught have not been forgotten, although his countrymen have not yet put them into practice. His character is so clear that it scarcely requires analysis. His patriotism inspired all his acts and breathed nobility into his other qualities. His disinterestedness was put to the proof many times, but never failed. He was born rich and he died poor, having spent his private fortune to help the cause of freedom. Although for several years the treasuries of three republics were within his reach, his bitterest enemy could not accuse him of peculation. His exploits as a military commander show that on a large field he might have won a place among the leading generals of the century. His republicanism was of the purest sort, and he was even more consistent than Washington, to whom he has been likened by the people of South America, because he personally preached the abolition of slavery and gave a large number of slaves their liberty. He saw that if freedom be good for one class it must be good for all.

Such was he whom his friends call "the great liberator," and surely, wherever a noble democratic career is reverenced, and wherever men are grateful for the chiefs who have fought for progress and humanity, gratitude and reverence will not be lacking for Simon Bolivar.—American, Philadelphia.

One of the strangest funeral on record was that of Dr. J. S. Ford, of Hagerstown, Ind., which occurred at West Sonora, Ohio, recently. He made a cast-iron will, giving his widow $20,000. He also left sums of $200 and $500 each to all women who are now maids widows whom he courted in his unmarried days. This required $5000. Notes outstanding on people who would be pushed to pay them, he destroyed to the amount of $5000. The hired girl and all his wife's relatives were remembered in small sums. Two weeks before his death he employed and paid the Rev. Mr. Shackleford, of the Methodist Church, $25, and the Rev. Mr. Washington, of the Christian Church, $15, to officiate at his funeral. Immediately after this he sent for the railroad agent at Hagerstown and chartered a train of one baggage and three passenger cars to take his remains and one hundred and ten friends to his funeral at West Sonora, Ohio. He paid for this in advance, and also sent cash to the best hotel in West Sonora for dinner for the entire funeral party. Not a detail in the funeral was forgotten, even to the floral tributes. His wishes were fully carried out, and when his body was placed in the ground no one in the world had a claim of a cent against his estate and no one owed a cent.

Tornadoes.

Scientifically Accounted for, and Some Remote Causes that produce Painful Results Explained.

The following synopsis of a lecture delivered by Dr. Horace R. Hamilton before the New York society for the promotion of science, contains so much that is timely and important that it can be read with both interest and profit.

There is a probably no subject of modern times that has caused and is causing greater attention than the origin of tornadoes. Scientists have studied it for the benefit of humanity; men have investigated it for the welfare of their families. It has been a vexed subject long considered, and through all this investigation the cyclone has swept across the land carrying destruction to scientists as well as to the innocent dwellers in its track. One thing, however, is certain; the cause of the cyclone must be sought far away from the whirling body of wind itself. Its results are powerful; its cause must also be powerful. Let us therefore consider a few facts. First, the appearance of a cyclone is invariably preceded by dark spots upon the face of the sun. These spots, indicating a disturbed condition of the solar regions, necessarily affect the atmosphere of our earth. An unusual generation of heat in one part of the atmosphere is certain to cause a partial vacuum in another portion. Air must rush in to fill this vacuum. Hence the disturbances—hence the cyclone. This theory finds additional confirmation in the fact that tornadoes come during the day and not at night. The dark spots upon the surface of the sun, whatever they may be, seem to cause great commotion in the atmosphere of the world, and it is almost certain that the extremely wet weather of the present season can be accounted for on precisely this basis. Is it reasonable to suppose that the marvelous effect of the sun upon vegetation and life in general shall be less than upon the atmosphere itself through which its rays come? The cause is remote, but the effect is here.

After describing some of the terrible effects of the cyclone, the speaker went on to say:—

This rule finds its application in nearly every department of life. An operator in San Francisco—the click of the instrument manipulated by his fingers, in New York. The president makes a slight stroke of the pen in his study at the White House, and the whole nation is aroused by the act. An uneasiness and disgust with everything in life, commonly called home-sickness, is felt by many people, when the cause is to be found in the distant home thousands of miles away. An uncertain pain may be felt in the head. It is repeated in other parts of the body. The appetite departs and all energy is gone. Is the cause necessarily to be found in the head? The next day the feeling increases. There are added symptoms. They continue and become more agravated. The slight pains in the head increase to agonies. The malady becomes chronic. The heart grows irregular, and the breathing uncertain. All these effects have a definite cause, and, after years of deep experience upon this subject, I do not hesitate to say that this cause is to be found in some derangement of the kidneys or liver far away from that portion of the body in which these effects appear. But one may say, I have no pain whatever in my kidneys or liver. Very true. Neither have we any evidence that there is a tornado on the surface of the sun; but it is none the less certain that the tornado is here, and it is none the less certain that these great organs of the body are the cause of the trouble although there may be no pain in their vicinity.

I know whereof I speak for I have passed through this very experience myself. Nearly ten years ago I was the picture of health, weighing more than 200 pounds, and as strong and healthy as any man I ever knew. When I felt the symptoms I have above described, they caused me annoyance, not only by reason of their agravating nature, but because I had never felt any pain before. Other doctors told me I was troubled with malaria, and I treated myself accordingly. I did not believe, however, that malaria could show such aggravated symptoms. It never occurred to me that analysis would help solve the trouble, as I did not presume my difficulty was located in that portion of the body. But I continued to grow worse. I had a faint sensation at the pit of my stomach nearly every day. I felt a great desire to eat, and yet I loathed food. I was constantly tired and still I could not sleep. My brain was unusually active, but I could not think connectedly. My existence was a living misery. I continued in this position for nearly a year, never free from pain, never for a moment happy. Such an existence is far worse than death, for which I confess I earnestly longed.

It was while suffering thus that a friend advised me to make a final attempt to recover my health. I sneered inwardly at his suggestion, but I was too weak to make any resistence. He furnished me with a remedy, simple yet palatable and within two days I observed a slight change for the better. This awakened my courage. I felt that I would not die at that time. I continued the use of the remedy, taking it in accordance with directions, until I became not only restored to my former health and strength, but of greater vigor than I have before known. This condition has continued up to the present time, and I believe I should have died as miserably as thousands of other men have died and are dying every day had it not been for the simple yet wonderful power of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy I employed.

The lecturer then described his means of restoracion more in detail, and concluded as follows:

My complete recovery has caused me to investigate the subject more carefully, and I believe I have discovered the key to most ill health of our modern civilization. I am fully confident that four-fifths of the diseases which afflict humanity might be avoided were the kidneys and liver kept in perfect condition. Were it possible to control the action of the sun cyclones could undoubtedly be averted. That, however, is one of the things that cannot be. But I rejoice to say that it is possible to control the kidneys and liver, to render their action wholly normal, and their effect upon the system that of purifiers rather than poisoners. That this end has been accomplished largely by means of the remedy I have named I do not have a doubt, and I feel it my duty to make this open declaration for the enlightenment of the profession and for the benefit of suffering humanity in all parts of the world.

A young man once picked up a sovereign lying on the road. Ever afterwards, as he walked along, he kept his eyes fixed steadily upon the ground, in hopes to find another. And in the course of long life he did pick up, at different times, a goodly number of coins, gold and silver. But all these years, while he was looking for them, he saw not that the heavens were bright above him, and nature beautiful around. He never once allowed his eyes to look up from the mud and filth in which he sought his treasure; and when he died—a rich old man—he only knew this fair earth as a dirty road to pick up money as you walk along.

The Dayton Journal says:—"The first proclamation for a National Thanksgiving was issued by President Washington, Oct. 3d, 1789, to be observed Thursday, Nov. 26th, of that year. The second was issued by President Lincoln, Oct. 3d, 1863, to be observed November 26th, 1863. In this span of seventy-four years, there was no National Thanksgiving."

Young Folk's Corner.

Consider The Lilies.

They have no care:
They bend their heads before the storm,
And rise to meet the sunshine warm,
And dance responsive to the breeze,
And nestle underneath the trees,
And take whatever life shall bring
As gay as the birds that sing.

They do not toil:
Content with their alloted task
They do but grow, they do not ask
A richer lot, a higher sphere,
But in their loveliness appear
And grow and smile, and do their best,
And unto God they leave the rest.

They have no sin:
Their pure sweet faces they upraise,
And shrink not from the sun's bright gaze,
And if the earth should soil, the rain
Comes down to make them clean again,
And, scented, beautiful, and white,
They live their lives in God's dear sight.

They weep no tears:
No shadow dims their happiness,
They do not live the world to bless;
Enough have they of cloth and gold,
They lift the cups the dew to hold,
About them are the light and song,
And they are glad the whole day long.

God cares for them:
His love is over every one,
He wills their good, His will be done!
He does neglect no single flower,
He makes them rich with sun and shower,
Their song of trust is sweet and clear—
And he that hath an ear may hear.

A Touching Incident.

A little boy had died. His body had been laid out in a darkened room, waiting to be laid in the cold, lone grave. His afflicted mother and bereaved little sister went in to look at the face of the precious sleeper; for his face was beautiful even in death. As they stood gazing on the face of one so beloved and cherished, the little girl asked to shake his hand. The mother at first did not think it best, but the child repeated the request, and seemed very anxious about it; she took the cold, bloodless hand of her dead boy, and placed it in the hand of his weeping sister.

The dear child looked at it a moment, caressed it fondly, and then looked up to her mother, through tears and love, and said—"Mother, this hand never struck me."

What could have been more touching and lovely?

Two Brave Little Girls.

A long time ago, in the Indian country, two little girls slipped away from the fort and went down into a hollow, to pick berries. It was Emmy, a girl of seven years, with Bessie, her sister, not yet six.

All at once the sun flashed on something bright, and Emmy knew that the pretty painted things she had seen crawling along the bush must be hostile Indians, with gleaming weapons in their hands. She did not cry out, nor in any way let them know that she had seen them. But she looked all about, saw that some of the creeping Indians already were between her and the fort, and went on picking berries, as before.

Soon she called aloud to Bessie, with a steady voice, "Don't you think it's going to rain?" So they both turned and walked toward the fort. They reached the tall grass, and, suddenly, Emmy dropped to the ground, pulling down Bessie, too.

"What are you looking for?" asked the little sister, in surprise.

Then Emmy whispered to Bessie, and both of them stole silently and quickly on hands and knees through the long grass, until they came to the road, when they started up, ran swiftly to the fort, dashed through the entrance, and had the gate safely closed behind them!

Those girls are quite old now, but they remember very well the day they saved themselves, the fort which their father commanded, and the soldiers and other people in it besides.—St. Nicholas.

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will thoroughly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it, and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not injurious.

Gents:—Upon the recommendation of a friend I tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required;" and when informed that the elder sister was taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."

ADORAM PHELPS.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS effectually cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Weakness, and renders the greatest relief and benefit to persons suffering from such wasting diseases as Consumption, Kidney Complaints, etc.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

[illegible], Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, D. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1883.

A teacher is wanted in [illegible], La., capable of taking charge of a private [illegible] giving instruction in music, and willing to assist in the Sunday-school of the M. E. Church. References will be required. Address Rev. Frank Walker, [illegible], La., for particulars.

Whatever other churches may be doing, it is evident that the M. E. Church, South, is having a year of marked religious prosperity in Texas. The Texas Christian Advocate, August [illegible], reported 644 conversions and [illegible] accessions. We rejoice in the prosperity of our brethren.

The Quarterly Review comes to us full of the most valuable facts, giving information concerning the publishing and benevolent interests of the church. Rev. Dr. Curry has a valuable paper upon Methodist [illegible]. Dr. Reid, one of the [illegible] Secretaries, gives an interesting account of our work and his late visit to India. The Education, Church Extension and Sunday-school Union Societies give cheering statements showing both progress and promise in these departments of church work. It is a wonder to us that this manual is not more generally circulated. It is an important document. Price fifty cents a year.

We are in receipt of a memorial of the Rev. Daniel de Vinne, a report of the funeral services at the Methodist Episcopal Church, Morrisania, Feb. 14, 1883. "It includes the address made on the occasion by [illegible], D. D., Rev. S. H. [illegible] and [illegible] Hollis, and [illegible] New York East Conference, Middletown, Conn., on the occasion of the completion of [illegible] in the ministry. Baptism.

Our Baptist brethren never appear in a more unenviable position than when they try to make it appear that the primary meaning of the words "bapto" and "baptizo" is to dip or immerse, and that such men as John Wesley, Adam Clark, and Moses Stuart, D.D., ever even intimated that sprinkling was out of the question. Adam Clark was noted for the liberality of his views on most all questions in theology. With reference to John's baptism he asks "Were both men and women dipped? for certainly both came to his baptism. This could never have comported either with safety or decency." Again he says, "Those who are dipped or immersed in the name of the Holy Trinity, I believe to be evangelically baptised; those who are washed or sprinkled with water in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost I believe to be equally so; and the repetition of such a baptism I believe to be profane." To refer to Adam Clark, John Wesley, Moses Stuart, Thomas Chalmers or Philip Doddridge as ever teaching that immersion was the only mode of Christian baptism must be either the result of extreme ignorance or depravity. As to the meaning of the word "baptizo" it is allowed on all hands that it is applied to acts involving the process of immersion, but the best lexicographers agree that this is not its exclusive meaning. It is the word that is used to express the various ablutions among the Jews, such as sprinkling, pouring, washing before meals, and the washing of household furniture. The word is used "not to express the manner of doing a thing whether by immersion or effusion, but only the thing done, that is, washing or the application of water in some form or other." If in the descending influence of the Holy Spirit there is an expressive emblem of the mode of baptism, then indeed immersion is not intended; but few will assert that we are plunged into the Holy Spirit. The Baptism of the Holy Spirit was not by immersion, but effusion. "At the Pentecost where the Spirit baptism was made visible the tongues of fire descended and sat upon them." When our Lord was baptized the Holy Spirit descended and lighted upon Him. On Cornelius and his company the Spirit was poured out. St. Paul tells us "that according to His mercy He saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which He shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour." Here the element was applied to the person, not the person into the element. The baptism by the Holy Spirit is always by effusion. If the baptism by the Holy Spirit is in any sense whatever an emblem of water baptism then water baptism must be by effusion and not by immersion. The baptism by the Holy Spirit is the original, water baptism is the symbol. The symbol ought always to agree [illegible] to the original, but the baptism by the Holy Spirit, which must be by effusion, cannot be symbolized by immersion. In [illegible], immersion fundamentally fails to be a picture of the original. It is a symbol without a reality, a shadow without a substance."

Poking up the Sluggards.

We know of no people who profess [illegible] love for the Negro than our brethren of the M. E. Church, South, nor of none who more frequently make mention of what they have done for [illegible] education. Dr. Haygood, [illegible] "Our Brother in the Wilderness," makes a careful and clear statement of the work this Church has done for the [illegible] of the Negro. In 1870 through its General Conference it [illegible] colored members into [illegible] called "The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America." Thirteen years have [illegible] Dr. Haygood thus out[illegible] they have done, [illegible] something for this new church. We gave them the houses they had used while with us. They were grateful, and we had no occasion to speak of our gifts. We did not want them, we could not use them, and, with few exceptions, they not worth selling. They have built a number of cheap churches since they were set up. Our people helped them, but not more, so far as I have heard, than they have helped other colored churches. We have given "The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America" a great deal of advice, more or less good. Moreover, we have given them "countenance," whatever that is. Perhaps the other churches were backed, not only by their friends' "countenance," but by money help also. We have not only given them advice and countenance, but promises. We solemnly promised them, May, 1882, strong help in their educational work."

Here we have the work of thirteen years all minutely stated. "We have given them the houses they had while with us. We did not want them, we could not use them, and with few exceptions they were not worth selling." But the benevolence of this great church did not end here. "We have given The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America a great deal of advice."

This certainly is commendable, but it seems to us that it is a cheap and easy way to show our interest in any particular cause or people. This ward is not suffering just now for the want of good advice, nor for the want of men who are willing to give advice. Enough of these can be found standing around on the corners of most any city, competent in their own estimation to manage four or five worlds like this. There is however a loud call for work, and workers.

"We have not only given them good advice, but we solemnly promised them May, 1882 strong help in their educational work." Acting in harmony with their solemn promise the Paine Institute was "in words" organized. "Trustees appointed," an "honored man was made commissioner of education for this school." Another "out of pure devotion agreed to be president of this proposed college." For seven months the commissioner and president, after having been endorsed by conferences and editors, have been "hard at work begging for money as well as words," only anxious "to go forward with the business." The words "results small, very," indicate the success of the commissioner and president in raising the proposed sum of $5,000 which they have not been able thus far to secure.

"Looking Forward" Dr. Haygood says:

"The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America" can not build its training school, or schools. It is very poor, the poorest of all the colored Methodisms. If it is to be a church, and to do the work of a church, these schools it must have. [illegible] of the whole church tell everybody that the colored preachers are incompetent as a class. They can as [illegible] improve their teachers and preachers without schools than white people can. And they can not build them schools. The world looks to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to build them, and it has solemnly promised to do it. But it looks very much as if we did not intend to do it—except in words. As the case now stands, we, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are in the way. We keep off other help; we block the way of the colored church with our words. This I happen to know. This church that we set up is the only colored Methodist Church in America that is not in position to get help from the North. They are not in position to get such help, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with its words, stands in the way. One of two things is clear: We should help in money, or get out of the way. Then "The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America" can make "friends" and "terms" in other directions. There are those who will help us to help them, or they will help them without us—if we will get out of the way. We claim to exercise a sort of "protectorate" over this church we set up; others who can help, and have the [illegible] help, stand back to see what we will do. It is time to do something, or to tell our colored friends that we will not, so that there may be measures taken. A protectorate that does not protect calls for the "intervention of the powers."

On this subject our "probation" before the Christian world will soon terminate. And it ought to terminate unless we speedily do something worthy of our words without deeds, we shall presently see, in "The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America," a case of "arrested development."

If we send "Hagar" into the wilderness we must not complain if God sends an angel to take her up. But it will be a shame forever to Abraham and all his house."

Truer words were never written by mortal man. "As the case now stands the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are in the way." She not only does nothing herself but she "keeps off other help," she "blocks the way" not only of the colored church" but of the colored people with her words.

We agree with Dr. Haygood that she "should help in money or get out of the way." Thus the supreme duty of every church in the United States as far as possible is to multiply Christian pastors and teachers here in these Southern States. And upon no church in America does there rest a larger share of responsibility in this work than on the Methodist Episcopal Church. Of all the great Protestant churches in this country she alone has a national organization; she is in every State in the Union as truly in Maine as Texas, in Oregon as Florida.

Rev. W. F. Glenn, in a recent letter to the Wesleyan Christian Advocate speaking of the nature of temperance legislation in Georgia, referring to Polk county says: "Her jail, hitherto crowded all the time, has not averaged one occupant per day this year; the lock on the calaboose is getting so rusty from disuse that they can hardly get the key into it; the true-bills found during one term of court last year were one hundred and eighty-three, this year twenty-eight; the legislature now in session has been, or will be, requested to do away with all but one grand jury for each term of court; no use for more; and the taxes have already been reduced from six dollars to five dollars on the thousand. Then the still better results of sunshine in many homes and hearts that have had the pall of death and ruin lifted from them; the lives that have been saved and given to families and to God, the general cheerfulness, happiness and usefulness of the people, attest the efficacy of the move. Were every man in the State to tell me that prohibition would retard prosperity or in any way injure a county or State, I could not believe it. Two and two make four; no amount of testimony could make me believe otherwise. The laws of economy, mental, moral, material, social and political are all no less fixed and inflexible. The whisky traffic violates all of these and conserves none. How could I ever be brought to believe that it was an advantage? Polk county has demonstrated that it was a curse of the deepest dye; and is now demonstrating that prohibition is a bright blessing.

Judge Jeremiah S. Black died at his home in York Pa. August 19th. For some days previous his health had been failing him, and while his death was sudden it was not wholly unexpected. From the beginning of his illness, Judge Black believed he would never recover, and was perfectly resigned. Shortly before he died he said to his wife: "How can I fear to cross the dark river when my Father waits me on the other shore?" and added: "Would I were as comfortable about all I leave behind unfinished in this world," and then breathed the following earnest prayer: "O thou beloved and most merciful Heavenly Father, from whom I had my being and in whom I have ever trusted; if it be thy will grant that my suffering end and that I speedily be called home to Thee, and oh, my God, bless and comfort thee, my Mary." Hon. Jeremiah S. Black, the distinguished constitutional lawyer, was born in Glades, Somerest county, Pa., January 10th, 1810. He was admitted to the bar in 1830, appointed president judge of the judicial district in which he resided in April, 1842, elected judge of the Supreme Court of the State in 1851, and chosen chief justice. He was reelected in 1854. On March 5, 1857, he was appointed by President Buchanan Attorney General of the United States, which office he held until December, 1860, when he became Secretary of State, and continued in that position during the remainder of President Buchanan's term. Since retiring from office he had been engaged in the practice of his profession. The State and Attorney Generals department were placed in mourning in honor of the deceased.

The Folly of Caste

Dr. Talmage discourses thus on the folly of caste:

"I was one summer passing along a piece of low ground, and I saw two tortoises—two turtles—a dark shelled and a light shelled turtle. They did not know I was there, and consequently were not interrupted in the conversation. Get out of the way, said the light shell. Why? asked the dark shell. Oh, said the light shell, I am none of your common turtles, don't you see the color of my shell? I was not born like you on this low ground, but up there in that higher ditch. My father had the letters G. W., on his back cut with the jack-knife of Geo. Washington. Then the dark tortoise lost his patience and said: Light tortoise, you had better shut up your shell. The ditch that you were born in was a little higher up than mine, but we are both the children of the mud. I threw a stone to break up this war of caste, and instantly light-shell and dark-shell sunk into the same puddle. Oh! you cannot tell by a man's look, nor by a man's ancestry, nor by a man's clothes, nor by a man's color what he is.

From whatever pedigree, condition, nationality a man comes my parlor door shall fly open as quickly as a rat-trap flies shut, if I know that he loves God and hates sham. There shall not be in our parlor a bolt of caste. We shall not care about the style of our guest's shoes if we know that his feet have not trod in polluted places. We shall not care whether his coat is mixed, striped or black; but indignant only if we find out that his heart is as black as his coat.

Can any one tell us of "what color is the regenerated soul," or to what race will the resurrection body belong?

We trust the time is near when the white, the black, the brown and the red shall hand in hand and heart to heart recognize the fact that in Christ we are all one.

The New York Sun, a strong Democratic paper, some few weeks ago raised the cry "Turn the rascals out." Since then two Governors have made their reports. Gov. Sherman, of Iowa, a State over which the Republicans have had control since 1856, states that not only is the State out of debt, but that over $24,000,000 have been collected and disbursed during that time without the loss of a single dollar. This is certainly a wonderful statement, but no one has been found to contradict it since the Governor made it. Gov. Hamilton, of Maryland, brings this fearful accusation against his own party in that State; he not only charges but shows that delinquent officials owe the State the round sum of $772,000, and that during his short term of office not less than five hundred thousand dollars of the State's money has been thrown away. While Tennessee, Arkansas and Alabama have each defaulting State Treasurers, and Governor Blackburn has pardoned and turned loose more criminals than any other Governor of Kentucky.

August 17th Dr. A. G. Haygood delivered a lecture at the Chautauqua Assembly on "How the Negro Makes His Way." Dr. Haygood speaks and writes as a man of deep and decided convictions. Of Southern men he occupies a position in the extreme advance in regard to the condition and prospects of the colored people. He utterly denies the statements of the Rev. Mr. Tucker, made at the Richmond Congress last autumn, as to the low morals of the average colored preacher. He regards Mr. Tucker and his associates as incompetent witnesses, as since the war, and before the war, they had less to do with the religious life of the colored people than any other class of people in the country except the poor whites. With rare exceptions, the Doctor says, they are on the side of law and order, and that is about all that can be said of any class of clergymen.

Rev. W. O. Lynch in a communication to the Kansas Methodist Aug. 16th., makes the following statement as to the condition of a colony of colored people who settled in Chautauqua County Kansas in 1880: "This settlement is under the leadership of Mr. Fairfax and Mr. W. A. Price, the latter is a lawyer of considerable information. They are doing well considering the circumstances. Twenty-four families own about nine-hundred and sixty acres of land; about one hundred and fifty acres in cotton, and more in corn, potatoes, beans, peas, and other articles of food. Eight families cultivate their land without the aid of horse power. These people have had trials in their new homes but they would not live in town. They live in log houses that have been built of native timber." That is not all, they can have a free ballot, and an honest count, and the public schools are open, for their children. They are facing the East.

Bunyan speaks of one "Mr. Talkative, the son of one Saywell; he dwelt in Pratting-row," and was the man "for any company and for any talk. I have been in his family, and have observed him both at home and abroad, and I know what I say of him is the truth. His house is as empty of religion as the white of an egg is of savor." One of the great needs of the Church now is home religion; the morning and evening prayer, so that the children can see that their parents do in reality honor God at home. To the lack of home religion may be traced the downfall of many boys of rich promise. It was the churlish, railing spirit at home that drove them from the Sunday-school into the seat of the scornful.

It is generally well understood that while Mr. Spurgeon is a Baptist he is not a close communionist. Certain papers had published that he had said he "would rather be a cannibal that a close communion Baptist." This so disturbed the editor of the Central Baptist that he wrote to Mr. Spurgeon to know if it was true. Whereupon the great London preacher replied that he never thought of saying any such thing. But said "I have not the slightest wish to be the one or the other." We regard cannibalism and close communionism as a sort of hendiadys, one about as far from Christ as the other.

The criticisms of Gov. S. D. McEnery, by the opponents of his reelection and others, has caused an examination of the records of the Democratic administrations of Nicholls and McEnery, covering a period of five years. The two Governors in that time pardoned and commuted the sentences of 179 criminals. Of these 27 convicted of murder and manslaughter were pardoned, and 10 received commutations. This record is not pleasing to contemplate, and will not inspire confidence in the judiciary or executive departments of the State government.

Last 4th of July the President of Uruguay sent a band of music to the American Legation at Montevideo to assist in the celebration of the day; and the President of the House of Deputies for that body presented a friendly letter hailing the great event with satisfaction.

A telegram from Luling, Texas, dated Aug. 15th., states that Rev. R. G. Sewell, local agent of the American Bible society, was shot and killed by Lawrence Denman.

Rust University.

The next term of Rust University will open on Thursday, Sept. 20th. Preparations are being made for a large increase of students at the opening of the new school year. A new feature of university work will be the model school, which is to be organized from the pupils in the lower classes and placed in charge of a thorough, competent teacher, secured especially for the work. Pupils to enter this department must be able to read in the Fourth Reader and cipher through addition, subtraction, multiplication and division. A cultivated and experienced teacher has been secured to take charge of the music department, and no pains will be spared to make this one of the most useful and interesting divisions of college work.

All young ladies from abroad will be required to board in Rust Hall, unless a special request be made by their parents to allow them to board in town, in which case the teachers will not hold themselves responsible for their conduct out of school hours. Board, room and fuel will be provided for ten dollars a month, which amount, together with a tuition fee of one dollar a month, must be paid at least one month in advance. A deduction of one dollar per month will be made to all who do their own washing.

The lower rooms of McDonald Hall will be furnished for young men and provisions will be made for the accommodation of all who choose to board at the college. Young men who wish to board themselves should bring their bedding with them. A few students have always been able to secure places to work morning and evening for their board; but no one should start from home without having at least a few dollars more than what is necessary to pay his traveling expenses.

We appeal to to members of the Mississippi Conference and to all who desire the social, political and financial advancement of their people, to dilligently search out young men and women of promise, and urge them to qualify themselves for the work of life by obtaining knowledge and culture in Rust University.

To all who have promised financial aid to the university, we would say, by all means send us something by the first of October, and on the first of each month thereafter till you have met your full pledge. It will require at least two thousand dollars to procure furniture and make the necessary preparations for the work of the school year, and the credit of the university and of the conference depends upon your action. Very respectfully,

W. W. HOOPER.

Martinsburg, O., Aug. 16, 1883.

From Lafourche.

DEAR EDITOR—I took occasion on the 9th ult., to visit my acquaintances on Bayou Lafourche. The journey was tiresome and the road dusty, nevertheless, my promise was ahead and I had to continue. Along the way nearly all the crops were pleasant and showed that industry and perseverance were the means of their good looks. On arriving at my stopping point I was gladly received by all. Found Bro. Payne, our pastor at Woodlawn, hard at work both holding and building the fort; thus making it substantial against the agitated winds. Nearly four years ago I left Lafourche to take charge of a private school in Carrollton. Business did not allow me to visit Lafourche until last week. On visiting some of the places I used to work on I found that much improvement had been made. Bro. Payne is a live man among his people and well beloved by all. The trustees have spent $300 for lumber, brick, shingles, nails and rods to repair their church, which is greatly needed. Sunday, the 12th, was union day among the Methodists. We sang, prayed, preached and begged until $80 or more was raised to help the work to move on. This house of worship will be very attractive when the carpenters and painters get through with their work. The Woodlawn people are keeping the wheels well greesed so they may continue to turn. Disappointment gave me an opportunity to witness the wedding of Miss Anpie Pugh and Mr. Cooper, both of Lafourche. Miss Pugh is a lively member of our church.

On the 15th I started for Dulac. While awaiting the train I had the pleasure of seeing a few tortoises. One of them is said to have weighed five hundred pounds. These were the largest tortoises I ever saw. From Houma to Dulac I started. Along the road I was troubled with flies, bees, bugs, the small blood-sucking insects and mud. Yet, I had become a traveler and acquainted with these things, and so now and then gave them a blow and on my journey pursued, until I found Mrs. Claiborne at home glad to see me.

NEW BOOKS.

THE CHILDHOOD OF RELIGIONS. By Edward Clodd, F. R. A. S. New York: J. Fitzgerald & Co., 20 Lafayette Place. Price, 15c.

This is No. 47 of the Humboldt Library and may be had direct from the publisher or from leading newsdealers. It contains 51 neatly printed double column pages, which are very readable and suggestive.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Lieutenant Schwatka will contribute to the September Century a graphic account of "A Musk-Ox Hunt," which was a stirring incident of his Artic expedition of 1879. The paper will be fully illustrated.

Our Little Ones and the Nursery (Boston: Russell Pub. Co.,) for September, has a Peep at the Menagerie, Ponto and the Moon, Polly Pickle, etc. Price 15c.

The North American Review for September is an admirably constituted number, whether we regard the importance of the subjects presented, or the competence of the authors chosen for their discussion. First comes "State Regulation of Corporate Profits", by Chief-Justice T. M. Cooley, of Michigan, showing how far, by wise legislation and applying the spirits of enlightened jurisprudence the principles of the common law, the harrowing exactions of corporate companies and monopolies in general may be restrained and the interests of the people effectually conserved. John A. Kasson, M. C., writes on "Municipal Reform," and offer suggestions for the abatement of the evils of misgovernment in our great municipalities that will command the earnest interest of all good citizens without respect to party. Richard Grant White treats of "Class Distinctions in the United States," a subject that is destined to occupy more and more the attention of the American people as great fortunes increase. "Shooting at Sight" is the subject of some pertinent reflections by James Jackson, Chief-Justice of the State of Georgia. In "Facts about the Caucus and the Primary", George Walton Green unveils the tricks practiced by political managers in large cities. The English essayist, W. H. Mallock, contributes "Conversations with a Solitary", in which he sets forth with much ingenuity the arguments adverse to popular government. The Rev. Dr. D. S. Phelan contributes an article sparkling with epigrams, on the "Limitations of Freethinking". Finally, Grant Allen, the most charming of all living writers on natural history, discourses on "An American Wild Flower." Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York, and for sale by booksellers generally.

Cetewayo, who is rapidly recovering from his wounds, requests that the British sovereign makes an inquiry into the treatment he has received since she reinstated him as King of Zululand.

At Canon City, Col., after years of prospecting, oil was struck on the 15th, which has since yielded at the rate of forty barrels per day, and of good quality, demonstrating to a certainty that coal-oil exists in paying quantities in that vicinity.

Expressman Liable.

MR. A. S. MERRILL, the popular expressman of Brunswick, Me., writes us on May 15, 1883, as follows: "Having been severely afflicted for two years with inflammation of the kidney and bladder, so called by my physicians, I suffered with distressing pains in my by back and retention of urine, caused by a stoppage of the neck of the bladder, and complication of other diseases, I was hardly able to attend to my business, and at times would be completely prostrated. I was affected with incontinence of urine to an alarming degree indeed it demanded my attention fifteen or twenty times per night, and at times it would seem impossible for me to ride down to the depot on my wagon, for every jar from the wagon would almost seem to take my life. Having failed to obtain relief from my doctor, I finally consulted our druggist, Dr. Merryman, of Brunswick, and requested him to furnish me with the most reliable and speedy cure for sickness, for I was suffering too much for human nature to endure long. The doctor recommended me to use Hunt's Remedy, as it had been used with remarkable success in a great many cases in Brunswick and vicinity. I purchased a bottle, and received such great relief that I continued, and had not used two bottles before I began to improve beyond my expectation. The pains in my kidneys and loins disappeared, I gained strength, and my water began to pass naturally, and I was able to sleep soundly, and obtain the greatly needed rest which for a long time I could not. I am fully restored to health, and can attend to my business. Thanks to Hunt's Remedy for my restoration, and I highly recommend it to all who are troubled with kidney complaints."

Could Not Lift A Pound.

The above are the words of Mrs. Harriet Bailey, of Putnam, Conn. She writes May 24, 1883: "I have been troubled with kidney and liver disease for two years. I suffered severely in the back and loins. Before taking your wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy, I could not lift a pound. After giving it a fair trial, I began to improve, and can now truly say it was a "Godsend to me," as I am now able to do my household work and enjoy the best of health. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to two of my neighbors, who have been greatly benefited by it. This letter I send voluntarily, with the hope that it will be the means of inducing some sufferer to use Hunt's Remedy, and be cured as I have been."

Sweet Potato Pudding.—A sweet potato pudding, made after the following rule, is recommended by the lover of variety by the Rural Hall:—"Two cups of mashed sweet potato (the potato must be first boiled), add a cup of sugar, a small cup of butter, three eggs, a fourth of a tablespoonful of soda dissolved in a little hot water, a teaspoonful of grated lemon extract and half a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Beat the eggs until they are very light, rub the butter and sugar to a cream and mix with the potato; cover a deep plate or shallow pudding dish with a rich and thick crust; then put in the mixture and bake slowly for three quarters of an hour."

The Sunday-school assembly just closed at Monona lake, near Madison, Wis., has been the most successful ever held west of Chautauqua. The beauty of the locality has become proverbial. Over 1,500 people camped upon the ground in a city of 350 tents, and the daily attendance from the city and surrounding country was frequently large. The director, Rev. A. H. Gillett, announced that the average daily attendance at the lectures was over 2,000. An enormous tabernacle had been erected at an expense of $1,700, and was sometimes crowded to excess. The result financially was all that could be desired, paying all the expenses of the assembly and the erection of the building besides. This is but the third year of its existence, and its future is assured. The literary exercises were of a high order. Among those who contributed to its interest were Bishop Warren, Drs. Tiffany, Alabaster, Vincent, President Haywood, Rev. A. A. Wright and others of our own church. The Wilberforce Concert Company was an inspiration from first to last, and their finest concert at the close called forth no adverse criticism from the crowded auditorium. The magnificent chorus of 200 voices, under the baton of Prof. Sherwin, gave two grand concerts during the week with great eclat.—[illegible] recently, told us of a [illegible] who desired to be religious, but he [illegible] to support [illegible] He had no use for religion, he said, did not meet any [illegible] in his house, nor would he support it in his community. The Lottery Business—How the Prizes May Be and Generally Are Controlled by Its Managers.

I will content myself with calling the lottery business a swindle or gambling, but will endeavor to undeceive the young and inexperienced to see how many ways there are of conducting such drawings, and yet be completely under control.

To realize how unlikely it is that such men will use any apparatus but such as will enable them to control every prize.

To realize how very slim their chances are, even if the drawings were conducted as represented. Would you invest in a lottery if you knew that certain tickets or numbers are always retained not for sale (scattered numbers, of course), and the balance sent out for sale? Would you invest in a lottery if you knew that, while all the numbers may be contained within the same wheel, the sold numbers were in one partition, and the unsold in another receptacle, or in some way fastened within convenient reach or distinguished from the others? You would not then think you came so near a prize, because your ticket was "within one" of the prize number. All approximation prizes also might thus be taken care of, the capital prize number be known by the managers. What is to prevent it?

"Who can prove it?" they may say. "What is more likely than that it should be thus arranged?" we may reply. Or, one number may be drawn and another called out, from memory or from a convenient "reminder." If you were allowed to put your arm within the wheel, and should their find numbers fastened to its inside, would you re-invest in any lottery?

If you knew the men who conduct such enterprises, denounced as they and their business are, by the clergy, the press, the solid business men, and even with the laws against them, would you expect such a class of men to adopt any kind of apparatus, and mode of using the same, except such as will enable them to take in the prizes, large and small?

Did you never suspect that in the drawing, one number may be drawn and another called out, from memory or by aid of some other convenient "reminder?"

Did you never think how likely and certain it is that managers of lotteries adopt such a mode of drawing as will enable them to take care of all the prizes?

Did you never suspect that, if you could look behind the scenes, you would see how the lottery company can afford to give $10,000 at a time to "charity?"

Would you join 1,000 persons to put in $1 each if the winner was to draw, not $1,000, but $500 only, especially if you saw indications that the $500 was likely to go to one of the partners in the enterprise?

Did you never think it strange that the large portion of the prizes are small and little more than your money back? Do you think this is for a purpose? Have you tried to undeceive yourself and realize how slim your chance in 100,000 is, even if honestly conducted?

Did it never occur to you that, with one of the managers controlling the wheels and its openings, even a disinterested person might be allowed to draw, but would be drawing from a wheel, or partition within the same, the numbers that the manager desires to be drawn, there being one space for "sold" numbers, and another for "unsold?"

Why invest your hard earnings in lotteries when there are so many ways [illegible] the drawing, and such as shall enable its managers to keep all the prizes? Such men are not likely to adopt a mode of drawing that will not give them control of all.

Do you consider how unlikely it is that such men as usually engage in the lottery business will let a prize of $75,000 in cash go out of their hands?

Can you not understand how many ways there are of constructing a wheel and of managing the numbers so that the managers may effectually control the prizes?

Did you never suspect that the ones who draw the large prizes in lotteries are in league with the lottery concerns? One Who Knows.—Agents Herald, Philadelphia.

British Methodism then is not in the position in which some American churches seem to be. It has a full supply of candidates, and is in such a position as to be able to make selection from a much larger number of men than it can at present accept and employ. This means a great deal. The way into the Wesleyan ministry is carefully guarded. Evidence is demanded in every case of conversion to God, of the possession of the necessary gifts of utterance, knowledge, and health, and also of acceptableness to the people, and of successful endeavours to call sinners to repentance. Men who can bear the initial tests are coming forward in large numbers devote themselves wholly to the work of the ministry. We direct attention to this as a healthy and hopeful sign of the present times.—London Methodist.

Some years since, a North Carolina lawyer undertook to convince a Methodist preacher of some celebrity, that his manner in preaching, in threatening his auditors with damnation was injudicious, and that arguments and exhortations of a milder character would be more successful. After listening patiently, the preacher replied: "My friend, you are mistaken; sin is like a terrapin—you may exhort, admonish, even kick him, he will not move, but draw his head within the shell, and your labor is lost; but place a coal of fire on his back, and he travels. Hell-fire is the article!"

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years."

Women do not suffer as much as they used to in old times from contraction of the chest. Just look at the size of the Saratoga trunks.

"What would you do if you were I, and I were you?" tenderly inquired a young swell of his lady friend, as he escorted her home from church. "Well," said she "if I were you, I would throw away that vile cigarette, cut up my cane for firewood, wear my watch chain under my coat, and stay at home nights and pray for brains."

Advice to Mothers.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button. It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.
By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.
WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. G. HONE, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.
A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their [illegible] weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the words and music. The music has been carefully written and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.
"These songs ought to be sung, and they ought to be sung."—Bishop L. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. The Three Looks.

I. THE BACKWARD LOOK. "Look unto Me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth" (Is. xlv. 22.) The eye is first carried back to the cross, and Christ's finished work thereon accomplished. Then, our Redeemer having satisfied the law concerning sin, bids us accept, by our consenting faith, the satisfaction he has made. "Having made peace by the blood of the cross," we gaze with consenting faith upon his work, and therefore, "being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

II. THE UPWARD LOOK. "Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Heb. xii. 2.) There he is in the place of advocacy, who was before in the place of atonement. Better for the present that he should be there rather than here. The lawyer must be in court if he would conduct the suit of his client; and therefore Christ has gone "to appear in the presence of God for us."

III. THE ONWARD LOOK. "Looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ" (Titus ii. 13.) This is the true expectation of the believer who waits for full salvation. Our Lord compares himself to a nobleman going in to a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. It is for us to wait that return, that we may share that kingdom with him. "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also, we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus."—The Watchword.

Dr. John Hall, speaking recently, thus eulogized Protestantism. He was dealing with the assertion that "Protestantism is a failure." "How," asks the doctor, "can that be a failure which in A. D. 1500 did not exist, and in A. D. 1883 controls populations to the extent of 108,000,000, while its rivals, the Roman and Greek Churches, combined, control 280,000,000?"

Private and exclusive information concerning a new negro bugaboo has just come into the possession of the Charleston News and Courier. It is to the effect that there is a secret, "black and midnight" conspiracy to consolidate in some one doomed section of the Republic a great propotion of the blacks of the United States. Of the various localities under discussion, that which is bounded by the sea, the Edisto and Savannah Rivers, and Aiken County, S. C., is preferred by the colored race. Exactly what wicked purpose is to be served by this wholesale colonization does not yet appear. It is suggested, however, that so vast a preponderance of colored men in one section would crowd out the white people, who would leave the field to the occupation of the unwelcome colonists. They who credit the negroes of the South with entertaining this delusion would seem to deny them ordinary intelligence. Nobody knows better than the colored man that numbers count for nothing in the conflict of races. The white man has the most voting power in regions where there are the most black men. Fifty white politicians of the genuine Edgefield brand can out-vote, out-count, and out-shoot all the colored men that could be crammed into South Carolina with the best compressor ever built.

A WONDERFUL SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

Miss Fannie Gregory was born in Williamson county, Tenn., Dec. 25, 1852, and died in Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 16, 1883, being 31 years of age. From Williamson county her family came to Nashville, where she professed a hope in Christ and joined Clark Chapel M. E. Church under the administration of Rev. [illegible] Crichlow, May 1[illegible], 1867, [illegible] and received into full membership May 3, 1868, by her pastor, Rev. John Braden. I found her a Sabbath-school teacher in the church. As such she was faithful, punctual and loved by all her pupils. She was a great but patient sufferer for several months before her death. She leaves a mother and brother to follow on. Her funeral was preached in Clark Chapel Sunday morning at 11 a. m., to an immense congregation, by the pastor, Rev. L. M. Hagood, from the text "I go the way of all earth," 1 Kings 2-2. The following action was taken by the Sabbath school:

Whereas, God in His wise providence has seen fit to remove Sister Gregory from [illegible]

Whereas, She was so faithful and [illegible] as a teacher, and it will be no [illegible] to fill her place in the Sabbath-school, therefore,

Resolved, That we, the officers and members of Clark Chapel Sabbath-school, will cherish her memory, emulate her as a teacher, and hope to meet her "beyond the river."

Resolved, That a copy of our action be spread upon the Sabbath-school journal, and also a copy forwarded to our Conference paper, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

[illegible] the Northern Pacific [illegible] August 22, and through [illegible] from St. Paul to Portland. This [illegible] awakens enthusiasm in the far North and West, where it promises speedy settlement and a new prosperity. [illegible]

[illegible]

There will be no fall session of public schools in New Orleans. The politicians have absorbed all the school funds. The City Item says it cannot recall a single act of Gov. McEnery favorab'e to public education, and he did direct the Attorney General to discontinue suits brought at the instance of the State Superintendent to protect the public school fund from an unconstitutional robbery of $30, 00 per annum for universities.

In a letter to Zion's Herald Justice H. Nelson says that on July 1 a society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized at Para in the Amazon valley of Brazil. It is composed of eleven probationers, royal, self-denying converts from Romanism, with the exception of one, who was a German Lutheran. It is represented as the only Protestant organization, and its members the only teetotalers in a valley as large as all of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains.

We have received from Rev. J. W. Harings, [illegible] of Meridian, a pamphlet copy of the vigorous report on temperance submitted by a committee to the Meridian District Conference, Church South, at Shubuta, July 27th., and ordered to be published. The following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, That the preachers of the [illegible] be requested to so [illegible]

All over this country liquor sellers are constantly saying that prohibition in all the States where it exists is a failure, and that they sell more liquor now in those States than they did before they adopted prohibition. Now, if prohibition increases their business why such stupendous efforts for organization throughout the country to resist it? Why such threats to political parties and politicians of the most [illegible] proscription of all who will not pledge themselves to oppose prohibition? Why this constant boasting of the large number of votes they can control, and the money they have expended and will use to secure the repeal of prohibitory laws? The truth is their action belies their statements. If prohibition did really increase their sales every man of them would be in favor of prohibitory laws.

When Benjamin Franklin was [illegible] of this country to Paris he was invited to attend a [illegible] largely attended by the [illegible] philosophers of France. [illegible] flowed freely and much was said to the disparagement of the [illegible]. Franklin was called upon, [illegible] and during his speech [illegible] certain notable passages [illegible] old book. The impression [illegible]. As he sat down all were anxious to know the name of the book from which he had made his quotations, as they had never heard anything so sublime. He told them that he had only quoted a few of the sayings of the book, that it was full of wonderful passages, and that it was nothing more than the good-for-nothing [illegible] they had been talking about. [illegible] people know as little about the Bible as [illegible] infidel critics who [illegible] to throw dust into the eyes of the common people.

From Our Board of Education.

CHILDREN'S DAY IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Rev. John W. Butler, writing from the City of Mexico, says: "Children's Day was pretty generally observed throughout our Mission. The meetings were all excellent, and the financial result in twelve appointments was $55 10. This is an increase on last year's report, with one or two places yet to hear from."

It may be remarked that the Children's Red Letter was translated into Spanish, and sent out through the schools, as in this country.

The Rev. L. Nippert, D. D., writing from Frankfort on the Main, says that on all the circuits and stations in the Germany and Switzerland Conference, except 12, Children's Day collections were taken amounting to 371 marks. He adds: "Our people and ministers are becoming interested in the cause, and there is no doubt that the Children's Day will by and by become a success in Germany."

COLLECTIONS PAID IN.

Our numerous friends will be glad to learn that there have already been paid in at this office since June 10 about $20,000, from less than 3,000 charges.

As collections were taken in a vastly greater number of charges than have yet reported, the inference is plain that many have in various ways been delayed in [illegible] in their collection. We therefore respectfully request that [illegible] who have Children's Day [illegible] in hand or subscription, will complete their arrangements, and forward the amount soon, whether great or small, to the order of the Corresponding Secretary, at 805 Broadway, New York. Official receipts will in all cases be promptly returned, to serve as vouchers at the several Annual Conferences.

All interests are best promoted by payment at this office; for example, 1. The money is soonest incorporated with the fund, and thus made to swbserve the object for which it was given. 2. Payments thus made are sure to be credited in due form in our published report.

Our correspondence leads us to attach increased importance to this. Sunday-schools and Churches that have co-orperated in the Children's Day movement not only desire, but are entitled to have, a public recognition of what they have done. But that cannot be secured unless the money they have given actually come to our treasury accompanied by an accurate report in the form sent out in blank to all pastors. Payments made at Conferences are, from various causes, liable not to be thus reported. In that case we have no means of knowing whether the collections of given Churches come to us are not. By degrees this matter is coming to be better understood by all our pastors, as well as the fact that in their statistical report to Conference the amount of their Children's Day collection should be incorporated with that of their general educational collection. As in the General Minutes but one column is allotted to show what is raised for education, the showing is incomplete when both collections fail to be aggregated.

In this connection it is important to observe that when collections are held over for payment at Conferences meeting next spring, or even later than October, they cannot be embraced in our report that will go to press in January, 1884. That report will be the one to be submitted to the General Conference, and our desire is to make it complete in every particular. In this view we feel at liberty to urge all our friends, whether in educational institutions or in the several pastorates, as well as the officers of Conference auxiliaries, to this Board, to furnish as promptly with full material.

Javanese Horrors.

(By Cable to The Inter Ocean.)

London, Aug. 29th. 10:30 p. m.—Further particulars of the great volcanic eruption in Java, which have just reached London from Batavia, show the disaster to have been [illegible] widespread and more [illegible] than reported yesterday. At noon Sunday the eruptions and shocks were supposed to have reached their greatest height. But late in the afternoon and evening the violence of the disturbance suddenly increased, and the island seemed to be about to be completely buried in a mass of fire and sulphurous ashes. At the same time enormous waves began to dash with greater force upon the coast, rushing in some places far up into the interior, and [illegible] into the earth, [illegible] to engulf a large [illegible] the islands, people [illegible]. About midnight [illegible] frightful scene of the [illegible] cloud, similar [illegible] over the Gunung Guntur, but [illegible] in extent, formed over the Kandang range of mountains, which skirt the southeast coast of the island. This cloud gradually increased in size until it formed a canopy of lurid red and whitish gray over a wide extent of territory. During this time the eruptions increased, and streams of lava poured incessantly down the sides of mountains into the valleys, sweeping everything before them. Here and there a stream of lava would enter an arm of the sea, or come in contact with the waters of a river, then the nearest incandescent lava, as it protruded from the great stream, would suddenly produce boiling heat and sickening vapors, but the superficial consolidation that almost instantly ensued would prevent any further contact. The fissures that opened in the thin crust as it solidified would emit torrents of vapors, extending high into the air, and making a tremendous hissing and seething sound as if a thousand locomotives were simultaneously letting off steam. Here and there in the lava streams were innumerable thin plate-like crystals of feldspar, arranged in trains, one behind the other in the direction of the flow of the current, and felsphatic spherulites were rapidly formed in the viterous matter, resembling those which form in the slag of a glass furnace. One of the most singular freaks of the eruption was the carrying in the midst of the molten lava of a bed of solid ice, of enormous size, which had been emitted from one of the craters, carried along by the current, and landed on the extremity on Point St. Nicholas on the northeast corner of the island. The bed of ice was surrounded by a thick envelope of sand and scoria, which are such nonconductors of heat that a red hot stream of lava running over it will not melt snow. It is supposed this ice had formed the crust of some vast subterranean lake. About 2 o'clock Monday morning the great cloud suddenly broke into small sections, and quickly vanished. At the same time the great frightful rumblings were heard and the columns of fire and smoke on the southeast corner of the island ceased to ascend while the craters in the other parts of Java seemed to open their fiery throats still wider to let out the greatest quantities of lava rocks, pumice, and ashes yet vomited out. The hissing of these became so loud as to be almost deafening, and the waves rushed up on the shores to an unprecedented height. When daylight came, it was seen that an enormous tract of land had disappeared extending from Point Capucin, on the south, to Negery Passerang, on the north, and west to Low Point, covering an extent of territory about fifty miles square. In this were situated the villages of Negery and Negery Cabawang. Of the people inhabiting these places and the natives scattered sparsely through the forests and on the plains, none escaped a frightful death. This section of the island was not as densely populated as the other portions, and the loss of life was comparatively small, though it must have aggregated fully fifteen thousand souls. The entire range of Gandang Mountains, extending along the coast in a semicircle for about [illegible] miles, had [illegible] sight. The [illegible] Bay, the Sunda Straits, and Pepper Bay on the east, and of the Indian Ocean on the south, had rushed in and formed a great sea of turbulent waters. Here and there the peak of a high crater was exposed for a moment by the receding of a great wave, and occasionally a puff of brownish gray smoke or a slight shower of rocks showed that the volcanoes still continued in active subaqueous eruption. The debris of the submerged and destroyed buildings was tossed hither and thither over the tumultuous waters—the only sign left that there had once been inhabited land where all was now a waste of water. The town of Tanerna, within twenty-five miles of the city of Batavia, was swept away by the lava streams, and fully half of the population, mostly Javanese, numbering about 1,800, perished. At Speelwyk, near Point Salcia, the red hot rocks set fire to the houses and swept away all the thickly-settled portion of the town. About ten bazaars belonging to Europeans were destroyed. The loss of property is very large, but no lives are known to have been lost. The river Jacatra, on the banks of which Batavia is situated, was so completely dammed by the lava and debris that its course was changed, and, from Franien Bastion, it flowed down through Tygers street and joined the waters of the river Emerades, swelling that stream to such an extent to rise high on the Casters Fijelenkuig, which was almost totally destroyed, and a large number of lives were lost. The island of Oneina, five miles off the mouth of the Tangeran River and twenty miles east of Batavia, was completely inundated, and the floating dock there was totally destroyed. Castaic, Olapa, and Tronwerse Island, of the portion of Java which disappeared, are out of sight, and not vestige of them is left. Baby and Cheribo Islands, off the north coast, but small in extent, lost the few houses and inhabitants upon them. In Batavia this loss has been largely increased since the last reports. The roof of the Governor's house was crushed in by a mass of heavy mud and three of the retainers were killed. The town bridge was destroyed, the diamond, and pearl bastions badly damaged, and the Bussau redoubt was destroyed. On Cayamans, Malabar, and Lions streets the principal avenues of the city the damage is very great. Fort Antyck is entirely destroyed. The town of Faggal was severely shaken, and a few buildings were left standing. The aggregate loss of life from various elements of the terrible disturbances must be fully 75,000, but the number of those who perished can never, of course, be approximated. A violent shock occured in the island of Sumatra Monday forenoon, and it was feared that other violent disturbances might occur. Middle Island, ten miles off the Javanese coast, and half way between the extreme points of Java and Sumatra was almost wholly engulfed in the seas. The small island of Slakie, probably originally only a cone blown up by an eruptive paroxysm, has entirely disappeared. It was uninhabited.

The Enterprise of a New Orleans Newspaper.

The Times-Democrat claims that [illegible] years past it has had a larger circulation in Latin-America than any other American newspaper. This achievement is not only creditable to the newspaper but to the city in which it is published, which for many reasons should make the effort, and may reasonably expect to reap great commercial advantages from extended knowledge and intercourse with the islands and republics near it. We clip from an editorial of the Times-Democrat of August 30 a description of the plan adopted by it which has led to its appreciation by our Latin neighbors:

A Latin-American department of the Times-Democrat was created and placed in charge of a gentleman who has traveled extensively throughout the Antilles, Mexico and Central and South America. During the past two years this editor has visited the following countries for the purpose of collecting traffic statistics and other information connected with their commerce: Jamaica once, Mexico twice, British Honduras twice, Isthmus of Panama twice, Costa Rica once, Nicaragua once, San Salvador once, Spanish Honduras and Guatemala twice each, and Cuba once.

During his travels our envoy visited each city and a sport in those countries whose commerce could be acquired by New Orleans, while the pages of the Times-Democrat have constantly teemed with statistical information and descriptions of the different Spanish-American countries lying north of the equator. Thus it may safely be affirmed that since the Latin-American department of the Times-Democrat has been established this journal has published more statistical and other information of the Antilles, Mexico, Central America, Columbia and Venezuela than all the other periodicals of this country combined. Every month a supplement containing from 12 to 14 columns, devoted exclusively to Mexico, is published, as also monthly supplements, each containing at least seven columns, which treat extensively of Spanish Honduras and Guatemala.

Prayer.

BY REV. L. W. ELKINS.

Once when Jesus was praying in a certain place, probably at Bethany, when he had ceased, one of his disciples requested him to teach them how to pray. This was a very natural [illegible] reasonable request. Moses had [illegible] form of prayer, Num. 6:22-26, and John the Baptist had probably taught his disciples a form of prayer suitable to their condition, and Christ's disciples feeling they needed some special instruction on this important matter, made the request. They were probably stirred to this by the example of Christ's prayer, both as to matter and manner, as contrasted with the vain prayers of the Pharisees and hypocrites. He told them not to use "vain repetitions as the heathens do." I suppose the prayers of the heathens in the days of Christ were something like the prayers of modern heathens—mere foolish prattle, like the modern Hindu and Mohammedan devotees and the paternosters of the Papists where the number of times they are repeated counts for so much more merit. We have examples in 1 Kings, 18:26, and Acts 19:34, of what the ancient heathen's prayers were. After telling his disciples to not be like these heathens in their prayers, he then dictated a model specimen of brief, simple, comprehensive prayer, designed to show how much real prayer can be expressed in the fewest words, and thus [illegible] a perpetual [illegible] to vain repetitious [illegible] practiced by the superstitious and hypocrites of every age.

It would be well for every Christian to make [illegible] study of the [illegible] prayer [illegible]

[illegible] the name of the Lord. They [illegible] to be nothing less [illegible] Every sentence [illegible] closed with the name of the Lord, with appellations of the Deity thrown in parenthetically all through the prayer. In one prayer which proved to be only about half [illegible] length, I counted, and he [illegible] the name of the Lord seventy-eight times, when the poor publican's prayer [illegible] be merciful to me, a sinner, [illegible] would have been [illegible] appropriate. In the land of [illegible] of Thibet [illegible]

Prof. J. S. Bean.

The following extract from a letter to Dr. Hartzell, from Prof. J. S. Bean, formerly President of New Orleans University, will be read with interest by many. The letter is dated North Boscawen, New Hampshire, Aug. [illegible], 1883. Prof. Bean, when a boy, received an injury in a knee from which, after being bedridden a number of years, he walked on crutches for seven years. During his residence and work in Louisiana the old trouble developed into inflammatory rheumatism and extended to the joints of all his limbs. He is now almost entirely helpless as to bodily strength, but the refining furnace of affliction is evidently preparing his soul for that painless and perfect body which shall be his on high. We quote:

Only recently have I been able to write at all, and now my hands look old and feeble. I am better in some respects, but I cannot use my feet at all. I sleep enough to gain considerable rest each night, and sometimes think I am making progress toward health, but the dear Lord only knows. He knows what he will do for me, and I am contented to wait His good will and time. I am not any more [illegible], but am looking for the sure promises of God. I am bound, I am held back, I am restrained. I take it all as coming from the hand of God, as a sure indication of his tender care and loving paternal discipline. He draws me to himself thus wonderfully, and compels me to look upon the emptiness of worldly affairs, and stimulates my conception of heaven and heavenly things. There is a glory of the earth, of this world which is enough to occupy all the mind and talent of man; but happy the man who can break through and enjoy himself with the glory of heaven. St. Paul mentions these heavenly places. Sober men, by solemn, serious reasoning, [illegible] of God's work [illegible] young men and feeble-minded, wonderful to tell, attain to the same heights. Great is the mystery of God's dealings with men.

Letter from Houma.

MR. EDITOR:—Please give space for a few words concerning a temperance and educational meeting which took place August 19th, and which was a gala day to all present. The interest of temperance and education has not been lost sight of by our people of Houma. Sunday, August 19th, 3 o'clock found the audience room of Wesley Chapel filled to its utmost capacity by an attentive and appreciative audience. As the time designated for the commencing of exercises of the evening had not fully arrived, the voices of the happy children, intermingled by those of the older persons, made the time pass enjoyably. One could wish it would last for hours. Presently the children, who were speakers, were called to address the meeting with such pieces as had been selected for them. Each one, though small in stature, but, perhaps larger in intelligence, performed his part in a manner that sent enthusiasm to the hearts of all present. As the evening was not yet all consumed and the audience not impatient to retire, the meeting was addressed by Mr. Harry Lewis and Bros. Russel Parks, Benjamin Robertson and W. S. Hawthorne.

A collection of $2 for benevolent purposes having been taken up, Rev. A. J. Ford made the closing address, which was pertinent and persuasive in every particular.

Yours, in Christ,
WM. S. HAWTHORNE.

God Our Shield.

We need an almighty shield. We are beset with dangers on every hand. Our path from the cradle to the grave leads through innumerable known and unknown perils. We are exposed to the pestilence that walketh in darkness, and the destruction that wasteth at noonday. At times the forces of nature seem to be arrayed against us with malign intent. Tornadoes, cyclones, floods, combine with plague, drought, blight, mildew, to intensify the struggle for existence, or cut it short in despair and death. God is our shield against the forces of nature, [illegible] power, but because he links our destiny with his own, and thus assures us that we are safe in his care; "I made you," he says, "and because I made you you cannot perish. Because I am the ever-living God, you shall live also." We cannot contend with the natural forces which drive us to wreck on stormy seas, or consume us with disease, but with the consciousness that we belong to God, we know that no physical evil can destroy or permanently injure us, and that we shall certainly survive the worst that can befall us. We can say to evil: "You may slay my body, and you will at last, but you cannot slay me; nor can you greatly hurt me, for God is the strength of my heart and my portion forever. I belong to God; my life is in him, and no physical evil can touch the heart of that life which is hid with Christ in God."

God is our shield against the calamities of life—our only shield. Without him, the consciousness of his presence and care, we would be crushed to despair by the inevitable evils of existence. We are all born to troubles which must certainly break the strongest will that is not centered in God and resting on him for support. The soul that is not stayed on God may succeed in shutting out the fact of death, its certain separation of friends, its sure victory over himself, for a brief interval of time, but in his unpreoccupied hours, the thought of death comes with terrors against which he has no shield. Not less terrible is the vision of the miseries of life. Take the ordinary, average life, and it is hard to see how men can stand up under it without the sense of God's help. The lot of the multitude of toilers for daily bread, where only one pair of hands is all there is between the family and want, with the chances of sickness and no work, is not one that can be borne without God's help. Or take the everyday catastrophes—loss of property, of little children, or wife, or husband; consider the life-long sorrows caused by the drunkenness and crime of sons, by daughters gone to shame,—it is not easy to walk steady through the years under such burdens. For vast multitudes life is unutterably sad and bitter, the tomb of dead hopes, and one long, dull ache of disappointment and sorrow. The truth is that no man can well face life without a divine shield. He may fight ever so bravely, but the odds are too great for him to contend against in his own strength. How shall he endure the heavy trials that beset him and the heavier ones that await him? Only through the daily consciousness that God is his shield, his refuge and strength, his very present help in trouble; only by resting in the promises: "I am thy God and I will help thee. When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee, and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee."

We need God as a shield against ourselves. There is a sense in which we are our own worst enemies. The forces of evil without us are as nothing compared with the forces of evil within us. The one can only destroy the body, the other destroys the soul forever. The soul without God is a moral ruin, under the dominion of warring passions, of debasing appetites, of a law of sin which brings him into captivity. Only God can deliver the soul from the bondage to evil courses, and save him from eternal ruin; so that every rational view of our condition drives us to God for help, for protection, and for salvation. Therefore the supreme need of my soul is God. Our earthly environment with the hardships and trials for which we are [illegible], and our spiritual corruption and impotency point us to God as our only hope, and show conclusively that in him alone can we find safety and completeness of being. The soul created in the image of God must live, and move, and have its being in him. It needs the knowledge of God, the internal manifestation of God, the consciousness of his presence, to receive his fulness, to rest in his love, and be strong in his might. The psalmist felt this need when he said: "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God." He realized the supply of this need when he said: "The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; in him will I trust; he is my shield and the horn of my salvation; my high tower and my refuge; my savior; thou savest me from violence." "The Lord God is a sure and safe shield; he will give grace and glory, and no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Thanks be to God for these old and yet ever new assurances of his protecting care. God is our effectual shield, standing between us and the dread forces of nature, between us and the calamity, between us and self with its tremendous powers of evil; between us and everything that would harm or separate us from the blessedness and perfection of the being we have in him.—Northwestern.

Please Let Us Sing!

MR. EDITOR:—Can you not persuade some of our preachers to give their people a little chance to sing? There seems to be a growing tendency to let "the choir" do the singing for the congregation. Our ministers in the large city churches allow this to too great an extent, I think. The Psalmist says, somewhere, "Let all the people praise Thee." What a comment on that text is the rendering of scientific music by a choir of a dozen, while six or eight hundred people just listen with closed lips. Music is good and choirs have their use, but good things are often abused.

Under the circumstances we are referring to, our people are being shut off from all participation in public worship. The minister does the preaching and praying, the choir the singing, and the people—well they may stand, or sit, or kneel in silence, being only hearers. The choir, it seems, does not want them to join, lest they should mar the artistic performance, and the preacher does not want to offend the choir, lest by that course he might diminish the size of his congregation.

The preacher who cannot attract and retain people except through fine music needs to examine himself.

But may we not have choirs without their monopolizing the singing? I have noticed lately that, in announcing those hymns of the service which, by courtesy, the people are supposed to be expected to sing, under the leading of the choir, some ministers will cut down even a four-stanza hymn to three or two, as though they were afraid the people would sing.

Ought these things so to be? We want some little opportunity to unite and assist in God's service. If we are shut out here, what chance have we? Literally none, except the inward mental or spiritual exercise, and that is repressed, because we cannot give expression to the worshiping sentiment.

Is it this felt want that is impelling some of our Methodist churches to adopt responsive rituals? They want to take part in the service in some way. But is that a desirable way? Does it not lead directly to the formalism which we, as a simple-hearted, spiritual people, profess so much to dread. Dear brethren, think on these things, and give us a fair showing—let us help to sing the praises of God in the great congregation, even though we make a false note now and then.

How the National Educational Assembly Closed.

The Ocean Grove Record, in concluding a six column report of the great Educational Assembly, which met at Ocean Grove Aug. 9-12, and of which Dr. J. C. Hartzell was the conductor, thus speaks of the closing part of the last session: "Rev. Dr. Kynett, of Philadelphia, summarized the proceedings of the convention. Its cosmopolitan character was a striking characteristic. Sixteen States were represented on the platform and the programme. Ministers, bishops, pastors, laymen and teachers were here from six or seven denominations, and from different nationalities, all blending harmoniously together in a righteous cause, under one banner. We feel strengthened by contact.

Dr. Kynett in a forcible manner referred to the place where this great meeting had been held, the Scriptural texts around the platform, and the grand motto of Ocean Grove, as in happy union with all evangelical and elevating agencies. Closing he paid a tribute to the speakers and Dr. Hartzell, which the Chairman, Gen. John Eaton, also reiterated, insisting on the latter speaking the closing words of the convention.

Dr. Hartzell, with emotion, disclaimed the credit brethren had assigned to him, and wanted all the praise and glory to be given to God whose spirit dictated this whole movement.

Dr. Stokes then proceeded to close the deeply impressive exercises, and a mere intimation from him was sufficient to bring the vast audience to their feet, joining him in recognition of the eloquence, zeal and faithfulness of those who had instructed us for four consecutive days. Thousands of white handkerchiefs were waving in a moment. Some were turned [illegible] the tears started, the doxology was sung, and Bishop Harris gave the apostolic benediction."

Temperance in Maine.

Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr., at a temperance mass-meeting, at Lake Maranacook, July 28th, said: "Circulars have recently been sent by a Maine newspaper to one or more reliable citizen in every town in Maine, asking for information as to the extent of open and secret dram selling, the number of arrests for drunkenness during the past years, and other facts bearing on the question of the practical working of prohibition in this State. Answers have been received from every city, all the large towns, and a large portion of the rural towns in every county of the State, which we have been permitted to examine. Assuming that the towns yet to come in will show the same average as those already returned, and there are [illegible] open dram shops in Maine outside of Bangor, and these in only [illegible] towns, and 448 secret or suspected places in which liquor may be obtained as a beverage with more or less difficulty—making [illegible] in all, or one to over 1,000 inhabitants.

The results of this inquiry shows that notwithstanding [illegible] persons paid taxes as dealers in the fourteen cities of Maine, yet the whole number of known or suspected dram shops reported in these cities is only 432—156 of these being reported as practically open in three cities (134 of them in one city), and 276 as "secret or suspected places." In the remaining 486 towns only 199 dealers are reported and these, with 20 exceptions in twelve towns, are all put down as only "secret or suspected."

There are 333 towns and plantations (assuming those yet to come in show the same proportion as those already returned) in which the correspondents say in substance that there is no place in town

[illegible] day who can buy a glass of liquor.

Taking Maine as a whole, and the number of arrests for drunkenness last year was only 2,652, or only four arrests to every thousand of the population—judging by partial statistics received. There is no wholly license State of the North that shows less than twice this number of arrests for drunkenness, and the average is considerably more.

In a letter written nearly a year ago, Hon. J. G. Blaine, that distinguished statesman and careful observer, thus summed up the good results of prohibition in Maine:

"Intemperance has steadily decreased in this State, since the first enactment of the prohibitory law, until now it can be said with truth that there is no equal number of people in the Anglo-Saxon world, among whom so small an amount of intoxicating liquor is consumed as among the six hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants of Maine."

Stanley's Work in Africa.

There have been many rumors as to what Stanley was doing and would be able to do in Africa, but all have been of an unsatisfactory or sensational character. When he went to Africa as the representative of the African International [illegible], Stanley himself gave to his work the air of mystery. [illegible] that he was engaged in building a turnpike from [illegible] the cataracts on the Congo to the upper navigable waters was [illegible] given, and it was not [illegible] in 1880 that anything [illegible] to official reports was submitted in regard to his operations.

By December, 1880, Stanley had [illegible] and [illegible] miles [illegible] the mouth of the Congo. The third [illegible] Stanley [illegible] he found that the site selected for his [illegible] had been occupied by De Brazza [illegible] France. His [illegible] and for a time [illegible] station was established on the opposite shore at [illegible] miles from [illegible] he launched a steam [illegible] the fifth [illegible] of the Congo, 100 miles above [illegible] He carried his ex[illegible] miles further, and [illegible] opened the way to the interior [illegible] it would be under[illegible] [illegible] of Central Africa [illegible] 1880 he discovered [illegible]

[illegible] the mouth of the river, and with the Dutch established at Boma, eighty miles from the coast. He has, so the English correspondents report, reconciled the natives, and won them over from De Brazza, so that he is now practically in control of the Congo route for 250 miles above De Brazza's post, and from that point to the coast.—Inter-Ocean.

The Threefold Growth.

BY A. J. GORDON, D.D.

As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord so walk ye in him, rooted and built up in him, etc.—Col. ii. 6, 7.

God never demands growth of us except on the ground of an already existing faith. It is those who have been planted together with Christ who are required "to grow up in all things into him." It is those who have received the Lord Jesus who are required to walk in him—that is, to continue and complete the life already begun in him.

This continuance is considered under three heads: rooting, up building and abounding.

I. The Christian's downward growth—"Rooted in him." All of strength and fruitfulness in us depends on the depth with which we strike down into the life and love of God. When the Apostle summons us to the vast endeavor of measuring and grasping the love of God, he begins with the downward growth. We can only reach loftily upward and broadly onward as we strike deeply downward. Much depends on being rooted in Christ.

1. Our fruitfulness. A fruitfulness that continues in spite of surrounding drought and barrenness and death. Trials and hardships, etc., compel us to go down, to burrow in the darkness of solitary communion, to take hold on the secret resources of the Almighty. "He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers, etc."

2. Our strength. See the oak [illegible] by the whirlwind. Its branches shattered, and yet itself [illegible] unmoved in its rooted strength. A godless man cannot be steadfast in affliction. He has no hidden hold on God by faith and prayer. Props cannot take the place of roots.

3. Our purity. "Consider the lilies how they grow"—in the midst of decaying rubbish and black mud, yet themselves as white as an angel's wing. So ought a Christian to be in this world—pure amid surrounding impurity, but how can he be? He must reach down into God and feed on him. God can sanctify wholly.

II. The Christian's upward growth—"Built up in him." The tree builds itself from the heart, and so must the Christian, from within—from the root and principle of the divine life he gets when he is rooted in Christ—every part is developed out of the central source of life. Abiding in Christ this growth goes on day and night. By [illegible] our creeping affections on [illegible] who is in heaven he will [illegible] up. [illegible] question is [illegible] [illegible] the throne and say, [illegible] to come unto the measure of the stature of the perfect man.

III. The Christian's outward growth—"Abounding therein with thanksgiving." This is the branching out into all service and fruitfulness and praise. God's gifts are bestowed in exceeding abundance [illegible] abundance may flow out in [illegible] to others. [illegible] our own souls [illegible] others. We [illegible] for personal salvation and abundant [illegible] [illegible] The whole [illegible] is contained in the words [illegible] "Abide in me," and this can be effected by the diligent [illegible] [illegible] God [illegible] [illegible] ness.—The Pulpit and Treasury.

Is Jesus on Your Cross?

You may be bearing a heavy cross—a cross that bears you to the very earth with its weight and crucifixion, and yet receive no power of life from it, because Jesus is not on it.

There is an old legend that "when the Empress Helena went to the Holy Land in search of the true cross, excavations and great researches were made, and at last three crosses were discovered; but how were they to decide which was the true cross? They approached a dead body and laid one cross after another upon it, and when the cross of Jesus touched the cold, lifeless form, it at once sprang up in new life and vigor."

We use this fable to illustrate a great spiritual truth. When the cross of Christ touches dead souls they spring into new life. The presence of this new spiritual life is the test of the genuineness of our Christianity and our fidelity to the cross.

Jesus said: "If any man will be my disciple let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me." Surely the Master did not mean the rich cross that glitters on high altars, and towers above lofty domes, or the beautiful crosses that crowd richly furnished dwellings, or the crosses worn as ornaments, alike by the rich and poor. These bring no life from the dead. Too often they are meaningless symbols that mock heaven and mislead men.

But there is a true cross with a Christ upon it, that brings life, joy and gladness to dead souls. It is the cross of doing duty when it is hard to do it; of standing by the right even unto death, if needs be; of following Jesus even though he leads through desert places and fiery furnaces. It is the cross of yielding heart, life and will to him, and walking humbly and obediently in his commandments; toiling on patiently in the sphere of duty he assigns; meekly and patiently doing his will, and joyfully accepting trials, because of love for him.

Reader, is Jesus on your cross? Does it bring spiritual life to your soul, and are its fruits to be seen in your daily life?—The Christian Woman.

The Sack of Earth.

A rich man had cheated a poor widow out of a field which had belonged to her husband, and which was the only property she had, in order to make his garden larger. A day or two after, the poor woman met him in that very field with an empty sack in her hand. With tears in her eyes she said to him, "Sir, I wish you would give me just as much earth out of this field as would fill this sack." The man laughed and said, "I can't refuse such a foolish wish as that." The widow filled the sack with earth, and then said, And now, sir, I am going to ask you to help me to lift this on my [illegible].

The man had no wish to do this, but the widow begged him so hard that he was obliged to give way. But when he tried to lift the sack, he found it was too heavy for him to move. He told the widow so, and she said, "Oh, sir, if you find one sack of earth too heavy, how will you be able to bear the weight of this field, which holds a thousand times as much earth, upon your conscience at the day of judgment?" The man trembled at these words, and gave her land back [illegible] the Gospel [illegible]

Young Folk's Corner.

Good Night.

A fair little girl sat under a tree,
Sewing as long as her eyes could see;
Then smoothed her work and folded it right,
And said: "Dear work, good-night, good-night."

Such a number of rooks came over her head,
Crying "Caw, caw," on their way to bed;
She said as she watched their curious flight:
"Little black things, good-night, good-night."

The horses neighed, and the oxen lowed,
The sheep's "bleat, bleat" came over the road,
All seeming to say, with a quiet delight:
"Good little girl, good-night, good-night."

She did not say to the sun "good-night,"
Though she saw him there, like a ball of light;
For she knew he had God's time to keep
All over the world, and could never sleep.

The tall pink fox-glove bowed his head,
The violet courtesied and went to bed;
And good little Lucy tied up her hair
And said on her knees her favorite prayer.

And while on her pillow she softly lay
She knew nothing more till again it was day;
And all things said to the beautiful sun:
"Good-morning, good-morning our work is begun."

Rules for Home Education.

1. From your children's earliest infancy inculcate the necessity of instant obedience.

2. Unite firmness with gentleness. Let your children always understand that you mean exactly what you say.

3. Never promise them any thing unless you are sure you can give them what you promise.

4. If you tell a child to do any thing, show him how to do it, and see that it is done.

5. Always punish your children for wilfully disobeying you, but never punish in anger.

6. Never let them perceive that they can vex you or make you lose your self-command.

7. If they give way to petulence and temper, wait till they are calm, and then gently reason with them on the impropriety of their conduct.

8. Remember that a little present punishment, when the occasion arises, is much more effectual than the threatening of a greater punishment should the fault be renewed.

9. Never give your children any thing because they cry for it.

10. On no account allow them to do at one time what you have forbidden, under the like circumstances, at another.

11. Teach them that the only sure and easy way to appear good is to be good.

12. Accustom them to make their little recitals the perfect truth.

13. Never allow tale-bearing.

14. Teach them that self-denial, not self-indulgence, is the appointed and sure method of securing happiness.

A Pertinent Question.

A poor child, straying into a Sunday-school [illegible], asked simply "Is this the way to heaven?" The superintendent was for a moment startled. Was the school, indeed, the way to heaven? Was he trying to make it so? Were his teachers intent on the same object? The artless question struck home. From desk to class the question went round with a thrill. What were they all doing? Whither were they all tending? The question was like an angel suddenly come into their midst to make a record of all that transpired in that school. Oh, superintendents, teachers, make sure of this one thing, with all your efforts to impart knowledge, make the salvation of the soul of paramount interest. Whether your school be a model or struggling up to perfection, be sure that every scholar shall feel that it is the road to heaven.—New York Observer.

[illegible] who keeps a meat market [illegible] a thousand miles from Boston, took an ingenious way to get rid of [illegible] large wharf rats which gave him no end of trouble. He had a new refrigerator placed in his shop and the first night an immense rat gnawed through the thick planking to the inside and was enjoying a good square meal when discovered. His ratship was captured, and armed with a pair of pincers the proprietor proceeded to pull out the intruder's teeth, and then let him go. Since then not a rat has been seen about the premises. The prospect of living on spoon victuals evidently disgusted the old rodent who must have warned his companions.

A jeweler in Turin has made a tiny boat of a single pearl. The hull is finely shaped, and might serve as a model for a great sloop. The sail is of beaten gold, studded with diamonds, and the binnacle light is a perfect ruby. An emerald serves as its rudder, and its stand is a slab of ivory. Its weight is less than an ounce, and it is said to have cost $5,000.

Twelve Hours After

MR. HENRY BARNES, the Tea and Coffee Merchant, 50 Houston Street, New Haven, Conn., writes on May 16th, 1883: "It is with feeling of gratitude, and a desire to benefit my fellow-man that I write you these few lines as testimony to the value of the greatest of all medicines. Eight years have I been a sufferer from kidney disorder and inflammation of the bladder. Sometimes when passing water the pains were something terrible, a scalding, burning sensation, with retention of urine, with sharp pains in my side, loins, and back, extending clear to the back of my head, tended to make me miserable. I have been treated by a number of our best physicians, and have used any number of proprietary medicines, all to no avail, obtaining no relief. How long I would have continued in this way I do not know; in fact I despaired of getting relief, until a neighbor, who had been very much benefited by the use of Hunt's Remedy, advised me to try it; and although I had no faith that it would reach my case, yet as he spoke so highly of its great merits I decided to give it a trial, and its use has been attended with the very best possible results. Twelve hours after taking the first dose I experienced relief. I continued its use until I had used five bottles, when all the pains had vanished, my otherwise good health returned, and I am free from all pains, and am a well man. I am confident my cure has resulted from the use of Hunt's Remedy, and that alone.

"What it has done for me I am positive it will do for others. You are at liberty to use my name or this letter in any manner you see fit."

Hurt By A Fall.

When only a boy some thirteen years old I was hurt quite badly by a fall, and severely injured my back and kidneys, and was doctored by our best physicians, and tried many remedies, and they all failed until Hunt's Remedy was recommended to us by friends that had used it here in Manchester with the greatest success. We purchased a bottle from Z. Foster Campbell's drug store, and found that I improved very rapidly; was relieved of the pains in back, and after using several bottles found that I was completely cured, and I cannot over-estimate the good Hunt's Remedy has done me, and can most heartily recommend it to those troubled with kidney complaints, and you can use this letter as you choose. Respectfully yours, ALONZO P. MARSHALL, 99 Orange St., Manchester, N. H., May 7th, 1883.

STRONG FACTS!

A great many people are asking what particular troubles BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is good for.

It will cure Heart Disease, Paralysis, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Consumption, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all similar diseases.

Its wonderful curative power is simply because it purifies and enriches the blood, thus beginning at the foundation, and by building up the system, drives out all disease.

A Lady Cured of Rheumatism.

Baltimore, Md., May 7, 1880.
My health was much shattered by Rheumatism when I commenced taking Brown's Iron Bitters, and I scarcely had strength enough to attend to my daily household duties. I am now using the third bottle and I am regaining strength daily, and I cheerfully recommend it to all. I cannot say too much in praise of it. MRS. MARY E. BRASHEAR, 173 Prestmanst.

Kidney Disease Cured.

Christiansburg, Va., 1881.
Suffering from kidney disease, from which I could get no relief, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters, which cured me completely. A child of mine, recovering from scarlet fever, had no appetite and did not seem to be able to eat at all. I gave him Iron Bitters with the happiest results. J. KYLE MONTAGUE.

Heart Disease.

Vine St., Harrisburg, Pa. Dec. 2, 1881.
After trying different physicians and many remedies for palpitation of the heart without receiving any benefit, I was advised to try Brown's Iron Bitters. I have used two bottles and never found anything that gave me so much relief. MRS. JENNIE HESS.

For the peculiar troubles to which ladies are subject, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is invaluable. Try it.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, D. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 6, 1883.

Pay us what you owe.

Let agents urge subscribers to pay now, and forward the money to us.

The General Missionary Committee will meet this year at 10 o'clock, on the forenoon of Wednesday, Nov. 8.

Pastors are requested to look up the old accounts for subscription on their charges, as well as those for the current year. Let no delinquent escape.

Mayor Behan instructs the Chief of Police to arrest all professional street beggars and send them to the Police Jail or Almshouse. Good. Now let our Associated Charities be heard from in aid of the police against the impostors, and by giving information to the public of the deserving poor.

"The truth is, the devil has got the upper hand of the Baptists around Pomona church."—Alfred Bagby, at a Baptist Association. That's the trouble with many a Baptist church.—Religious Herald. We won't dispute it, but sorry to hear it.—Richmond Christian Advocate. From all that we can learn the Baptists are not alone in this matter.

The Prince of Montenegro is a wise reformer. Some time ago he closed all the cafes and drinking shops in his dominions, regarding them as schools of effeminancy, extravagance and corruption. When will American statesmanship arrive at such a wise conclusion! God help this Nation to free itself from the great curse of the liquor traffic; for certainly no greater evil hangs like a millstone around its neck.

While there are only 7,000 places for the sale of food in New York City, there are 10,000 rum-shops or a rum or beer shop for [illegible]. Who has God [illegible] the extent of the tem[illegible] by the glass from these, and the multiplied thousands of such cesspools of the devil, scattered all over this country? Who will come to the help of the Lord, against this mighty evil?

We want our readers to remember on and after September 3rd [illegible] postal [illegible] neatly [illegible] on application and [illegible] the postal clerk will tear [illegible] of the book form, having a [illegible] stub behind. By this [illegible] can send small sums of [illegible]

Seeking Rest.

Before us there lies a letter from a Methodist preacher who seeks a transfer from the district where he has spent the most of his ministry to the South New Orleans District. He states his case in substance as follows: The past three years have been years of hard work, so much so that he fears he has injured his health, and he wants a place where he can rest and recuperate a little. We know this brother and believe him to be a good man. It is true that he has had two years of good earnest work, and it is barely possible that just at present he may be a little worn and weary; but he is not dead. Now, we have this to say: it is a long while before Conference; before this and that this brother and the writer may finish their work on earth and go home to rest forever. In the meantime we think that it is best for all Methodist preachers to have as little care about their next appointment as possible, to attend closely to the one they now have, do every part of the work, and do it well, and never cross a bridge till they come to it. As for appointments where men can get rest, have a free and easy time, we want to assure our brother that there are no such on the South New Orleans district. The churches are all calling for working pastors, for men who wake up, and walk up to an earnest and forcible presentation of Gospel truth each Sabbath. They want men who plan, organize and reach out after the people, and do downright and upright hard, earnest work. There is not a single appointment on the district that will give a man the least opportunity to rest. God always works through means, and that minister has the greatest measure of success who makes the best use of means. The churches have come to see this and are now calling for pastors who will put the same push and energy into their work that the successful merchant, farmer or mechanic does into his. For the men who prate about "my church," "my pulpit," "my congregation," and do not visit the sick, look after the poor and destitute, gather in the children, they have no special use. One of the curses of the church today is laziness in the membership and pulpit. The Master said, "I must work the work of Him that sent me."

Let Others Do Likewise.

We were recently told of a minister in the parish of St. Mary who had appointed a union service at his church. He was anxious to secure a large congregation and raise as much money as possible. He had secured a cheap plated watch-chain to be given as a prize to the minister preaching and securing the largest collection. A special invitation was given to Rev. [illegible] Williams, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at [illegible]

[illegible] was too cheap, too [illegible] He [illegible]

[illegible]

He [illegible] We speak [illegible] the benevo[illegible]

[illegible] We can [illegible]

These are not such as martyrs are made of. We pity the weakness of the man who thinks he can advance the cause of the Lord Jesus by sounding brass or tinkling cymbal. The church cannot prosper under an administration that common sinners call deceitful, sly, two-sided. The cause of God will stand on its own merits. It is not best to use the devil's tools in carrying on the cause of God.

Hold Up the Standard.

The Christian minister so far as he is known should be favorably known. His reputation should be so clear that no stain whatever could be fastened to his character. He should be a blameless man. He is a son of God and we think should be without rebuke in a crooked and perverse generation, a man against whom no one can reasonably have any evil thing to say. We know that like all other men they are children of the fall, that they inherit passions common to their race, and, perhaps, it is true that under some circumstances may have peculiar outward temptations to sin. But the church makes a serious mistake when she attempts to cover up and conceal the sins of the clergy. It is injurious to religion, and has a direct tendency to demoralize the clergy themselves; it encourages them to commit the sins the church attempts to conceal; it becomes an encouraging argument to them to commit the same in the future. It naturally suggests this their minds: what they have done so often without discovery may be done again. There is nothing that more confirms a man in the continuance of any practice than success in what he does. We trust that we do not belong to the generation who are ever suspecting the virtue and ready to detect the faults of ministers, nor do we belong to that other generation who, for the sake of Christ and the honor of religion, think that ministerial sins should be palliated, excused or concealed To hide or to deny their sin is to be a participant in it. The whole truth needs to be told. Justice must be honored; the church vindicated. It is the tolerated, condoned or concealed sins in the church and ministry from which she suffers most. These hurt a hundred fold more than all the taunts and jeers of the entire infidel world. The power of a minister in any community depends upon his own correct example and the clear testimony of his people, but nothing tells half so much as the testimony of his own every day life. It is safe to say that while it is a well known fact that ministers are but men at best, fallible men, liable to go astray, and that some do go astray, the church has not reached that point where she can with safety either apologize for, condone, conceal or deny ministerial sins. Honest, faithful discipline is as necessary for those in the pulpit as those in the pew.

The Value of Blood.

At one of the hotels in the city of New York a guest as he retired blew the gas out, and the next morning was found nearly dead. The physician called decided that transfusion was the only way to restore him to consciousness and save his life. A Negro porter consented to have taken from him 2,000 drops of blood, the amount necessary to give success to the operation. Afterwards he nursed the patient and received five dollars for his services. He was not satisfied with this, and now claims $[illegible] for the blood taken from himself and transfused into the white man by which he was saved. The agreement was made with the physician, but the colored man justly claims that he would have paid for opium or quinine, had they been prescribed, at the market rates, and he thinks that his blood, when it has proved efficacious in saving life, should also have a value. The court is [illegible] to pass judgement on the value of the colored man's blood. The case has no precedent in the courts. The decision is looked for with no common interest.

The Grand Jury Report.

The final report of the Grand Jury to Judge Roman is a suggestive document and a basis for reform. The public markets were found to be filthy, and bad articles were on sale. Hoodlumism disgraces the city, but has received a slight check by vigorous action of the courts, a large per centage of those convicted for ruffianism during the term of the Grand Jury have been in the employ of the city. The idea that 239 half-paid patrolmen can protect a city eleven miles in extent, containing over 200,000 people, is declared to be preposterous. Two squares are pointed out where drinking dens and gambling hells, with attending prostitutes, under the glare of electric lights, take in, swindle and drug strangers. It is suggested that a crematory be established at the Charity Hospital. A speedier trial should be afforded those accused of crime, and the 700 prisoners in the Parish Prison should have employment and not be allowed to mingle together in idleness. In the police jail no bedding is provided for tramps and inebriates, and it might be dispensed with when the Parish Prison is rebuilt. A special laboratory is needed to expose adulterations of food and make practical existing laws and ordinances, the State should make appropriation for the purpose, at the disposal of the Board of Health or Charity Hospital. Burials within the city limits should be prohibited. State criminal legislation needs revision; there are too many jury exemptions the service falling almost entirely upon that class of people least able to bear the burden—laborers, mechanics and clerks; nine out of twelve jurors should be allowed to find a verdict: when one court is in vacation another should be empowered to proceed in criminal cases, and thus insure a speedy trial and relieve the city from expense of needless incarceration; the bond system is defective in criminal cases; the accused should be allowed to testify in his own behalf. Wealthy corporations evade the payment of taxes, leaving the burden to real estate and personal property owners too poor or honest to litigate. Contracts with the city are seldom if ever complied with, the interests of the corporation not protected by its executive officers; railroad companies fail to repair streets, and the letters of the Commissioner of Public Works have upon them the force of paper bullets; the market contracts are daily violated despite appeals to the police and council. The Mayor is clothed by the city charter with extraordinary powers and is alike responsible for his neglect or abuse of the right of supervision over subordinate officials who fail to do their duty. Court officers and the Assistant District Attorney are thanked for courtesies and earnest co-operation in directing public attention to the abuses which came under the observation of the Grand Jury.

Small-Pox.

For some months past the New Orleans Auxiliary Sanitary Association have been making appeals to the people to persuade them to accept of vaccination as the only preventative of this terrible scourge. Thus far these appeals have accomplished but little as less than 1500 persons availed themselves of vaccination, evidently leaving a large portion of the children unvaccinated. It was hoped that at the approach of warm weather the heat would put an end to the disease, but because of the extreme carelessness of the people these hopes have not been realized, as the following facts show. For the week ending January 6, 11 death occured from small-pox. There was an increase each week until the week ending April 7, during this week 68 deaths occurred from this pestilential disease. Since then there was a gradual decline in the deaths from this cause, until for the week ending August 4th 13 deaths were recorded, but since then there has been a gradual increase. For the week ending August 18, 19 deaths were recorded from this fearful disease. It is not claimed by any of the members of the Sanitary Auxiliary Association that vaccination is "an unfailing protection, but as certain to mitigate the virulence of the disease and to stamp out epidemics." We appeal to all of our readers, and especially to the pastors, to present this matter to their congregations and urge upon them the necessity of immediate vaccination as the only preventative of this terrible disease. The pastors are watchmen, and when they see this disease taking away their people, destroying valuable lives, they should sound the alarm.

The last General Conference directed the Book Agents at New York and Cincinnati to make an estimate of the amount necessary to defray the expenses of the delegates to the next General Conference. In accordance with this action $100 has been apportioned to the Louisiana Conference, and has been apportioned to the several districts as follows:

Shreveport District	$23
North New Orleans District	22
Baton Rouge District	20
South New Orleans District	20
LaTeche District	15

We do well to remember that any conference failing to raise the amount forfeits all claim for the expenses of its delegation.

PERSONAL.

—The Queen of Madagascar died July 13.

—Montgomery Blair left only $75,000.

—Mathew Arnold sails for the United States in October.

—Miss Emily Faithful is on her way to this country for a lecturing tour.

—Dr. Reid, accompanied by Mr. Phillips, the Treasurer of the Missionary Society, will remain in the West to attend the conferences.

—Bishop Turner, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, is preparing a "Revival Hymn Book" for the use of his denomination.

—Lord Chief Justice Colridge, of England, is now on a visit to this country, and is warmly welcomed. He is a man of pure character and great eloquence.

—Dr. J. C. Hartzell is now in the West attending Conferences in his official capacity, and may be addressed at 57 Washington street, Chicago, until October 1.

—Carl Weiss, a Methodist minister at Berlin, Secretary of our German Conference a number of years, and twice elected editor of the Evangelist, is dead.

—Major E. A. Burke announces his withdrawal from the active management of the Times-Democrat because of his duties as Director General of the Exposition.

—Mr. Molleson, the only colored member of the Mississippi Press Association, at a recent session of the Association presented a very creditable poem.

—Among recent promotions made in the Pension Office at Washington (D. C.) was that of A. P. Albert Esq, our Assistants brother, from a $1000 to a $1200 clerkship.

—Rev. John A. Cass, one of the most prominent clergymen in the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is reported seriously ill in Switzerland. He went abroad on account of impaired health.

—Cetewayo in a letter to Miss Colenso on the death of her father, the Bishop of Natal, says that he has the first right to set up the tombstone, and begs her to let no be beforehand with him in this.

— Mr. Hannibal Hamlin has refused $50 a column for all he may write of his political reminiscences. He fears that his failing memory might lead him to do an injustice to somebody.

—Bishop McTyeire, M. E. Church South, has appointed Miss Jennie C. Wolfe, of Pensacola, Fla., Alabama Conference, to mission work in China under care of the Woman's Board of Missions. Bishop Keener has appointed Miss Mattie B. Jones, Norcross, Ga., to mission work in Central Mexico.

—Mr. Geo. W. Cable, of New Orleans, is lecturing on the Southern lessee system of State-prison management. We trust he will give this question thorough treatment, for it is one of the gravest that can engage the attention of thoughtful and humane persons.—Nashville Advocate.

—Permission has been obtained from Commissioner Price to exhibit the Sioux chief, Sitting Bull, and three or four others of the tribe, the condition being that they must be kept sober and returned to Standing Rock Agency in good order.

—Hon. Thos. Hughes, founder of Rugby, Tenn., and author of "Tom Brown of Rugby," sailed from England Aug. 25 for America. He will be accompanied by some English capitalists, and spend the month of September at Rugby and vicinity.

—We are sorry to learn that Rev. J. D. Roberson, presiding elder of Ashville District, has been thrown from a buggy and so injured in both ankles that he has been unable to walk for some time. He was improving, however, when last heard from, and expected in a short time to be ready for duty.—Chattanooga Advocate.

—The Count de Chambord died at his home at Frohsdorf, Austria, August 24th. He was the son of Duc de Berri, who died before the son's birth, and grandson of Charles X. who abdicated the throne of France in favor of his grandson in 1830, and had him formally declared king as Henry V., but he never reigned.

—Rev. Frederick von Schluembach, who has been engaged in successful evangelistic labors in Germany, has withdrawn from the Methodist Episcopal Church, and intends to return to America and unite with some other denomination. After that he designs going again to Germany to renew his work there.

—Francis Murphy, the distinguished temperance advocate, who has had the most remarkable success in Great Britain, will sail for New York on the City of Rome, September 5, and a grand reception will be tendered to him to take place at Cooper Institute. The Hon. Noah Davis, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, will preside.

—Arabi Pasha seems quite reconciled to his exile in Ceylon, and even admits that the English are perhaps the best friends of Egypt. To show his sincerity in this protestation he is studiously acquiring the English language. He would like to see Egypt again, but would not return at the risk of adding to the complications.

—Bishop Harris left New York Saturday, Aug. 25, to begin his long autumnal tour among the Conferences. He presided at Northwest Indiana Conference, which convened at Terre Haute on Aug. 29. On the same day Bishop Bowman, opened the Indiana Conference at Bloomington. Bishop Wiley presided at the annual meeting of the West Nebraska Mission at North Platte on Aug. 30.

—Bishops Simpson and Hargrove have been shaking fraternal hands out in Las Vegas, Col. The morning service in the church was suspended, Bishop Hargrove, the pastor and congregation, all going over to the Methodist Episcopal Church to hear Bishop Simpson preach. Bishop Hargrove closed the service. At night Bishop Hargrove preached in our church and Bishop Simpson concluded the service.—Wesleyan Advocate.

—W. Smith Martin, wrote from Ocean Grove to the Christian Neighbor of Columbia, etc.: "While there I heard Dr. Fowler deliver his celebrated address, "The Great Deeds of Great Men." Part of his lecture was good, but, taken as a whole, it was a great piece of extravagance. For instance, he said Abraham Lincoln was the greatest man that had lived in six thousand years. In this extravagant [illegible] has closed, and the general [illegible] to a hobby. I [illegible] one of the hot [illegible] Water Church."

—We were gratified the other day to receive a call from Father Ross, who is now far into his seventies but as eccentric as ever. His eye has the same twinkle, the head the same poise and the mouth the same smile. He is full of original expressions. They seem to bubble and sparkle right out of him. "When" he said "these slave dealers bought and brought Ross to New Orleans they did not know what they were doing, but God knew, he had his eye, and hand upon me, and here I am. I am not growing old and down, I am growing in and up. I have children in the Lord all over New Orleans. The greet me in all the churches." His visit was an inspiration to us.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

R. C. Barrow, Algiers: "The St. Matthew church is moving on in the way of improvement. The Sunday-school is working nobly. A grand exhibition, Aug. 10 11th., saved us $42. We have secured our building on brick pillars, and are now putting up new doors. In a revival meeting of two weeks 15 souls were added to the church."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. N. Lampkin, Starkville: "The tenth anniversary of Zion Franklin school was held on Aug. 18th. James Franklin, superintendent, was in the chair. The pastor read from scripture. Then came singing by F. W. Sprule, and choir. Prayer by S. Mason. H. C. Asknew announced the exercises to the audience. First essay was by T. H. Hill. There were 9 teachers, 162 pupils and 300 people present. The number of verses recited was 473. A. D. Kinnard was secretary. Elder Shumpert on the 25th., held our quarterly conference, and delighted us with his preaching. Collection was $5."

A. E. Jordan, [illegible]: "We have just closed a two weeks protracted meeting, resulting in the conversion of 43 backsliders reclaimed, 5 on probation, and 1 full member from the Baptist—16 in all for [illegible] Creek. Pray for us."

E. [illegible], Pass Christian: "The third quarterly conference convened at Live Oak. Elder McDonald presided. Members came up with their reports in good form. I received this quarter $9, conversions 8, baptized 8. Stewards report paid pastor, $153.35, elder, [illegible] Pass Christian on which to build a [illegible] to [illegible] the church, and the work [illegible] obliged to take a school at Indianola 66 miles away. And amid all expenses of traveling backward and forward, paying heavy board, and family expenses at Cuero, I have managed to keep up the work. My dear companion has sustained me and urged me to rely upon the Lord. Elder Henson held my third quarter, and preached a powerful sermon. We have raised this year for elder $26.50, pastor $37.80, for church debt $18, for benevolent causes $8. Conversions 10, all baptized and received into the church. There were also several reclaimed. Pray that success may crown our labors."

"Visitor," of Hempstead, is hereby reminded that we do not publish communications unless we have the real name of the writer as a guarantee of good faith.

ARKANSAS.

G. W. Gill' Poplar Grove: "When I came to the work Feb. 18th., I found 14 members and a church started, but no ground. Now I have 3 church lots, built 1 church, and purchased half enough lumber to build another; 3 Sunday-schools containing 135 children. Some missionary money has been collected."

TENNESSEE.

W. M. Dinges, Hickory Valley mission, White county, Tenn., closed a meeting which resulted in 18 conversions and 22 additions.

W. M Bellamy, Bristol circuit, has closed a revival at Waterman's with 15 conversions.

T. W. Brown, reports 18 conversions and 10 additions at Cedar Grove.

At Chattanooga district conference, J. A. Baker, of the Athens circuit, presented the highest grade of success in the district—reporting 53 conversions, 71 accessions.

The Methodists are building a handsome and commodious frame church at Shady Grove, near Gum Spring mountain, White county, Tenn.

L. H. Massey, incharge at Jonesboro, publishes an appeal for immediate help. After a ten years effort the last item of indebtedness was settled last winter, but on the night of Aug. 10th., during a fire the beautiful little church was reduced to ashes. About 35 members are now out of doors, have pledged themselves to do what they can, but they are not able to rebuild. Help must come from abroad. Make remittances to J. A. [illegible], postmaster, or to the pastor L. H. Massey, Jonesboro, Tenn.

Hence the machinery adapted to, and successful in the days of Asbury cannot be improved now."

Geo. W. Tubbs, of Point Clear, writes the New York Advocate, and does not know of a Methodist church from the Gulf to half the length north of Baldwin County where they have regular preaching Sabbath days. The gospel can be preached on Fish river.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Homes.

How nice it is to have a home, where everything is ours, and we can do as we please, and feel independent. It may be in a large house, with many rooms and fine furniture, or it may be in a little cottage, with two or three rooms, with rag carpets on the floors, and with pretty ornaments of our own making; it matters not, so that it is home, and our loved ones are there. Home is called the type of heaven, and if real happiness can be found on earth it is there. God has so constituted us that we seek a place to abide; a resting-place, a training-school, where we can develop our better natures, free from temptations, and amid hallowed influences. There is no school like the one in the home circle, and no teaching like that given by the father and mother, whose intellects re strengthened, and whose hearts are enlarged in the faithful discharge of their duty to their children, who, in turn, teach their parents many a lesson of simple trust. In homes, as they should be, there is always culture and kindness, and a growing better and wiser. Those who are always kind and polite to father and mother, brothers, and sisters, are kind and polite at all times, and never need to put on "company manners." "Be ye kindly affectioned one to another" comes to them as naturally as the breath they draw. What people are depends largely upon the homes from which they come.

We who are working among the colored people know well how difficult it is to improve children whose home influences counteract what they are taught at school. It is almost impossible to persuade people to come to Christ who are not careful about their home habits. If they can ever be influenced they never grow strong and useful. A careless, disorderly Christian is a contradiction. Religion is not genuine that does not affect the life so as to influence all that we do or say. No amount of praying or shouting at church can make amends for irritability and unkindness, and for slovenly ways in the household. If we see a house where there is order within, and everything around wears an air of neatness, it is an indication that the inmates are trying to improve, but if we see a tumble-down, dirty place, where the window sash is full of old rags and old hats, we may conclude that the people who live there are of "no account." No, not that, for Jesus died for them, and He loves them, though they are denying themselves and taking up many crosses, not for Him. To such I would like to tell what effort may do. I know a woman who has earned the home where she lives, at the wash-tub, within the past two years. She did her work well and attended to it faithfully, and her charges were moderate. She washed bedding for the college, but did not take her wages until she had earned enough to buy the lot. Then a friend became responsible for the lumber and the pay of the workmen, who soon put up a little house into which she moved. She worked on, and as she had no more rent to pay, she was soon able to pay what she owed. I think she received $50 as a gift from her daughters and that was all the help she had. She has a garden, and vines and flowers in the yard, and it is a pretty place, and a precious home to its inmates. Her grocery bills are all paid too, I understand. This proves what a woman can do when she tries, but I hope no man will think his wife ought to do it. Earning a house is a man's privilege and duty. Very few women are strong enough to continue at hard work every day in addition to the cares of the family, but they can help their husbands greatly by their good management and economy. In the days of slavery, when a dark cloud, that seemed to have no "silver lining," hung over the colored people, God heard their prayers and saw their tears, and led them out of their captivity. In their helplessness He was with them, and He has guided them ever since. They are now progressive. The great revolution that there was among them, caused by the war, left them on nothing. In the effort to find a place for themselves they formed the habit of exertion, that, by the blessing of God, may lead to greater heights than we can now conceive of. They must strive to get homes, and farms, and wealth, and education, and Christian principles, for all these bring strength and power. In a worldly point of view "might makes right;" the strong oppress the weak. If the colored people strive to advance as they have done since they gained their freedom, they will soon be able to meet might with might in a Christian way, and then caste will have become a thing of the past, and the colored people will have set the world an example of patience and forbearance that will do much to advance the Redeemer's kingdom.

Homes are the foundation of civil, moral and social life. A great amount of influence for good goes out from every well ordered home. If a man owns his home he is a better citizen. He loves his country, and he has a desire to have good laws made and executed. He cares for his family and wishes to see his children educated, and they have a better opportunity to lead useful lives, and prepare for home in heaven.

Fourth Round—San Antonio District.

MR. EDITOR—Having been duly elected to represent the vital interests of the colored people in the Colored Men's National Convention which convenes in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 10, 1883, in planning for my fourth round on San Antonio District I am obliged to ask Bros. W. H. Mosby and P. M. Carmichael to assist me in order to get through in time. These two brethren are situated at such points along the line to render the needed assistance herein asked; being in every way competent to discharge the important duty thus imposed. In consequence of facts above mentioned I call upon them to help me through. The plan is as follows: I am to be at every point where another's name does not appear:

[illegible]	Sept. [illegible]
[illegible] or Twin Hills	" [illegible]
San Marcos	Oct. 6-7

Bro. J. T. Jacobs will be able to report Brackettville circuit. Bro. Jesse Brown will keep me informed as to Laredo and Corpus Christi. Dear Brethren, we have struggled against great odds during the year and have shared each other's burdens. Let us go into this Conference with everything correct as to money accounts. Settle up with our Book Concern and for the SOUTHWESTERN. Of course each one knows just what is to be raised for the different benevolent enterprises. The Lord prosper us in the end. Your brother,

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON XI. Sept. 9th. RUTH AND NAOMI. (Ruth i, 14-22.)

Our lesson is about Ruth and Naomi, and it tells us how a weak woman chose good company. About twelve hundred years before Jesus came there was a famine in Judea. The people could not find bread, and one man took his family and went into the land of Moab to live. This was a heathen land, and it was going into bad company, and brought trouble. The man died, and his two sons forgot God's law and married heathen wives. At last both the sons died and left their poor old mother and wives alone. Naomi was their mother's name, and Ruth and Orpah were the wives they married in Moab. Poor Naomi remembered her old home in Bethlehem, among God's people, and at last said she would go back to them. Her daughters loved her and said they would go with her; but she said, "No, stay in your own land with your own mothers." Orpah kissed her and went home to her people, but Ruth refused to leave her and said: "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God." It was a beautiful choice. Ruth went to Bethlehem. They walked together and came at last to Naomi's old home. Her old friends remembered her, and the gentle Ruth, who chose good company, learned of God's people, and at last married again among God's people. She had chosen good company, and it brought her joy, and her name is known all over the world.—Western.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The September number of The Manhattan is varied and entertaining. The sublimity of the scenery in the Far West is well depicted in Wm. H. Rideing's interesting prose and Thomas Moran's good drawings. Mr. Hawthorne's "Beatrix Randolph," has a tantalizing close, while a character sketch, "Excommunicated for Laziness," by Rev. Wm. M. Baker, has some of the best qualities of his vigorous pen. Kate Field concludes her "Diary in the Engadine," and "A Grave Matter Fifty Years Ago," by Benjamin F. Taylor, is in his happiest vein. Literary readers will relish a fine analysis of "Dante Gabriel Rossetti," by Joel Benton, and the damage to American Literature, by lack of an international copyright is forcibly shown by Kinahan Cornwallis. The poets of the number are: Louise Chandler Moulton, H. C. Bunner, R. K. Munkittrick, Mr. and Mrs. Piatt, A. E. Lancaster, Wm T. Peters, and others.

The Wheelman for September, the closing number of the first year is one of the most entertaining of the magazines of the month. The first article, containing over a dozen fine illustrations, describes the academic village of Andover, Mass. There is a well-written article on "Athletics and Gymnastics at Harvard." A comprehensive history of Lawn-Tennis in America, by A. B. Starey. Readers of President Bates' stories will be delighted to find one of his [illegible] tales, "[illegible] Big [illegible]," in this volume. [illegible] contributes five chapters of a story, "Trailing Arbutus." "The Care of [illegible]" is ably discussed. Three more chapters of "A [illegible] Love" will leave the [illegible] ed. The story increases in absorbing interest. "Health as a Pulpit Force" will be found of great interest to ministers.

The numbers of The Living Age for August, 18th and 25th, contain, The Real Lord Byron, Quarterly; Half a Century of Literary Life, London Quarterly; John Richard Green, by Edward A. Freeman, British Quarterly; Classic Conceptions of Heaven and Hell, Westminster; Cave Tombs in Galilee, Fortnightly; Terry Wigan, Blackwood; The North Farm: Now, by J. E. Panton, [illegible]; Voltaire in England, Cornhill; The Empress Eugenie's [illegible] to England, Temple Bar; Grace Darling, Leisure Hour; Sea Island Cotton, Chamber's Journal; Benvenuto Cellini, All the Year Round; with instalments of "Uncle George's Will," and "Along the Silver Streak," and Poetry. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

Moody and Sankey will attend the Christian convention at Lake Geneva this month.

KIDNEY-WORT

I have prescribed Kidney-Wort with very great success in a score or more very obstinate cases of Kidney and Liver troubles, also for female weaknesses.—Philip C. Ballou, M. D., Monkton, Vt.

"My wife has been much benefited from the use of Kidney-Wort. She had kidney and other complaints," writes Rev. A. B. Coleman, Fayetteville, Tenn.

KIDNEY-WORT
IS A SURE CURE
for all diseases of the Kidneys and
LIVER
It has specific action on this most important organ, enabling it to throw off torpidity and inaction, stimulating the healthy secretion of the Bile, and by keeping the bowels in free condition, effecting its regular discharge.
Malaria. If you are suffering from malaria, have the chills, are bilious, dyspeptic, or constipated, Kidney-Wort will surely relieve and quickly cure.
In the Spring to cleanse the System, every one should take a thorough course of it.

The Democracy of Ohio, since the decision of the Supreme Court upon the liquor law, are a good deal like the tall man who went in swimming and some fellow hooked his clothes. As luck would have it he found near the river an empty barrel, out of which he knocked the heads and into which he stepped, and thus clad he made his way across the fields, holding up the barrel as he walked, but dropping and sinking into it whenever any one appeared in sight. The Democracy have got the whisky barrel behind which to hide. But they will have to meet the issue squarely as they march across the political fields of the campaign. It won't hide their nakedness when the votes are counted.—Inter Ocean.

The Housekeeper.

Silver ... not in frequent use will not tarnish if buried in oatmeal.

STRAINERS.—Fine wire strainers that become stopped are easily cleaned by the use of baking soda. Apply with a damp cloth.

TO MAKE PIE-CRUST.—The secret of success is to mix the lard thoroughly with the flour before a drop of water is put with it; take both hands and mix until you could [illegible] ... without water. A little lard goes a great way if properly rubbed with the flour, a tablespoonful to a cup of flour being a liberal allowance.

[illegible] PUDDING.—One cup of sugar, half-cup of butter, one egg, one cup sweet milk, tablespoonful soda dissolved in milk, two teaspoonfuls [illegible]

[illegible] ... from the fire add half teaspoonful extract of lemon.

APPLE CUSTARD.—Peel and core eight or ten medium sized apples; [illegible]

three table-spoonfuls of salad oil and one table-spoonful of vinegar, well mixed together, on a large flat dish, and on this lay the steak. Salt must never be put on steak before it is cooked. The steak must lie on this tender-making mixture for at least half an hour to a side; the toughest steak will succumb to this, and be perfectly tender when cooked.

HOMINY MUFFINS.—Three cups of cold boiled hominy, stir in three cups of sour milk, add half a cup of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of salt and three eggs (which should first be well beaten), one teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in hot water, and lastly, one large cupful of flour. The excellence of these depends upon thorough beating and quick baking.

GREEN PEA SOUP.—Boil one pint of green peas in water with salt, a slice of onion, a sprig of parsley and a few leaves of mint. When cooked drain off the water and pass the peas through a hair sieve. Dilute the puree to the proper consistency with some good stock, perfectly free from fat. At the time of serving making it quite hot, put a piece of fresh butter the size of a walnut into it and serve with small dice of bread fried in butter, and a few drops of spinach greening if the color is not bright enough.

OATMEAL DRINK.—The proportions are a quarter of a pound of oatmeal to two or three quarts of water, according to the heat of the day; it should be well boiled and then one ounce or an ounce and a half of brown sugar added. If thicker than liked add more water. Before drinking it shake up the oatmeal well through the liquid. In summer drink this cold, in winter hot. It not only quenches thirst, but it gives more strength and endurance than any other drink. If it cannot be boiled take a little oatmeal mixed with cold water and sugar, but this is not so good.

The manager of the Louisiana Lottery concern has not only been able to shelter himself behind the screen of an incorporated company and to secure the indorsement of men who should know better than to lend themselves to his corrupting schemes, but he has managed to get into local politics far enough to make the influence of his agents and strickers a menace to Louisiana politics. "In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength."—Isa. 30:15.

Be quiet, soul:
Why shouldst thou care and sadness borrow
Why sit in nameless fear and sorrow
The livelong day?
God will mark out thy path to-morrow
In His best way.

Be quiet, soul:
There is no need of doubt and crying,
There is no need of anxious sighing,
God's love to know.
Dost thou remember not His dying,
Who loved thee so?

Be trustful, soul:
Each day, for thee, thy Father careth,
Each day, in sweet compassion shareth
Thine every ill;
Even thy sin for thee He beareth
And loves thee still.

Be trustful, soul:
When some dark cloud shuts out before thee
Light that hath hitherto shone o'er thee,
Doubt not, nor fear;
But know God does it to assure thee
That He is near.

Be trustful, soul:
Remember God forgets thee never;
He who in grace stands waiting ever
Thy way to guide,
Shall surely hold, thee, soul, forever
Close to His side.

The most extensive emigration which the world has ever known is now being projected in England. At an influential meeting held in London last week a resolution was adopted to provide for the sending of two hundred thousand people from Ireland to Canada and the other British colonies. This scheme involves the establishment of each family on a section of land one hundred acres in extent, provided with the buildings, equipments, animals, seeds, and food necessary for beginning; the land to be rent free for the term of three years, and after that time to be charged with a rental equal to three per cent. upon $500, the settler to acquire the absolute title to the property on the payment of the last sum. It is proposed that ten thousand families, aggregating fifty thousand people, be removed from Ireland next spring and settled in Canada.

What is needed is a rock-firm faith in the truth of Christianity—faith, not of the head merely, arising from an intellectual persuasion of the truth, which is often accompanied with indifference to its claims, but faith of the heart, arising from allegiance to the truth as it is in Jesus, and a personal experience of its saving power. Only those who have verified the truth of the gospel and have the blessed consciousness that it is to them the power of God unto salvation, can be steadfast, immovable, and always abounding in the work of the Lord. Their steadfastness of faith enables them to be active in every good word and work; for being settled in their conviction that the gospel is true, they have every incentive to Christian activity, knowing that the fruits of their labor will remain when the earth and all it contains shall have passed away, and that in due season they shall reap if they faint not.—Northwestern.

The brethren in Missouri tell a story of the lamented Bishop Marvin. He was one day, while preaching, interrupted by the [illegible] steward in the amen corner, whom he well knew to be a little "[illegible]," as the Scotch would term it. Turning to him in a kind manner, he said in a firm voice, "Brother, have you paid your quarterage?" "No," was the confused but prompt reply. "Then," said the Bishop, "stop shouting, brother. No Methodist ought to shout who does not pay his quarterage." That is good wherever it accords with the word. [illegible] who has failed to do his duty in any department of church [illegible] in which he has a part to perform, has a right to expect the divine blessing.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my son. His name is Hannibal Harris. When I left him he was in Kentucky. He was only three years old. He belonged to Mr Sylvester Harris. His father belonged to John Woodforks. My name was Winnie Smith. Then I married Reuben Harris. I would be happy to learn his whereabouts. My name and address is Winnie Chapman, care Rev. G. W. Smith, between K and L 31st streets, Galveston, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives whom I left in Kentucky when quite a small boy. My mother was Nancy McKinney, sisters, Mary McKinney and Sarah McKinney; brothers, Calvin McKinney, Squire McKinney, Bill McKinney and Samuel McKinney; I had an uncle named Alfred Carson, a Baptist preacher. I left them in Butler county, Kentucky. I was brought away by a man named John Mayfield. My name was Geo. McKinney, now George Mayfield. Address me at Waco, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister and brother. They were born near Broce Cross Roads, on Haw river, Guilford county, North Carolina. Mother, Martha Moore, belonged to Rev. John Moore; at the death of Rev. and Mrs. Moore was sold. A speculator, Joe Poindexter, bought us, Charles Westley, Emma Caroline and James Milton Rufus. Our young master, Herbert Canon Moore, bought mother, Walter and Miranda, the youngest children. Another young master from Texas, Freddie Moore, carried Emma Caroline and James Milton Rufus back with him to Texas. Charles Westley, the oldest brother, was sold a day or two before from Joe Poindexter's. Caroline and James are the ones I am inquiring after. Write me whether dead or alive. Address me at Mount Airy, Surry county, North Carolina.

C. W. BLAYLOCK.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to find out if any of my family are living. I have heard nothing of any of them s'nce slave times. Before the war we belonged to a Mr. George Shackelford, who lived in Maysville, Mason county, Kentucky. My mother's name was Charlotte Alexander. I had a brother, Henry Shakelford, and two others named Martin and Burrel Shakelford. I had five sisters, Hannah, Amy, Rose, Sidney and Phoebe. I am anxious above all things to hear something of them and know of no means so certain of reaching them as by an insertion of this in the columns of your so widely circulated paper. Respectfully,

RACHEL ALEXANDER,
Care Rev. R. Roberts, Mt. Vernon Church, Houston, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—Mack Shannon wishes to know of the whereabouts of his sister, Rose Wimbs. Last knowledge of her she was in this State, DeSoto, Clark county, with a colored man named Henay Dabbs. There were three children of them, Rose, Ann and Mack. Rose was the oldest. Mother's name was Nellie Wimbs. Any information of her will be thankfully received. Address Mack Shannon, Pontotoc, Miss.

There are some griefs ... [illegible] ... little [illegible] ... folds its hands, and mournfully feeds upon its own tears, weaving the dim shadows that a little exertion might sweep away into a funeral pall, the strong spirit is shorn of its might, and sorrow becomes our master.

Science is pronouncing against covering the walls of the house with paper. The paper itself gives off deleterious particles, and the paste, by the dampness, undergoes organic decomposition.

Punch gives a list of seven fools: 1. The anxious man—the man who sends away his mutton because the man next him is eating venison. 2. The jealous man—who spreads his bed with stinging nettles, and then sleeps on it. 3. The proud man—who gets wet through sooner than ride in the carriage of an inferior. 4. The litigious man—who goes to law in hopes of ruining his opponent, and gets ruined himself. 5. The extravagant man—who buys a herring and takes a cab to carry it home. 6. The angry man—who learns the ophicleide because he is annoyed by the playing of his neighbor's piano. 7. The ostentatious man—who illuminates the outside of his house most brilliantly, and sits inside in the dark.

There comes to us, sometimes, periods when what to do next is the question of deepest importance. We do not see the way plainly. It seems shut up, hedged round by perplexities. The future wears a menacing front. At such crises is it not the Christian's plain duty to wait on the Lord? He has purposes concerning us which he will develop in his own time. Meanwhile, the duty of to-day is plain. Do the thing that this moment offers and trust that grace will be given for the next step.—Anonymous.

Hard Lumps in Breast.

Dr. H. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I wrote you some time ago that I thought I had a cancer. There was a large lump in my breast as large as a walnut, and had been there four months. I commenced taking your "Golden Medical Discovery," "Favorite Prescription," and "Pellets" in June, and the lump is gone.

Yours gratefully,

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel-ly

The irrigation of the "Great American Desert," by means of artesian wells, it is evident, will prove a success. The test wells in Denver throw out 800,000 gallons daily. This amount of water on the plains, according to the computation of a Colorado scientist, would irrigate enough land to give a clear increase in value of nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The wells probably cost in all less than $10,000. The real value of these wells is so great that it is hard to grasp the figures, but the great success attending the sinking of the test wells gives promise of an early demonstration when the Great American Desert will be wiped from the map and supplanted by fields, forests and [illegible] from [illegible] Kansas to the Rockies.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

FOR THE CURE OF

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, [illegible] three or four doses of the [illegible] of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A WONDERFUL [illegible] SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

[illegible] chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and [illegible] eyes in good condition [illegible] you use them. They have been carefully examined and [illegible] by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time [illegible] no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

CAMP MEETING.

The Natchitoches Camp Meeting will commence on Thursday, Sept. 13, and will continue as long as the interest will justify at the Fourth of July Springs, one mile West of the town. All of our preachers are earnestly invited, also members of their churches, to labor for the salvation of souls and the elevation of the believers in the holiness faith. For information apply to Rev. H. J. Wright, pastor; G. W. Duncan, King Mickelberry, Israel Sheperd, Tucker Sims, Abraham Wallace, Thomas Mitchell, John Jefferson, Committee on Arrangements. Under the supervision of Rev. H. J. Wright, pastor.

Enormous Saving to Schools

7c. S. S. LIBRARIES. Over three million sold already. The enormous expense of the Sunday-school library a thing of the past. $ to $4 now buys a library which before cost $40 to $60. The largest and best of books at less than 7 cents each. First fifty-two reprints of the best books written. Selections from over 1,000 volumes—original prices varying from 60c. to $2.15; the whole fifty-two books originally costing $67.45, averaging $1.10½ each. Volumes from No 52 to 104 written expressly for us, by the best Sunday-school writers. Above 104 partly new and partly reprints. In printing so cheaply we do not sacrifice durability or quality. In point of fact, our cheap books will out last the expensive ones. Being wire-stitched, the leaves can not come out unless torn out. The limp covers preserve the books better than the heavy board covers of the ordinary books. Being flexible, they can be bent back, folded over, or even rolled without injury, making them almost indestructible. Every book thoroughly sound and evangelical, but nothing sectarian or partisan. Each book numbered and containing descriptive catalogue of the whole.

The Indiana conference voted against any change in the time limit.

The Baptist Advocate truly puts it: While some allowance must be made for some sort of mod rate [illegible] of the believer's joy, all this bench-breaking, frantic jumping [illegible] and [illegible] unbecoming in God's house.

Associated Press for the purpose of misleading the public as to the true cause of the murder. In the same city a few days ago some colored men attempted to organize a militia company, but a committee of white citizens waited upon them while assembled at their place of meeting, told them they were endangering the peace of the community and commanded them to disperse. Misleading dispatches about this outrageous conduct of the intolerant whites have also been sent out. Let it be known all over the land that these are preliminary steps to the Democratic Presidential canvass of 1884. The work of intimidation of Republican voters is commenced early that all may be "quiet" after the nominations are made, and the disagreeable necessity of killing and driving out leaders be avoided during the progress of the canvass.

In all the Protestant parts of Germany, the celebration of Luther's birthday, to which the Emperor William recently called attention by special proclamation, is to be on a great and imposing scale. In Hamburg a committee consisting of prominent churchmen and laymen has been formed and they have resolved to erect a church in honor of the great Reformer to be called the Lutheran Church. The Church is to cost $235,000 and has nearly all been subscribed. "He being dead yet speaketh."

The success of Methodism is largely due to its effective system of order as set forth in the Discipline. This little volume should be in the hands of every member, costs only 25 cents, and it does not contain a single sentence in favor of rebellion to secular or church authorities, or comforting to corrupt officials. The verdict of brethren must be respected, and it is impossible for a pastor to be suspended from the exercise of his functions without a reasonable or a just cause.

The editor and proprietor of the [illegible] confesses that he has been endeavoring for six months [illegible] of the big [illegible] of the Louisiana State Lottery. It is surprising that any [illegible] should persist in such a [illegible] undertaking. There are [illegible] of poor washerwomen and day laborers in New Orleans who for years have squandered enough money in these [illegible] over their [illegible] children, if it had been wisely invested.

Hon. Alex. W. Ramsey, of the Utah Commission, informs Secretary Teller that the report on the recent Utah election, and the operation of the Edmund's law will be delayed until the courts have acted upon some test cases brought against the constitutionality of the law and the acts of the Commission thereunder. He says the law has been rigidly enforced, and 15,000 persons were disfranchised for [illegible] practices. The courts will hear the damage suits early in October, and the results will be carefully considered in time for the use of Congress and the President in December next.

The Kings of Denmark and Greece received the Emperor and Empress of Russia at Copenhagen. The procession to the Royal palace was a pompous affair, and awaiting the imperial visitors were the Queen of Denmark, the Princess of Wales, and a brilliant court.

The Temperance Alliance.

The monthly meeting of the New Orleans Temperance Alliance was held last Friday night at the Bible House, with President F. A. Johnson in the chair, and Mr. William Murray secretary. Capt Johnson made the following remarks:

To the more thoughtful and most observant of our people it is apparent that the most independent and enlightened citizens of our country are becoming unanimous in their condemnation of the destruction and unhappiness caused by the unrestrained use and traffic in intoxicating liquors. The truthfulness and philanthropy of the temperance cause, argued from every stand-point by the most talented men and women, has exhibited to the world that the liquor manufacturers and dealers cannot successfully defend their position in the continuation of a commerce that results in the destruction of their fellow man and the impoverishment of the nation, both financially and mentally. A diversity of opinion has existed among advocates of temperance, as to the advisability of introducing the subject in party platforms, and very many have studiously avoided the issue. No greater demonstration of the expanding views of the American people on the subject, not only of temperance, but of prohibition, need be presented than the fact of the attitude of alarm shown by those pecuniarily interested in the liquor business, by many of them uniting their capital and influence to browbeat and intimidate any political party or organization favoring the cause of temperance. The assuming of such an attitude under the plea of self-defense, will but precipitate the final issue, as to whether this government is to be governed by selfish capitalists, made wealthy by the impoverishment and distress of the people, and our elections controlled in the interests of pliable persons, backed by the money, whisky and men under their control—or, whether an indignant, generous and enlightened nation will rise in its right, might and dignity and protect the true interests of the nation, and the interests of those so weak as to be unable to control their last dime from the seller of a glass of whisky. These issues that are seriously agitating the citizens of other States in the Union will sooner or later force upon the people of Louisiana an activity for or against prohibition, accelerated by the laxity in the regulating of the liquor traffic, and it be hooves our people to be prepared to meet the question when it is put at the ballot-box, and by every possible means to systematically organize the temperance forces of the State in a manner that will command the execution of existing laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, and that will at least forstall the reelection of any officer whose duty it is to regulate the traffic, and who fails in the execution of the duties imposed by law. The attention of our friends at home and abroad is called to the fact that the editors of that greatest of New Orleans journals, The Times-Democrat, have set apart a liberal space in their Monday paper for the publication of items of interest relating to temperance organizations. And at the next regular meeting I shall recapitulate quotations from legal decisions clearly showing the constitutionality of prohibition.

Messrs. Walter S. Crawford and R. W. Jewel, and Miss Kate Al Crawford a committee on credentials, reported as follows: William Elwang, Williams S. Douglas, Mr. S. W. Hanna, delegates, vice Thomas H. Jones, deceased; Rev. Hugh McNeil Minton and Mr. Burgess, resigned, as delegates from Caucasian Lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T.

Conrad Grappendorf, Sr., and Charles Grappendorf, delegates from Progress Lodge No. 14, I. O. G. T., in place of W. W. Washburn and Mrs. Jolla.

G. G. Mohead, as delegate from Hickman Lodge No. 16, I. O. G. T.

A communication from Caucasian Lodge No. 1 reported the results of last quarter's work as most encouraging and the outlook equally so. It deprecated the proposed resignation of Capt. Johnson as president of the Alliance, and hoped he would reconsider it.

Mr. A. W. Thomas, of the State Grand Lodge, reported that good material was being brought into the lodges of the country parishes, and he thought by next meeting 25 newly organized lodges, including one or two just over in Mississippi, would be reported.

Mr. William McLaughlin, chairman of the committee to induce the City Council to take some action toward the enforcement of the State law against selling liquor to minors, stated he had made repeated endeavors to have the matter brought before the Council. Several Councilmen had either refused to present the petition, and others had promised, but had not done so. He advised the Alliance to go in a body to petition the Council. Mr. McLaughlin was desired to put his report in writing and submit it to the next meeting.

Mr. William Crawford, thought it was high time the temperance people of Louisiana were taking some steps toward identifying themselves with the National Temperance Union, and in this direction advised the organization of a prohibition club. He thought a prohibition ticket should be put in the field at once, and efforts for prohibition in Louisiana should be unremitting. An important question in this connection would be the representation of colored temperance lodges in the Alliance and he thought this should be considered at an early day. There were three colored temperance lodges in New Orleans, and he thought the number of colored Good Templars in this city was greater than that of the whites.

Capt. Johnson wished it distinctly understood that every temperance organization had a right to representation in the Alliance, and no representative with proper credentials had been refused. He thought, however, some reorganization or amendment to the constitution would be acceptable, and on motion it was determined to submit amendment at the next monthly meeting, on the first Friday in October. Thes cannot, however, be passed before the annual meeting on the first Friday in January.

Mr. Crawford moved a vote of thanks to The Times-Democrat for its courtesy and liberal spirit in putting temperance ideas and actions fairly before the people. This proposition was carried unanimously.

Haytian rebels have raised the blockade of Jerimie and Jaomel.

New Orleans University.

I trust that the friends who intend to send their children to New Orleans University will make all needful preparations, so as to have them there the first day—Oct. 1st. A delay of a few days will not only be a loss to them in scholarship, but important arrangements will be made early in the first week in which every student will be desirous of taking pait. Let all who comes by railroad come on Saturday, or earlier. Don't patronize Sunday trains.

Will our ministers, both in the city and elsewhere call the attention of our friends to this institution, and secure as many students as possible. It is for the interest of the church and our people that we have a large school.

Miss Rosa A. Turner has been added to the Faculty as assistant to Miss Riche. Will such teachers in the primary department, and Miss Kilgrove in her old position, and two other "first class teachers" (as Dr. Rust writes me) in addition to others already named, the friends of the school may be fully assured that we shall have one of the best years in its history.

JAMES A. DEAN.

Who Will Be First.

MR. EDITOR.—Allow me to say a few words to the preachers and quarterly conference brethren of the Meridian District.

Dear Brethren, you remember that in the first quarterly conference liberal estimations were made for the different benevolent objects of the church.

Now as three quarters of the year are almost gone, who will be first to raise the amount estimated for his charge?

Take up your collections, and encourage every member and friend to give something.

If each one can give a dollar that will be good; if not, let them give what they can.

O! brethren, don't wait any longer! Begin now, and may the Lord bless your efforts!

The amount apportioned to the district is only $250, and I would be a shame to have to report less at our next conference.

With kind wishes for your success. I am Yours in Christ,

I. CAMPBELL.

For the Texas Conference.

MR. EDITOR—I have carefully examined the statistics relating to full members, as shown in the minutes of 1881 and 1882.

Minutes 1882.

Houston Dist., full members	2016
Huntsville Dist., full members	1312
Marshall Dist., full members	2145
Navasota Dist., full members	1905
Palestine Dist., full members	1269
Total	9037

Minutes 1881.

Houston Dist., full members	2310
Huntsville Dist., full members	1327
Marshall Dist., (formerly Jefferson Dist.) full members	2048
Navasota Dist., full members	1835
Palestine Dist., full members	1373

Out of The Pulpit With Them

The Connecticut minister who has been detected in plagiarism and resigned his pastorate in disgrace, pleaded in mitigation that his wife was sick, and he had not time to prepare new sermons. That was flimsy. If he could leave her to go to the pulpit, he could prepare while with her. Hundreds of ministers have prepared heart-moving sermons while sitting by the bed side of a sick wife or child through the long days and longer nights. If he could not prepare well, the time to throw himself on the sympathy of his people was when he gave them the best he could, not when he was detected in stealing. Probably he concocted the excuse to cover his fall. A man who will steal sermons will have little conscience about lying if he can save "the cause"—that is, in his eyes, himself—from disgrace. There is a close connection between this and other kinds of immorality. Of eleven ministers convicted of intemperance, licentiousness, or dishonesty, eight were proved to have habitually plagiarized. "Don't trust men with chickens who will steal eggs," says the proverb, and a sermon-thief is a conscious impostor. Yet not every immoral minister stole his sermons. Nor has every sermon-thief committed other overt acts of immorality, but none need be surprised when such a man does. Out of the pulpit with them—the sooner the better.—N. Y. Advocate.

Hon John R. Lynch thanks Gen. Chalmers sent a draft of the Cessor dispatch to a pension clerk, his friend in Washington, who took it to Cessor, who signed it after modification; but the pension man sent on the original instead. Says Mr. Lynch: "These are the facts in the case. Another thing, it will be noticed that the above dispatch is dated July 6. The Independent Convention before which the alleged Cessor dispatch was read was held July 4. How it was possible for a dispatch to be received and read before a convention two days before it was sent is a matter that I am necessarily compelled to leave to the public to infer."

The educational convention which meets in Louisville on Sept. 18 is expected to exert a strong influence on public opionion in Kentucky in favor of a better school system.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

The editors of the two Democratic papers of Natchitoches, Messrs. Breazeale of the Vindicator, and Chas. V. Porter, of the Democratic Review, were invited by the pastor, Rev. H. J. The editors congratulate the church on its prosperity and usefulness, and commend the intelligent pastor.

[illegible] gives an interesting account of a work of grace at Armstrong of the Eastland Circuit, where Baptists were converted to the Methodist doctrine of infant baptism and open communion, and Campbellites were, by the power of God, brought to a Methodist mourners' bench, and to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ. Fifteen were converted and twenty backsliders were reclaimed and eleven baptized. Among the many gratifying things that occurred at this great meeting was the interest manifested by an old veteran of the cross, "Father" Marshall, by name. This grand old patriarch was a member of the old Church eleven years before the "separation." He now expresses a desire to join the "old Church" and bring many of his family and friends with him.

The church at Mason, William Barnet, pastor, is also sharing in a good work of grace. A general and deep interest has been awakened. Five were received into the church. The people are getting encouraged.

A[illegible] Things.

We have organized a choir of [illegible] ladies and gentlemen for our camp meeting, which commences on the 13th of Sept., as follows: D. J. Mickelberry, leader, Curtis Murdick, [illegible], and Miss M. Yarborough, E. Hatton, [illegible] Clinton, J. Atkinson, Emily Washington, N. Shaw, [illegible], R. Calvin, [illegible] and A. Wallace. They are all very good singers.

On the [illegible] the Reaper's Missionary Society gave a pic-nic. We enjoyed ourselves splendidly in the woods amid the breezes, and a flowing spring of splendid water as pure as the purest and cool accordingly, for which we pay in town, for water [illegible] when on hands. Ice, when you can get it, about 15 cents a pound.

It was our good fortune to be a participant, along with my better half and sister, Mrs. Virginia Mitchell, of Alexandria, La., at a birthday dinner of our dear Bro. and efficient recording steward, George W. Duncan, being his [illegible] year. Bro. Duncan is not a boarder in the church, but one of her energetic men, though starting in on his 71st year, having been a member of the old church half of his life. True enough he has been at the field and then to gather his knowledge, and at the same time give his attention and part of his earthly support to help carry on God's work. He is a barber by trade but he will not shave on the Lord's day, nor has not for many years. I wish our dear brother (I won't call him old) and his good lady many more years of happy life and usefulness. He is a great lover of Sunday morning prayer meetings, is always present and takes a prominent part in them so that all the leaders get him to conduct their meetings, which he does willingly. May God bless and add many more years to his life. If God grants me [illegible] years to live on earth I will eat my birthday dinner and think of this good brother, who is devoted to God, his church, his people, and we poor ministers of the Gospel and our families. Bro. Duncan is a live man.

I would rather be dead than to have my name on the church roll boarding and not paying any board. I read of a woman who said she had been a member of the church for 50 years and it hadn't cost her a nickel; a free Gospel, a free Jesus and free seats, and that she never intended to give a nickel to any preacher, because there were too many of them to not hear some of them. She forgot that the Lord loves a cheerful giver.

I have had the public school of this place offered to me. I will consult my brethren before I accept. I have this week to consult over the matter.

Bro. Louis Martin the builder of our church at New Town means just what he said. Our church here is on the way.

The district conference was a great lever to our people, and it helped the work and the preacher.

H. J. WRIGHT.

Natchitoches, La., Aug. 30.

Letter from Bro. Vaughan.

DEAR BROTHER CUSHMAN:—Though I am absent, for a time, from the Crescent City and the balmy breezes of the southern clime, I often revert thither in thought.

During the past year I have often wished for the privilege of sitting in the pew and hearing others preach the gospel. Since leaving the city I have permitted no opportunity of gratifying this desire, to go unimproved. To this end I spent one week at Loveland Camp-meeting, near Cincinnati. Much of the preaching was excellent yet the attendance was small and the conversions few. Most of the preaching was on the subject of sanctification. Various views were set forth by the different preachers. The result was that many earnest seekers of the blessing were confused and unsettled in their ideas. This doctrine would be more patent if all our ministers were a [illegible]. On Aug. 9th I arrived at Ocean Grove, N. J., where I met our old and tried friend Rev. Dr. [illegible], under whose management the National Educational Assembly, then in session, proved a magnificent success. There were present at the Assembly, prominent educators from nearly all the states and territories. In order to extend the influence of the Assembly as far as possible the Dr. conceived the idea of publishing in book form all the addresses and papers presented during the sessions. The book will contain about 250 pages and retail for one dollar. We doubt not this book will be a valuable contribution to our literature. It will be of special interest to persons residing in the south as many of the addresses and papers relate especially to education in the south. I had not been at the Grove many days when I was confronted by our estimated friend Rev. Dr. Dean, who appears to be much invigorated since his arduous school labors have ceased. I next met Bro. J. G. B. Williams, Gen. Bussey, Prof. W. A. Crane and Rev. President Leland University. It did seem for a time that New Orleans had come to the Grove to Summer. Rev. Dr. Stokes, President of Ocean Grove Association, says there have never been so many visitors at the Grove during any Camp meeting as at the one held this year. The word preached has been attended with unusual outpouring of the Spirit and the unsaved have flocked to Christ.

J. G. VAUGHAN.

The Arkansas Colored Convention.

The Arkansas convention to elect delegates to the National colored convention, met in Little Rock Aug. 27th. The committee on resolutions reported as follows:

We recommend, first, the resolution presented to the convention by J. T. Harris be adopted, which reads as follows: That for a people to become independent and respected, they must be owners of the soil; that as our people by education and habits are especially adapted to agricultural pursuits, we urge upon them to become owners of the soil as a source of power and protection; and

Whereas, The colored people of the older southern states are increasing in numbers and intelligence, but are debarred from securing homes for themselves on account of the high price of land; and

Whereas, The state of Arkansas has thousands of acres of government lands, subject to donation under the homestead law, thousands of acres lying along the Little Rock and Fort Smith railroad, and the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad, to be disposed of to settlers at low prices, on deferred payments from six to ten years' time; and

Whereas, The salubrious climate and pure water are more conducive to health than the overflowed districts, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention issue an address to the colored people of the south, setting forth every advantage pertaining to this state and encourage immigration from the various states of the south.

By R. O. Lee of Ouachita:

Whereas, The mental status of the colored people, as a mass, in the state of Arkansas, is so greatly neglected that it is the sense of this convention to recommend to the various leading men of the state, in convention assembled, that the scholastic period be extended from two and three to six months in the various country school districts. Further, be it

Resolved, That the delegates from this state convention be instructed to urge the national convention that will assemble at Louisville, to recommend the passage of the Blair or Hoar bills for the promotion of education and the distribution of the funds upon the basis of the illiteracy of the [illegible].

By J. G. Mitchell of Hot Springs:

Resolved, That this convention urge upon the colored people of Arkansas the necessity of educating themselves in order to better fit themselves to make good citizens in their various pursuits of life, and that we advise and urge upon our leading men in every county in the state the necessity of calling meetings for the special purpose of having school houses built throughout their respective counties, to accomplish that great end.

By M. W. Gibbs of Pulaski:

Resolved, That this convention of the colored men of the state of Arkansas have still to complain that violence and injustice to their race still exists to an alarming extent. In most cases the perpetrators go unwhipped of justice; that when they are arraigned the laws are administered with such laxity and partiality that the escape of the criminal is both easy and possible. In no instance is the penalty of the law enforced against a white man for the murder of a negro, however palpable the case may be, whilst in most instances the bare accusation of a negro committing homicide upon a white man is sufficient warrant for law with all its forms to be ruthlessly set aside and the doctrine of lynch swift and certain to be enforced. Case after case is chronicled by the press of negroes hung by infuriated mobs without trial to determine their guilt or innocence. The farcical proceedings at law, the inefficiency of prosecution, the selection and manipulation of jurors, and the character of public sentiment have had painful illustration in several cases, but recently, of Johnson, the colored man murdered in this, the capital county of the state—the homicide of this man a servant at a picnic of a Christian society of white people, and in their presence, without provocation, was universally admitted, notwithstanding a jury of twelve men, with indecent haste, find him not guilty—a verdict fit to shock the sense of every friend of right and justice. Robinson, a white man, for killing a colored man because his victim asked for the return of money loaned, received but two years in the penitentiary. Burrel Lindsey, a colored farmer who had homesteaded United States land in Van Buren, and had commenced to cultivate it, was waited upon and told that he must leave, that they would have no niggers in the settlement. They came back at midnight reinforced and broke open his door. One of the mob lying dead on the threshold, pierced with shot, was Burrel Lindsey's response. The press of county (to their honor be it noted) said he did the proper thing; good men in the neighborhood who knew the character and industry of Lindsey, said the same. But yet, after being harrassed by threats and legal persecutions for months, a jury find him guilty of assault with intent to kill, and six years in the penitentiary at hard labor is the penalty for defending his home. Homicide has no local habitation; it is the accident of every community in every nation, and the justice and impartiality with which the law is administered, are the measure of their humanity and civilization—but here we have the spectacle of press, pulpit and rostrum of the state (with exceptions scarcely to be noted either entirely dumb, or merely a passing allusion, oftener in commendation than censure of these damning acts. We are positive in our confidence that those—and only those—who expose, denounce and lay bare their conduct, and thereby create a sentiment that will lessen this evil, are the only true friends to the state's material, as well as moral progress; that the attempt to deny and evade by comparison with other states does not meet the issue in the minds of thoughtful men, who believe that no life is safe where the humblest is unprotected.

We insist that the value of the colored brother as a tiller of the soil, the increasing thrift and economy evinced in securing homes and taxable property, their favorable comparison (by fair judgment) with any other class as to the moral and law abiding character least merit the application of justice in the courts, and we ask for him consideration and assistance in fair settlements of contracts for labor. That he may sometimes exasperate by an unjust claim, believing it to [illegible] where could superiority and nobility of character be better displayed than by a generous magnanimity to this child of slavery. That the better element of the democratic party does not favor this lawlessness we are continually assured, but the fact stands out in bold relief that they are unable or unwilling, with the forces of wealth and intelligence in their possession, to create a healthier public sentiment. To them and to just men everywhere we appeal to assist by bringing the moral power of denunciation against this wrong, that impartial justice may be the law for every citizen or resident of the commonwealth; be it also

Resolved, That the president and secretary be empowered to sign a petition in behalf and as the earnest request of this convention, to be presented to his excellency, the governor, asking executive clemency in the pardon of Burrel Lindsey now incarcerated in the penitentiary under a sentence of six years.

By M. E. Childress of Faulkner:

Whereas, The amendments of the constitution of the United States guarantee to the colored race protection and justice; and

Whereas, One of the conditions required of the people of the revolting states upon their return into the union was, under oath, that they would not discriminate against any man on account of his race, color or previous condition of servitude; and

Whereas, This oath has been repeatedly disregarded in the so-called courts of justice; and

Whereas, In view of the fact the colored race forms an important factor in the industrial pursuits of the nation, most especially in the cotton belt, producing 60 per cent of all the cotton, is of itself alone a sufficient reason why we should be looked upon with more consideration by the state authorities; also be it

Resolved, That this convention heartily endorse the administration of President Arthur, assuming executive functions under the most trying circumstances, his conduct has been signalized by eminent statesmanship, justice and discretion.

Habit.

There was once a horse that used to pull around a sweep which lifted dirt from the depths of the earth. He was kept at the business for nearly 20 years, until he became old, blind, and too stiff in the joints to be of further use. So he was turned into a pasture, or left to crop the grass without any one to disturb or bother him. But the funny thing about the old horse was that every morning, after grazing a while, he would start on a tramp, going round and round in a circle, just as he had been accustomed to do for so many years. He would keep it up for hours, and people often stopped to look and wonder what had got into the head of the venerable animal to make him walk around in such a solemn way when they was no earthly need of it. But it was the force of habit. And the boy who forms bad or good habits in his youth will be led by them when he becomes old, and will be miserable or happy accordingly.

Chinese Bible Meeting.

The District Superintendent of the American Bible Society for California and Nevada gives the following facts:

The first Chinese Bible meeting ever held in San Francisco was held in the First Presbyterian Church, Stockton Street, on the evening of the 15th of July. All the Chinese Missions in the city united, and made up a congregation of about 500 Chinese men, women and children.

The opening prayer was in Chinese. A Christian Chinese presided at the organ, leading the large audience, every one of which joined in singing with a will. One of the hymns was "Blow ye the trumpet blow," and [illegible] only an audience [illegible] the great [illegible] blowing the gospel trumpet.

An address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Gibson, of the Methodist Mission, in Chinese, after which your District Superintendent delivered an address in English, which was translated by [illegible] Chinese interpreter who stood by my side, and done by him with considerable [illegible] on his part. [illegible] of my address I made an appeal for a contribution, speaking of the great work now being done by the American Bible Society in China, through Rev. Dr. [illegible] and others, for their own [illegible] and then asked that [illegible] of the slowest Chinese [illegible] a collection) might be sent through the congregation to take [illegible] collection, which was done [illegible] surprise the collection, including a twenty-dollar gold piece given by one Christian Chinese, amounted to [illegible] dollars and sixty cents. I felt like saying to all Christian churches in America, "Go ye and do likewise." At the close of the services I said to the giver of the twenty dollars, "How can you afford to give so much?" "Oh," said he, "the word of God has been so much for me that I can well afford to give that sum out of my earnings."

What Work Will Do.

Bishop Jewell rose regularly at four.

Linnæus, the celebrated botanist, rose at four o'clock.

Bishop Horne composed his version of Psalms in the early mornings.

Kirke White learnt Greek while walking to and from his master's office.

Erasmus composed one of his celebrated books while traveling on horseback.

Madame DeGentis wrote many of her works while waiting for a royal pupil.

Carey studied botany and natural history during intervals of professional lectures.

John Wesley rose at four, and preached at five every morning, for about sixty years.

Dr. Abercrombie, while on his daily rounds, composed many philosophical books.

Parkhurst, the philologist, rose at five in Summer, and six in Winter, making his own fire.

John Milton was up in Winter and Summer with the birds, and before men went to their work.

Dr. Doddridge gave to the world his "Family Expositor," by writing it in the early morning.

St. Augustine devoted eight hours to sleep, eight to meditation, eight to converse with the world.

Dr. Burney studied the French and Italian languages as he rode on horseback between his pupils' houses.

Zimmerman rose very early in the morning, and wrote several hours before he began his professional visits.

The marriage, which took place August 11th, at Cettinje between the Princess Zorka, daughter of Prince Nikita of Montenegro, and Prince Peter Karageorgewitch of Servia, may be attended by important political consequences. The Karageorgevitch family assert [illegible] claim to the throne of Servia; and according to their view the crown worn by King Milan belongs of right to Prince Peter. The Karageorgevitch faction will of course be strengthened by the alliance with Montenegro, the more so as Montenegro enjoys the special favor of Russia.

One of the most singular sentences ever imposed was by Judge Krekle, of the United States District Court of Missouri, recently. An illiterate prisoner was sentenced to jail till he could learn to read and write, and another offender was sentenced till he could teach the former the art. In a little over three weeks the prisoner appeared, able to write a fair letter at dictation, and both men were discharged.

One Woman's Work.

[illegible]

At arrow's [illegible] how can you call it so?
These pairs of baby eyes looked up to mine
And seem the gates through which a light divine,
Transfigures all my life with tenderest glow

Because I cannot paint with artist skill
The changing colors of the sea and sky—
Because [illegible] of [illegible] high,
And [illegible] joy at will—

Because to learning's shrine no gifts I bring,
Nor take a foremost stand for woman's cause—
Because I trust unquestioning the laws
Which brings us snow in winter, birds in spring—

You think my life is circumscribed and cold
In what should make it helpful, rich and strong.
Ah, friend, these happy days are none too long
For all the loving duties that they hold.

Nor has the art you love been all denied,
For loveliest pictures every day I see
In childhood's careless grace and movements free,
From waking morn till dreamy eventide.

My Edith's braids, now brown, now golden-bright,
[illegible] the artist's brush has [illegible]
The baby's deep blue eyes, which meet my own,
In living beauty mock all painted light.

Nor do you know, my friend, the critics hold
We story-tellers in our children find—
What store of wisdom and of wit combined
We need to point a moral new or old.

And in reforms are we not learning late
A [illegible] voice need not be all in vain?
[illegible] hands may hold great future gain:
"They also serve who only stand and wait."

And what in science or philosophy
Can pass in interest a childish heart,
Feeling its upward way to take its part
For good or ill in life's great mystery!

God help us mothers all to live aright,
And let our homes all truth and love enfold,
Feeling that life no loftier aims can hold
Than leading little children to the light!

An Allegory.

Once on a time a little leaf was heard to sigh and cry, as leaves often do when a gentle wind is about. And the twig said, "What is the matter, little leaf?"

"The wind," said the leaf, "just told me that one day it would whirl me off, and throw me down to the ground to die."

The twig told it to the branch on which it grew, and the branch told it to the tree. And when the tree heard it, it rustled all over and sent back word to the leaf:

"Do not be afraid; hold on tightly and you shall not go till you want to."

And so the leaf left off sighing, and went on nestling and singing. And so it grew all through the summer, till October. And when the bright days of autumn came the little leaf saw all the leaves around becoming very beautiful. Some were yellow, and some were scarlet, and some were striped with both colors. Then it asked the tree what it meant. And the tree said:

"All these leaves are getting ready to fly away; and they have put on these beautiful colors because of joy."

Then the little leaf began to want to go, and grew very beautiful in thinking of it, and when it was very gay in colors it saw that the branches of the tree had no color in them, and so the leaf said:

"Oh, branch, why are you lead-colored and we golden?"

"We must keep on our work-clothes," said the tree, "for our life is not done yet, but your clothes are for a holiday, because your task is over."

Just then a little puff of wind came and the leaf let go without thinking of it, and the wind took it up and turned it over, whirled it like a spark of fire in the air, and let it fall gently down, and then blew it under the edge of a fence, among hundreds of other leaves, and it fell into a dream, and never waked up to tell what it dreamed about.—From a Lady's Album.

Our Boys.

Why is it that we so often see the boys of a family dissipated and immoral, and their sisters not so? Only because the morals of the girls are scrupulously guarded, but of the boys not. Fathers and mothers do not allow their daughters to associate with women who use bad language or behave indecently. They want their daughters to be ladies, and they see the means to make them such. But they seem to think the boys can take care of themselves. They are not scrupulous as to the company they keep. The girls must be kept pure even in thought. It is enough for the boys to appear decent in the company of ladies. They hold that a lady must be pure in act and word and thought, at home as well as abroad—in private as well as in public; but a gentleman is one who does not get drunk or swear or behave rudely in company, which does not do any of these things. They would be horrified beyond measure to know that their daughters had gotten into bad company, and had behaved as badly as the company they were in. But the same course of conduct by their sons excites but little concern.

Can any one tell us why our boys should not be kept as pure and brought up as decently as our girls? Are they not as easily corrupted, and are not the consequences just as serious? Is there any sound philosophy in having a different moral standard for the two sexes in the family? Why, then, should not the boys be as carefully guarded and as strongly warned against vice as the girls?—Methodist Advance.

When Oliver Cromwell became Protector he caused the stamp of the cap of Liberty to be placed upon the paper used by the Government. Thus originated the word foolscap, which has since been given to a size of writing paper usually about sixteen by thirteen inches.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. A Season of Destruction

The past Summer has been one full of disaster and excitement. The vast forces of nature seem to have clothed themselves in all of their fury; tornadoes have swept different sections of the country, destroying untold thousands of property and many valuable and precious lives. But we know of no event in human history more appalling than the news that comes to us from Java which we published last week. Referring to this terrible event the Northwestern says:

"The year 1883 is to be memorable with respect to the sudden, violent death of many people. Wrecks, railway disasters, mine accidents, floods, tornadoes, volcanic destruction, as in Ischia with its 5,000 victims, and Java with 75,000, make a record over which quieter years will wonder. 'Is the world getting too full of people?' asks the moral and scientific leader. 'What does God intend to teach by these awful lessons?' asked a devout man in our hearing. Such terrible events are not 'accidents' by any means. Men grow overwise, reason away all individual responsibility at will, but [illegible] he trembles, as the Israelites did, at the voice of God. He calls the world to repentance, and proposes to be heard. It is weak and wicked to pretend that this Java horror is a mere 'freak of nature.' God's power is [illegible] and his voice as Father are in the event. Little wonder that the Javanese worship something in that volcanic region as God, because of its always possible and terrible manifestation. Shall civilized and Christian [illegible] gleam less of submission from the awful catastrophe? The very earth is the Lord's."

And [illegible] people need just the [illegible] will get at these [illegible] [illegible] any young man or lady who is not afraid of hard work can [illegible]

Will the pastors wake up [illegible] and stir up the fathers and mothers—stir up the young men and ladies. Start them off with money if you can, without money if you must. The [illegible] to have some acquaintance with a young man who, going to school, rode three days and nights in a stage coach without a morsel to eat, arriving at the place of destination without a penny in his pocket, and weeks and months after boarding himself on mush, crackers and molasses. Let no one say he cannot attend school. Where there is a will, God will make the way. We care but little about the difficulties. Persons of clear grit and moral principle face them, overcome them and pass on. No more fatal error could prevail than that our schools are barred to the poor, or that poverty is a bar to education. Not so much money is needed after all and then but a little at a time.

Increase the Circulation of Your Church Paper.

We have often said that the SOUTHWESTERN is the only paper published by the Methodist Episcopal Church South of the Ohio River, and the people who in this Southern field of Christian work claim the protection and ask the support of the church are expected to manifest a special interest in the circulation of our church periodicals. Saint Paul adopted a notable method of provoking Christians to good works by comparison of one church or locality with another, and by putting on record in imperishable words what certain churches under the most trying circumstances, amid the deepest poverty had done. It may not be always pleasant to make these comparisons, but sometimes it becomes a necessity. There is on the part of too many a prevailing disposition to receive and keep all at home for their own comfort. We have been examining records of the receiving capacity of certain localities, and while we have no thought that any have received a dime too much, (we wish that it had been more), it is a little humiliating that little or nothing is being done to secure the circulation of any of our church periodicals. We may at a future time give some suggesting and instructive facts on this subject.

In the mean time we ask all of our brethren to join in pushing the canvass of the SOUTHWESTERN. Where it goes, there goes the doctrine of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, the oneness of all believers in Christ, justice towards all, love for all, and complete redemption in Christ for all. The only paper published by the Methodist Episcopal Church in a very large territory should have a subscription list equal to that of any other Advocate outside of the City of New York. As a loyal Methodist brother, what is your duty? If an official of the church, do you comply with the requirement of the Discipline? No man is fit to hold any responsible position in the M. E. Church to-day who is not a careful reader of one or more of the church periodicals. While it costs only four cents a week, or two dollars a per year, no able bodied Methodist can be too poor to take the SOUTHWESTERN.

Number 1 of the New York Sun was issued Sept. 3, 1833. From the present publishers we have received a fac simile copy, also a copy of the edition of September 3, 1883. A comparison of the two sheets is interesting and instructive. [illegible] a small, three column, four page daily, which spread out was not as large as one page of this paper, filled with bogus advertisements, news and miscellany, it sold at one penny or three dollars per year, if paid in advance. It was printed on a hand press, had a circulation of about 1000 copies, and speedily found favor in the eyes of the public. To-day the Sun is a seven-column, two cent daily, a power in the land. From eight Bullock steam presses, each printing 32,000 copies per hour, are issued near 150,000 copies daily or over 1,000,000 per week of the daily and weekly editions. It employs about 1000 workmen, spends near $17,000 per week, uses over 4,500,000 pounds of white paper per year, and rejoices in prosperity. The Sun does not claim to be anything else than a newspaper, but as a record of this wicked world it is without an equal. Its editorials are sharp, short and American in vigor and style. Editor Charles A. Dana indeed stands as high on the pinnacle of worldly fame, that it is even whispered that he has aspirations for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. This may be a heartless joke of some rival journalist, but it is certain that the Louisville Courier-Journal thought it prudent to warn him of the fate of poor Horace Greeley. As to politics, Mr. Dana has declared that "Republicans must go," and as a general rule Republican editors "go" for him. In this way the Sun is capitally advertised, finds it way to every nook and corner of the land, and shines to the satisfaction of its owners. Mr. Dana is charged with having dreamed after listening to a sermon on Jacob's ladder that, ascending to the home of the blessed were Samuel J. Tilden and Benjamin F. Butler, while passing down on the other side were Roscoe Conkling and Chester A. Arthur. This, whether a fabrication or not, illustrates the peculiar bias of the Sun and its editor in national politics. There are many good things and some naughty things in every edition of the Sun, and in most of our great dailies also, but with all its faults it is a representative American newspaper.

Brain and Moral Food.

The SOUTHWESTERN never had so good a list of paying subscribers as now, and yet we believe that if every minister in charge of a work were to present the paper to his congregation, and solicit subscriptions from those he visits, that in less than two months the list would be more than doubled. It is not every Christian pastor who realizes the fact that the people will read, that the mind must be fed, and will be fed either from the immoral sensational trash that is flooding our land to-day, by the unwholesome diet of a mere secular press too often filled with accounts murders, thefts, arson, rapine incest, which only tend to vitiate and corrupt; or by a wholesome religious litrature full of brain and moral food adapted to all ages and conditions, condition of society. If our boys and girls read nothing but the sensational and the secular, they will grow up with a distaste to the church or any thing that can result in good. We believe that while our preachers are mostly good men, and lovers of morality and good society, too many of them are actually dead as to the circulation of a healthy religious literature. Talk and three or four resolutions of endorsement passed by an Annual or District Conference are pleasant, but it is a cheap and easy way for men to ease their conscience. The resolutions have been published. And now we are looking for the subscribers. Come to the front, brethren. Put the SOUTHWESTERN into the hands of the people, give them something to read that will result in good to the parents and children.

St. Louis is in a state of rebellion against the authorities of the State. The liquor dealers, barbers and the keepers of cigars stands and some others, are holding public and private meetings and have resolved to continue their business each day of the week in defiance of laws. They seek freedom from the restraint of any and all law that interferes with their business. They want to make money lawfully or unlawfully, and have resolved not only to do away with all Sabbath law but with the Sabbath itself, and so far as possible with all religion. They insist that they are freemen, and will have no Sabbath, no religion, no preacher, and no God. They will have nothing but their own reason to guide and govern them. Just now people are looking towards Missouri and wondering whether the State is to silently overlook these conspirators, and thus encourage the spirit of lawlessness among the people.

At the recent session of the Indiana Conference the reports showed 2,027 probationers and 20,888 members; Sunday-schools with 23,795 scholars; $6,903 had been raised for missions, Church Extension $1,119,05, for Freedmen's Aid $512.68, being an increase of $235.20, and $1,916.02 was divided among the worn-out and needy preachers. The Conference reaffirmed its determined opposition to the liquor traffic, and in view of the approaching temperance campaign said, "that ministers ought more than ever to discuss the temperance question in the pulpit and on the platform, and in every possible way arouse public feeling in favor of prohibition." This seems to be a momentous crisis, and no minister should allow himself to be silent. Every one should speak earnestly and help on the great reform.

The recent discussion among our Presbyterian brethren on the great lack of ministers in this country has gone across the Atlantic, and there is a prospect of a ministerial immigration to this country. This leads the Herald and Presbyter to advise these brethren to "go slow" and "not to be in too much of a hurry." The ministerial famine is not so great as you may imagine. Indeed, some deny that there is any famine. It would be wise before buying steamer tickets to correspond with those capable of advising in the matter. Whereupon the Central justly remarks:

There is no lack of ministers in this country; it is the quality rather than the number that is under discussion, although this phase of the subject is not made prominent.

We do not know why it is but there seems to be on the part of some men, who have no intellectual qualification or moral fitness for the work of the ministry, a consuming desire to get into the pulpit. Think of a man standing in the pulpit and telling the people about good old John the Baptist being banished by the Sanhedrim to the Isle of Patmos to starve, but God had the ravens go and feed him for six years. This is the result of the most stupid ignorance. Such men either cannot or will not learn, and if from the pulpit our people are to receive their best instruction let us see to it that we do not allow men thus incompetent to stand in the place from whence our people are to receive their best counsels and their divinest inspirations.

PERSONAL

—Ex-President Hayes was elected President of the National Prison Association.

—Dr. Bosso, who advertised an infallible yellow fever cure, died of that disease in Pensacola.

—Admiral Pierre, commander of the French fleet in Madagascar, arrived at Marseilles, dying.

—The funeral of Ivan Tourgeneff, the great Russian novelist, took place in Paris on the 7th.

—Bishop Foster has returned from Europe and the East, accompanied by his son and daughter.

—Senator Voorhies, of Indiana, has been employed to defend young Nutt, the slayer of Dukes, at Uniontown, Pa.

—Death has entered the household of Gov. McEnery and removed his infant son, George, aged eight weeks. May the Lord comfort the bereaved parents.

—The article of Rev. J. M. Shumpert, published Aug. 16th, has converted a Baptist of [illegible] Landing, Ark., and he has become a subscriber to this paper.

—Rev. Rufus Pratt, a much esteemed member of [illegible] Conference, in the superannuate relation, died of paralysis at his home in Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 31st.

—Emery Storrs is said to possess 300 neckties. What advantage to him if he gain a thousand neckties and lose his own collar-button some morning under the bureau?—New York Graphic.

—President Arthur has returned to the White House from his Western trip. His reception at all points was most cordial, and the sights have been pleasing and beneficial to the weary statesman.

—Rev. W. G. Williams, formerly Professor in Allegheny College, now pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Jamestown, N. Y., was elected President of Lima Seminary, at Lima, N. Y., by a unanimous vote of the trustees.

—Mr. Clement Studebaker, of South Bend, Ind., member of the Book Committee, during his stay at Chautauqua, ordered 140 sets of the Assembly Herald to be sent to as many preachers in the North Indiana Conference.

—Mrs. Sallie F. Chapin, our Southern superintendent, is not deterred by even a Southern summer's heat from journeying to and fro, up and down the country in the interest of the W. C. T. U. After an extended tour in South Carolina she has gone to Alabama, and from there goes probably to Tennessee and Mississippi.—Union Signal.

—Rev. W. P. Thirkield closes his pastorate at McLean Church, in this city, under the most favorable circumstances. Brother Thirkield, at the urgent solicitation of the authorities of the Church, enters upon our Southern work, as Dean of the Theological School, Clark University, at Atlanta, Ga. He is an excellent scholar, an enthusiastic and able preacher, a devoted friend of the colored people, and an efficient and successful worker. He carries with him to his new field of labor the confidence and prayers of his Church and brethren of the Cincinnati Conference.—Western.

—We had a pleasant call last week, from Rev. L. N. Taylor of Missouri Conference. This is a mixed conference. Brother Taylor is a colored man, but says nothing could induce him to enter a conference where the color line is drawn. The conference being entitled to one student in Garrett Biblical Institute, Bro. Taylor at its last session was by nearly a unanimous vote selected, and will at the opening of the school this fall enter with the expectation of staying till he has completed the entire course.

—We were glad to receive a call from Rev. W. McDonald, presiding elder of the Gulf district, Mississippi Conference. Bro. McDonald reports a good degree of prosperity in nearly all the churches on his district. Three new churches have been completed, and four more are in progress of erection. At nearly all the appointments the Holy Spirit seems to rest upon the people, and sinners are being converted to God. Some of the preachers are pushing out into new territory and enlarging the borders of Zion. Few men are more absorbed in their work than Bro. McDonald.

—Sabbath, Sept. 2d, we worshipped with the people at the First Street Methodist Episcopal Church this city. The house was filled to its utmost capacity. The singing was excellent. The Holy Spirit seemed to fill the house and all hearts were filled with doxologies. There were present, two notable men, Revs. Thomas Peterson and Henry Green. Mr. Peterson is a native of Virginia. He was sold to a slave-driver in 1829 and started for New Orleans. On his way South the man who bought him stopped at Russellville, Ky. One night while there he strayed into a Methodist Church. He had just been sold from home, his heart was tender, and that night he entered into covenant relation with the Almighty. In 1830 he reached New Orleans [illegible] has ever since [illegible] now pastor of two of the largest congregations in Carrollton, loved and respected by his people. Henry Green is a superannuated member of the Louisiana Conference. Few men have a better record. He is short in stature, a good worker, a hard and square hitter of sin and errors, a man who follows John Wesley's motto steadily, and

"Hates the sin with all his heart,
And still the sinner loves."

No man in the Louisiana Conference is more respected by his brethren than this veteran. His hair is white as snow, and his heart as sweet as honey. He has shown himself an honest, earnest lover of his church. Long may he remain with us.

The Raleigh Baptist Recorder says: "We must believe and be baptized before we can be saved." May be, but we have always supposed that the converted thief got into paradise without the application of water. We have supposed that he was saved by faith only.

Samuel Bell, West Station, Miss., writes that he is teaching a school of fifty pupils, and is hopeful of the future of his people.

[illegible] which were originated and are [illegible] Hartzell, is to [illegible] interest in Christian education [illegible] in the South. One of the measures strongly urged is a national appropriation of a large sum, to be distributed among the States according to their illiteracy. Have the more illiterate States can object to [illegible] seem than I can comprehend, unless their ignorance has made the masses incapable of reasoning, and the demagogues are endeavoring to keep them ignorant in order that they may still have them under their control. If I could reach the ears of these ignorant ones I would say to them, beware of the leaders that object to the spread of education among the people. They know that your intelligence will be fatal to their sway. They are blind leaders of the blind, and as soon as your eyes are opened their leadership will cease, and their occupation be gone. Beware of them. You will know them by this one mark, that they will oppose all practical measures for the education of the masses. If you do not wish to be serfs yourselves, and have your children serfs, beware of these men. They are found in all our States, but especially in those where illiteracy abounds.

But I forget that I was giving an account of the Educational Assembly. The trumpet gave no uncertain sound with reference to a general system of education, whether it was blown by men from the North or South, by men of Caucasian or of Negro race. It was as exhilirating as a bath in the ocean surf to see the earnestness that was displayed by some of the leading men of the nation. There was John Eaton, the Commissioner of Education, and Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, the father of the measure for a national grant for education, and Bishop Harris, of the M. E. Church, and Dr. Price, a wonderful colored orator, of the A. M. E. Church, and Dr. Newman, so well known in New Orleans, and Dr. Moss, of the Baptist Church, President of Indiana University, and Dr. Crummell, colored, rector of an Episcopal Church in Washington, who gave an unique and able address on the condition and needs of the colored women. But I must stop giving names or I will have a catalogue of at least fifty, from the North and the South, the East and the West, of all the leading denominations, and from both the great political parties. If the words and the resolutions of such a representative body of men do not have some effect upon the actions of our national legislators, then it will be evident that some more aggressive measures must be adopted. "We shall see what we shall see." One thing (among many others) was specially noticeable in the proceedings, and that was that no effort had been made to make it run in an exact groove, fitted for it before hand. For while there was entire agreement on the main question, the importance of educating the children of the country, yet upon minor points each man had views of his own, and he expressed them without reserve, and yet the harmony of feeling and of action was not in the least marred by this freedom. If there were some things said that might jar a little upon the nerves of the more conservative Southerner, there were also some things said in favor of him and his actions in the past, that, to those whose experience and observation has been most extensive, might seem to need some modification, but to these expressions no objection was made, so far as I heard, for every reasonable man recognized the principle that in working out great social problems every one must be permitted to have his own opinions and his own mode of expressing them. Every gospel of reform must have the three following principles of the Evangelical Alliance (free translation): "In aims unity; in modes, liberty; in all things, charity." These were the principles of the Educational Assembly, and I doubt not that every one who will subscribe to them will be cordially welcomed among its laborers. I have not attempted any abstract of the proceedings for two reasons: first, I could not give a satisfactory one with much more space than you can allow me; second, the entire proceedings are to be published by Phillips & Hunt at the low price of one dollar, post paid. I doubt not they will be for sale at the office of the SOUTHWESTERN, and I would recommend every friend of educational progress to buy one. Aside from the pleasure of reading them he will find statistics of great value, which he can find in a collected form no where else.

The Freedmen's Aid Society held its anniversary the day after the close of the Educational Assembly. The speakers that addressed it were largely the same as had spoken at the Assembly; and Dr. Rust had, to some extent, his pick among these. The speeches were of a high order. The report was probably the most encouraging that has ever been made. I have forgotten the exact amount of the collections for the year, but they were more than twenty-five per cent. greater than the year before. Three of the universities, at least, and I think four, have had new buildings erected during the year. Next year I hope to be able to state that New Orleans University has had its long felt want supplied, and a new building is going up on Coliseum Park. Drs. Rust and Hartzell were highly pleased with the anniversary, and were warmly congratulated on the prosperous condition of the Society. Space forbids a report of the proceedings.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society was permitted to hold its anniversary in the auditorium at Ocean Grove. This privilege had been denied them last year, on what ground I do not know, but I presume from the fact that being born since the last General Conference, it has not yet be adopted as one of its children. That objection will probably be removed next spring. Mrs. Rust seemed to be as much at home at the head of that society as the Doctor is at the head of the Freedmen's Aid. I was not able to remain the whole day, but from what I saw and heard it equaled in interest any of the six days of consecutive educational and missionary assemblies. Young as it is the society is doing a noble work, as we well know in New Orleans, though its funds allow it to give us but a fraction of the labor that is needed there. The people of the North will do well to cherish this young organization, and the people of the South ought to be very grateful that it was ever established, and to co-operate with it in every possible way. Opposition to it or to any of its workers would hardly find place for pardon. May it live long and thrive as greatly as its most enthusiastic friends can hope or desire.

SUNDAYSCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON XII. Sept. 16th. A PRAYING MOTHER. (Sam. i. 21-28)

Our lesson is about a good mother. Her name was Hannah. For a long time she never had a child, and so she prayed for a son and at last one came to make her happy. His name was Samuel. She loved her son and wanted to raise him to work for God. When he was a child Hannah took him up to God's temple in Shiloh, and gave him to Eli to help him in God's service. It must have been hard to leave him and go back home, but she wanted him to belong to God, and so she went away singing a song of praise. She knew God would take care of him and she would pray for him.

Now you see what our text means, "I have lent him to the Lord. So long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord." Hannah gave Samuel to work for God. May be you've been given to God and don't know it. Are you baptized? If you are, then your father and mother have given you to the Lord.

If you have never been baptized can't you ask your mother to lend you to the Lord? And be sure you lend yourself to God by loving him.—Western.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal intimates that startling disclosures about the dynamite conspiracy and McDermott's connection therewith will soon be made. The arrival of many Irish-Americans at Liverpool, and the receipt of alarming telegrams from the United States, is thought to portend trouble at that city when O'Donnell, the slayer of informer Carey, arrives.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The International News Co. 29-30 Beekman street, New York, have supplied us with a copy of Bow Bells, an English family magazine of fiction, with supplements of fashions, needle work, music etc. Price 35c.

Electra for September makes a good appearance. It has an engraving of Mrs. E. Barret Browning prefacing a tasteful variety of reading matter. Published by Isabella M. Layburn, 734 Fourth avenue, Louisville, Ky. Terms $2 per year.

The series of papers on "The New Era in American Architecture," announced last year as in preparation for The Century, has been largely increased in value by many illustrations of recent architectural work, and will appear in the coming volume of that magazine It is announced that these papers will present drawings and popular descriptions of public buildings, churches, commercial buildings, city and country houses, the aim being to include the best work of American architects.

The September Wide Awake begins a serial story "Buttered Crusts." Benny's Disappearance" is a story of a boy who was circus-crazed and met with a singular adventure. Another story for boys is Bobby's "Business Experience." In "Some Educated Horses," is a readable description of Prof. Bartholomew's show horses and their performances illustrated. There is a comedy, a Central American story, a lecture on snooks, a cooking lesson, Chautauqua Union Reading. Take it all in all, this is a very fair number of one of the brightest and best juvenile publications in America. Only $2.50 a year, D. Lothrop & Co. Boston, Mass., publishers.

The Popular Science Monthly for September begins with a clear exposition of "The Germ-Theory of Disease," by Dr. H. Gradle. Dr. Felix L. Oswald continues "The Remedies of Nature" with a paper on "Asthma," and its treatment. In "Fire-proof Building Construction" Mr. William E. Ward describes and recommends a system of building with iron and beton without wood, which he has tried and found practicable and effective. "Insanity," is derived from the author's own exprience, as to points in which the treatment of the insane and the management of asylums should be improved. Mr. E. T. Merrick presents a different view of "Our Marriage and Divorce Laws" from that which was given by Mr. Stewart in the June number especially as relates to conditions in the Southern States. In "How the Earth was Peopled," by the Marquis de Saporta, the eminent French botanist and paleontologist, discussing the origin and antiquity of man, attempts to show in what way and by what means the human race became scattered over all the continents at the very earliest stages of its existence. In "Insects and Disease" Professor A. E. A. King charges mosquitoes with being the most active and efficient agents in the dissemination of malarial poison. "The Chemistry of Cookery," "Agricultural Experiment Stations," "Ways of Preserving Food," and "Primitive Map-Making," are of practical or special interest. The editor vigorously sustains Mr. Adams in his attack on "The Dead Language Superstition." The late Sir William Logan, of the Canadian Geological Survey, is the subject of a biographical sketch accompanied by the usual portrait.

There are over 10,000 men employed on the Panama Canal.

The troubles in Croatia continue, and four Austrian regiments have been sent to the aid of the Ban. The peasants have purchased large quantities of arms.

Wm. Fellowes of New York, sold Cote Blanche Island, Louisiana, to Mr. Edward Scannell of St. James Parish for $90,000, the Sugar Bowl is informed.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel E. Appleton, of Philadelphia, is represented as telling of a marriage which he solemnized, at which the groom stated to him that he was a little short of money, and proposed to send him an educated parrot in lieu of the customary fee. To this the Doctor assented, when the groom inquired whether he had a cage. The clergyman had none, and on being informed that he could get a good one for $2.50, handed that amount to the groom, and naturally enough has seen nothing of groom, bride, parrot, cage, or the $2.50 since.

TURNIP SOUP.—Cut one quarter pound of lean bacon or ham, also an onion, a turnip and a little celery into small, thin slices, and put them into a stewpan with one-quarter pound of butter. Keep stirring them for about twenty minutes over a sharp fire until forming a light colored glaze at the bottom of the pan; have ready about twelve turnips, washed, peeled and cut into thin slices; put them into the stewpan with about a pint of broth or water, stew them until tender and then stir in two tablespoonfuls and one-half of flour as smoothly as possible. To this add two quarts of white stock and half a pint of milk, keep stirring it until it boils, season this with two teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar and one of salt, rub it through a tammy and put it back into the stewpan to boil for five minutes, keeping it well skimmed during the time; just at the time of serving stir in a gill of cream. This is not essential, but it is a great improvement to the soup. Small dice of bread fried in butter and [illegible] should be served up with it.

The wheat of Sonora is noted for being [illegible] of the Republic, [illegible] years ago to California for [illegible] wheat and flour. It is extensively cultivated, and Sonora alone is able to furnish to [illegible] of the Republic bread. [illegible] mines have been worked [illegible] and can yet be with the guarantees of security [illegible] protection of [illegible] of this country. Owing [illegible] revolutions, and civil dis[illegible] that have [illegible] years life and property [illegible] frequently [illegible] paralyzed [illegible] culture of sugar-cane [illegible] being carried on [illegible] and [illegible] for [illegible] the lands along the [illegible] being [illegible] to its culture. [illegible] that have [illegible] in Mexico and [illegible] undoubtedly be completed will do more toward the development and prosperity of this beautiful country than has been accomplished in the past century. They will inaugurate a new era of commercial and industrial activity, and will do much to insure peace by opening to the inhabitants new avenues of employment and enterprise, which will render revolutions (heretofore so frequent) less probable. The various consular reports have fully shown the commercial requirements of Mexico, and have furnished much careful and intelligent information as to the manner in which our trade with Mexico can be increased and successfully carried on. In those places where American goods have already been sold the sale can be continued and increased. Where American good have not been placed the trade needs to be carefully studied, and then pushed steadily. Our woven fabrics, machinery, tools, cutlery, watches, arms, etc., are justly more popular and more eagerly sought for than the same articles from Europe. This trade is at our doors, and Mexico can be made one of the richest markets for our productions.

The total value of our exports to Mexico last year was $19,198,000, while we imported $16,317,000, of which $9,115,624 were in coin and bullion.

Divine Compassion.

I was a stricken deer that left the herd
Long since, with many an arrow deep infixed
My panting side was charged, when I withdrew
To seek a tranquil death in distant shades.
There was I found by one who had himself
Been hurt by archers; in his side he bore,
And in his hands and feet, the cruel scars.
With gentle force solliciting the darts,
He drew them forth, and healed, and bade me live.
—Cowper.

Dr. A. G. Haygood, in his address at Chautauqua, said: "We hear somewhat about the right of the General Government to grant this aid to the public schools in the States. It is too late to raise this question. From the time of Washington the General Government has been doing things that involved the principle and asserted the right to extend aid from the public funds to aid the work of education in the States. Time and again Congress has set aside public lands for the aid of education in the several States. As to this call for national aid, so far as the South is concerned in it, there is one fact already alluded to, a [illegible] right in the heart of the question, that no constitutional metaphysics or legal sophistries can dispose of or make other than it is, to wit: The nation exercised the right to declare several millions of slaves free citizens, and gave them the ballot before they could read. The time has come that the nation should exercise the right, seeing that it has the ability, to do what can be done to prepare them to be what they are not—intelligent citizens; to do what it can to help them to get ready to be free indeed, and that they may vote not merely as 'Freedmen,' but as free men. If the nation owes nothing to its own safety it owes this to its wards."

Instead of offering a harbor of refuge to to the oppressed of all nations this country is just now placed in the attitude of refusing [illegible] to those who are within its jurisdiction. Twenty-four Chinamen now on board a vessel in this port, who complain of ill treatment, are refused the privilege of landing to seek redress in our courts. For the credit of the country we [illegible] that it may be shown that our laws will not bear such a construction.—New York Tribune.

Could Hardly Stand on Her Feet.

H. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I must tell you what your medicine has done for me. Before taking your 'Favorite Prescription' I could hardly stand on my feet, but, by following your advice, I am perfectly cured. The 'Favorite Prescription' is a wonderful medicine for debilitated and nervous females. I cannot express how thankful I am to you for your advice. Yours truly,
MRS. CORNELIA ALLISON, Peoria, Ia.

Lost Friends.

(We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.)

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people whom I left in Virginia about 24 years ago. Mother was Melvina and father Isaac Trumbull. Mother had ten children. We were sold to Thomas Coats; to a man named Slater; also, in Richmond, to a Mr. Hunley. Oldest brother was Jacob; one brother was Charley. My name is Fanny. I had a child when I was sold about two years old. Brother Charley was sold just before I was. He was a ditcher, and when he heard that he had been sold he came home one evening, laid his arm down on a log and cut it off. I married and my husband is Robert Ward. Address me at Cold Springs, Texas, care of Rev. W. McKenzie.
FANNY WARD.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to inquire for a lady, Millie Bradley, who was sent to Texas in 1863 or 1864, and who formerly belonged to Dr. Bradley. After his death the property was divided and she and her daughter Mollie was sold to Texas. They once belonged to Judge Purvis, who was burned to death at Monroe, La. I am the son who went to Bastrop with Millie Hughes, who married [illegible] Miller there. I now go by the name of Dusin, because I was picked up in Louisville, Ky., by a Mr. Dusin, and raised by him. The old Doctor used to keep a printing office in Monroe on the levee, and I used to roll ink for him. Address me at No. 11 Villere street, Algiers, La., or St. Mathew M. E. Church, care Rev. R. C. Barrow.
FRANK DUSIN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives. Mother was Acenith. One brother was Sam. Two sisters, the oldest Nancy, and Mary. We belonged to a Mr. Southerling, in Arkansas, who lived near Memphis, Tenn. He sold us to John Bange, who brought us to Texas. Mother got two of her middle fingers cut off with a shuck cutter while cutting shucks to feed the cows. She was sold to a Mr. Cain. She came to see us once after we were sold and a short time after that we moved to Rock Wall. I was then sold from my oldest sister and brought South. I have been anxious since I was ten years old to learn something about my relatives. Address me at Double Bayou, Chambers co., Texas.
EDMOND THOMAS.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my people. Mother was Pearline, stepfather was Sam. Mother had two sets of children. There were five of us, and two died before I left home. The oldest, Sophronia, was sold first; there were Fannie, Morgan, Anderson and myself. Parents belonged to John Bonden. The old man and I was sold to a Mr. Currel, and he died, and mistress married again and carried me to Kentucky. My people were living in St. Charles county, Missouri, when I was sold for cutting off two of my young boss's fingers. It has been about 46 years since I saw or heard from my people. Then I was sold from Kentucky to New Orleans. Last owner was Mrs. Moore. Write to me at Union Chapel M. E. Church, New Orleans, care Rev. S. Priestley.
CLARISSA REED.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find my mother, whom I left in Mobile, Alabama, in 1873, about the 20th of January. Her name is Rhoda Taylor. I have heard since that time, but it has been two years since I have heard from her. Address me at Midway, Texas.
AARON TAYLOR.

Years before the war I was sold by the Austin family, from Buckingham C. H., Va., and was carried to Richmond, where I remained a short time. Mr. James Whitefield took me from Richmond to Mississippi, where I have remained ever since. I was sold when but ten years of age, by the youngest son of the Austins. My father was Jesse, mother Amy, oldest sister Betsy, next Mary, other sisters were Ann, Prudence and Amy. Brothers' names were Daniel the oldest, Sawny, Jesse, Tase, Davy and Cambrick. We all belonged to the Austin family, near Buckingham, C. H., Va. Address, box 1, Columbus, Miss.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate,

A Reliable Article.

Dr. E. Cutter, Boston, Mass., says: "I found it to realize the expectations raised, and regard it as a reliable article."

The colored people of Brooklyn, New York, are endeavoring to raise money to build a church at San Domingo for their own people. Protestantism is in its infancy in the island; there is not a Protestant church in the city of San Domingo. Services are held for the colored people in a dwelling in the outskirts of the city. So many are attracted to these services that it is necessary to erect a building. The Government of San Domingo will donate a suitable lot as soon as the funds are secured for the building.

Kate Shelly, whose heroic conduct in 1881 saved from destruction by falling through a broken bridge a passenger train on the Chicago and Northwestern railway, is to be given the advantages of a collegiate education. Simpson Centenary College is to give her free tuition and ladies of Des Moines and other places and one or two Methodist Episcopal churches have furnished means to pay her expenses for the first year. Miss Francis E. Willard inaugurated this beautiful charity and acts as agent for it. Subscriptions are received by the editor of the Signal, Chicago.

A locomotive on the Elizabethtown Railway was thrown from the track by running over a cow, and Engineer Higgins fell under the boiler, where he was enveloped in scalding steam. "Leave me," he cried to the men who were trying to pull him out, "and flag No. 7, right away." This was done, and a terrible wreck prevented, while the brave engineer was being burned to death.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

TUTT'S PILLS

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last spring your pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. T. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. [illegible] of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed, and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully [illegible], and is well adapted for quartet, chorus and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social worship and the home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages, especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Bound in cloth, gilt, 272 pages, and portrait. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Address, PHILLIPS & HUNT,
32 Natchez street, New Orleans.

USE THE

A WONDERFUL
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.
These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as was as first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analyzed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:
1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish, hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA, SEPTEMBER 20, 1883. WHOLE NUMBER 626.

Texas Conference.

The district conference of Marshall district, Texas Conference, convened at Clarksville, Red River county, Texas, August 29, 1883. The indefatigable presiding elder of the district, Rev. W. L. Malloy, in the chair. The business of the conference was carefully transacted under his supervision, and life and interest given to every service, religious and literary, connected with the occasion by his tact and superior management. He is the right man in the right place. Few men understand the colored people better than he, and being deeply interested in their moral and intellectual improvement he has given to them the best years of his life, for which he has "suffered the loss of all things." The colored people love him and confide in him, and will work under his direction. They say he is our friend, or this they have many infallible proofs. He is closing up his fourth year on the district, and from the reports presented to the conference by the pastors of the different charges it is evident the district is in a state of great prosperity. The preachers are an active, earnest body of men interested in all that pertains to the church and the welfare of their race. We heard some of them preach and they greatly excelled our expectations. Some of them are thirsting after knowledge that they may become more efficient workmen in the vineyard of the Master. They are much careful than their white brethren to attend their regularly constituted bodies of the church. From the size of this conference I concluded few of its members were abstinent. I noticed that few of the preachers used tobacco; they are as free from this filthy habit as the same number of preachers anywhere I have seen. I have seen a district conference where the opening hymn was sung and prayer offered at one of its sessions in a cloud of tobacco smoke, and during the transaction of business three or four dirty spittoons were the targets for a score of filthy mouths, and in the general fire the floor did not escape. Here I saw neither pipe, cigar, nor spittoons, nor soiled floor. God bless these men! we enjoyed our visit among them. The people understand the injunction "not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is," for at every preaching service there was not room for the people, though the church was capable of seating between four and five hundred. The general appearance, the congregation was fine, clean, well clothed, and intelligent. On inquiry I found quite a number of the people owned their homes, were industrious, saving and accumulating wealth. I could not but say as I looked on that fine body of people "What hath God wrought."

In Clarksville they have built a fine frame church at a cost of about $2500; this includes the sweet toned bell in the spire. The house was dedicated to the worship of almighty God on Sabbath Sept. 2d, 1883. The writer by invitation of Bro. Malloy preached the dedicatory sermon at 3 p. m., to a vast gathering of people, after which our beautiful ritual was read and the house consecrated to God. Then the people shouted, sang and shouted, and who could blame them; they had by sacrifice on the part of many provided a resting place for the Lord and the ark of His covenant among them, and God had accepted their offering and blessed them, and they had a right to shout.

At night Bro. Malloy preached to a crowded house, three united with the church, thus closed a memorable day in Clarksville among our colored people.

S. A. THOMSON.

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 10th, 1883.

Trouble in Arkansas.

DEAR EDITOR:—I desire to say a word about Bro. E. Gamble, a local preacher in our church, who lived in Hempstead county in this State, and who was on the 1st of August shot down by white men like a dog. From what I have been able to learn from friends who lived in that community, a white man went into a colored man's field and struck the colored man's daughter and killed her and went off for a while. The colored people armed themselves and went to arrest the white man and he made war with them and he killed one of their number. Then the colored men killed the white man in trying to take him. That night the white people of that and the adjoining county came together, armed themselves, and on the next morning started out to take vengeance on the colored people of that part of the country. The colored people had come together days before arrangements to burn their brother and friend who fell a victim to death the day before. About two hundred white men all well armed, rode up and commenced to fire on the colored men, killing three or four of them, and among those killed was Bro. E. Gamble. Bro. E. Gamble was a very inoffensive man. He attended to his own business. He is a great loss to the church there. He left a wife and brother and other relatives to mourn his loss. There were six or eight colored persons killed in that trouble. Nothing has been done that I know of, but about eighty of the colored men were arrested and drove to jail like cattle to the slaughter. The last I heard of the matter was an appeal had been made to the Governor for supplies to feed their victims. This of course is all that will be done, except send a good large number of colored to the State prison, as is always the case. "Watchman, what of the night?" When shall justice be given the colored race of this and other Southern States. Yours respectfully, G. W SAMS.

Little Rock, Ark, Sept. 13, 1883.

The White Rioters of Marshall

MR. EDITOR—When I consider the evil deeds of men in the South it stirs me up to speak a few words through the SOUTHWESTERN, if you will allow me space in your valuable columns. The following is a true statement of recent outrages that occurred in Marshall. On last Saturday, Rev. A. M. Gregory, a Methodist preacher of the West Texas Conference, was in this city with authority from the Governor of the State of Texas to organize military companies. On Saturday while Col. Gregory was organizing, about 25 men, whites of this city came suddenly and violently upon him, disbanded his men, took his roll from him, poked pistols in his face, punched him around and gave him orders to leave town by eleven o'clock Sunday morning. This brother had wrenched his back by making a false step in getting off the train, which caused him to be disabled to walk without help. The colored brethren, seeing how he was being treated, that evening concluded to send seven or eight men to stay with him that night, and to help him to take the train. His white persecutors came back that same night to mob him. About twelve armed men left a body of near 200 behind them, while they went to try the water. Fortunately the women had dressed Bro. Gregory in women's clothes and carried him to another place. A few colored men lingered near but not at the very place of secrecy. On came the mob to the place where they had left him in the evening. Failing to find him there they rored through what is commonly called "Happy Hollow in search of him. They came pretty close to the place where he was hid, and finding several colored men at a certain brother's house they pushed in. The colored men cried "Halt!" The whites said "Look out!" and fired upon the colored family, shooting two children, one in the foot, the other in the knee. After this a few colored men fired at the whites. The latter went back to town, the bell was tolled and 200 returned to the same portion of town, broke into houses, and tore things every way. The whites now propose to keep the colored people from having any society but church. God bless the women and men who studied for the safety of Bro. Gregory so wisely! On Sunday morning about 100 whites went to the train to mob him if they could but see him attempt to get on. The U. B. T. Society had just buried a brother member on Friday, and turned out in their uniform so nicely that it created a spirit of envy and hatred among the whites, so while the society was holding one of its meetings on Saturday night the mob broke them up, and men had to procure passes to go home. On Tuesday Adjutant General King was sent to Marshall by Gov. Ireland to investigate the matter, and a committee was chosen—six colored, four whites—and they decided that the colored people attempted to riot, and claimed innocence for the whites. The latter now want to kill all whose names were found on the military roll captured from Bro. Gregory. God only knows how many they have killed from home; they are bringing black men and lodging them in jail almost shot to pieces. Several good men of color have left Marshall for refuge or security. The whites plead their own cases—we are guilty, they are clear. OBSERVER.

Taking a Rest.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN—Dear sir. I desire to say through your paper that I am going to take a few weeks of much needed rest in the North, but that my address is still Grenada, Miss. The fourth round in Holly Springs District, will be published in due time.

Truly Yours, L. BRADFORD.

Grenada, Miss. Sept. 14th, 1883.

The Louisiana Lottery Company has brought a suit against the Postmaster-General because, as he had a right to do and was bound to do, he will not permit the company to use the United States Mail for its gambling purposes. If the suit ever comes to actual trial the court will make short work of it.—N. Y. Independent.

Hot Springs District, Little Rock Conference.

I began the work of the third quarter on this district at Fulton August. We had a very pleasant quarterly conference. Rev. J. T. Thompson, of Camden circuit, was with us and gave valuable assistance. Three joined the church making nine accessions on this charge this year. The pastor, Bro. Spencer, has met strong opposition from the C. M. E. and Baptist Churches, but has made some advance, and has the foundation laid for a church 22x36, which he hopes to finish by Conference.

Camden quarterly conference, J. T. Thompson pastor, was held Aug. 23, at Emmett, in the A. M. E. church, and according to their time honored custom they tried to defeat us in our meeting, and although the stewards took a collection and gave it to a Baptist preacher who happened to be visiting the church that night, I think they were worse defeated than we were. They voluntarily invited us to hold our services in their church, as we have no building there, and I think the outcropping of the old Adam in them that night will result in good to our cause. We have had two accessions and one baptism on this charge since conference.

Texarkana conference, M. Lockman pastor, was held Aug. 25-26. We had a full attendance of the official brethren, as good a quarterly meeting, if not the best, we have had in Texarkana. The pastor is gaining ground and overcoming the difficulties that have stood in our way for some time. This charge has had a few conversions and baptisms and seventeen accessions since conference, with better prospects ahead.

Lewisville, O. Wheeler, pastor. I reached this work Aug. 30, and remained till Sept. 5th. Here I found a congenial home with our white friends, Col. Hamiter and Major Dickson, who are members of the Southern Methodist Church, and although they were slaveholders once they now rejoice at the success of our church among their former slaves. This charge has had five accessions and thirty baptisms since conference.

Paraclifta, G. W. Baber, pastor. The third quarterly conference was held at Baber's Chapel, Sept. 8-9. This is a young society organized less than a year ago, but is proving to be a valuable addition to Paraclifta Circuit. We had a full attendance at quarterly meeting, the large church being well filled at each service. On Sunday a goodly number of white people attended services. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to 131 persons. The collections were as follows: For presiding elder $15; pastor $4.80; Missionary Society, $2. The people here are proud of their pastor, and well they may be, for he is doing a grand, good work. On this charge there have been 72 conversions; 77 accessions; 64 received from probation and 45 baptisms since conference. I think, from the way Bro. Baber and his people work, that this charge will not be behind on the benevolences. Altogether on the district we have had over 300 accessions since conference. We have already collected more Church Extension money than the whole conference collected last year. Brethren push the benevolences. L. W. ELKINS, P. E.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Reports from Rev. A. E. P. Albert, presiding elder of the [illegible] Teche district indicate, [illegible] ble progress at nearly every point. Churches and Sunday-schools are doing well generally. The [illegible] crop will be short in that section, however. Cotton picking is going on, but catterpillars are said to be doing much damage.

A. J. Pickett, Pleasant Hill: "When appointed here in 188[illegible] there was no church, now we have a neat church [illegible], with a chandelier worth $20 paid for, and a neat parsonage with three rooms worth $700. Our people are poor and live in log cabins, yet they are willing to do all they can for the gospel. In this part of the pine woods they know nothing about school, but by the encouragement of the presiding elder and diligent work I succeeded in getting three schools on my circuit. Pleasant Hill school is taught by Mrs. A. J. Pickett, and has 52 scholars enrolled; [illegible] chapel, taught by [illegible] Hall, of Franklin, 62 scholars; at Pleasant Valley, taught by Mrs. P. Powell, of Alexandria, 30 scholars. Our people are determined to educate their children. On Friday, Aug. 31, while wife and I were engaged in the church at a lecture by Mrs. P. Powell, one of our missionaries, the [illegible] caught fire. Our three children were in it, but a crowd rushed in and no great damage was done. Washington Jones, a steward of Pleasant Hill Church, [illegible] to church and to see a [illegible] converted. He is a faithful worker. Pray God to send more such men."

TEXAS.

[illegible] C. Moore: "The fourth quarterly conference of the Mt. Vernon M. E. Church, Houston, Rev. [illegible] Roberts, pastor, was held Sept. [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] members taken into the church—34 Baptists."

P. Morgan, Marshall: "I thought [illegible] that I should tell the [illegible] what the Lord is doing for us in Marshall. [illegible] God that I have not [illegible] [illegible] Christ all [illegible] the year. [illegible] [illegible] baptized 13 [illegible] 25 [illegible] before, and [illegible] the presiding elder [illegible] the other parts [illegible] member, but they [illegible] and return. The Sabbath school, conducted by Prof. Webb, is in full bloom, still increasing, and still there are more to follow."

TENNESSEE.

[illegible], Martin Station: "We had a [illegible] time at our camp meeting and conference August 2[illegible] [illegible] of our church at Martin had made the last payment on land and had a clear deed for the church when the conference met. Rev. H. Primm, of Brownsville, and Rev. J. Marberry stayed with us until Wednesday; we were sorry others could not remain. Meeting closed with 15 conversions and 8 additions. In this number was an elder from the Baptist church, and a good worker. The sermons of Revs. F. Woods and L. M. Moores were especially acceptable. The people want them to come again."

ARKANSAS.

O. Wheeler, Lewisville: "This charge is making some advance. We have ordered a bell for the church at Lewisville that will soon take the place of the old cotton sweep that has served as a substitute for a bell for several years. At Walnut Hill we will soon have a new church, and the prospects are good for a prosperous society there. I have baptized 25 infants during the third quarter, making 36 since conference."

For the Southwestern.

Our Father.

"After this manner pray ye: Our Father which art in Heaven." These words of our Savior were addressed to a large company, among whom were representatives of all classes of society. The high and the low, rich and poor, learned and unlearned were in that great multitude. We have high authority for claiming to be God's children. The privilege of saying "our Father" is a pearl of priceless worth, for it is the foundation of our religious strength and consolation. We are plainly taught in the Bible that we belong to a common brotherhood, and our duty to each other is as clearly indicated. He "hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the earth," and He has put us all in our places and given us our work to do. We all have the same Bible to guide us, and we are all going to the grave. We are having mansions in heaven prepared for us, if faithful, and all who are not will have to endure the same punishment. God loves us as His children, and His blessings are not so unequally distributed as some imagine, for the poor, and persecuted, and despised are the greater sharers in His love and sympathy and watchful care. As a mother loves and cares for the weakest of her flock, loving it far more than the most fortunate, and if it is taken from her she yearns for it with a tenderness that only mother-love can understand; and so the unfortunate ones of earth are especially loved of God. For them are his richest spiritual blessings. In our darkest hours we may have the brightest visions of our Father's glory. It is in affliction that we learn to know ourselves, and are purged of our selfishness, and are made kind and loving children ready to do His will. As God's children we should be "kindly affectioned, one to another, with brotherly love, in honor preferring one another." We are not independent. We are a great body, all united by an unseen force, drawing each other upward or downward in proportion as each member is perfect in the sight of God. We cannot build ourselves up without reference to others. "For none of us liveth to himself." It is impossible to prosper in the highest sense, and live for self. If we try, we find that disappointments and dissatisfaction attend us in every effort. We must build ourselves up in connection with others. It is God's plan and in that way He will bless us and we may succeed in life. We often see Pharisees and publicans in our midst. "I thank thee that I am not as others," and, "God be merciful to me, a sinner," is often enacted in real life. One prayer is acceptable of God, the other is not. Many to whom has been given strength and power forget from whence comes their blessings, and despise those who seem to be less favored than themselves. They consider misfortune to be a bar to all intercourse and an excuse for unkind treatment. Spiritual or natural prosperity can never attend the putting of any class of society by itself. The spirit of caste is a foolish delusion, and it has no foundation except in a wicked and senseless custom. It is not in accordance with the teachings of the Bible. People who are strong in a true sense, and are sure of their position, never fear to give the hand of fellowship to those who are weaker than themselves, and it always brings an increase of strength. Those who seek to deprive others of their rights, or in any way to oppress them, are building on a sandy foundation. There is great peril in it. "For whoso shall offend one of these little ones, that believe in me, it were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were drowned in the depth of the sea." God's little ones are the weak ones whom He loves with a tenderness like unto a mother's love. It never detracts from any one's dignity to do a favor or to speak kindly. Kind words and pleasant smiles are never amiss. The poorest of us may give them, and their influence is very great, and they are often worth far more than money. There may always be those near us who are hungering for the kind words that we may say to them. It is not always the poor who are starving for appreciation, and sympathy and encouragement. We think too little of what we may do in the way of encouraging others. God commands us to love one another, and that means every one, no matter in what condition. If we pray for those around us we can have our hearts full of love for them, but if we oppress them we will hate them, and the spirit of God cannot dwell in us. God also requires obedience to his laws. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" is no only a command, and if it is evaded it is a broken law, and the punishment a hardened heart and a shrunken soul, will surely follow. In the discharge of our duty to God and our fellow-beings life may be made a delight. In blessing others, we ourselves are blessed. There are those who believe that an era of great spiritual prosperity is approaching. No doubt it would soon come if we were prepared for it, but it can never come until God sees his children loving one another.

Letter From China.

DEAR EDITOR—"I venture to emulate the example of Tien Fen," but you, perhaps, do not know, as Chinese do, that this is the polite thing to say in presenting an offering, and so I will tell you what Tien Fen did that you may better appreciate my humility. Years ago,—and in this old country that does not mean tens, or scores, but hundreds or perhaps thousands of years—in the Sung dynasty, there was a man by the name of Tien Fen, who lived in the shadow of the mountains of Ssu Chuan. He was a very poor man and knew nothing of fine houses and comfortable rooms warmed by stoves, nor had he ever heard of warm fur garments or lined hats. But one day, during the short visit of the sun, in a favored spot, Tien Fen happened to feel its warmth, and he hastened in to say to his wife, "Probably no one else has ever discovered that the light of the sun will give warmth to the body, truly it is a great luxury and a very comfortable thing. I think, as a good Chinaman, I ought to take a handful of it to our Emperor, he will surely be very grateful and perhaps reward me magnificently." His wife, as do all good wives, quite agreed with her husband, and said, "Since you have made so wonderful a discovery it is your duty as a loyal subject to give the benefit of it to your sovereign." Thus encouraged, he started out on his magnaminious enterprise. On his way he met a man of wealth who, according to the custom of his country, asked him where he was going. "I am going with a handful of sunshine to our Emperor." Before he had time to enlarge upon his discovery the rich man burst into a laugh and said, "You are like the man who had bitter grass growing in his yard, and thinking no one else had such a fine vegetable took some of it to a rich man who ate it and found it very bitter, and instead of being grateful and rewarding the giver, punished him for his impudence. Come with me and I will show you how needless your handful of sunshine is." Saying which he led Tien Fen into his fine house, taking him through his warm rooms, showing him his stoves with their fires burning brightly, and the chests of warm, heavy garments, and explained to the astonished man that these were as nothing compared to the comforts and luxuries which the Emperor had in his palace. The poor man realized how useless would be his humble offering and returned home quite ashamed of his presumption.

Our Girls' school closed the first of the month with forty-two girls, thirteen of whom, after having served a previous trial in school, joined the church on probation during last month. Every year the school is coming to be more and more composed of girls from Christian families, until now less than half of them are from heathen homes. About twenty of our present school came to us with bound feet, and we had the pleasure of taking off the long bandages and giving the poor crushed bones the freedom their Maker intended. Those which were bound for a few years only gradually grew into shape, but when the bones are really crushed, or have been bound for a long time, the feet never regain the natural shape, and there is a perceptible difference in the gait of the person. Of the remaining girls a few only are Chinese, and these are the children of Christians who know we require girls to unbind their feet, and wishing their girls to enter school, have never bound their feet, the rest are Manchus who never bind their feet. Usually the girls are very glad to have the feet released, but sometime ago we met with considerable opposition from one who argued that "Jesus never said unbind your feet!" As we did not immediately force her to act against her will the older girls took the case in hand, went away together and had a prayer-meeting with her, under the influence of which her pride and vanity gave way, and at last she removed the bandages herself. We were at first suspicious that she was keeping them bound even in her new shoes, but our suspicion was removed as there was a frequent demand for larger shoes as the feet gradually expanded. When the new girls came in last winter before we had time to attend to the matter this same girl had unbound the feet of one and in great triumph led the little new comer up to our room in a pair of her own embroidered shoes which she herself had outgrown. At first they always seem a little ashamed of the big shoes and new feet, but they soon "grow courage," and by the time vacation comes are prepared to go home and stand the ridicule of old friends who laugh at them because they have "girls heads and boys feet."

"Last Friday we had the pleasure of welcoming Mrs. Jewell to our Mission. She came from Japan with Mr. Pyke and family who are spending a few days in Tientsin, and will start up the river next Monday. Mrs. Smythe, of Fuchow, is spending the summer in Peking for the study of the Northern Mandarin.

Most of the foreigners are in the Temples at the Western Hills, but even the pure fresh air of those grand mountains cannot insure health and life, and already two little ones have gone from those heathen temples to the Tender Shepherd's care and there are two more mounds in the foreign cemetery, where they buried Miss Campbell of our own Mission and where Mr. and Mrs. Davis laid their dear little Ernest last year. Mr. and Mrs. Holcombe, of U. S. Legation, are in a temple near our Mission and kindly allow us the privilege of sending by their courier, so that those left in the city can have daily communications with those at the Hills.

Mr. Davis has recently returned from a visit to the Tsun Hiea district, about one hundred miles from here. The new chapel on the premises there is completed, thus giving us everything needed for work as carried on by the native helper with visits from the missionaries. The work is so promising in that district that the gentlemen are asking in their estimates for next year for money to build a house for a missionary and family—the house to be built in Chinese style.

Mr. and Mrs. Gamewell have moved into their new house this week; this brings them into the same court as the Boys' school and gives them better facilities for oversight of school and every day life of the boys.

We are rejoicing in the prospect of a visit from Bishop Merrill, but could not wish it to be more pleasant or profitable than the visit of Bishop Bowman, two years ago.

M. E. Missionary Conference, Peking, China, July 20, 1883.

Letter From Sherman Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—Our district conference closed Sept. 3, and the brethren left feeling and saying that it was the best district conference ever held in the Marshall district. The reports of the pastors showed marked improvement in every department of church work. There has been between two and three hundred conversions and about four hundred accessions to the church this year, and our congregations are on the increase at nearly every appointment. Sunday schools are flourishing and are gaining in popularity and numbers. We have built or are building a number of beautiful churches. There is not a circuit or station on the district that has not added something to the valuation of our church property. We are growing in popularity with all classes of the people, even the whites who have opposed us heretofore are ready and willing to admit that we as a church are doing more for the colored people than all other churches put together. A gentleman of wealth and position, who bitterly opposed us years ago, said to me not long since, that if we would build in his town he would give us a lot, and has made the deed since, and given us as much as any one toward the church. He said he was sick and tired of the way other churches are doing. Rev. S. A. Thompson was with us at Clarksville and dedicated our new church on Sunday. This church is second to none in our conference except Trinity in Houston and St. Paul in Galveston. Bro. Thompson seemed to feel perfectly at home among us, and went to work at once giving advice and lecturing as opportunity offered, and all felt that he came, not as a spectator or to criticise, but to help. He preached two grand sermons, moving the large congregation first to tears then to shouts. All the people fell in love with him. They said, "he is our friend; we feel at home with him." Bro. Thompson did not ask to go to a hotel or public house; he said to me, "I am in your hands and will go wherever you say." He came, he said, to be conquered. He will give you his idea of the work and the general outlook.

Bro. Moore, of the Paris Circuit, has, up to this time, dedicated two new churches, and will have the third by conference. He has received over one hundred into the church. Pray for us.

Your Bro., W. L. MOLLOY.

Sir Henry Maxse, Governor of Newfoundland, died recently.

Letter from Oakland.

MR. EDITOR—We take this opportunity to inform you and the many readers of the SOUTHWESTERN what we have done. We think it is more prudent to tell what we have done than tell what we will do. Our camp meeting was a grand success, resulting in forty conversions and with as many accessions to the Church. We are under many obligations to Revs. P. Johnson, W. H. Stevens, W. H. Davis, R. Cogswell, T. Watkins, and Harris for their earnest labor in this meeting. The church is growing temporally and spiritually. We have raised and paid out for improving and building $345. We have built a splendid church 20x40, and many of our members and friends contributed liberally to this cause. We are now preparing to build another church on this work. Messrs. Charley Farrel, Isham Granger and Sye Daniels gave an entertainment for its benefit and cleared $30. We are enterprising people, and are accumulating property and educating rapidly. Allow me to make a few remarks concerning the Oakland Normal School at this place. Professor G. E. Townsend, a graduate of Whitney Hall Normal School at Lamberton, N. C., as principal. The design of this school was to prepare students for the work of organizing, governing and teaching the public schools of the State among the colored people. Its methods of teaching was on the objective plan, and students are required to teach it, not tell it. Its advantages are that it was taught in the spring and summer months when students could attend and were not teaching in the public schools. Number of students enrolled during the past two years 150. Twenty-five teachers went from this school the first year better qualified to do their work as teachers. Five of these held first grade certificates from different counties, all the rest held second grades, save four. These were over two thousand different scholars taught by these teachers last year. The school was patronized this year by several new teachers and students. There will go from the school this year not less than forty teachers better prepared physically, mentally, morally and spiritually to do their work in the schoolroom. The good this school has done is now felt throughout Colorado, Wharton, Lavaca, DeWitt, Gonzales, Jackson and Fayette counties, in which its teachers are at work. Prof. Townsend will return to the Central Tennessee College this fall to complete his medical course. We feel sad to see him leave, and hope he will return using his skill as a physician in healing the sick. We will miss him in the schoolroom, Sunday-school and pulpit. He endeavors to teach, not only by precept, but by example.

Oakland, Texas, Sept. 1, 1883.

A Government inspection of teas, ordered by an act of this year, was not provided before it was wanted. Gypsum, soapstone, common sand, brick dust, and Prussian blue are among the ingredients of this favorite beverage as it has heretofore been sold. Some of these pleasing substances are used in order to give to the tea a color which adulterated tea never has, some to make it weigh more, and some to dissemble the fact that the virtue is gone out of it. A curiosity in the business seems to be the assumption by each successive handler of the tea on its way from the fields to the consumer that he is the only rascal in the procession. This assumption, so honorable to human nature, makes the ultimate resultant of all these processes a most wonderful compound. It may be that if the inspection continues long enough some New Yorker now living may yet drink an infusion of pure tea, which he certainly will not recognize and probably will not like.—*N. Y. The French Treaty With Anam.

Paris, Aug. 30.—The treaty of peace between France and Anam allows France to station Residents in all the chief towns of Tonquin, who are to be accompanied by the necessary number troops. France may also construct forts on the banks of the Red River. The French Resident at Hue is to have the privilege, which has formerly been refused, of private audiences with the sovereign. Cochin Chinese money is to have currency throughout Anam, and the commercial [illegible] and the system of taxation are to be regulated by conferences, to attend which a French Envoy is about to go to Hue. The treaty also stipulates that Anam shall receive [illegible] francs annually from the Customs receipts. We are not given to sentiment, but humanity is a birth-right and we would be guilty of a great wrong, did we not denounce this disgrace as it deserves. Working convicts in these mines is not like working hired labor. The hired man is free, and when he is sick, can decline to work, or he may knock off and rest a while, but the poor convict must go, sick or well, all the time without rest, until death comes and puts an end to his suffering and his pain. The heartless brute is behind him, goading him on, and though the State's physician, says the man is too sick to work, they still urge him on. The poor wretch may implore, but there is no mercy. He may ask for a fish but they give him a stone. The Christian people of this State, if no one else, should see that this burning, blighting and consuming curse is removed, that humanity be reinstated to drive this barbarism from the land. —*Montgomery (Ala.) Bishop Merrill on Our Work in Japan.

From the Western Christian Advocate we clip the following extract of a letter from Bishop Merrill:

Our own mission here was not the first, and is not the strongest, yet it has gained a commanding position, and holds the esteem of all the Christian communities. The reports at our annual meeting showed a very encouraging increase in members, probationers, Sunday schools, and contributions. The increase in membership was fifty per cent, in collections, eighty per cent, in amounts pledged for self-support, twenty-nine per cent, and in amounts paid, sixty per cent. This gratifying exhibition is largely owing to the fact that there were some substantial revivals of religion the past year. The Spirit of the Lord was poured out, and the Churches were baptized with new life and power. More than a hundred were converted in Tokio and Yokohama. The native preachers learned the significance of a revival, and learned to work for immediate results. The lesson to them is most valuable, and will be far-reaching in its results, as they now preach with an unction and a freedom and power before unknown.

In our annual meeting there were twenty-six preachers, seventeen Japanese, and nine Americans. Two Americans were detained by sickness in their families, and three are absent on leave, recuperating in the United States. Three of the natives were ordained deacons on the [illegible] of the [illegible], and five natives and one American were ordained elders. There are now ten ordained Japanese ministers in the mission, and as many more employed that are preparing for ordination. Several of these are men of good ability, whose talents and devotion would entitle them to good positions in any of our conferences.

We hope much from the young men being trained for the ministry in our own school. Of these four graduated this Summer, and were duly received, and appointed to circuits, and recommended to be [illegible] for admission on trial. They read and speak English, read the Greek Testament, have been trained in Biblical theology with such text-books as have been [illegible] ... [illegible] Christian evidences, and Methodist history and Discipline. In many respects they are as well furnished as a great many who commence the ministry in our own country.

The mission took steps looking to the organization of an annual conference.

The Journal of Education (Boston) is published [illegible] benefit of teachers [illegible] of education. Its aim is to furnish such reading for teachers as will make teachers and parents more [illegible], better posted on topics of [illegible] discussion, and more familiar with the better methods of teaching. To carry out this plan, some of the best writing and teaching talent in the country has been employed. The leading features of the Journal are these:

1. Educational Public Opinion.
2. Leading Articles of General Interest.
3. Departments of Mathematics, Science, Languages, Art, Books, Home and General Intelligence, Foreign Notes, Correspondence, Notes and Queries, Declamations and Dialogues, Poetry, Magazines, a Weekly Digest of General News, etc.
4. Editorial Articles, Drift, etc.
5. The current advertisements of all the leading Publishing Houses.
6. Reports of State and National Associations of Teachers, with such other matter as will enable a teacher to keep abreast of the times in which he lives.

By its aid teachers can enter into sympathy with the effort of their associates in all educational work. Through this paper educators are invited to express their own views or professional wants.

In view of the above statement, may we not request all friends of education to aid us in securing subscribers? The price is within the means of all, and on one can afford to be without such an educational paper, as the return is more than tenfold compared with the outlay. It costs only five cents a week, or less than a penny a day —a small matter compared with the stores of valuable knowledge gained. Price $2 50 per year. Boston: New England Publishing Co.

Leave It With Him.

Yes, leave it with Him,
The lilies all do,
And they grow.
They grow in the rain,
And they grow in the dew—
Yes, they grow.
They grow in the darkness, all hid in the night;
They grow in the sunshine, revealed by the light;
Still they grow.

They ask not your planting,
They need not your care,
As they grow;
Dropped down in the valley,
The field, anywhere—
There they grow,
They grow in their beauty, arrayed in pure white,
They grow, clothed in glory, by heaven's own light,
Sweetly grow.

The grasses are clothed
And the ravens are fed
From His store;
But you who are loved,
And guarded and led,
How much more
Will He clothe you and feed you, and give you His care,
Then leave it with Him, He has everywhere
Ample store.

Yes, leave it with Him,
'Tis more dear to His heart,
You will know,
Than the lilies that bloom,
Or the flowers that start
'Neath the snow.
Whatever you need, if you ask it in prayer,
You can leave it with Him, for you are His care—
You, you know.

"What is a whipping-boy, anyhow?" All the boys and girls will ask that question when they look at a picture of Edward VI and his whipping-boy.

I must tell you, then, that in old times a prince who was to be a king after he grew up, was treated as a person of very great dignity and importance. It would not do to punish him because his person was held to be sacred, but as a prince was only a boy, after all, he had to learn lessons and he had to obey his teachers. If he did not get his lessons or if he was saucy to his teachers, it would not do to overlook the matter; somebody must be punished, and in those days boys were always punished by flogging.

But it would not do to flog a prince. He was a king's son, and after a while would become king himself. So whenever the prince did anything for which a flogging was due, it was given to another boy. They kept a boy for the purpose. It was his business to take all the prince's whippings for him, and hence they called him the prince's whipping boy.

The boy who took Edward VI's whippings for him was named Barnabas Fitzpatrick, and it is said that he and the prince were very good friends indeed.—Harper's Young People.

Oration for a Little Boy.

Would I be a Prussian, or a Frenchman, or a Russian, or a Turkey? No, no, a thousand times no! Constantinople is in Turkey, and Paris is in France, and Napoleon used to be there: but what do I care for any of them? The star spangled banner is worth them all, and George Washington can whip any prince or king on any fourth of July that you may mention. I am an American boy, and in America we are all princes and imperials as soon as we are born. We can all sing "Hail, Columbia!" as soon as we can walk, and we go to school every day, and learn how to vote. When we put on our first pair of boots we give a tremendous stamp and say, "Down with tyrants," and under our jackets our hearts are always thumping out the word Liberty!—Good Times.

A Prize Story.

It is related that Mr. Sam McCurdy, of Louisville, Kentucky, was sitting 'neath the shade of a tree talking to some friends, when his attention was called to a hen with a brood of young chickens and a rat that had just emerged from its hole and was quietly regarding the young chickens with prospect of a meal in view. As the rat came from the hole the house-cat caught sight of it. At the appearance of its ancient enemy, the cat, a Scotch terrier quietly made for the place where the cat stood. At this moment a boy named Andy Quaid came upon the scene. The chickens were not cognizant of being watched by the rat, nor did the rat see the cat, nor the feline the dog, who had not noticed the coming of the boy.

A little chick wandered too nigh and he was seized by the rat, which was in turn pounced upon by the cat and the cat was caught in the mouth of the dog. The rat would not cease his hold on the chicken, and the cat, in spite of the shaking she was getting from the dog, did not let go the rat. It seemed to the boy that the rat was about to escape after a time, and getting a stone he hurled it at the colony. The stone struck the dog right between the eyes. The terrier released his grip on the cat and fell over dead. It had not breathed its last before the cat in turn let go the rat and turned over and died. The rat did not long survive the enemy, and by the side of the already dead chicken he laid himself down and gave up the ghost.

The owner of the dog was so angry at his death that he is said to have come near making the story complete by killing the boy that killed the dog that shook the cat that caught the rat that bit the chicken in the yard on Clay street.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.
On The Chickahominy.

Under the date of May 8, 1883, Col. S. F. Tibbitts, of Dover, N. H., sends us the following: While on duty in the army of the Potomac in the swamp of the Chickahominy I contracted a complication of diseases that culminated in spinal trouble, paralysis on one side, and severe disease of the kidney and bladder, and great urinal weakness. For a long time I was under the treatment of the best physicians, and tried many so-called remedies, but received no permanent benefit. When I was in the drug biseness in Boston I heard favorable acconnts of the efficacy of Hunt's Remedy for diseases of the kidney and urinary organs, and having decided to give it a trial, I purchased some at Wingate's drug store, Dover, N. H., and have received great relief from using it. The severe pains in my back are removed, and I am able to sleep soundly and obtain rest at night—which for a long time I could not do, and the weakness in the urinary has been relieved, and I greatly regret that I did not test the great merits of Hunt's Remedy when I was first taken sick, I am confident it would have saved me from several years of suffering; and I am more strongly convinced of this after hearing of the of the most remarkable cures effected by Hunt's Remedy in a case of Bright's Disease here in our midst, in Dover, after the patient had been pronounced incurable by celebrated physicians."

U. S. POSTAL SEVICE.

H. S Whitney, assistant postmaster, Putnam, Conn., writes May 3, 1883: "I have used Hunt's Remedy with the best results. I have suffered untold agony for eighteen months with kidney and liver complaint; my water was very bad, at times I actually passed blood. This was followed by general prostration. My business requiring me to be on my feet most of the time made my case worse. I was advised to use Hunt's Remedy by a friend who had been cured by it, and can truly say that it has benefited me more than all the other medicines I have used. I consider it the best medicine for kidney and liver troubles, and cheerfully recommend it to all."

No Whiskey!

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is guaranteed to be a non-intoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. RICE, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters:

Cin., O., Nov. 16, 1881.
Gents:—The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure and vicious indulgence of our people, makes your preparation a necessity; and if applied, will save hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.

A Useless Church.

We don't believe the future will have any use for a purely race church, be the race what it may. Even Dr. Turner or Dr. Blyden [illegible] have no faith in a purely white church that will slam its doors in the face of a colored man. Why should they have it in a purely black one?—Christian Recorder.

This is candid and sensible. Dr. Tanner expresses our creed in this matter. Let ministers of the African M. E. Church and other strictly colored bodies take notice, and from henceforth quit tantalizing the Methodist Episcopal Church because it is composed, or the Apostolic church was, of men and women "of every nation under heaven." There are probably hundreds of colored preachers, all over the South, who secured what education they have in our schools—the beneficiaries of the Freedmen's Aid Society—who have joined strictly colored [illegible] bodies, and whose stock in trade is to build up their charges by [illegible] and misrepresenting the Methodist Episcopal Church, the church that educated them. This is base ingratitude in its most horrid form. It is akin to that of the serpent which bit the honest farmer's child in return for the kindness shown by the farmer who took it into his house when it was frozen and thawed and warmed it by his fire. It is strange but true that in organizing new works Baptist members very often show us more encouragement than do many Methodists of the colored persuasion. They not only seek to discourage our people, but actually misrepresent the Church. A favorite piece of fabricated wickedness is to seek to make our people believe that they do not own the church property; another is to tell them that the benevolent collections taken up among them are to support white churches in the North, and still another is to represent that our people are under white masters. These several lies are [illegible] the devil. There is not a single intelligent colored preacher but what knows that. If he gives utterance to any such sentiment [illegible] and [illegible] a Church that has done, and is now doing, more for the negro in this country than any other agency. Every one who has studied our discipline and plan of [illegible] ought to know that our churches are all vested in local boards of trustees, elected by the people in their quarterly conference, and that the only claim of the general Church upon each church, whether white or colored, is to appoint its pastor and administer its discipline. This has been the uniform method of Methodism in these matters from the days of Mr. Wesley to this present moment. Touching the benevolent collections, when it is explained that the Louisiana Conference contributed last year for all purposes about $3600, while she received from the Church not less than $12,000, one can readily see how we are supporting poor white churches in the North. Last year, it will be remembered, ours was the banner Southern conference in its finances. We collected at least $1500 more than ever before. Of these $3000 fully two-thirds, over $2000, was collected for local use in building the Gilbert Haven School of Theology in connection with the New Orleans University in New Orleans. Here then the old Mother Church is giving us at least twelve dollars for every one we put in her general treasury. There was a time when she gave $20,000 and $30,000 a year when we were scarcely able to give anything. As we grow stronger and better able to help ourselves she gives us less, but she continues to give us at least twelve dollars a year for every one we give her. What is true in this matter in Louisiana is equally true of all Southern work. Let reports to the contrary, then, die in the sunshine of this truth. Another humpback fabrication is to the effect that our people are under white masters. The devil, who is the father of lies, never uttered a more monstrous one. For all who are at all acquainted with our economy know that the General Conference is the governing body of Methodism, and that this body is composed of representatives from all the annual and lay conferences in the Church, whether white, black, yellow or whatever color. These meet as equals, make laws for the Church, elect bishops, appoint committees, elect editors, publishers, and propose whatever measures that in their judgment may be of benefit to the Church. In the last General Conference there were thirty-five or more colored men, some of whom distinguished themselves in their oratorial efforts and in their efficient work upon various important committees. The color line is a dead issue in the church. Modern exegesis of the Holy Scripture finds no covering for such a montrosity. All who cling to it expose themselves to ridicule and contempt.

Let every cause stand upon its own merit. In the eyes of clear-headed and purehearted men the color of a man's face is no more than the color of his coat. As there are many bad men covered with white skins, so there are many good men wrapped up in black skins. Color is nothing, character is everything. As the world learns to more fully appreciate this fact the use for a purely race church obliterates.

Outrageous Intolerance.

Trouble has existed between the Rev. Father Cuppens, a Catholic priest at Donaldsonville, La., and the wardens of his church, and a considerable part of the controversy found its way to the public prints. It has appeared to be entirely a conflict of jurisdiction and authority. Archbishop Leray recently visited Donaldsonville, gave a hearing and some advice to the complainants, but did not succeed in effecting an amicable adjustment of the questions in dispute. The wardens locked up the church and ejected the priest from the parsonage. Father Cuppens then located at Smoke Bend, in the same parish, and announced that he would conduct services in a chapel provided for the purpose. The Donaldsonville Chief says this led to a meeting of his opponents, and the appointment of a committee of five (the Chief publishes their names) to wait upon the priest and warn him that if he did not leave the parish within 24 hours unpleasant consequences might ensue. The committee visited the priest at the residence of a friend and delivered their message, which was received quietly and without comment. On their way back the committee was intercepted by some of the priest's friends, but the appearance of the sheriff on the scene probably averted acts of violence. Anticipating the coming of assailants of Father Cuppens from town, a number of his friends armed themselves to resist the invaders. The priest called on the sheriff for protection, and contemplated making an affidavit against the committee, but subsequently decided to leave the parish.

There can be no reasonable excuse for the persecution and the lawlessness self-evident in this case, and it would be well for the fair fame of Ascension parish if good citizens should combine and make known to Father Cuppens that he may conduct services at Smoke Bend or at any other point. If he is guilty of any charge known to the law the courts are open. But he is not so accused. His opponents show a spirit of outrageous intolerance totally at variance with the interests of good society and good government. Beside, people in this country have the right to worship God in the mode which seems to them best, and the friends of the priest are practically denied this right when forcibly deprived of his services.

The Postmaster General has issued a general order forbiding all postmasters from paying money orders or delivering registered letters to M. A. Danphin, of the Louisiana Lottery Company.

Editorial Correspondence.

The cars on the Morgan and Texas railroad are generally filled with persons going to and from Texas. They go largely from Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina. The poor class of emigrants are generally in a car by themselves, and most always sit in groups indicating former acquaintances, and carry their own provisions along with them. They appear to us as a simple-minded honest class of people, with no high aspirations and without any real deep moral convictions. Just the class of people for Mormon missionaries to make converts from. They, most of them, have little or nothing of the leveling up influence of the school house; they are innocent of the use of the pen and spelling book. Not a very promising material to crystalize into laws the hopes and aspirations which freighted the Mayflower. But Texas is not being filled up wholly with this class. On the same train, but in another car, are men of education, enterprise and moral principle who will give strength to the State. The filling up and opening up of this great State is simply wonderful. New towns are built by immigration faster than the most extravagant language can describe. The question comes, is the Methodist Episcopal Church keeping pace with this rapidly growing State? All along the lines of the new railroads where towns are being built the church needs to send her men and plant her churches. This is a field that is white for the harvest. One hundred dollars would do more now than five hundred five or six years hence.

At Terrebonne we part with the Texas train and take the Houma branch. The quarterly conference gives us a good opportunity to become acquainted with the work of the church. The reports are indicative and suggestive. We often think of Cowper's poem, [illegible] a country clergyman, and with him wonder while we hear:

> "One talks of mildew and of frost,
> And one of storms of hail,
> [illegible] pigs that he has lost,
> By maggots at the tail."

And we ask:

> "O why are farmers now so coarse,
> Or clergy [illegible] to fine.
> [illegible]
> May [illegible] sound divine."

Our church at Houma is growing in all that pertains to churchly strength. They are increasing in number, taking the SOUTHWESTERN, and some are getting a few books and reading them, so they are coming to understand what the church is and their obligation to it. From the pulpit they get something beside noise and gas. They are improving their church property. During the quarter the wooden blocks upon which the church was placed when erected have been taken out, church leveled up, new sills put all around and substantial brick pillars placed under it at cost of $125.00 and nearly all paid. At the quarterly conference the class reports were as follows: No 1 $17.15; No 2 $10.60; No 3 $14.80; No 4 $11.75; No 5 $6.75; No 6 $10.85. The Steward reported $176.75 as received from all sources during the quarter. Not a word was said about "mildew and frost" or "storms of hail" or "pigs they had lost,"

> "By magots at the tail."

Nearly all the growlers and grumblers in the Methodist Episcopal Church that we have seen within the North or South, in the pulpit or pew, come from the generation of deadheads or of pet lambs. We are not of the class who think that the preachers of to-day have a much easier time than the pioneers. If the pioneers had hardships and hard times so do the men of to-day, and the men who endure the most and do the best work do the least of grumbling. The deadheads and the pet lambs do the grumbling. At Dulac, Bro. Claiborne with twenty-two members have been "holding the fort" and they have done that work well, but that day has past and now it is a work of storming and taking forts. Assisted by Bro. Johnson, a local preacher from Camp-Parapet the good work of the Lord is moving. On the 13th, five began to tell the new song, of Jesus and his love, while some eight or ten were formed as mourners, and a general spirit of solemnity seemed to rest upon the people. The reports at the quarterly conference showed class collection was over $25. Stewards nearly $95. With patient and persistent work, Dulac will in a few years become one of our strong appointments. Recently Bro. Claiborne read to his people the lecture [illegible] "[illegible] of the night!" and realized the neat sum of $30. Pretty well for one reading.

This is a specimen of the kind of Democracy that prevails in Wilkinson, county, Mississippi, being a resolution unanimously adopted in convention:

Resolved, That it is treason to Democracy for a Democrat to become surety on the official bonds of Republican or Independent candidates elected in opposition to the nominees of Democratic conventions.

The men who adopted this resolution if told they exhibited a spirit of intolerance unworthy of their day and generation would indignantly repel the assertion; yet what could be more moderate than such a statement of self-evident truth? Thomas Jefferson, the father of Democracy, declared that "Error of opinion could be tolerated where reason was left free to combat it," and this is the cardinal principle on which our government is established; but the Democracy of Wilkinson county has set about to establish a partisan oligarchy, and to air their proclivities in an arrogant and offensive way. No community can enjoy honest rule under such auspices, and it should be the pleasure of intelligent voters of Wilkinson county to consider loyalty to the welfare of society as paramount to the dictum of a few selfish office seekers.

Wanted.

Three willing earnest Methodist ministers to labor and open up new and promising fields in the South New Orleans District. We ask for men who aspire to the standard as expressed in the epistles of Paul to Timothy and Titus. The country is rich—the people are numerous, they need churches and schools. The call is for men who will go and build churches and gather the people. We want to send men out into the highways and hedges everywhere to preach the word. Who responds? Who will go? Let him give immediate notice.

PERSONAL

—Ex-Senator Windom will spend several months in the Scottish Highlands.

—Mrs. Stonewall Jackson and daughter were recently the guests of Gov. Butler.

—Drs. Walden, Leonard, Payne and Runyan were elected delegates to the General Conference, by the Cincinnati conference.

—The late Bishop Pinkney, of Maryland, was at one time a Methodist minister. It is only another instance of Methodist training bringing honor to other denominations.

—The crops of ex-Congressman Josiah T. Walls, of Florida, will yield him $8,000 this year. The Jacksonville Herald commends his example to the other negroes of the state.

—Robert E. Lee, youngest son of the late Confederate General, has declined a Democratic nomination for the Legislature of Virginia, saying that he has no taste for politics.

—Rev. W. G. Williams, formerly professor in Allegany College, now pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Jamestown, N. Y., has been elected president of the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary.

—Dr. Newman Hall has been obliged to abandon his proposed autumn visit to America owing to disappointment in endeavors to secure the services of Dr. Pentecost, of New York, to supply his pulpit.

—Bayard Taylor's daughter has, until recently, been supporting herself as a governess in New York. She and her mother declined a purse of $30,000 raised by New York ladies on learning that Bayard died poor.

—On her 80th birthday Mrs. Polk, at Nashville, was the recipient of testimonials of the high esteem of friends and neighbors. The widow of the ex-President was able to enjoy the calls and the flowers presented.

—Hugh J. Hastings proprietor of the New York Commercial Advertiser, died on the morning of the 13th, from injuries caused by being thrown from a buggy, which collided in a crowd of vehicles. He was a prominent and influential Republican journalist.

—The delegates to the General Conference, elected by the Indiana Conference, are: Dr. Alexander Martin, President of Asbury University, John Poucher, and D. F. Rawlins. The delegates from the Northwest Indiana Conference are S. Beck, F. M. Pavey, L. C. Buckles.

—Rev. J. J. Reed, pastor of Washington Square Methodist Episcopal Church New York city, has been transferred to Cincinnati, Ohio. On the occasion of his farewell service the congregation presented to him $500 and the Sabbath school a fine gold watch and chain.

—Rev. I. J. Lansing, of the New York East Conference, pastor at Stamford, Ct., is spending a few months in Europe for the purpose of recuperating health and for observation and study. He writes to us from Switzerland that the first of these objects has been satisfactorily attained.—Northern.

—John C. Calhoun, of South Carolina, grandson of the famous statesman, [illegible] before the Senate Committee on labor and education, that the seven millions of the [illegible] tax, claimed by the South, should be appropriated to the education of the negro in the South.

—Rev. Peter Akers, D.D., of the Illinois Conference, was 9[illegible] years old Sept. 1st. It is probable that he is the oldest Methodist preacher living. On Sept. 2[illegible] he preached to a large audience in Centenary M. E. Church, Jacksonville, Ill. A large number of old persons were present, many of whom had heard him preach in their childhood. The sermon was only half an hour in length, probably the shortest ever delivered by him in his long ministerial career.—Central Advocate.

—Ex-Gov. W. W. Holden, of North Carolina, said, in his card proclaiming his return to the Democratic Party, that Register Bruce [illegible] treated on a recent Southern trip. Mr. Bruce has published a card saying that he and his wife have officially and socially been brought in contact with the most respectable white ladies and gentlemen of all sections North and South, and on all occasions received due consideration and courtesy. His wife, he says, has never been further South than Washington.

—Hon. James Lewis, in a letter to the Louisiana Standard, replies to one who assailed his political integrity, and incidentally gives an interesting sketch of his useful and honorable career. Col. Lewis has an enviable record, second to no colored leader in the State, adjudged by standards of faithfulness to trusts, independence of convictions, genuine ability and loyalty to his people. He has acquitted himself well in every official position, and at every emergency. Such men never lack appreciative friends, and Col. Lewis can number a host of them.

—Andrew V. Stout, a prominent and influential layman of the Methodist church, in New York, died a few days ago. He was President of the Shoe and Leather Bank for 28 years; when City Chamberlain he loaned the city at one time $400,000 to pay salaries of policemen.

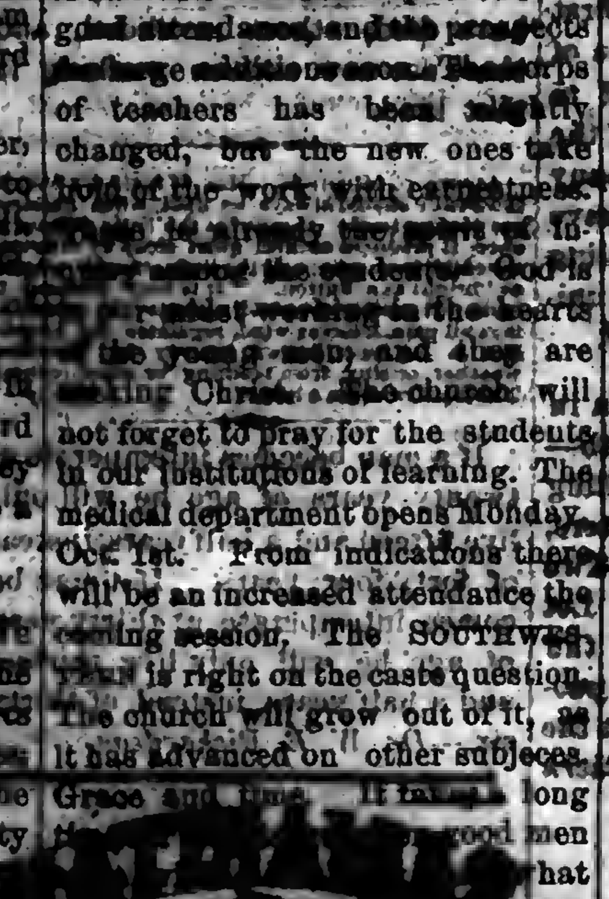
MISSISSIPPI.

S. Harris, French Camp: "This is my first year on this circuit, after having a lively time getting ac-quainted with the people. When I came here I found plenty of work to be done. Just completed a new church at French Camp which was commenced last year. I have four churches on this circuit and walk about 54 miles every month to my appointments; you know I don't have much time to study my books as I should. I will not at-tempt to say that the peo-ple have never been pro-perly taught for my breth-ren will think that I am trying to intrude upon those who were before me; but I will say that the people know little enough about the rules and doctrines of the M. E. Church to which they belong. There is a new railroad though this circuit, and people are suprised to see such a thing or curiosity. They have never considered the import-ance of the Gospel. My third quarter-ly conference was held Sept. 1 & 2d. Elder Barney rode 25 miles to hold my quarter. Love feast was held Sunday morning. The Elder preached a very able sermon for us at 11 o'clock and administered the Sacrament to 48. Collection for the elder $12.60. I have had several accessions to the church this year. They have paid pastor $57.95. I have just commenced my protract-ed meeting. Pray that I may suc-ceed. I desire the prayers of all the brethren."

Notes From Nashville.

Dear Bro. Cashman:—We are [illegible] the [illegible] feed-[illegible] opens with a good attendance, and the prospects [illegible] large additions soon. The corps of teachers has been slightly changed, but the new ones take hold of the work with earnestness. There is already the spirit of in-[illegible] among the students. God is [illegible] working in the hearts of the young men, and they are seeking Christ. The church will not forget to pray for the students in our institutions of learning. The medical department opens Monday, Oct. 1st. From indications there will be an increased attendance the coming session. The SOUTHWES-TERN is right on the caste question. The church will grow out of it, as it has advanced on other subjects. Grace and time. It takes long [illegible] good men [illegible] what [illegible] only [illegible] new [illegible] under [illegible]



The effort to [illegible] everywhere [illegible] the single purp[illegible] political rights rev[illegible] politi-cian rather [illegible] m of [illegible]. This is the solu-tion that ignorance and prejudice has been offering all these years. It organizes separate churches and [illegible] and would gratefully accept a few negro states. Wheth-er it would not soon see the folly of a separation if the thought were fully carried out in separate communities we are not prepared to say. But we may assert with confidence that the colored people would not be content with this new condition of things. Wherever experiments of this kind were inau-gurated in the North before the war on a large enough scale to test its merits, they universally proved in a few years to be failures. Such an arrangement is not in ac-cord with the theory of republican government. It is contrary to the highest reason, and every approach to it in practice has been harmful. —Central.

Municipal Reform.

The New York Times concludes an editorial on municipal reform as follows:

Why is it that the organ of the New-Orleans Catholics can suggest nothing except an attack upon the Democratic ring by citizens fight-ing under the name of the Repub-lican Party? It is not by fighting in the old party lines that city rings are broken, but by a union of honest men against thieves. The names "Democratic" and "Repub-lican" are as useless in such a struggle as the issues of the two great national parties are foreign to those that demand the consider-ation of city voters at the election of city officers. Let the honest citizens of New-Orleans in both parties unite for the purpose of putting good men in office and thrusting bad men out. Let honest Democrats and honest Republicans in Cincinnati join hands, forget party lines, and work together to keep their city offices out of the hands of scoundrels. They will not find the task an easy one when taking hold of it in that way, but it will be far more difficult to work a reform while the honest men are divided by party lines. The resi-dents of large cities sooner or later learn that the party divisions that have been established in national political contests are inconvenient and unnecessary when the only object to be attained is an honest and economical administration of municipal affairs.

Ask your neighbor to give the SOUTHWESTERN a three months trial.

A Welcome for The Golden Argosy.

In this age, when there are every where so many good books, and so large a number of publications in the field, it seems a little wonder-ful that new papers can come up and live, but that such is the case, we will cite The Golden Argosy as proof. This paper was started about a year ago, and was at once received into families where the ordinary papers for the young folks would not be tolerated. The Argo-sy contains a large and varied amount of interesting and instruc-tive reading for the entire family. Its policy is high and pure, and it is doing good by supplanting the cheap, trashy papers, and giving the youth of this country reading matter that will increase their knowledge and instill into them ideas of noble, self-reliant manhood and womanhood. A recent editor-ial in The Argosy says: This paper has a strong hold in every State and Territory of this country and the Canadas. It has readers in South America, many of the British possessions, in Europe, and it even finds its way to far-off China. We shall commence the reading season this year by giving a handsome present to every one who subscribes for or buys from newsstands the next fifteen numbers of The Golden Argosy, commencing with number forty-two. Among the presents will be bicycles, fine cabinet organs, and other musical instruments, to-gether with cash gifts of one hun-dred dollars, seventy-five dollars, fifty dollars, twenty-five dollars; ten dollars, five dollars, three dol-lars, two dollars, etc., etc. The entire list of presents will be given in number forty two, and with it an explanation of how the gifts will be presented, and also a plan showing how the most valuable presents can be obtained. In num-ber forty-two, will begin one of the finest serial stories for boys and girls that we have had the pleasure of reading for many years. "JACK AND GEOFFREY IN AFRICA" is its title. There is always something exceedingly interesting in animal stories, and especially when the nature of the wild and ferocious beasts is shown by incidents of actual occurrence in hunting. This will be followed, in number forty-six, by one of Oliver Optic's best stories, called "Making a Man of Himself." In number fifty, anoth-er story, by Horatio Alger, Jr., or Frank H. Converse, will commence, and these, together with the short stories, biographical and historical sketches, poems, and short items, will be but a foretaste of the good things in store for readers during the next year. The paper is pub-lished at 10 Barclay Street, New York, and the publisher announces that he will send the fifteen num-bers covering the presents for six-ty cents, or five cents by the single copy.

Congressman Kellogg's Seat.

Special Dispatch to the Globe-Democrat.

Washington, D. C. August 30th. —Upon the assembling of Con-gress in December an effort will be made to prevent the seating of ex-Senator Kellogg as a Representa-tive from Louisiana. Should Clerk McPherson, in making up the list, decide to admit Mr. Kellogg, the Democrats will, upon organization, appoint a committee to investigate the charges against him of having accepted a bribe while a Senator of the United States. The specific charge that he took $20,000 from star-route contractor Price, in or-der that certain routes of the latter might be expedited by Gen. Brady, will form the subject of the investi-gation. It is stated by a gentleman thoroughly conversant with the case that there will be no trouble in proving the charge by the mos direct and positive testimony. A number of Democratic representa-tives have expressed their inten-tion of making a searching inquiry by a committee, and in the event of the charge being proved to vote to expel Kellogg. The indictment found against him by the Grand Jury here, and to which he will be called to plead, is based upon sec-tion 1782 of the Revised Statutes, which permanently disqualifies any public officer who accepts a bribe for any service that he performs.

It is entirely natural that some of the men who are looked upon as leaders among the colored peo-ple should have come to regard politics as a trade in which offices represent the gains. A very su-perficial observation of the behav-ior of white politicians of both par-ties would be sufficient to impress them with the belief that the chief end which the toiler in the field of politics must keep in view is not good government but the getting of an office for himself. the present feeling of many colored Republicans is that they do not get sufficient "re-cognition." Hence their talk of in-dependent action and their proposed convention at Louisville. This feel-ing will not be dispelled by such figures as are given in our Wash-ington dispatches, showing that the Interior Department has 204 colored clerks on its pay rolls out of a total of 3,091, for the dawning political aspirations of the colored men will scarcely be satisfied by mere department clerkships. Their "claim" may be wholly just, but if the Republican party will not grant the desired "recognition" what par-ty will? Certainly not the Democ-rats, and for them to embark on a career of adventure as independ-ents in the present state of their political knowledge and expe-rience would merely result in their being made the tools of worthless demagogues, with no hope of profit to themselves.—New York Times.

This is an incident of the Ischian calamity, tolle by S. C. Lord, in the Boston Watchman: On the evening of Saturday, July 28th, the guests had been dining, and after the table d'hote most of them were assembled in the saloon, where it was usual to have music. An Englishman, Mr. de Struve, one of the guests, a fine pianist, was playing one of his favorite pieces, a funeral march, by Chopin, when suddenly the first and the great shock of the earthquake came, which in a moment turned the saloon of pleasure into a mass of ruins, into the hall of death. He who was delighting the ear with his musical strains was afterwards found seated at the piano, his foot upon the pedal, motionless in death. Two young ladies, sisters, twenty and twenty one years of age, daughters of the proprietor of the Hotel de Ville, Naples, were found sitting lifeless, side by side, upon a sofa. "In the midst of life we are in death." "Prepare to meet thy God," seems the voice which speaks to us at this dread hour.

A battle lasting eight hours took place between the Black Flags and the French forces between Hanoi and Sontay. The French report a loss of 2 officers and 50 men, the Black Flags between 500 and 600.

What more proper thing for a W. C. T. U. to do is there than that which was done by this organ-ization in New Hampshire recently? Circulars were sent by indefatig-able workers to every temperance man and woman in the State urg-ing the necessity of the re-election of Hon. Henry W. Blair to the United States Senate. Every legit-imate influence ought to be brought to bear upon the present legislature of New Hamshire to secure this end. Not alone the State of the Granite Hills, but every State in the Union is interested in this mat-ter. Senator Blair has been a very Gibraltar in Congress, as regards the great national crime of the li-quor traffic. His fortifications ought to be strengthened by every freeman's vote. The temperance people of the land look to the peo-ple of New Hampshire to see him long his own successor.—Our Union.

Did it never strike you that all goodness in the world must, in some way or other, come from God. When we see the million rain-drops of the shower, we say, with reason, there must be one great sea, from which all these drops have come. When we see the countless rays of light, we say, with reason, there must be one great central sun, from which all these are shed forth. And when we see, as it were, count-less drops and countless rays of goodness scattered about in the world, a little good in this man, and a little good in that, shall we not say, there must be one great sea, one central sun of goodness, from whence all human goodness comes!—Kingsley.

We have heard, of the wholesale conversion by the Roman Catholic missionaries of the people of Congo. At any rate, every body from the king down was baptized. A gene-ral backsliding speedily ensued, and Congo is now nearly as hea-thenish as four or five centuries ago. The remaining Christianity lies chiefly in the adoration of crucifix-es in connection with gree grees and Obi charms. Protestantism believes in other qualifications for Church membership than the out-ward application of water, and in numbering its converts does not in-clude infants and young children.—Western.

Dr. Orphey, of Dublin, declares that blindness, partial or total, is found to exist to a most alarming extent in wine growing countries. Medical men attribute it to the use of wine. France and Italy furnish illustrations of this remark.

The prospects are that the cook-ing school will certainly be estab-lished under the auspices of the Woman's Exchange. The school will be conducted on the approved plans of similar schools in Boston and New York, with culinary lec-tures and all.—N. O. Picayune.

President Arthur has issued his proclamation making known that the World's Industrial and Cotton Exposition will be opened on the first Monday of December, 1884, at New Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, and will be there holden continuously until the 31st day of May 1885.

By a unanimous vote of is Legis-lature, New Hampshire decided last month to introduce scientific temperance education into the pub-lic schools. It is the third state to adopt this precautionary meas-ure for opening the eyes of the children to the physical and men-tal results of intemperance, Ver-mont and Michigan having enected similar laws previously.

From a report of certain pro-ceedings at Oldham England: "It appeared that the woman wanted to sell her children, and a large crowd collected. She was success-ful in selling one child to a woman, and this woman having purchased the child for 6d., made off with her prize in a cab. The mother wanted to dispose of the other child, and at first asked 2d., but ultimately brought down the demand to 1d., without finding a purchaser."

The question as whether Con-gress has power under the four-teenth amendment to pass a civil rights act is to be tested in San Francisco. Last month a colored man with two friends entered Swain's restaurant. The proprietor refus-ed to serve them, and the colored man brought an action under the civil rights act. Swain filed a demurrer on the groud that Con-gress had no power under the four-teenth amendment to pass the act. The case will be argued before Judge Field. Whatever the deci-sion, the case will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

Here is a communication of a successful working woman, to a Boston exchange. She says: "I am a milliner, and have made between $1,500 and $2,500 a year in my business for some time past. I married four years ago. My husband is kind and good looking, but he never learned any trade, had no profession and could not average [illegible] a year. I loved him, however, but I saw it would not do to depend upon him, so I kept on with my business. After a time I think he got a little lazy, and as we were both away during the day, we could not keep house and got sick of boarding. Finally I proposed that he should keep house and I would run the business and find the money. We have now lived very happily in this way for two years. My husband rises and builds the fire, gets breakfast, and I leave at 7:30 for my place of business. He does the washing, ironing and cleaning, and I do not know of any woman who can beat him. He is as neat as wax, and can cook equal to any one in town. It may be an isolated case, but I think the time has now come when women who have husbands to support should make them do the work; otherwise they are luxuries we must do without."

Why He Got a Receipt.

The following story is told of a crafty lawyer, subtile as a fox, who lived in Halifax.

An Indian of the Miami tribe, named Simon, owed him some money. The lawyer had waited long. His patience at last gave out and he threatened the Indian with lawyers' process and executions. The poor red man was scared and brought the money to his creditor. The Indian waited, expecting the lawyer would write a receipt for him.

"What are you waiting for?" asked the lawyer.

"Receipt," said the Indian.

"A receipt!" said the lawyer, "a receipt! What do you know about a receipt? Tell me the use of one and I will give it to you."

The Indian looked at him a moment, and then replied.

"S'pose maybe me die, me go to heben; me find the gate locked; me see the 'Postle Peter. He say, Simon, what you want? Me say, Want to get in. He say, You pay Mr. [illegible] dat money? What me do? Me hab no receipt. Hab to hunt all ober the odder place to find you."

He got a receipt.

It is remarkable that within the last six months volcanic eruptions or earthquakes have occurred in many parts of the world. In Japan a new volcano has been formed; in Europe, Etna has been showing signs of activity, and the recent earthquake at Ischia has been followed by ominous mutterings from Vesuvius; in South America, Cotopaxi has melted the snow on its cone; and in Central America an old volcano long supposed to be extinct has burst into a display of living energy. If the earth is really but a crust around a mass of molten rock or liquid fire, that pent up fire must now be in a state of unusual perturbation. How completely we are at the mercy of the Author of creation!—N. Y. Witness.

There are some very showy churches in these days, but when you examine them closely there is a discord. They are like the house which had been changed in appearance to agree with the prevailing style, and when the lady of the house was asked what its style was she replied: "Well, it's Queen Ann style in front, and I should say it was of the Crazy Jane order in the rear."

Falling Leaves.

One by one they fall and fade,
Some in the sunshine, some in the shade,
Some in the bright and growing noon,
Some 'neath the cold and quiet moon,
One whirleth here, one falleth there,
Till the ground is covered, the bough is bare;
So every field and path receives,
These fading, falling, dying leaves.

One by one we fall and fade,
Some in the sunshine, some in the shade,
Some in the bright unclouded light,
Some in the cold and quiet night;
One mourneth here, one passeth there
Till the soul is weary, the heart is bare;
So every field and path receives
These fading [illegible], these dying leaves.

The deaf mutes have been holding their annual convention. The question has often been started, Who, as a class, are the happier, the blind or the deaf? If observation can settle it the decision must be in favor of the deaf. They can see, and with the lip interpretation, added to the sign language, they can secure many of the benefits of hearing. The stimulus of the brain through sight is far greater and more constant than through sound. Most pathetic was the answer of the blind man when asked to give his idea of the sun. He said: "If you will not smile I will tell you. I compare it to the sound of a mighty trumpet." And yet the blind may behold their Saviour come, the deaf may hear his voice, and the lame may leap for joy as he forgives their sins.—N. Y. Advocate.

The New-Orleans Grand Jury has just submitted to the Judge of the Criminal Court a quarterly report in which the city is described as being in a condition of ulcerous immorality. A very large percentage of the criminals are or have been city officers. The low dram-shops, gambling dens, and other sinks of iniquity are "under the license, sanction, and patronage of city officials." This is a terrible indictment. But the Grand Jury has overlooked one of the crying infamies of New-Orleans. This is the swindling Louisiana Lottery Company. The laws of Louisiana protect it, the press of New-Orleans bows down to it, and some of the most prominent public men in the South are in its pay. But it is a nest of thieves. There is not an honest hair in the heads of its managers. It robs the simple-minded poor people of the country. It ought to be broken up.—N. Y. Times.

A believing view of the crucified Christ as the richest gift of the Father's love, is the beginning of love to the Father in the human heart. "We love Him because He first loved us." But as love waxes strong, exclusive of selfishness, and exalted into a reflection of the infinite affection which gave it birth, it learns to looks not only on God's gifts, but chiefly on the love itself of which they are the perennial outflow. "God loves me!" is the abiding thought of the purified believer, and in that thought he finds ecstasy, obedience, purity.—Zion's Herald.

Christ does not offer to be simply an occasional shower of blessings to the faithful believer. He promises to be a living well. "The water that I give him shall be in him a well springing up into everlasting life." The deepest and most urgent wants of the heart He promises to satisfy.

Who are the drunkards of to-day? In most cases they are the men who were respectable and sober half a dozen years ago.

D. J. Price, Robeline, writes: "This is the way a man throws his wife and children out of society, simply going to a store, buying 25 to 50 cents worth of cigars, striking a match, inflaming one end of the cigar, and inflating the other by his mouth, then going off puffing, as if he was a locomotive, over town. He will soon meet one of his mates conjecturing that he has another cigar, and who asks for it, then he goes off, and so on. The cigars are disposed of, so is the society of children and wife, and the schooling of the children also. Stop before you begin has saved many boys from ruin."

"While Northern critics are not justified in representing that Kentuckians are the sworn enemies of common schools," says the Louisville Courier-Journal, "there is deficiency enough to make them ashamed of themselves. The school accommodations do not cover the field; 22 per cent of the population 10 years of age and upward cannot read, and 29 per cent of that population cannot write. It is true that Kentucky is surpassed in illiteracy by Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia, but that fact is no cause for congratulation."

When our genial news editor called and paid cash down for the suit the German was so delighted that he asked his customer to go out and take a drink with him. The editor of course declined, saying he did not drink; whereupon a gleam of satisfaction and intelligence combined shot across the tailor's countenance as he exclaimed: "Dot's de reason vy you pay for de clothes so quick as you got 'em."—Troy Times.

In the holy books of ancient Persia, we read that Jima, the first man, was put to the cultivation of the ground because he declined to be "the preacher and bearer of the law" of his Creator. Consumption Cured.

Tennyson can take a worthless sheet of paper and by writing a poem on it make it worth five thousand dollars. That's genius. Vanderbilt can write a few words on a sheet of paper and make it worth five million dollars. That's capital. The mechanic can take the material worth five dollars and make it into a watch worth one hundred dollars. That's skill. The merchant can take an article worth twenty-five cents and sell it to you for one dollar. That's business. The ditch-digger works ten hours a day and shovels out three or four tons of earth for one dollar. That's labor.

Mr. Editor—I wish to inquire for my brothers and sisters. We belonged to Wingard. The oldest, Adam; Evearn, Dinah, Lucy, Torney, May and Lenie Wingard. I left them near the town of Lexington, in Lexington county, South Carolina. When I left them brothers Adam and May was with Daniel Dranes. I left them in the year 1 66, and have been living in Attala county, Mississippi, ever since. I have not heard a word from them since I left. Address me at Durant, Miss., care of Rev. J. M. Nevils.

Mr. Stock says that just sixty years ago a boy in Gemany saw the blank spaces on a map of Africa and asked whether they were deserts. Few people could give him much information about them, so he went when old enough to see for himself; that missionary was Krapf. He found many difficulties, however, and it was not until he had taken sixty-four distinct voyages that he succeeded in landing at Zanzibar. Bereavement soon overtook him in the loss of his wife and baby. A good brother having joined him by the name of Redmond they made interior journeys for six years, and eventually conceived and planned the possibility of a chain of stations right across Africa. The subject was advocated in England, but trials came and the mission failed; but the geographical discoveries made have resulted in spreading a knowledge of the country itself and attention has consequently been called the great need of evangelizing. Hundreds of little children are being taught in the schools and hundreds of people are learning the Gospel, many of whom are truly converted and have, as they call it in that country, "joined the Book." During the last nine years the Church of England Missionary Society has sent out forty-seven missionaries; seven have died, others invalided, and there are now sixteen working in that land.

Plantation Melodies
—AND—
REVIVAL HYMNS.
By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.
WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.
Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.
A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed, and are here given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartets, chorus and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.
"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—*Rev. The Perry brothers, arrested for ku-kluxing Solomon Coleman, a Negro, were discharged by the United States Commissioner at Macon, Ga., Aug. 31, on the ground that the whipping was not administered on account of Coleman's color. Coleman was charged with offering laborers higher wages than he could afford to pay, and thus drawing them from plantations in the neighborhood—hence the assault by the Perry brothers.

Colorless and Cold.

A young girl deeply regretted that she was so colorless and cold. Her face was too white, and her hands and feet felt as though the blood did not circulate. After one bottle of Hop Bitters had been taken she was the rosiest and healthiest girl in the town, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of mind gratifying to her friends.

Vital Question!!

Ask the most eminent physician Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always? And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops!"

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:

"What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Women"—

"And they will tell you explicitly, and emphatically "Buchu."

Ask the same physicians

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia; constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, &c." and they will tell you:

Mandrake! or Dandelion!"

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable

And compounded into Hop Bitters, such a [Concluded next week.]

Nothing is easier than to doubt. A man of moderate ability and learning can doubt more than the wisest men believe. Christianity is a matter of intelligent faith, but infidelity requires no one to give a reason for the doubt that is in him.

A faithful pastor and a faithful people may expect the Lord's blessing upon their work. Sometimes the preacher blames the people for the want of success, and sometimes the people blame the preacher. May be both are to blame. Neither can succeed without the co-operation of the other.

What will say when you are called to account for all the harm that you have done in selfishly seeking your own pleasure without regard for the welfare of others?

A GREAT PROBLEM

TAKE ALL THE

KIDNEY & LIVER MEDICINES,

BLOOD PURIFIERS,

RHEUMATIC REMEDIES,

DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION CURES,

AGUE, FEVER, AND BILIOUS SPECIFICS,

BRAIN & NERVE FORCE REVIVERS,

GREAT HEALTH RESTORERS,

IN SHORT, TAKE ALL THE BEST qualities of all these, and the best qualities of all the best medicines of the world, and you will find that HOP BITTERS have the best curative qualities and powers of all concentrated in them, and that they will cure when any or all of these, singly or combined, fail. A thorough trial will give positive proof.

Fresh From The Pulpit.

Saints and Sinners Stirred by a Clergyman's Confession—The Facts in Full.

Eloquent writing, merely, convinces nobody. General statements and assertions are cheap. Plain words are best, and come most easily from the mouth of a witness who is conscious that he speaks truth. Let the reader judge if the following have the ring of genuine coin:

"I have long been afflicted with rheumatism, a badly disordered liver and by general debility. All my strength seemed gone. I tried a number of other medicines without obtaining relief, but I do hereby testify to the great merits of Parker's Ginger Tonic, since after the use of two bottles I find myself feeling well and strong again—in fact, like a new man. I cheerfully recommend it as an excellent strengthening and invigorating Tonic."

Names and dates are of supreme importance. Testimonies are readily manufactured, but the foregoing is from a letter dated St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30th. 1882, and signed by Rev. Edward Wills, founder of and ex-pastor of the University Street Baptist Church. Residence, No. 313 Spruce, that city. From the very fact of their responsible and prominent position, ministers of the Gospel are cautious about giving their signatures or influence to any proprietary medicine or advertised article. Hence the value of unsolicited testimonials like the foregoing.

Please note: First,—Parker's Ginger Tonic is not an essence of Ginger. Don't indulge that idea nor permit others to impress it upon you. It combines the choicest Jamaica Ginger with other ingredients constituting the best Tonic known in medicines; Second.—It is pleasant to take and immediate in its actions. Prices 50c. and $1—the latter the more economical. Get it of your druggist, or send for circular to Hiscox & Co. New York.

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully [illegible] American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, so as [illegible] the eye [illegible] by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and [illegible] the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

Under this title is found beautifully bound "Crawford Sair Strait," "James Blackie's Reverence," "Facing the Evening," "Andrew Cargile's Confession," "One Wrong Step," and "Lilie Darie." In our boyhood we became interested in some portions of Scottish history containing accounts of the heroic exploits of Bruce and his followers in the old chivalric days. The sketches before us are of a different type and well drawn. The book is suitable for all readers and especially for the young. We hope that is may find its way into the home and Sunday-school libraries of our lamd.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

We are in receipt of A Treatise On The Opening of the Seven Seals," by Rev. Wm. P. Miller, D. D., Birmingham, Ala. Bro. Miller is getting out a book, giving an exposition of the seven seals as set forth in the book of Revelations, issuing it in six numbers at ten cents per number, sending out a number every two weeks until complete. Persons ordering will address Rev. Wm. P. Miller, D.D., Birmingham, Ala.

Robert Louis Stevenson, author of "The New Arabian Nights," a book which has met with extraordinary popularity during the past year, has written for The Century a series of sketches, entitled "The Silverado Squatters," being a description of a curious camping experience of the author in a deserted California mining camp.

The editor of The Century has obtained permission to print extracts from the private journal kept by General Garfield during his trip to Europe in 1867. The material includes notes on a debate in the House of Commons, a day in Westminster Abbey, a sermon by Spurgeon, the British Museum, etc.

With the view of awakening a wider interest in the life, legend, and poetry of Dante, who is, to so many, little more than a great name, The Century has arranged for several papers, including an essay on the "Life of Dante," by Christina G. Rossetti, with papers on his "Exile," and on the "Portraits of Dante," by Sarah Freeman Clarke.

The scene of Mr. George W. Cable's new novel, "Dr. Sevier," is laid in New Orleans, the time being the eve of the late Civil war, a glimpse of the beginning of which is said to be given in the closing chapters. Besides the creole types, of which Mr. Cable is known as the originator in fiction, this story is said to present a variety of characters of different nationality, drawn with Mr. Cable's well known insight and sense of humor. The novel will be an important feature of the new volume of The Century, the first chapters appearing in the November number.

The Pulpit Treasury for September comes to our table freighted with rich stores of knowledge for pastors and others. The allotment of space to contributors from all the evangelical denominations is made with an impartial hand. Reformed, Baptist, Episcopal, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregationalist ... covering nearly the whole range of sermonic, pastoral, Christian privilege and work. Drs. Ormiston, Broadus, Black... give each a sermon. Leading Thoughts of Sermons are by Bishop Beckwith, Canon Fleming, Professor Ridgaway, Dr. Morrison, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, and Rev. O. P. Gifford. Other departments have articles by President Porter, of New Haven, Dr. Chambers, Rev. Paxton Hood, Drs. McArthur, Middleditch, Talmage, ... Hall, Hamilton, Gibson, Seelye, Bonar, Bevan, President Payne, of Delaware, Ohio, President Porter, of Queen's College, Belfast, and others. A striking likeness of Rev. Dr. Ormiston, with a sketch of his life, is given, and also a view of his church. Price $2.50 a year; to Clergymen $2.00. E. B. TREAT, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

Arresting the Progress of Consumption and Holding the Disease in Check.

The action of Compound Oxygen in arresting the progress of Consumption and holding the disease in check has been very marked under our Treatment. The following is one of many cases.

"WENTWORTH, N. S., July ..., 1882.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, Dear Sirs: I have been using Compound Oxygen ... eleven months with good results ... medies had failed; physicians gave me no encouragement, and seeing your advertisement I resolved to try it; but only as an experiment. When I had used it a few weeks a decided improvement was apparent. Night sweats, vomiting, after meals, raising of blood and other threatening symptoms were soon brought under control. My digestion improved; my appetite became good, indeed, my whole system seemed to undergo a change for the better during the first three weeks. During the time that has intervened the above-named symptoms have been held in check. I am much better at the present writing than I was a yea ago. It is with feelings of gratitude that I acknowledge the great and unexpected benefit derived from your Treatment. I am not well, I do not expect to get well, as one of my lungs is considerably broken. But your Treatment, by controlling and holding in check my worst symptoms, will certainly prolong life indefinitely.

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen" containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard St., Philada.

Editorial Notes.

Brother, what are you doing towards raising the benevolencies for conference. Now is the time to put in your best work. Delay is dangerous, work before the rainy season [illegible].

The [illegible] University, a State [illegible] for colored people, is announced to open its doors Oct. 1. [illegible] faculty has been appointed [illegible] L. A. Martinet will be [illegible] to record pupils. The [illegible] reports that Rev. [illegible] North [illegible].

[illegible] the miscegenation [illegible] of the color [illegible] in this country since the war. In a recent letter to a friend [illegible] views in the premises [illegible] like these: So far as I can see, the Negro has [illegible] rapidly, in all respects. [illegible] ever went further [illegible] in its first twenty years of freedom.

New Orleans has no public schools, and her people are [illegible] under all appeals to [illegible] sense of the calamity. It is not so elsewhere. Read this from the New York Sun:

[illegible] which [illegible] admirable [illegible] to [illegible] during the day [illegible] for study [illegible] them for [illegible] register [illegible] they open.

[illegible] General Gresham has [illegible] an order forbidding the delivery of money orders and registered letters to the New Orleans [illegible] through which the Louisiana Lottery Company has [illegible] its business, and [illegible] the prohibitory [illegible] Mr. Gresham [illegible] taken advice of counsel undoubtedly, and [illegible] prepared to go to the birth [illegible] in the suppression of [illegible]. The friends of [illegible] supporting Mr. Gresham [illegible].

[illegible] G. Haygood, of [illegible] has favored us with [illegible] delivered at [illegible] Chautauqua [illegible] of [illegible] and the [illegible] in the [illegible]. He will [illegible] on application. We have given our readers the benefit of the Monteagle speech, and we advise them to apply for a copy of all of Dr. Haygood's speeches, as they are replete with practical thoughts and information. They have made a profound impression, and continue to be the subject of Bourbon criticism.

The Mississippi Methodist, an M. E. Church South paper, speaks of Dr. Haygood as "generalissimo of negro philism" in the South, as has been manifested in his writings and late speeches at Monteagle and Chautauqua, all of which cater more particularly to the fanatical notions of those who know the least about the negro." We suppose General Haygood will accept his new title with equanimity. In leading the column of the progressive army of the new South he may rely upon the support of the colored troops, while our Mississippi brother will never catch a glimpse of the band wagon or the streaming banners. He will probably turn up in the hospital or commissary department.

A noticeable event, near the beginning of an era of cheaper letter postage, is the reduction of the subscription price of the New York Times, daily edition, from $10 to $6 per year, exclusive of the Sunday edition, or from $12 to $7.50 inclusive of the Sunday edition. This change was made on the 32d birthday of the really excellent and the best newspaper in the United States. There is no other first class, eight-page journal in the country sold at two cents per copy. The design of the founder, Henry J. Raymond, is thus fulfilled. The business and profits were never better, paper has become cheaper, perfected machinery has materially diminished the cost of making a newspaper. We cheerfully commend the Times as an able commentator on all phases of modern thought, of which every American may be proud. The cheapening of the price of such a paper is an act not only of business sagacity under the circumstances, but of importance in its promise of a wider dissemination of useful knowledge. As we welcome the telegraph, the railroad, and the electric light, so we may welcome the cheap daily newspaper which subordinates its columns to the best interests of society.

A Catholic priest of Assumption parish was tried before a justice on the charge of criminal intimacy with two young girls, inmates of a convent. It is asserted by the City Item that he made the justice believe that he used no violence, and he was discharged upon the ground that the act complained of, if proved, does not constitute a cause of action under our criminal laws. The testimony being deemed conclusive, the case was taken before Bishop Leray, the arraignment being signed by 340 parishioners. The Bishop remarked: "They tell me that this petition is signed by only negroes and Protestants." This was denied, there being few Protestants in the parish, and "the blacks had souls to save as well as the whites." The Bishop was surprised by this answer, and firmly refused to do anything. The result in this case demonstrates the need of amendment of our criminal laws, and a strange affection of race prejudice by a representative of the so-called "liberal" Leo XIII.

Chattanooga District Conference.

The Chattanooga district conference, after three days of earnest work, closed its session at Ooltewah, Aug. 31st.

The presiding elder, Rev. E. Provine, occupied the chair and made a good impression upon the body by his impartial, dignified and courteous manner. All the pastors were present, except [illegible]. The attendance of other members was fair. Rev. H. A. Brown, acted as secretary. He made quite an accurate record of the proceedings from day to day. The reports were mostly written, and, showed that, notwithstanidng the epidemic, much encouraging progress had been made. The literary exercises were varied and interesting. The speakers evinced a pretty thorough knowledge of the subjects discussed, and offered some hints worthy of more than passing notice.

Close attention was given by the conference to the Sunday-school interest, during the greater part of the last day. It is to be hoped that, as a result, increased efficiency will characterize the efforts that are to be made in the future, along this line. At the religious services held each evening several came forward to the anxious seat, and eight or nine professed conversion during the meeting. A large numbers of visitors, colored and white, were in attendance upon the various exercises and many expressed delight with what they saw and heard. Our church is evidently gaining ground in this portion of the field, not because of the separation of the conference on the color-line three years ago, but because of more zeal and intelligence in the ministry. One thing is needed now in order to make our achievemats permanent. A greater amount of the right sort of knowledge among the people. Ideas, as well as emotions are needed and must be encouraged. We must train as well as gather, if we would have our influence keep pace with our growing numbers. The more our people know of the past, of current events, of the church of their choice; its doctrines, discipline and peculiar usages, the more able they will be to bear forth our standard until every out-lying post is made to yield. The conference containly did a wise thing when it endorsed the SOUTHWESTERN and urged its circulation in every family within the bounds of the district. The weekly visit of the ADVOCATE would scatter light in the homes of the people and in the churches, so that in a short time it would be difficult to find a Methodist among us not tolerably well informed respecting the work of the church and matters in general. Before I conclude I must say that the generous people of Ooltewah deserve high praise for the hospitality shown toward the members of the conference while staying in their village. The next session of the conference will be held at Spring City.

Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Central German Conference instructed its delegates to the General Conference to vote for the re-election of Dr. Nast to the editorship of the Christliche Apologete, and the electoral conference instructed its delegates to vote for the re-election of Dr. Nast as editor of the Apologete, and Dr. Liebhart as editor of Haus und Herd.

Hot Springs District, Little Rock Conference.

Leaving Baber's Chapel, on Paraclifta Circuit, where I held Bro. Baber's quarterly confdrence, I went to Piney Grove, on the same circuit, where I was greeted by a fine audience Sept. 11th. Here I was met by Rev. H. H. McAlister, of Centre Point Circuit, who conducted me to Murfreesboro, where I held the Centre Point quarterly conferences, Sept. 15-16. We had a very pleasant quarterly conference, though the heavy rain kept many of the brethren away. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to a goodly number of persons. This quarter was a grand success on Centre Point Circuit. There were 20 conversions and 67 joined the church. The work on the circuit since conference is summed up as follows: 27 conversions, 72 accessions, 10 received into full connection from probation and about 20 baptisms. Bro. McAllister is a good man, an able preacher, and is universally esteemed by the members on Centre Point Circuit. He always did wear a pleasant countenance, but this time when I met him he wore a broader grin than usual, and when I interrogated him as to the cause learned that he had won the fairest prize of Centre Point. On the evening of Sept. 13, I solemnized the rite of matrimony between Rev. H. H. McAllister and Mary Etta Props, both of Centre Point. Many were the good wishes and congratulations the happy couple received that evening.

The second district conference for this year will convene at Baber's Chapel on Paraclifta Circuit, Nov. 8, at 10 o'clock a. m. The brethren attending district conference will be met at Fulton, on Nov. 7th and 8th, with conveyances to carry them to the chapel, which is twelve miles from the railroad. This conference was voted to be held at Washington, but it is impossible to hold it there, hence I moved it to Baber's Chapel. I hope there will be a full attendance of the members.

L. W. ELKINS, P. E.

The Hurgarian prime minister, at a banquet at Groswardein, said the difficulties involved in the Croatian question were not to be solved by street riots. It was necessary first to restore law and order, then the Diet would cooperate with the local authorities by adopting equitable and conciliatory measures. Jew baiting affected the honor of the fatherland, and the government was bound to protect the lives and property of all citizens regardless of class prejudice. The only distinction to be made should be between honest and dishonest people.

If you take the exceptional cases of men who are, for the sake of integrity and principle, persecuted and cast out, there is more joy in a prison than the palace that is over it. There was more joy on a cross than among the barbarous soldiers who had the power to crucify the Holy One. There is often more joy in men who are poor than among the rich. There is more joy in those who give their life and their everything than in those who are rich because they give nothing.

It is said that there is a Bible in every home in Iceland, not for ornament, but for use; and that these Bible-reading people have no use for theaters, prisons, sheriffs, artillery, or soldiery.

Why Public Schools are Closed.

Hon. E. H. Fay, State Superintendent of Public Schools, has written a letter to Ben P. Edmunds, President of the School Board at Sparta, La., as follows:

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 6th inst. reached me only last night, and I hasten to reply. You say people are inquiring of me why they cannot have public schools and ask me to state the reasons. This I will now do in as a few words as possible. First—The General Assembly of 1882 made little or on provision for their support, appropriating only $107,000 all told from July 1, 1882, to July 1, 1883, never before having appropriated less than $300,000 since the public school system was first established. Out of this aforesaid amount they unconstitutanally appropriated $30,000 per annum for two years to three universities, one at Baton Rouge and two in New Orleans. Your Superintendent enjoined this payment, but was non suited, the Supreme Court holding that he had no right to protect the interests of the public schools, even through he did it at his own personal expense. The apportionment of the State Superintendent, made Feb. 24, 1883, of the funds of 1882, was enjoined by the city School Board of New Orleans, because they were not given so much as the parishes were. Owing to an error in reporting "funds on hand," the Jund apportionment of 1882 had to be canceled, but New Orleans had succeeded in drawing some 22 cents par capita of educable children—some $13,000—before the error was reported to the Superintendent's office. True, this over-draft of New Orleans was out of the funds of 1881 and would never be collected to pay the rest of the State 22 cents per capita held up from New Orleans funds of 1882 and apportion to the rest of the State to make up the amount in July, 1882, by New Orleans. New Orleans claims that, notwithstading the over-draft of the fund of 1881, she is entitled to a pro rata share of the funds of 1882, hence the injunction restraining the Auditor from issuing warrants on the funds of 1882. The case was decided in the lower court in favor of the State Superintendent, and was appealed by the attorneys of the New Orleans School Board, returnable on Febary next. Your Superintendent has proposed that if they will relieve those funds already apportioned from their injuction, and allow them to be paid out to the State, he will hold up from the appropriation sufficient to satisfy their claim if it is decided to be a valid one by the Supreme Court in February, 1884, but he can get no reply from them. Your Superintendent has exhausted all means in his power to give what little appropriations have been made to the public schools of the State."

The Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South indorsed the action of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad withdrawing Sunday trains; also adopted resolutious opposing Sunday trains to camp meetings, and all traffic on the grounds on Sunday not absolutely necessary. The Conference appointed a committee to attend each meeting, and to report with the understanding that if Sabbath disobedience does not cease, the Church will prohibit the holding of camp meetings.

Nebraska Conference elected Prof. E. Thomson and L. F. Britt; lay delegates, are Levi Snell and D. C. Fleming. It opposed the change of the time limit for the pastorate.

Michigan Conference elected to General Conference, H. M. Joy, J. M. Reid, T. C. Jacokes, Isaac Taylor, and D. F. Barnes Lay, G. S. Clapp and W. H. Haze.

Burned Out.

FORSYTHE, Ga., Sept. 11.—A little after 1 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the Monroe Advertiser building, and Thomas's warehouse and other business houses connected therewith were destroyed. The office of the Monroe Advertiser was completely destroyed, not even a paper being saved. The fire was of incendiary origin, and it is the opinion of nearly everyone that the act was aimed especially at the Advertiser. Mr. Waterman, its publisher, is an enthusiast on negro education and prohibition questions. Temperance has grown to be his hobby. In every county in Georgia there has been agitation for local option, and in Monroe County especially it has assumed all the bitterness of a heated political campaign. Recent discourses of Dr. Haygood have also influenced the public against the colored people.

Mr. Waterman, being an advocate of higher law, fell under marked displeasure, and on more than one occasion he stood in danger of personal chastisement. There is no doubt that his enemies applied the torch to the building for the purpose of showing their disapproval of his course.

Our esteemed contemporary, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of Sept. 13, has some very kindly remarks about the The Sun. "There are many good things," says the ADVOCATE, "and some naughty things in every edition of The Sun, and in most of our great dailies also. But with all its faults it is a representative American newspaper."

With many thanks for the friendly expressions of this great Methodist journal, we are obliged to say that whenever there are any naughty things in The Sun they are not put there willingly, but as a part of the news of the day which we are compelled to publish. We could wish, indeed, the world was so good that nothing naughty should ever happen in it; but since the Providence which rules everything permits events of that kind to take place, a newspaper which undertakes to show the world as it is cannot refuse to publish them. In this office, however, the greatest care is exercised in printing all objectionable facts.

We wish for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE all the influence and all the prosperity that its conductors can desire.—N. Y. Sun.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean attributes the uniform success of the Northwestern University largely to its fortunate location. "Evanston," it says, "is a temperance town. The university charter interdicts the vending of intoxicating liquors within four miles of the institution, and if it did not, the overwhelming sentiment of the 7,000 citizens of this beautiful, peaceful and highly cultured 'City of Homes, Schools and Churches' would not suffer the opening of a single saloon, hotel bar, billiard hall, or house of ill repute."

In the Iowa conference a resolution opposed to the removal of the time limit was voted almost unanimously. Among the benevolent reports are the following: Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, $2,171, 17; Church Extension, $718.23; Tract, $98.92; Sunday school Union, $133.29; Freedmen's Aid, $536.14.

Shouting.

BY REV. L. M. HAGOOD.

Not long since a minister said that any one who did not believe in shouting had no religion. I think, as Christians, we should not put it so strong as that. I believe that every person who has "passed from death unto life" ought to be, and is privileged to give vent to pent up feelings of religious joy in a proper way at the proper time. It is right to shout in or out of the church if we know the definition for shouting before we begin. Webster gives as a definition for shouting: "A vehement and sudden outcry expressing joy, exultation or animated courage." This is a definition of shouting that the "regular shouter" will take exceptions to. An "amen," "hallelujah," "glory to God," or "my soul doth magnify the Lord," coming from a heart full of love for God and our fellow-man is objectionable in no Methodist church in the land, I think. Last week's issue of the SOUTHWESTERN had a clipping from the Baptist Advocate which said: "While some allowance must be made for some sort of moderate manifestation of the believer's joy, all this bench-breaking, frantic jumping, harsh screaming and idiotic antics are painfully unbecoming in God's house." Now the SOUTHWESTERN says, "The Baptist Advocate truly puts it." Now these papers are read by thousands of people and they ought to know whereof they speak. However, as the matter now stands, an inevitable controversy is at hand between these papers and the Bishops and ministers who indorse their sentiments and the "regular shouter" found in too many congregations. There are many reasons for this: (1) because what is called shouting by the "regular shouter" comes under the head of things painfully unbecoming in God's house; (2) because, in some localities, no man is a "powerful, mighty preacher" unless he can make the people 'cut up antic didos;' (3) because bread and water depend upon his ability as a [illegible] to enthuse the "regular shouter." So far as our own church is concerned her bishops and preachers of intelligence deprecate such unseemly conduct in the house of the Lord. There are churches where there are but few if any panes of glass in the windows, no comfortable seats for the people to sit on, and where planks in the floor have been broken through and the building otherwise defaced by these "regular shouters." Now, if such shouting is pleasing to God who dare stop it? If it is unseemly and wrong in the sight of God who dare tolerate it? Is not a pastor as much to blame for allowing such things in God's house, if displeasing to that God who said, "Keep thy foot when thou goest to the house of God," as if he allowed his members to attend theatres, horse-races, use grab-bags and have chance games at festivals? If this "bench-breaking, frantic jumping, harsh screaming, idiotic," hair-pulling, dress-tearing and yelping sort of affair is ever to be stopped now is the time. The facts are about these: Churches where such is carried on regularly are never much account inside or outside. My experience as a minister leads me to the following conclusions: 1st. Such churches never pay their pastor; 2d. Give very little if anything for the benevolences of the church; 3rd. Never have a church fit to worship in; 4th. Have but few members of intelligence who will take part in such services; 5th. But few church papers are read, and less paid for. From which it naturally follows, 1st. that these "regular shouters" don't consider it a duty to support the cause of Christ with their money; 2d, they don't consider it a duty to pay the preacher; 3rd, they think God meant nothing to them in the command, "let everything be done in decency and order;" 4th, that it is not their duty to take a church paper, read and pay for it; and obey the ten commandments. Somebody has said that the "regular shouter," in addition to the above, is more quarrelsome at home in the church and abroad, more high-tempered and harder to govern than seven men who are religious. No man who loves Christ's cause and is born from above will, I think, feel that it is wrong to shout at any proper time, if done in decency and order. If a man or woman is happy because of duty performed, let him or her shout. I, in conclusion, lift my voice in behalf of the preacher who is sent to shouting, non-pastor paying churches from every conference and "starves to death" every year on account of it; that pastor who takes the ague when the appointments are to be read for fear of being sent to such churches; that pastor who every year receives appointment to Flint Hill. Preachers who tolerate and encourage such things need never expect better appointments. If a preacher follows, instead of leading the people for fear he will not be called a "powerful, mighty preacher," he need not expect better things. The people call for a "Holy Ghost" preacher, i. e. a "regular shout-maker," and that he happens to be the man is no fault of the presiding elder. Preachers generally get about all they are entitled to so far as appointments go. The above named papers are right, and we ought to support them in crying down this unseemly conduct in God's house.

From San Antonio District.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to correct a mistake, which misled me, and others, as to the sitting of the Colored Men's National Convention. The Austin Citizen published a notice that it would convene Sept. 10th, at Louisville, Ky. I asked the editor to correct the mistake for the benefit of his readers, which he did in his last issue. I am obliged to change two of my September appointments and one of October. We held the fourth quarter in Fredericksburg and Hondo circuit, at Hondo Sept. 8-9. It was well attended, considering the sudden, unexpected change. The long drouth had changed some of our financial plans; however, the circuit is in a fine condition and good spirits. The $150 granted us by the Church Extension cheered and inspired the people to renewed exertion to finish their new chapel now in course of erection. The sound of the carpenter's hammer once begun will not cease till the house is completed. The evangelistic fire still burns on the altars of Christian hearts, and the conquering arm of the Redeemer is made bare, and the wheel of progress rolls slow but sure over these western worlds. Our fourth quarterly conference will be held here tomorrow, 15th and 16th. The church is getting along nicely, notwithstanding the hard, dry times; our neat little meeting house is receiving a prime coat of paint, and everything is looking refreshed; since the recent rainfall vegetation is springing forth as vigorously as it does in spring time; the wide-spread prairies are recarpeted with verdant life. Six weeks more of mild weather, gentle showers, and sunshine will remove tho fears of stockmen of the scarcity of grass and water. "Let the people praise God, for his mercy endureth forever." My largest subscription list for our conference school is here, but our financial calculations are based upon the seasons, as the occupations of the people are nearly of one kind. We trust we shall collect the maximum of $75. In passing through San Antonio I peeped into our church edifice undergoing repairs which gives it a beautiful appearance even in its unfinished state. It is to be completed by Sept. 25. Our fourth quarterly will be held at San Antonio, Oct. 13-14; and at Twin Hills Dec. 8-9. To tell our people that the business of the Colored Men's National Convention is to consider the vital interests of the colored people is a term not well understood generally. Yours, truly

Notes From Austin.

DEAR EDITOR—I am pleased to say the camp meeting which closed two weeks ago, conducted by myself and Rev. T. Wadkins, of the Simpson Tabernacle of this city, resulted in 31 conversions. I am also glad to inform the public that we are yet alive at Austin and are striving to build up the Master's cause, though we have worked against difficulties, having only a small school building to worship in that would not accommodate two-thirds of our congregation. But out of all the Lord has brought us by His love. Rev. M. A. Daugherty, of the Central M. E. Church of this city, knowing the condition of the work somewhat, by his and the elder's combined efforts, succeeded in getting a donation of $400 from the Church Extension Society, which has helped us out most wonderfully. Outside of pastor's and elder's support we have collected from the people $13 for building purposes. The walls of our magnificent two-story, stone building, which was superintended by Bro. J. W. Alexander, a steward of this church, are finished, the roof on and floor in basement. I feel free to speak in very high terms of Bros. J. W. Alexander, R. Dukes and W. G. Wilson, the building committee, who have worked hand in hand with the pastor in raising means and doing very near all in their power to push forward the work of the church. Last Sabbath was a day of great joy. We held services in the basement of the new church, and the Sunday-school met at 9 a. m., numbering 100 scholars. M. Henson, presiding elder of the San Antonio District, addressed the school, and at 11 a. m. preached a very able sermon—one long to be remembered—to a large congregation; at 3 p. m. the writer preached and baptized 17; 20 joined the church. At 8:30 p. m. Rev. A. M. Daugherty preached a sermon that made the hearts of those who heard him burn. The pastor's collection $71.35. The choir made delightful music; organists, Mr. J. Jackson and Miss Ida Norris. Pray for us.

Houston Seminary.

DEAR EDITOR.—Allow me to say that after a few weeks very pleasantly spent in the cool air of Kansas, we have returned to Houston ready for another year's work. The prospect is good for a large attendance of students this year. We hear of them from every direction. Houston Seminary will no doubt be full to overflowing. Oh, how badly we shall need more room. We had hoped the brethren would rally as soon as the cotton season came on, and put up an addition to the building, as well as put needed repairs on the one we already have.

Sunday, Sept. 16, we visited Mt. Vernon Church, Houston, and received payments of the old subscriptions amounting to $13.35, as follows: Salina Harris, $1; Ransom Sutton, $5; Maria Sutton, $2; A. Finley, 50c.; J. Combs, 25c.; Mrs. Caroline Jordan, 50c.; Ben. Dorsey, 50c.; Rosa Miles, $1.50; E. Van Hook, 50c. Bro. Roberts has been doing a grand work at Mt. Vernon. The house has been painted, his salary has been paid and, best of all, souls have been saved. Further repairs are in contemplation. The money received from Bro. Robert's church is the first received on subscription since last conference, except $1 from Bro. James Smith, of Beaumont. We have set a painter at work on the building with instructions to go as far as he can with the money. We trust other amounts will soon be added to this so that the much needed work can go on. The painter, Mr. McMillan, is willing to donate a dollar per day, in work, to the cause, if it can be done right away. Let the brethren hurry up with their subscription lists. We need the money now. Do not wait till conference. There are no doubt several who have received small sums for the school who are waiting till it can be increased. Let such go to the postoffice and pay three cents for a postal note for the amount and send the same to me at once. Then next Sunday call for more and send it likewise. Receipts will be returned promptly, and these you can take with you to conference.

A Dreadful Crime.

The habit of sending children out for a pail of beer to the saloons that are located so handy is getting to be so common in this city that it has almost ceased to attract notice.

"Sissy, take the pail and go for a pint of beer." said a woman to her six-year old daughter, a few days ago, in the hearing of the writer. She was a respectable woman as the world goes, hard at work at the wash-tub, and did not appear to think she had done anything out of the way. The little girl picked up the pail, took the seven cents from her mother, and accompained by her little brother, one year yonger, started for the saloon, closely followed by us. Several men were standing round the bar when the children entered, some of whom were half intoxicated. One was setting at the table dead drunk. Two loafers were quarreling with each other, hurling the most fearful oaths at each other, and making use of the most obscene language ever heard. The barkeeper was busy setting out drinks and making change, so for at least ten minutes he was unable to wait on the children. They seemed to be perfectly at home in the saloon, and familiar with everything they saw and heard. After hearing enough to corrupt and poison their whole lives, they got the pint of beer and left, spilling enough on the way to insure them a sound thrashing when they returned home.

A few years hence, when this mother wakes up to the fact that her daughter has already made rapid strides on the downward road, she will wonder how on earth her daughter came to be bad, when she was always such an honest woman and set her such an example of virtue. Then it will be too late to remedy the evil. The seed was sown on those trips to the saloons after beer. The fact of mother drinking made it easy for her to drink. Where was the harm. Would mother do anything wrong? Poor, mistaken mother! little do you dream of the seed you are sowing, and how your daughter will curse you with her dying breath for allowing her to drink.

This beer-pail and beer-pitcher is a dreadful curse. Never before was intemperance entering the homes and capturing the women and children as it is now, through the medium of the beer pitcher.

It could never be so unless beer was made our national drink as it it is,now. A few years ago when beer was unknown and distilled liquors only were drank; this habit of sending children to saloons was not thought of.

The use and manufacture of beer is called a compromise,and so it is—compromise with the devil, though bywhich thousands are made drunkards who would never have been so but for this pernicious practice.—Perpetual Revival.

The Chinese Exclusion.

Judge Potter, of the supreme court, has wisely suggested that the case involving the constitutionality of the anti-Chinese law be removed to the Federal courts. What is needed is a decision of the United States Supreme Court, and a speedy one. The point raised by the Chinamen who have begun proceedings is that the law of 1882, introducing a passport system and prohibiting the emigration of Chinese laborers for ten years, is a violation of the treaties with China, which in general terms, recognize the right to emigrate at will. The question involved seems to derive additional importance from the recent decision of Judges Lowell and Nelson in Boston that the act, having nominally been passed to carry out the treaties,must be interpreted so as not to be obnoxious to them. It will be remembered that the vetoed anti-Chinese bill stopped emigration for twenty years, and the reduction of the time to ten was supposed at the time to have removed this objection. The treaty of 1880, however, modifying the Burlingame treaty, and giving this country the right to "suspend" emigration temporarily. expressly required (Art. 1) that the suspension should be reasonable, which seems to raise the very interesting question whether the courts may not sweep the whole law from the statute book as one of the most unreasonable pieces of legislation ever enacted. Although as a general thing courts treat the decision of Congress on points like this as final, it is plain that there must be limits, and as a matter of fact the law was and always will be unreasonable. The passport system alone would seem to put the law in a good deal of danger.—Post.

The Miseries Of A Mean Man.

Sometimes I wonder what a mean man thinks when he goes to bed. When he turns out the light and lies down. When the darkness closes in about him and he is alone, and compelled to be honest with himself. And not a bright thought, not a generous impulse, not amanly act, not a word of blesseng, not a grateful look, comes to bless him again. Not a penny dropped into the outstretched palm of poverty, not the balm of a loving word dropped into an aching heart; no sunbeam of encouragement cast upon a struggling life; the strong right hand of fellowship reached out to help some fallen man to his feet—when none of these come to him as the "God bless you" of the departed day, how he must hate himself. How he must try to roll away from himself and sleep on the other side of the bed. When the only victory he can think of is some mean victory in which he has wronged a neighbor. No wonder he always sneers when he tries to smile. How pure and fair and good all the rest of the world must look to him, and how cheerless and dusty and dreary must his own path appear. Why, even one lone, isolated act of meanness is enough to scatter cracker crumbs in the bed of the average ordinary man, and what must be the feelings of a man whose whole life is given up to mean acts? When there is so much suffering and heartache and misery in the world anyhow, why should you add one pound of wickedness or sadness to the general burden? Do not be mean, my boy. Suffer injustice a thousand times rather than commit it once.—Burdette.

The lottery business, as conducted at Louisville, and protected by statue has been a stigma upon the fame of Kentucky. It has therefore been exceedingly grateful to the outside friends of that great commonwealth, as to the better portion of its own citizens, to mark the growth of public sentiment there against this evil. But New Orleans, next to Havana, has been the hot-bed in the New World of lottery frauds. The combinations there which have protected them and enriched themselves at the expense of the deluded poor and ignorant, have been very powerful in the affairs of the city and the State. For these reasons Congressmen should give cordial and prompt support to the bill introduced by Mr. Robertson, of Louisiana, which proposes to exclude from the mails all newspapers containing advertisements of lotteries or announcements of lottery drawings, and of books, phamphlets, and circulars giving infromation for the promotion of lotteries. When effective legislation is asked for or proposed, having for its purpose the suppression of these swindling schemes, a sense of justice should impel our national legislators to grant it promptly.—Western Christian Advocate.

Governmental Omnipotence.

One of the most striking features of the views of the various reformers who appear before the Senate Committee on Labor is the confidence these gentlemen seem to have in the power, virtue, judgment, and foresight of what they call the Government, and the vague notion that possesses them of the source of the actual authority of the real Government or its limitations. One of the witnesses, as they are called, suggested yesterday that the true solution of the labor question was to establish the principle that no man should have the absolute ownership of land, but only the use during his life of so much as was necessary to his comfort. Supposing, for an instant, that the voters who own real estate, either in farm land or in smaller or larger amounts in cities and villages, would consent to change the Constitution so that this idea could be carried out, it is plain that it would make of the temporary possessors of power in the Federal Government despots with whom no living ruler could be compared, for with them would lie the decision of how much land was needed for the comfort of each one of the population. Apart from the insane impracticability of the scheme, its author would erect in the Republic a system of the most arbitrary and untrammeled tyranny.

Another gentleman, who naively confessed that one of the greatest needs of the time was education, particularly with reference to political duties, gravely proposed a national law limiting the hours of labor to eight per day in every industry in the country, and providing that as machinery was improved further reductions in the hours of labor should be made. The theory on which this proposition rests is not a new one. It is that if the hours of labor be limited it will take more men to do the work, and so more men will be [illegible] wages. But this would be of no advantage unless wages could be kept as high for the smaller day's labor as for the greater. If an employer were paying $2 a day for 10 hours' work, and were compelled to accept [illegible] work per day, he would be able to pay but $1 60 [illegible] would have to employ [illegible] men where he formerly [illegible] 120 would get no more than the 100. There would be [illegible] but the old [illegible] per cent. [illegible] is not what [illegible] And [illegible] already [illegible] the power to cut down [illegible] labor as improvements are made in machinery [illegible] despotic power. Religion in Business.

The pressing need of our faith is not simply faithful evangelists to proclaim its doctrines, but legions of men consecrating their worldly vocations, witnessing to that truth on which much skepticism prevails, that Christianity, so received as to become an integral part of a man, is omnipotent to keep from him the evil, not by taking him out of the world, but by making him victorious over it. He is a most worthy disciple of Christ who, like Palissy, or Buxton, or Budgett, or Perthes, exhibits religion as "the right use of a man's whole self" as the one thing which gives dignity and nobility to what is in itself sordid and earthly—as the mainspring of earnest and successful strivings after loftier ends and a purer life—as the power outside of and within man, which, lifting up conduct in the individual, raises the community—and not as a state of mind mystical, and in active life unattainable, high up among things intangible, separated from contact with work-a-day life appropriate to Sabbath days and special hours, old age and death-beds. Every man who is "diligent in business serving the Lord," is a sermon brimful of the energies of life and truth, a witness to the comprehensiveness and adaptability of Christ's religion, a preacher of righteousness in scenes where none can preach so effectively or so well.—North British Review.

Our Country's Need.

No advanced thought, no mystical philosophy, no glittering abstractions, no swelling phrases about freedom—not even science, with all its marvellous inventions and discoveries—can help us much in sustaining this Republic. Still less can any Godless theories of creation, or any infidel attempts to rule out the Redeemer from His rightful supremacy in our hearts, afford us any hope of security. That way lies despair. Commonplace truth, old familiar teachings, the Ten Commandments, the Sermon on the Mount, the farewell address of Washington, honesty, virtue, patriotism, universal education, are what the world most needs in these days, and our own part of the world as any other part. Without these we are lost. With these, and with the blessing of God, which is sure to follow them, a second century of our republic may be confidently looked forward to; and those who shall gather on this field a hundred years hence, shall then exult, as we are now exulting, in the continued enjoyment of the free institutions bequeathed to us by our fathers, and in honoring the memories of those who have sustained them.—Winthrop at Yorktown.

Two ministers, meeting in a country store a young man recently married was asked to treat to cigars, which he did, and the ministers sat down for a quiet smoke. Just then a half drunken man entered, watched them a few minutes, and exclaimed, "Here's a pretty sample, two dominies puffing their cigars in a public store!" "I know it is a bad habit, and I've often wished I could give it up," apologized one minister, "You have my sympathy. I've some bad habits myself," replied the drunkard.

There is a good deal of talk in the papers and among citizens because a comely English woman is the wife of a Chinaman, and lives with him and helps him to do the washing. There is nothing about the affair to create talk. If she had married a lazy white man, who would get drunk on the money she earned, and beat her, instead of helping her to earn the money, there would not be much talk about it. Give the woman a chance. A Chinaman is not pretty, but he works like a steam engine and don't whip his wife.—Peck's Sun.

Something

BY ANNA M. MILLER.

Something for Christ;
Some soul to win
From the downward path
Of death and sin.
Some heart to cheer,
Some fear to quell;
O, may each day
Some blessing tell!

Something for Christ;
Some one to guide
To the open font
At the Saviour's side.
With earnest zeal
So tell of Him,
Something each day,
Who saves from sin.

Something for Christ
Some word of love
That may point the way
To heaven above,
That all, O Lord,
May feel and see
That we, each day,
Have been with Thee.

Something for Christ;
We would begin
This day, this hour,
Some work for Him.
The fields are white,
The laborers few;
Whate'er Thy will,
Lord, help us do.

The Truth.

"Lost your situation? How did it happen my boy?"

"Well, mother, you'll say it was all my own carelessness, I suppose. I was dusting the shelves in the store, and trying to hurry up matters, sent a lot of fruit jars smashing to the floor. Mr. Barton scolded and said he would not stand my blundering ways any longer, so I packed up and left."

His mother looked troubled.

"Don't mind, mother, I can get another situation soon, I know. But what shall I say if they ask me why I left the last one?"

"Tell the truth, James, of course, you wouldn't think of anything else."

"No; I only thought I'd keep it to myself. I'm afraid it may stand in my way."

"It never stands in one's way to do right, James, even though it may seem to."

He found it harder than he expected to get a new situation. He walked and inquired until one day something really seemed to be waiting for him. A young-looking man, in a clean, bright store, newly started, was in want of an assistant. Things looked very attractive, and so neat and dainty that James, fearing that a boy who had a record for carelessness, might not be wanted there, felt sorely tempted to conceal the truth. It was a long distance from the place from which he had been dismissed, and the chances was slight for a new employer hearing the truth. But he thought better of it and frankly told the circumstances which had led to his seeking the situation.

"I must say I have a great preference for having neat-handed careful people about me," said the man, good humoredly, "but I have heard that those who know their faults, and are honest enough to own them, are likely to mend them. Perhaps the very luck you have had may help you to be more careful."

"Indeed, sir, I will try very hard," said James, earnestly.

"Well, I always think well of a boy who tells the truth, even though it may seem to go against him. Good morning, uncle. Come in, sir."

He spoke to an elderly man who was entering the door, and James, turning, found himself face to face with his late employer.

"Oh, ho!" he said, looking at the boy, "are you hiring this young chap, Fred?"

"I havn't yet, sir."

"Well, I guess you might try him. If you can only," he added, laughing, "keep him from spilling all the wet goods and smashing the dry ones, you'll find him reliable in everything else. If you find you don't like him, I'll be willing to give him a trial myself."

"Oh, mother," said James, going home after having made an agreement with his new employer, after such a recommendation from his old one, "you were right, as you always are. It was telling the truth that got it for me. What if Mr. Barton had come in there just after I had been telling something that wasn't exactly so!"

"Truth is always best," said his mother; "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

An Effectual Punishment.

If practical jokers could suffer a little of the pain they are so fond of giving, it might cure them of their bad habit. Says a gentleman, speaking of the retributive justice which cured him.

I got one punishment when a boy I never forgot. When about ten years old I fancied I had a grudge against a lad of my own age, but much smaller. Catching him alone one morning, I dragged him to the big watering-trough and gave him a thorough ducking in the icy water. While he was spluttering and trying to escape, my father came upon the scene. A moment's silence, then—

"Go into the house, Dan," was all my father said.

I obeyed with a quaking heart. The morning passed, yet I was not called to account. Afternoon and evening dragged by; bedtime came and still not a word was said.

It wasn't exactly a pleasant day to me. I had ample time to think it over and realize the meanness of my act. I retired with an uneasy mind; it wasn't like father to pass such a thing unnoticed.

Could he have forgotten it? Could it be possible that for some unknown reasons he was; to use a boy's phrase, "winking at it?" I was puzzled.

The next morning the mystery was solved. As I entered the breakfast room father met me and taking my hand silently, led me out to the trough, where I underwent exactly such treatment as I'd given Jim.

The following day another "hair of the dog" was administered. On the third morning I tried to starve it out, and by going without breakfast get rid of the ducking.

"All in vain! Though when the bell rang I kept in my room, soon I heard father calling in a tone I dared not disobey:

"Dan! Dan!"

And I went down, only to be marched out to my icy bath.

For one week I was put through that watering trough every morning!

Father did not weaken the lesson by "words, idle words." And I guess he was right, for I did some thinking during those days.

That experience stuck by me and altered my course many a time in after life.—New York Examiner.

Perfection.

A friend called on Michael Angelo, who was finishing a statue. Some time afterwards, he called again; the sculptor was still at his work. His friend, looking at the figure, exclaimed:

"You have been idle since I saw you last."

"By no means," replied the sculptor. "I have retouched this part, and polished that; I have softened this feature, and brought out this muscle, I have given more expression to this lip, and more energy to this limb." "Well, well," said his friend, "but these are trifles." "It may be so," replied Angelo, "but recollect that trifles make perfection, and that perfection is no trifle."

A zealous preacher who loved smoking as well as he ought, in a heated discourse, exclaimed, aiming his rifle at some of his hearers. "Brethren, there is no sleeping car on the train to glory." One of the party whom he aimed to hit, responded, "No, brother, nor smoking car either."

Monarch Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs: The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger has been received. Have tested it and AM VERY MUCH PLEASED WITH IT. I think it will suit the people very well, at least it [illegible] to it very much. If I should order twenty-five Diggers, would the freight be cheaper in proportion than on a single Digger? How many will a car hold? Yours, &c., FRANK J. BARNES.

LOUDEN, Iowa, Aug. 12, 1883.
Monarch Mfg. Co.—Gentlemen: The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger arrived in good order. I have tried it and it works tip-top! Enclosed please find P. O. money-order for $30, for which send me two more Diggers as soon as possible. In regard to advertising you might advertise in the "Conservative" and "Advertiser" papers at Tipton. Send me some circulars for advertising. Yours truly, H. D. KEHMANN, Agent.

GENTRYVILLE, Spencer Co., Ind., Aug. 8, 1883.
Monarch Mfg. Co.—Dear Sirs: I just write you a few lines to let you know what success I have had with the Monarch Lightning Potato Digger. I received it to-day at 1:40 o'clock and thoroughly tested it in the potato field, and sold 3 Diggers in 3 hours. I will give the agency my whole time, and travel around the County with a wagon-load of Diggers. Please to have an advertisement put in the Rockport "Sentinel." I want to tell you that the Digger exceeded by far my anticipations, after giving it a hard test. The ground was very hard and dry and covered all over with grass, and the Digger worked splendid. I would not take $50 for it and do without it. Ten men can't pick up the potatoes fast enough. I have sent money by express. Ship 3 Diggers right away. Yours Respectfully, GEORGE HOLLIS.

NEW WATERFORD, Ohio, Aug. 22, 1883.
Monarch Mfg. Co., Chicago—Dear Sirs: I got your Digger and have been digging some potatoes with it. It digs well, although the ground is grassy. We are going to have a Fair in two weeks and it will be a good place to sell. Yours truly, HIRAM METZ.

The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger has been in use for the past five years, and we have been reliably informed that so great is the demand for this important farm implement that the factory is taxed to its utmost capacity.—From Indiana Farmer, Indianapolis, Ind., July 14, 1883.

Home.

There is a wide difference in the homes of this world. Some are not worthy of the name; they lack everything that goes to make home. There is no sympathy between the different members of the family, but coldness, a stiffness, particularly on the part of the father towards the children, which keeps the young and tender heart of the child from opening itself to the parent. There should be in every home a oneness of interest. The father should seek for, and in all laudable ways encourage the confidence of the child. He should not be cold, nor stiff, too old, too busy, nor too anything else that would tend to isolate him from his child. As a governor he should not relinquish any one of the rights which belong to him, but he is so to maintain his position as not to repel but to draw the hearts of the children towards him, so that they shall feel that everything should be told to the father. Home should be made a pleasant place; children demand amusements and must have them of one kind or another, and there [illegible] ways in which this [illegible] be met without the [illegible] are said. It is the [illegible] to see that their children are provided with suitable books and papers, and little family entertainments which tend to give home a charm to the child. Nor is it [illegible] in parents to bend a little and [illegible] into the diversions of their children, [illegible] assume happy than those who [illegible] they have [illegible] who will play with them. [illegible] may be a mistake, [illegible] in the home [illegible] more [illegible] more [illegible] strolling [illegible] the streets, patronizing the saloons and dens of shame and infamy. There is no quicker way to awaken jealousy and heart-burnings, than partiality in the treatment of children. God gives the parent all his children, and no one of them should be petted, praised and favored above another. Every such parent is sure to reap his reward. Sometimes it comes in the alienation and ruin of the neglected child, and sometimes in an unnatural development of ingratitude on the part of the favored child. Every effort should be made to strengthen the ties that unite parents and children, brothers [illegible] sisters. There [illegible] peace [illegible] the parents. A [illegible] home where [illegible]. If the father chooses one course of discipline, one system of government and the mother [illegible] of another, it will not be long before there will be in that house something more than mere confusion; there will not only be bitter disputations and fault-findings, but quarrelings. The parents who, by their own example encourage disagreements in their homes, darken the home circle and sin against their children. But above all let the restraints, the duties and the pleasures of religion have a [illegible] place. There can be no good home where there is no religion. As soon as the minds of the children can comprehend the truth of God it should be communicated to them. The nature of wrong doing and the consequences of sin should be early explained to them. The thought of the Lord's constant presence should be frequently referred to. His great love and tenderness should never be forgotten. The one great need in the homes of multitudes of our people is the simple, sanctifying, saving influence of the religion of the Bible. Let that have the prominence to which it is entitled and a good home follows.

Looking at Other' People's Sins.

Our neighbor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate has a correspondent who makes special mention of one Adam and Elizabeth Montez, who have been married sixty-four years, have twelve children, ninety-eight grand children, and more than one hundred great-grand children. Whereupon our brother exclaims, "So the Hannah spirit has not died out among them." He then proceeds to read a homily upon the sins of New England. Our sorrow is that so few New England people are ever to know anything about it. But we agree with him that "there is a field for missionary work," and we confess our surprise that none are sent. We have, in other years, spent some time in New England, and when we read "The old-fashioned large family of from six to a dozen children is an anomaly, an anachronism in New England. There are few Hannah's up there yearning and praying for the honor and glory of motherhood," we were sure that the writer was in the dark. We remember when we were "up there" that on one Thanksgiving Day we were invited to take dinner with a model New England family. When we came to sit down at the table there were present, besides the invited guests, the father and mother, and fifteen living children. Last February we spent a few days in New England, and at one of the meetings we attended we heard an intelligent Christian woman speak who, during her remarks said, that she was the mother of seventeen living children. There was the clearest evidence of Christian culture and Christian spirit, but no boast of the "Hannah spirit." We were born in New England, and have intimate relations with one of its families consisting of eleven children. For a number of years we have been in the South, and have an increasing faith in its permanent progress and prosperity, but we always contemplate with pride the schools, churches and homes of our early New England home. Go "up there," my brother, and while you will find granite hills a sterile soil, a rigorous climate, you will also find a land of homes ranging from one to eighteen children, and these homes well supplied with books and periodicals of the day. Your wonder will be how you could circulate such sweeping, undiscriminating slander against such a people. We make no apology for the sins of New England or Louisiana, but we suggest that it is time to stop this railing at the sins of others. Let us get the crooked stick out of our own eye, then we can assist in wiping the speck from our brother's.

Throne of Grace.

The throne of grace and the mercy seat are terms in frequent use among Christian people. They mean nearly one and the same thing. They refer to the cover of the ark of the covenant, before which the Jewish high priest with solemn ceremonial appeared on the great day of atonement. Bearing in his hand the golden bowl in which had been caught the streaming blood of the slain lamb, the high priest entered the holy of holies and sprinkled the blood upon and before the ark, and made supplication for the mercy and forgiving grace of God. Under the Jewish dispensation the high priest alone could enter the sacred place and approach the mercy seat; but now since Jesus, the great high priest of our profession, has entered heaven and removed the vail, the trembling soul may come boldly to a throne of grace and obtain help in every time of need. No matter what his complaints nor how unworthy, he may come with boldness and pour into the ear of his divine Lord whatever desire burdens his heart. At the throne of grace relief may be found, the way, warn, perplexed and weary traveler may find rest. When overwhelmed with the floods of sorrow, when no human ear is willing to listen, when no friendly hand grasps ours in cheering fellowship, when disappointment, weakness and pain are our portion, then what a privilege to go to a throne of grace.

"O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Every thing to God in prayer."

What Will Help.

The Bible abounds with apparent contradictions; as "When I am weak then am I strong" These are found in Christian experience as the harder one serves the Lord the easier it is to serve Him, the more complete the consecration the less conflict there is with self. The more earnest the spirit of devotion the less burdensome are Christian duties. The greater the sacrifices made for Christ and His church the less they are felt. Many Christians, failing to recognize this truth, content themselves with the lowest phases of a religious life and endure the performances of Christian duty instead of enjoying them. No doubt it is better to serve God thus than not to serve Him at all. There is a precious promise for those who only walk in the Christian journey. "They shall not faint." And yet there is "a more excellent way." Those who have made the full surrender and have crucified the old man shall not only not faint but shall not be weary in the midst of constant toil; they shall find rest to their soul. "They shall run and not be weary." To all of those who bring their tithes into the storehouse God pours out a blessing there is not room enough to receive; while those who wait upon the Lord shall not be earth-bound, creeping, walking or running children; no dismal clouds of doubt shall envelop them; but far above all they shall soar on eagles' wings, and the Sun of Righteousness shall constantly bathe them in his healing beams, and the overflowing of His love shall make every duty and all work an intense delight. It is ours to trust the Divine Father and step out upon his promises boldly, for they can never fail. Heaven and earth may pass away, but these are the rocks of God's eternal truth. On these we can stand and make our consecration complete. No one need hesitate. We can tax our strength to the utmost, and never grow faint nor become weary. Then we can love and serve the Lord with all of our might, mind and strength; and God's word for it, we shall not find His commandments grievous, but shall delight ourselves in His statutes, and rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

The Marshall Trouble.

A correspondent informs us that the whites who dispersed the meeting at Marshall, Texas, assembled to organize a colored militia company, were led by Hon. Wm. Polk, State Senator. The whites numbered 25 or 30, heavily armed, who drove them off, saying, "No nigger company shall be organized in this county." They told Col. Gregory they would hang him that night, as they had been looking for him a long time, but in the night when they came with rope and shackles Gregory had escaped. A general firing ensued, as previously reported. The Governor has been appealed to but has done nothing. Says the writer:

"What are we to do? We are here and left exposed to the cruel hands of men that make us do just what they want us to do. We can't vote unless we vote a Democratic ticket; and every colored man knows we are not Democrats. We can not enjoy our rights under the laws of the country. If we hold a club meeting the whites will arm and break it up. So what are we to do? It would be better to be in slavery, where our masters would protect us, than to be as we are, with not even a judge or a Governor to protect us. The colored men who met to organize the militia company did not have even pocket knives or any arms whatever. At this writing there are about 300 armed Democrats at the Courthouse. I don't know what will happen."

The writer desires this paper to give advice as to the course to be taken by the colored people of Marshall.

First, we urge upon them the fact that if the courts and officials of Texas are deaf to their wrongs, there is no other power in the land to interfere for the protection of their rights.

Second, it is as wrong to cast a ballot against one's convictions as it is to verbally utter a falsehood; to compel the casting of such ballots is highway robbery of a defenseless people by their enemies.

Third, if there is not a sign or ray of hope that the whites may relent in the pursuit of their unlawful policy, exercise your freeman's right, and seek some other county or State wherein the laws are enforced, and you may dwell unmolested.

Fourth, sign no contracts binding you to labor for a term of months in any place until assured that you will be allowed all the rights pertaining to American citizenship. You are not slaves, but freemen.

Fifth, those whose circumstances compel them to remain should fulfil every contract made to the letter; lead honest, Christian lives; go into the churches and identify themselves with the invincible hosts of the Lord, who will assuredly add the State of Texas to their peaceful domain. Justice will yet prevail in Marshall.

It is said of Gen. Abe Buford, the veteran turfman of Kentucky, that he cares but little about the pedigree of a horse if he cannot trot, but if he is a good trotter the further back he can trace his pedigree, through dame and sire, the more valuable the horse becomes to him. When the General was first converted he joined the Campbellites, but recently he has left them and joined the Episcopalians, because, as he says, the latter "had no pedigree." We think that it is bad for a church that has so little real Christian character in the present that it has to go back and marshal a lot of ancestral ghosts to make up for present deficiency. People in these days are not asking who was your grandfather or who was your grandmother; they care but little whether our blood flowed down to us through the veins of aristocratic ancestry or whether we got it out of the common herd. Men cannot do much business in this country who have nothing but a good pedigree to back them up. The piety, the respectability of our ancestors will be of little account to us in the conflicts of life. Those whose chief claim to respectability comes from the dead in such a period of the world's history as this are a sad blunder.
